Without the seaway, ore from the Labrador strike may be shipped down the eastern coast, further encouraging the movement of the steel industry.

With the seaway the ore could be moved, without costly transhipment, down the St. Lawrence into the Great Lakes ports, six of which rank among the 15 largest ports in the U.S.

Prof. Menefee said he was encouraged by the U.S. decision July 1 to allow New York States to enter into the co-operative building of a 2,200,000 horsepower development near Cornwall, Ont., and Massena, N.Y.

But the whole project is a vital necessity from the standpoint of economy and security, the professor said.

Menefee has little patience with the anti-seaway group, whose errors were reflected in the 43-40 vote in the U.S. Senate June 18 to recommit the proposal to the Senate foreign relations committee.

Not Real Objects

"They are not voicing their real objections. They are worried about competition but they say the seaway would be frozen over in winter months, would be vulnerable to enemy attack, that it costs too much or that it is not deep enough.

He pointed out that the Sault Ste. Marie Locks, that link Lake Superior with the lower lakes, are frozen four months of the year but still handle more traffic in eight months than is handled in the combined 12-month operation of the Suez, Panama and Kiel canals.

As for enemy attack, the same can be said of any such project, Menefee said. All are vulnerable in some degree. And the seaway's proposed 27-foot depth would handle 75 percent of the U.S. merchant marine.

Menefee said the U.S. government, part of the Congress and probably a good share of the people favor the project. But the move is stalled by a minority group led by railroad and port organizations.

Railroad Sentiment

Canadian railroad sentiment differs from the American. Take the statement by Donald Gordon, president of the Canadian National Railways:

"Whatever tends to open Canada and help it to grow is good for this railroad."

Prof. Menefee said Americans must consider their "complacency" as a disease reaching further than the St. Lawrence seaway.

"We've aways thought of Canada as a small nation under our wing. But that situation has changed in the last 15 years. It is a rich, enthusiastic, rapidly-growing nation that can and will move on by itself."

"If you'll look at the record," Menefee said, "you'll find Canada has been a fine friend and always very decent toward us. They are a smart people and they are going ahead. If we don't want to go along in co-operation, it will be to our distinct disadvantage."

RETURNS HOME TO DIE

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—George Richardson, 78, left Toronto at the beginning of the month to return to the village of Stamford near here, where he had spent his boyhood days. He told friends he felt better as soon as he arrived. Yesterday he was found dead in a small cabin in which he had been allowed to sleep for the last two weeks.

BOY ELECTROCUTED

KITCHENER (CP) — Leonard Snider, 9, was electrocuted yesterday when he touched a 1,500-volt radial line abovez a railway boxcar. The boy's body was found on top of the freight car by his brother, Merlyn, 12. Police said they believe the boy may have been reaching for a cherry tree when he touched the wire.

Russian Belittles U.S. Inventive Achievements

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Russia told the U.N. yesterday she has enriched world culture with such inventions as the radio, while the United States has created nothing but items like the waffle iron and the electric chair.

The Soviet claim was delivered before the U.N. Economic and Social Council by Soviet delegate G. K. Arkadyev.

Stung by a U.S. statement two days ago that Russia had "usurped" the fruits of western "inventiveness," he listed a score of purported Russian achievements.

He started with the claim that Popv invented the radio, then cited the discovery of periodic law in physics and other Soviet "achievements."

Canadian Commander Given Exceptional Welcome by Red POW During Visit to Camp

KOJE ISLAND, Korea (CP)—There's no doubt who now is bossing Koje Island, scene recently of rioting by communist prisoners of war.

Brig. M. P. Bogert, commander of the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade, and Lt.-Col. Ed McNaughton, commander of the 1st Regiment, Royal Horse Artillery, visited Canadian troops on Koje just before they were recalled for duty with the brigade.

The things Bogert and McNaughton did and had happen to them would have been unthinkable on the rebellious prison island a month before.

They walked unarmed into the centre of the enclosure guarded by "B" Company of the 1st battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment and "B" Company of the King's Shropshire Light Infantry.

Cheered by P. O. W.'s

The Chinese prisoners cheered them, delivered speeches of welcome and farewell, sang songs in their honor and decked the brigadier with a hand-made garland of paper flowers.

The Canadian commander was paid unstinted compliments by Brig. Haydon L. Boatner, the Island's commanding general, for the R. C. R. men's performance here under leadership of Maj. E. L. Cohen of Pembroke, Ont., and Ottawa

Boatner said the discipline and bearing of Canadian and British soldiers had won the unreserved respect and admiration of the prisoners, who had started out by mocking their arms drill. The commonwealth troops' standards had not been matched by the rest of the island's soldiery, who nontheless by normal standards were good.

At the Commonwealth enclosure, the prisoners had been advised of the impending visit and had arranged a sports program. As Cohen escorted the party through the gate, the prisoners' spokesman said in excellent English that it was a high honor to be inspected by "the Canadian general."

Song of Welcome

Clapping and shouting continued as Bogert sat down to watch the events. Then the prisoners sang a non-Communist song of welcome. A compound leader presented a paper-flower garland on behalf of all the prisoners.

Bogert inspected the prisoners' quarters, kitchens and other compound installations, inquiring especially into the handling of rations. He was particularly concerned to see that controls existed to make sure compound leaders could not withhold food from their fellow-prisoners as a means of punishment.

An evidence of the R. R. C. influence on the Chinese was the amount of stonework going on in the laying out of paths, borders and compound signs.

Said the brigadier afterwards: "The thing is extraordinary—and yet in the light of everything that's happened there, incredible. The whole spirit of good and at the same time there's no question about who's running the show."

RAWDON

Two-by-Two Club Conducts Service At United Church

RAWDON.—Last Sunday evening, Mount Pleasant, Rawdon United Church was well filled for a special church service sponsored by the Two-by-Two Club and open to everyone at Mount Pleasant.

Despite the terrific heat, the seating capacity was nearly all taken on this special occasion. About 70 Mount Pleasant folks which included 32 club members and approximately 100 visitors, were in attendance.

Guest Speaker

Rev. Boyd J. Beckel, pastor of Ivanhoe circuit, and a former worshipper at Mount Pleasant, during the eight years' pastorate on Rawdon circuit of his father, the late James E. Beckel, was guest speaker. Boyd based his message on the Bible text, "Forgive us our trespasses". He graphically pictured the Pharisee and the Publican as they prayed in the temple long ago and connected it with present day living when even now there are folks who are thankful that they are "not as other men are", and others who ask God to be merciful "as they are sinners" and know they have committed various misdeeds.

Mr. Albert Hircock and his his daughter, of Cobourg, were guest vocalists, and blended their voices in two duets, "Whispering Hope", and "Come Let Us Sing of a Wonderful Love".

A choir of 11 voices sang, "Christ the Good Shepherd My Soul Will Keep", with Mrs. Kenneth Weaver as accompanist.

The edifice was brightened with vases and baskets of summer blooms and flowering plants.

Messrs. Kenneth Weaver and Orne Sharp were ushers and passed out printed programs.

Messrs. Harry McAdam, Burton Sharpe, Frank Spencer Jr., and Herbert Smith gathered the offering which was dedicated with "We Give Thee But Thine Own".

Mr. Mac Sharp, president of the club, presided throughout the service, extending a welcome to all and introducing and thanking the speaker and vocalists.

Mr. Lindsay McKeown read the Bible lesson found in Luke 18: the congregational hymns were, "The Church's One Foundation". "Breathe on Me, Breath of God", and "The Day Thou Gavest".

The officers of the Two-by-Two clubs are, past presidents, Eric and Ruby Summers; presidents, Mac and Muriel Sharp; vice-presidents, Harry and Gladys McAdam; secretaries, Burton and Marion Sharpe; treasurers, Frank and Merle Spencer.

Drive-Ins Edge Robb-Royals 10-9

Roger Hill's double in the 7th inning scoring two runs, gave the Drive-In bantams a 10-9 victory over Robb Royals and undisputed possession of first place in the league standing last night.

Royals led throughout the game scoring singles in the second and third, four in the fourth and singles in the fifth and sixth. Drive-Ins trailing by an 8-4 score, blasted out four runs to tie the pastime in the sixth. Robbs took a one run lead in the seventh, and then Hill banged out his double with two aboard to win the game.

Joe Ryan, a peewee, went the route for the winners giving up 10 hits while Crji, Royals hurler was nicked for an even dozen over the seven innings stretch. Royals erred three times while the Drive-Ins kicked the ball around on nine occasions.

Drive-Ins lead Robb's by one point. Both teams have two games to play in the schedule. The team finishing on top of the standing at the end of the schedule will represent the city in the OBA bantam playdowns.

Sport in Brief

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bob Moran, president of the Argonaut Football Club, Toronto's entry in the Big Four league, says he has been advised by Calgary Stampeders that they will definitely not release Royal Copeland.

Moran said in Toronto yesterday he will force the issue by asking Copeland to sign an Argo playing certificate and then turn the matter over to the Canadian Rugby Union

He reported:

"Calgary hasn't a leg to stand on. We have a letter dated June 19, 1952, which clearly states that Copeland had an automatic release clause in his contract."

Copeland will be among the 65 players expected to turn out for Argos' first practice session tonight.

Alf Pike, coach of Guelph Biltmores, 1952 Memorial Cup champions, signed another two-year contract with the junior A farm club of New York Rangers at Guelph yesterday.

Roy Mason, the team manager, said Pike's signing ended rumors that the ex-National Hockey League star would take a coaching position elsewhere.

Pike has coached the Biltmores for the last three season. The first year they won the Ontario Hockey Association junior A title and were forced out in post-season league playoffs the next. They won the Memorial Cup this spring.

The New York State Racing Commission yesterday revoked the owners' licence of Louis Tufano on charges the New York contractor instructed his jockeys not to try and win with the horse Gondolier at Belmont Park May 12 and again May 29.

Al Rosen, Cleveland's star third baseman, is playing despite a jammed right thumb and a painful bruise on his right foot that has slowed him to a walk. He hasn't had the foot X-rayed because, he said in New York yesterday, "the pictures might show a break and then I would have to go on the sidelines."

Calumet farm's champion filly, Real Delight, ridden by Jockey Eddie Arcaro, won the $46,050 Modesty Stakes by a nose at Chicago's Arlington Park yesterday to capture her seventh consecutive Stakes victory of the season.

Gordon Richards, Britain's greatest jockey, brought home two more winners yesterday to bring his lifetime total to 4,500. He has been riding more than 25 years.

Cary Middlecoff, the Memphis dentist who works where other dentists relax, on the fairways, has captured golf's money-winning lead from Jack Burke. Middlecoff's latest surge, official P.G.A. statistics show, raised his 1952 earnings to $13,506, topping Burke's $12,970. Burke had been the top cash-collector since late last winter.

Arthur Wirtz Jr., executive vice-president of the Chicago Stadium Corporation, paid a $200 fine and $10 costs at Chicago yesterday on the city's complaint that he permitted overcrowding of the stadiuim during the Sugar Ray Robinson-Rocky Graziano fight April 16.

Mimico Downs Fergus Thistles

Toronto (CP) —Mimico Mountaineers moved into second place in the Ontario Lacrosse Association's senior A circuit last night when they defeated Fergus Thistles 30-16.

Nag Drops Dead, Jockey Hurt

VANCOUVER (CP)—Jockey Hery Matthews was taken to hospital last night after being thrown to the ground when his mount dropped dead at Lansdowne Race Track. Hospital authorities said his condition is "good."

Matthews was aboard Briar Pat in the fourth race when the gelding dropped dead at the head of the stretch. The seven-year-old chestnut, owned and trained by George Maltby, was running last when the accident occurred. It had one second in five races this year.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

MONARCHS HERE TONIGHT!

Kingston Monarchs currently tied for second place with the Peterborough Petes in the Central Ontario Baseball League, are tonight's guests of the Redmen at Exhibition Park. The Monarchs edged our side in a hectic battle in Redenville last week and the McCabemen are out to avenge that setback. They have spaced three COBL setbacks with an interleague win, and with the Monarchs rarin' to get back into undisputed possession of second slot, tonight's joust should produce some neat baseball. The Monarchs - Peterborough game last night was postponed due to the Kingston club's inability to field a team.

A GOOD SEASON

The Belleville District Softball League wound up its 1952 official schedule in a blaze of glory on Saturday last. While it was more or less of a whirlwind schedule with anywhere from one to four games played six nights of the week, the brand of the game as dished up to the fans was such that it did not cloy nor detract from interest.

According to the "Martin Kane" of the loop whose final standing statistics are published in another column of this page, four teams wound up in first and second places in the ten-squad league tied up tighter than a peace talk in Korea.

The statistical whodunit reveals that the CNR Diesels and the Glen Roy juniors said to be one of the best beardless squads turned out in this village in many a moon, are perched atop the highest rung of the league ladder while in second slot Frankford and Point Anne are looking at each other with "whatta-you-doing-here?" glances.

That speaks well for the calibre of softball served up to the fans this season. The other squads seem to have paired off for some reason or other. The RCAF Flyers are followed closely by Northern Electric, then occurs a gap and Wooler and Crawfords are fairly close to each other. Down below CNR "AA's" and Belleville Motor Car are brothers in the cellar spot.

All-in-all it has been one of the best seasons in the history of the league, and especially in view of the fact that this year the loop extended its activities to embrace out-of-town teams and adjust its name to that of a "district" organization. It was a good move, a healthy one for the loop, for not only did it provide an outlet for activity for the district squads but gave fandom a chance to see new players and teams in action.

True while some of the games played have resulted in somewhat lop-sided scores, the majority have been hard-fought close affairs with plenty of fan-pleasing action. The closeness of the four top teams is evidence of this. There have been few if any untoward incidents during the season, and if this corner's memory is correct only one occurred that called for executive action — and this did not affect a player or team. President Don Lee, secretary Cy Barriage, coaches, managers and players should take a well-deserved bow for co-operative action in giving softball a tremendous boost toward the high status it formerly held in this city.

But it's not all over yet. Not by a long shot. Comes the playoffs and the chips-down games when teams and players are, or should be at their best. The playoffs, as in other years, should be productive of the best softball of the season, and fans, we believe will see some stirring battles before the ultimate champions are decorated with the respective laurel wreaths.

The Glen Roy juniors, naturally, will represent the city in the Ontario Amateur Softball Association junior "A" playdowns. And the youngsters, a fast, clever, hard-hitting squad should make themselves felt in the tough trail to the title.

What should be a bitter hard-fought series is that between the CNR "A's" and the Point Anne squad for the right to represent the city in the Intermediate "A" playdowns. Forget about that league standing. That's water under the bridge. When the Diesels and the Ox Pointers go to the playoff mat, all friendship will cease in what should be a tough battling playoff.

Six teams will battle for the city title. These include Glen Roy juniors, CNR Diesels, Frankford, Point Anne, RCAF and Wooler. Details regarding series will be announced later.

The Northern Electric team, due to plant holidays has been granted a bye into the "AA" section finals. They dropped out of the city league titular series due to holiday activity, with their place taken by the Wooler squad. In the "AA" playoffs CNR "AA's" meet Belleville Motor Car in a two-of-three series, the winner clashing with Crawfords Metals in a similar series. The winner of the semi-final tangles with Northern Electric in a best-of-five for the sectional title. The winner also will represent the city in the Intermediate "AA" playdowns.

KINGSTON JUNIORS HERE

The "Ole Cuffer" comes to columnar bat with the announcement that his juvenile baseballers, current leaders in the Midget League will play an exhibition tilt with a Kingston juvenile team at the Fair grounds Friday night starting at 6.30. "The Cuff" has rounded his youngsters into good shape and they boast a record thus far of eight wins and two losses. Billy Mitts, Trenton hurling star or young Billy Dall, recently returned from Shallow Lake will essay the mound chore. "Cuffer's Colts" will represent the city in OBA juvenile playdowns and Friday night's game should be a severe test for them. And a little support from the stands won't do any harm.

EXHIBITION

Kingston Alcans, currently leading the Senior B Kingston City Softball League will be guests of the CNR A's, league leaders of the Belleville and District Softball League in an exhibition game to be played at the CNR Recreation Field, Friday, July 18th. The Alcans, it is recalled, is the team that eliminated the Glen Roys in the first round OASA playdowns last year. Should be a right lusty battle and worth the price of admission.

WINS GOLF TOURNEY

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Mrs. Clayton Selkirk of Peterborough yesterday won the annual Marjory Degraw trophy tournament played at the Peterborough Glf Club.

Mrs. Joseph Watson of Peterborough was second while Mrs. R. Bates of Trenton finished third. Ninety-two women golfers, representing 16 Ontario clubs, competed.

Yankee Stadium, grave yard of Cleveland pennant drives in the past, is haunting the Indians again.

The Tribe startled the baseball world by winning their first three games there this year. This almost matched their victory total for the previous two seasons during which they managed to win only five of 17 games there.

Drop Doubleheader

But Cleveland's dreams of a happy hunting ground in the Stadium were rudely shattered yesterday. The Indians missed an opportunity virtually to tie the Yanks for first place by dropping both ends of a doubleheader, 8-7 in 10 innings and 7-4.

The long twin bill, started in the glaring sun and finished under the lights, was the key point of the five-game series which will be completed today with a twi-night doubleheader.

Early Wynn opened the series Tuesday night by pitching the Indians to a 7-3 victory. That cut the Yanks' American League lead to 2½ games. A sweep yesterday would have pulled the Indians to within a half-game, but instead the Indians were sent reeling 4½ games off the pace.

The Yanks were forced to come from behind to win the opener. Yogi Berra tied the score at 7-7 in the eighth inning with a two-run homer, his 20th of the season, and Hank Bauer broke it up by singling home rookie Kal Segrist from second base in the 10th.

Cleveland hopped on Johnny Sain for five runs in the third inning, two on a homer by pitcher Bob Lemon. Lemon was forced to retire after six innings because of the heat but Mickey Harris, Lou Brissie and Mike Garcia failed to protect his 6-4 lead.

Second Place Shaky

The Yanks won the nightcap with a four-run rally in the seventh against Bob Feller. Gil McDougald's three-run homer was the big blow.

The defeats also endangered Cleveland's grip on second place as the third-place Boston Red Sox defeated Chicago White Sox 7-3 to move within a half-game of the Tribe.

Southpaw Bill Wight pitched Detroit Tigers to a 9-0 victory over Washington in the only other American League game. A twi-night doubleheader between Philadelphia and St. Louis was rained out.

Brooklyn maintained its five-game lead in the National League, downing Cincinnati 5-3, while the runner-up New York Giants eked out an 8-7 victory over St. Louis Cardinals in 10 innings. In other games, Philadelphia edged Pittsburgh 8-7 and Chicago tripped Boston 3-2 in 13 innings.

Three first-inning errors by Red catcher Andy Seminick helped the Dodgers score two runs and set a league record for most errors in one inning by a catcher.

Brundage Named Olympic Head

HELSINKI (AP)—Avery Brundage of Chicago yesterday was elected president of the International Olympic Committee over Lord Burghley of England by a vote of 30 to 17.

He is the first American to head the world organization. He succeeds J. Sigfrid Edstrom of Sweden, who retires Sept. 1.

"The dangers confronting the Olympic Games are giganticism, excessive nationalism, and the lowering of amateur standards," Brundage told the committee after his election.

Armand Massard of France was elected Olympic vice-president, succeeding Brundage. Again the opponent was Lord Burghley, but this time the vote was 25 to 23.

At last count there were 68 Canadian firms engaged in leather tanning.

Green Fashions One-Hitter In Glen Roys Win

By JACK BRETT

The blow fell in the ninth inning, after Green had held the AA's to a scoreless, hitless, eight innings. With one man out, a man on base on a walk, Bobby pitched the "hit" ball to Doug Rogers who connected sending it in a hard drive through centre field for a single. Pierce aboard second scored on the hit for the AA's only run.

Degray touched off the scoring for Glen Roy in the first frame as the CNR fielder bobbled his fly and Barclay aboard second on a single and a passed ball scored on the error. Hull doubled knocking in Degray and crossed the plate himself on the next two men's singles for the 3-0 score.

Wannamaker scored the fourth run in the third on a single and two errors. Barclay's triple was good in the fourth as the centre fielder erred to make it 5-0. He did it again in the sixth with a hard drive to left field for a home run to give the Juniors a 6-0 edge.

In the seventh, Carr singled and scored on two errors. Two singles in the eighth counted as the batmen scored on errors for the 9-0 score.

Bobby Green struck out 11 men and walked eight.

Harry Baldwin went the route for the AA's, walking two, striking out three and giving up 17 hits for nine runs.

Chuck Davey Defeats Carmen Basilio But Takes Brutal Beating En Route

CHICAGO (CP) — Unbeaten Chuck Davey wiped out a blemish on his record last night by whipping Carmen Basilio in a blistering 10-round welterweight battle, but suffered enough damage to keep him out of the ring for the next two months.

The Detroit school teacher took a brutal beating about both eyes, over the rugged Canastota, N.Y., belter who held him to a disputed draw in Syracuse, N.Y., two months ago.

This time, Davey gave a boxing lesson most of the way to Basilio, but when it was over, the winner looked as if he had been caught in a dark alley by an accurate bat-wielder.

Davey's white trunks looked like a slaughter-house apron from spurts of blood caused when the fast-finishing Basilio slashed open a cut near the left eye in the eighth round and a gaping slit on the right eye-lid in the ninth. Davey claimed he was butted in the ninth.

Basilio won the final two rounds and the patched-up Davey needed all of his boxing skill to avoid serious last-round trouble. The first round was even, the rest going to Davey.

It took three stitches to close Davey's right eye gash. Davey's manager, Hec Knowles, agreed Chuck needed at least a month properly to heal both eye wounds.

Another month of condition, he said, would follow before Davey could take on his next opponent.

Ticket Mistake Nets Bettor $13,429 In Aqueduct Park Daily Double

By JOE FALLS

NEW YORK (AP)—If you read the sports pages closely last week you hrobably saw t. If you didn't, you missed a pip.

Speak about luck or fate. Just get this:

An unidentified bettor at Aqueduct wanted two $10 tickets on numbers 10-3 in the daily double. But he got 11-3 by mistake.

So the 11-3 combo won, paying a whopping $1,342.90 for $2. That gave this guy $13,429—and all because of a mistake.

You Can't Win

Well, this brought to mind another racetrack yarn that J. L. MacAskill told us recently. Fuzzy is a teletype operator in the New York office of The Associated Press.

It seems one day Fuzzy was—well, let's let him tell it:

"There's an old saying that there's a thousand ways for a guy to lose his money on a nag. This, I think, should top 'em all.

"Horace Stoneham, president of the New York Giants, had this horse, Dry Moon. He was a consistent runner. So this day I put two bucks on his nose and he wins easy, by two or three lengths.

"But after about five minutes his number wasn't posed as the winner. Most of the spectators were mystified because no foul had been committed.

"A short while later, it was announced that Dry Moon was disqualified because his jockey, Ted Rice, had died—eventually of a heart attack—after crossing the finish line.

"You see, he couldn't weigh out, which is one of the rules, so the officials were forced to make the disqualification."

It's Easy

This guy—we'll call him Joe—was a red-hot divot digger. Every chance he'd get, he'd sneak away from his house and play 18, 36 and 54 holes a day.

One morning, his wife decided to go along, and see what this game's all about.

He wasn't too happy but made the best of it. Since she was with him, he thought he'd show her the fine points of the game.

At the first tee, he showed her how to hold the club, how to stand, how to swing, and just about everything there is to know about hitting a golf ball.

"Just aim for that little red flag down the middle," he told her. "See it?"

It was about 400 yards away.

To which, Joe's wife wound up—and the ball flew down the fairway, straight as an arrow, bounced twice and rolled to a stop just two inches from the cup.

They walked up to it, Joe shaking his head in disbelief, and Mrs. Blotz said:

"Now what do I do?"

"Just tap it in the hole," Joe said.

"Why," she screamed, "didn't you tell me that before!"

WHIPPER WATSON

LORD ATHOL LAYTON

Don't be fooled by the smiles on the handsome pusses of the two Adonises shown above. Behind them lurks grim determination to settle a lengthy feud once and for all on Friday night in Memorial Arena. Yup, it's the "Whip" and the "Clip" who will renew their personal hostilities after a week's layoff, and believe it or not, the fire has not dimmed the least. 'Twill be a fast and furious melee since M'lud, Layton after disposing of Hans Hermann last week, figures he can snatch the Humpah title from the handsome noggin of the Whip. Dangerous Dan O'Connor is back again, the ole roughie, to mix matters with Warren Bockwinkle while Roberto Pico meets Bill Stack.

Canada's Olympic Track Chances Are Studded With Uncertainties

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (AP)—Canada's chances in track and field and rowing are studded with uncertainties as the hours tick off before the opening of the Olympic Games. Both sports start their 15-day program this week-end and the oarsmen are training desperately hard while the tracksters are tapering off.

Jim Lavery of Calgary and Shirley Eckel of Toronto are the biggest question marks on the track team. Both have leg injuries but their coaches are optimistic they'll be all right before 8,000 athletes from 69 countries start competition.

Lavery is the crux of the men's 400 and 1,600-metres relay team and he is posing a big problem with the recurrence of the old injury to his right leg. He will be scratched from the 400-metre relay and either Pete Sutton of Toronto or Bob Hutchinson of Victoria will take his place with Doug Clement and Jack Hutchins of Vancouver and Jack Carroll of Verdun, Quee., in the other legs of the 1,600 relay.

Others Okay

The other members of the men's team are in good condition with Clement, centre of a controversy when he was chosen for the team, and Hutchins bearing down hard. Clement is anxious to show his critics he deserved a place on the team and is one of the hardest workers on the track.

The coaches figure Hutchins has a good chance to go through to the final in the 800. The Canadian will have tough opposition but is looked upon to finish fifth or sixth.

Luella Law of Vancouver has been picked for the second leg of the 400-metre relay with Eleanor McKenzie, also of Vancouver, as anchor. The other two spots are still a toss-up among Miss Eckel, Tiny O'Halloran of Toronto and Rosella Thorne of Montreal.

Miss Eckel has not been over the hurdles this week and is causing some worry but officials are optimistic that she'll go all out today. Meanwhile, Alice Whitty of Vancouver is consistently high-jumping within a fraction of five feet, two inches, and Dawn Josephs of Victoria, without much difficulty, is going 18 feet in the broad-jump.

Oarsmen Out

The Hamilton Leander Club's four-oared crew was out most of the day in its new boat and rapidly getting used to it. The Argonaut eight is still training in the shell lent by the Finnish club while other members of the team work around the clock to fix up the boat from Stockholm, borrowed to replace the one smashed in a North Atlantic storm en route from Canada.

Both the Leanders and the Argonauts have been held back considerably due to the lack of proper boats for training since their arrival and they'll do well to place in the first six during their events.

It was 9 p.m. curfew for the basketball team last night. They meet Egypt in a preliminary round this afternoon. If they win they'll be into the Olympic tournament proper, but if they lose it means at least one more game in the double elimination tournament.

The per capita consumption of bakers bread in Canada rose from 89.4 pounds in 1928 to 111.9 in 1946. Then it dropped to 100.8 pounds in 1950.

Leonard, Vancouver Star, Among Three Tied for Top in Canadian Open

By FRASER MACDOUGALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—Canadian golfers, off to a running start yesterday in the $15,000 Canadian Open golf championship, have to show today whether they can stand the relentless pressure of tournament play.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver, for years this country's big hope for the national golf title United States players have dominated since 1915, led a squad of nine native shotmakers who broke par 72 on the first day of the 72-hole tournament.

Three Tied For First

Leonard shot a 66, a competitive record for the St. Charles Golf and Country Club, to share first place after the opening 18 holes with two U.S. invaders — Skee Riegel of Tulsa, Okla., and slight Johnny Palmer from Badin, N.C.

Henry Martell of Edmonton, 38-year-old former Canadian amateur champion, backed up Leonard with a 67, tying with Dick Mayer, a skillful tournament player from St Petersburg, Fla. Each matched the old course record set three years ago by Wally Ulrich of Austin, Minn., who was four strokes off the pace yesterday with a 70.

A third Canadian broke 70—Lou Cumming of Toronto who carded a 69 with a hot 33 on the out nine. He shared his score bracket with five others, including Dutch Harrison who won the championship in 1949.

At 68 stood three Americans, two of them well known in Canada: Freddy Haas, Jr., who won the Canadian Amateur here on the St. Charles course in 1936; Smiley Quick, Pasadena, Calif., who won the Ontario Open title last year and Al Zimmerman of Portland, Ore.

Field Bunched

Within striking distance of the leaders in the wide-open field came 24 other players—nine with 70s and 15 with 71s—and six of them were Canadians.

One of them was the youngest professional in the tournament—blonde, crew-cut Buddy Loftus of the Moose Jaw Willowdale Club, a 22-year-old player who has earned his living at golf for four years. He shot a 70 despite a one-over-par 37 on the out nine.

Gordon Brydson of Toronto Mississagua peeled off a 70 and four Canadians carded 71s—Al Balding of Toronto Islington, Lloyd Tucker of Kitchener Rockway, Paul McGuire from Woodstock, Ont., and Bob Gray of Toronto Scarboro who blew a chance for a 68 by taking a seven on the par-four 18th.

Last Canadian to win the national Open title was Karl Keffer of Ottawa in 1914. Since then it has gone to the U.S. every year except 1946 when Bobby Locke of South Africa shot a record 268 to top the field.

Ferrier Sore

Defending champion Jim Ferrier, with a chance to be the first man to win three Canadian Opens in a row, was in the 71 class. He complained about his late spot in the draw—he set out yesterday at 3:15 p.m. and was to go at 12:37 p.m. today—and said "this is my third and last trip up here."

The gallery of 3,500 to 4,000 persons, pulling hard for the native shooters, found plenty to cheer about in the Leonard and Martell rounds.

Leonard, whose putter was sour last week in the Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship, sank a 40-footer on the first green and from there he played faultless golf from tee to green. Once his tee shot got off the narrow fairways but he got out of trouble handily and finished with a card showing six birdies and 12 pars. Martell matched Leonard's birdie-production but went one stroke over par on one hole.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

The Kibitzer

Watch your supports and hoices in bridge. There is a disnct difference between the two. upport is enough trumps for the uit partner has mentioned. A hoice is preference for one of is suits.

When partner mentions each of wo suits only once he is asking or an assist of either, only if you ave support for it. He is not sking you to choose which of his uits you prefer.

When partner rebids one of his wo mentioned suits he asks you o show preference for one or the ther. Asks is too mild. Demands hat you choose the suit that is est for the pair.

The choice is asked to be made n the suit in which the pair will ave the most cards; or the first amed suit if there will be the ame number of cards in each. ee this north hand:

♠K Q 6 4 2

The bidding went like this:

South	North
1 H	1 S
2 H	2 NT
3 C	Pass

Shedding tears mingled with lood, south tells of making hree clubs with a struggle when ame of four hearts is easy. North claims to have told all in wo bids and was not forced to o on.

North is wrong. The south biding created a demand for a hoice. South showed six hearts nd four clubs by the order in which the bids came. With two f each, north can see eight earts and only six clubs.

After the three club-bid by outh, north should bid three earts to show his choice. It would not have been an admision of additional values or suport for hearts. It would have hown only preference.

Only if north had seen more lubs than hearts would his pass ave been correct. Selection igoring is very deploring.

Movie Column

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Can a nice girl make the grade in the movies?

Ann Blythe, a girl any fellow could proudly take home to meet mother, is proof that virtue is its own reward—even in Hollywood.

Ann, it seems, spends most of her leisure time at church bazaars, a most unlikely hangout for gossip columnists. She has plenty of dates, like any other girl of 23, but so far nothing serious.

No Prude

Ann is not a prude about nightclubs.

"It's all right," she explains, "to go there to see some great artist perform. But to sit there in those dingy, smoke-filled rooms night after night is not my idea of fun."

"Besides being one of the nicest girls I've ever met," says Fitzsimons. "she is surprisingly attentive when we talk."

Ann has three major pictures either just released or about to be. In "The World in His Arms," she plays a Russian countess who makes love to Gregory Peck; in "Sally and Saint Anne," she plays an 11-year-old girl, and in "One Minute to Zero," she plays a young war widow.

Olympic Notes

HELSINKI (AP)—A record number of more than 8,000 athlete are competing in the Olympic Games here, the International Olympic Committee president, J. Sigfrid Edstrom, disclosed yesterday.

There is nearly twice the number of competitors in the last Olympics in London in 1948 and 1,500 more than were expected here.

Edstrom praised as "perfect" the preharations of little Finland, with only 4,000,000 inhabitants, for handling this biggest of all Otympics.

There are 69 countries represented, compared with 59 in 1948.

TAMPERE, Finland (AP)—Italy's soccer team yesterday booted United States kickers out of the 1952 Olympic Games before the mai part of the Games had even started.

In the preliminary qualifying tournament, the Italians gave the lightly-regarded Uited States team an 8-0 beating. This eliminated the Americans from further competition although the 1952 Olympic Games won't begin officially until Saturday.

HELSINKI (Reuters)—The Russian Olympics attache here, Niklai Kalinin, was recalled to Moscow after a' argument with the western attaches and the games organizing committee, diplomatic circles said yesteday.

Erlier he had complained at a meeting between the committee and the foreign attaches that training facilities at the camp at Otaniemi, near Helsinki, arraged for the East European competitors, were inferior to those of other camps, particularly for runners and jumpers.

Madoc Jrs. Trim Boem Construction

TWEED — In an exhibition game in Tweed, Madoc Juniors of the Centre Hastings Softball league defeated Boem Construction of the North York League. Madoc, a Junior "C" team are in first place in the local league, while Boem are the top team in the North York Junior "A" circuit. The score was 6-4.

Madoc went ahead 2-0 in the third. The teams each scored once in the fifth and twice in the seventh. Madoc added another in the eighth to lead 6-3. Boem could only get one run in the ninth.

Radnor pitched a great game for Madoc as he fanned seven in the first three innings and added two more victims before the game ended. He only walked a pair as Madoc retired 13 straight batters at the start and finished by getting 11 out of the last 12. Timgren struck out seven of the Madoc hitters while walking the same number.

Carswell hit three for five for Madoc, with two triples to score three runs and bat in another. Shadbolt got on twice to score each time. Tufts, Pigden, Sherry, Hatch and Blakely each got a pair of hits.

Wings Nip Royals Three in Row; Leafs Blank Nats

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Beat the big boys, they say, and the little ones will take care of themselves.

Falling in all other ways to overcome the season-long lead of Montreal Royals in the International League, Rochester Red Wings apparently have decided to try the direct approach.

The Wings whipped the little Dodgers for the third straight time last night, 5-3, behind the hurling of rookie George Condrick, although he needed help from Jack Crimian for the last two outs in the ninth.

Steve Bilko led their 12-hit attack against three Montreal pitchers with a double and two singles.

Big Fourth Wins

Toronto Maple Leafs shut out Ottawa Athletics 5-0 behind the combined efforts of Duke Markell and Vic Lombardi. The latter got the win. Leafs scored all their runs in the fourth inning. During that stanzaa Charlie Bishop, Ottawa pitcher, was banished for arguing with umpire Joe Serafin.

Buffalo Bisons rolled to a 10-2 victory over Springfield Cubs after scoring six times in the fifth ining. Vern Fear was the victim of the barrage, which included home runs by Frank Carswell and Bill Tuttle. Hank Borowy went the distance for the winners.

The syracuse-Baltimore game was rained out.

Russian Track Queen Attracts Western Interest

By WILL GRIMSLEY

HELSINKI (AP)—Nina Dumbadze, queen of the Russian track team, wears lipstick, paints her nails—and blushes.

She refuses to chew gum and she never heard of Babe Didrikson Zaharias.

The statuesque, good-looking daughter of the Ukraine, who can throw the discus 30 feet farther than any other woman, was the star of the show when a busload of Soviet athletes paid an unexpected visit to the American camp yesterday.

A dozen other Russian track and field stars were almost ignored as the crowd swarmed around Nina to chat through interpreters, take pictures and get autographs.

"You're not only a great athlete but you're damn good looking," said Gustavus T. Kirby of New York, president emeritus of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

Nina asked an interpreter what Kirby said. When the interpreter told her, she turned crimson and let out a high,tinkling laugh.

Clyde Littlefield, assistant track coach, offered her a piece of chewing gum Nina refused

"Don't you chew?" Littlefield asked. Nina said no.

Someone asked the Soviet athlete if she had heard of Babe Didrikson Zaharias.

"No, what does she do?" Nina asked

Miss Dumbadze, who holds the women's discus record of 175 feet, one inch, is a tall, powerfully-built housewife of about 32. She is five feet 10 inches tall and weighs around 175.

Nevertheless, she is attractive by any standards. She wears rouge and lipstick and pencils her eyebrows. She paints her fingernails red. Her black hair is curled behind her ears in a semi-poodle cut.

WOMEN EXTRAVAGANT

HUNTINGDON, England (CP)—Dour police officials here said women were "too extravagant" when they insisted on bright colors in their homes. They invited the wives to inspect a "cample" house painted wit ha mixture of dissolved pitch and linseed oil.

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, JULY 18, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Excellent indications from many favorably aspected planets for mental tasks, also the more physical. Matters connected with the sea, water sports, confidential work all favored.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Generous day on whole but personal wishes and some artistic endeavors may seem to gain less response than other matters. Occupational duties sponsored.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Should be heart-warming period, especially if you are willing to do your share to make business move faster.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Your Moon and other planets in several benefic configurations. Make the most of every good advantage. Hard work, military, naval, air force interests among favored.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—You can improve in many ways this good day; the quality of your work, your approach, answers to customers, clients, superiors, employees. Brain work, physical prowess all rate.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Promising, interesting inclinations. When essential chores are done, really relax. Pray for our fighting forces, all our leaders.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Advantageous period for useful, purposeful endeavors but you may have to forget some personal wishes for benefit of interests for general good.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Day does not call for aggressiveness but does encourage all sound work essential to everyday living.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Pleasant, profitable day if you manage affairs intelligently. But don't overdo or strain health, keep a sensibly even tempo and accomplish more.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—A day when much or little can be accomplished, depending mostly upon what is demanded of you and how you handle things generally. Top sponsored: work, study, healthy recreation.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Promises to be a smooth, fruitful, pleasant period. Really up to you and how you manage your schedule. Don't fuss over unessentials.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—No real hurdles apparent to achievement now. Check day's "musts"—attend to them quickly, efficiently.

YOU BORN TODAY are interesting, likeable, changeable. Sometimes too much so for success and contentment. Carefully control this restlessness, also any tendency to "moods." Are usually successful handling children, the ill, or infirm. Make good business man or woman. Birthday: Wm. Makepeace Thackeray, famed novelist.

I JUST READ A MAGAZINE ARTICLE BY A CHILD PSYCHOLOGIST, AUNT ELLEN.
HE SAID, PARENTS MUST RETURN TO STERN, OLD FASHIONED DISCIPLINE. THEY MUST ESTABLISH STRICT CONTROL EARLY IN THE CHILD'S LIFE...
AND EXERCISE IT SEVERELY THROUGH THE TEENS. EVERY ACTIVITY MUST BE DOMINATED AND SUPERVISED.
HONESTLY, SOME OF THE STUFF THEY PRINT NOWADAYS FOR IMPRESSIONABLE PARENTS' MINDS SHOULD BE ILLEGAL.

FALSE TEETH

That Loosen
Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

Had Stomach Disorders 3 Years-Always Tired

Here is good advice for all sufferers from common disorders of stomach, kidneys, liver or bowels, backache and fatigued, nervous, rundown condition. Thousands of men and women suffering this way have obtained their best relief by taking Syntona Herbal Compound. For example, here is the experience of Mrs. Mary Dallas, well known Copetown, Ontario, woman, who said:

"I had stomach disorders so bad for three years that my nerves were all on edge. I'd get throbbing headaches, a dull aching pain across my back, and I constantly felt tired and rundown. At times even the lightest food gave me awful gas, indigestion an dheartburn. I'd get a bloated feeling, sour acid risings and just couldn't get any relief.

"One day a friend told me about Syntona and since taking this medicine I feel much better. Especially the gas, heartburn, and belching of hot, sour liquids has cleared up so that I enjoy my meals. Headaches and backache and the other aches and pains I had are now relieved and my nerves are calmed down so I am getting more sound, restful sleep and do not feel tired out as I did before. I highly recommend Syntona to all who are troubled with gas, indigestion, or tired, fatigued feeling."

Death In The Sierras

By Doris Hudson Moss

With Sergeant Duncan entering with me, no explanation was required for our absence from the lodge. Duncan disappeared after that and Dr. David Roberts told me that Duncan had set a guard at both entrances to the cave to protect Mrs. Ordell.

Only the hermit would be permitted to enter the cave. This seemed strange to me. Why didn't they move poor Mrs. Ordell back to the lodge and safety? It seemed terrible to let the professor, her husband, go on grieving.

It was not quite noon, but the musical jangle of the dinner bell came pleasantly from the kitchen. Rhumba came waddling toward the lodge, striking an iron rod on the triangle as she walked.

"I've got to talk to Dr. Roberts," she said.

"Rhumba," said florid Mr. James, "whatever you have to say to Dr. Roberts can be postponed till later."

"Rhumba," Mr. James wheezed angrily, "go back to the kitchen or you'll be fired."

"Fire away, Mr. James. I can go to work at Fallen Leaf Lake anytime I wants." Rolling her eyes angrily, she caught David by the arm and propelled him toward the fireplace. Duncan followed and I, not wanting to miss anything, came along.

"This ain't for you all," Rhumba said emphatically, eyeing Sergeant Duncan and me.

"You can talk freely in front of Sergeant Duncan and Miss Curtis, Rhumba," said Dr. Roberts.

Rhumba sniffed, then said, "I know who's the murderer." She paused as we held our breath. "But I ain't tellin'."

"But why did you tell me even this much?" asked David.

"Because you're a G-man. I heard Mr. Margaurd talkin' to you about it, Sergeant." Duncan set his mouth in a thin line and glared at the cook.

Here, then, was what David had started to tell me in the tent.

"Yes, Rhumba. I'm a federal investigator. I didn't come to Gold Lake to solve murder mystery, but since I'm here, I'm helping. And if you know anything, I'm sure you understand that you must help too."

"Mr. James killed Mrs Ordell. I saw him run from the Ordell tent just before she screamed. He told me he was openin' sugar for me, but he went to the Ordell tent after that. And what's more, he put white powder on a slab of meat that looked mighty like the meat you found in your tent, Miss Curtis. Mr. James is a no-account man, I tell you."

Dr. Roberts looked at the sergeant. I thought I detected a wink. Then the doctor turned back to Rhumba and said, "Thanks for telling us this. We'll see if we can follow it up."

Jeff and Dick and old Pete Dupres brought up a string of horses to the door of the lodge. Duncan asked Jeff, Ordell, Miss Hansen, David Roberts and me to mount. I heard him give orders to Marguard to find James and to hold him.

Dr. Roberts rode beside me. He smiled at me reassuringly and, leading from his saddle, he said in a low voice, "See if you can find the three trees. I believe I know where they are."

Sergeant Duncan beckoned Ordell to ride beside him and the professor jogged up to the head of the procession. David said that both Duncan and the professor thought they knew where the trees stood. I wondered how Duncan explained to the professor how he gained his information about the map.

It seemed that Miss Hansen and Jeff knew too, and they pointed this way and that whenever three trees grew somewhat close together. But Duncan and Roberts refused to take their ideas seriously.

I noticed that the professor began to talk a bit, too. The excitement of treasure hunting and the healing pine-scented air were helping to take his mind from his sorrow.

Finally we reached the almost level top of the high difficult ridge and stopped to rest our horses.

Sergeant Duncan dismounted and unbuckled a short-handled spade from his saddle. "Well, folks, here we are. You see, the timber noted on the map was old when that map was made, so it seems reasonable to believe that in the years that have passed the trees may have fallen."

It was then it dawned upon me that David knew about the map before I told him.

The little group moved eagerly near to the doctor as spadeful after spadeful of earth piled up, enlarging the hole.

Carefully, David brushed and dug away the black earth that surrounded a rounded top, iron banded, wooden trunk that was really not much larger than a doll's trunk.

The men bent to lift the treasure from its grave—when the sharp report of a revolver set the mountains ringing with echoes and repercussions of impending danger.

We turned to see the bandana-masked figure holding a pistol at us. His hat was pulled low and he wore a heavy mackinaw, jeans tucked into high-laced boots.

13 Trade Union Members Accused Of Illegal Combine

Shut Off Bakery Products To Winnipeg Retail Chain

OTTAWA (CP)—Combines Commissioner T. D. MacDonald today accused 13 trade union members of joining in an illegal combine to keep up bread prices in the Winnipeg area.

In Canada's first combines case involving union men, the commissioner lodged the finding against 1951 executive members of Winnipeg Local No. 1 of the Canadian Bakery Workers' Union (C.C.L.).

His report presented to Justice Minister Garson today found that the group violaed the federal Combines Investigation Act by its admitted 1951 action in shutting off delivery of bakery products to a Winnipeg retail chain that had cut prices.

No Charges Laid

The findings do not carry formal charges against those named. It is up to Mr. Garson to decide if any are to be lodged. He said in a statement: "Consideration will be given as to what further action should be taken."

The alleged offence of the 13 was set out by the commissioner as an attempt to ensure that there would be no price competition in the retail sale of bread made by the five companies supplying the major part of Winnipeg's bakery products. No allegations were brought against the companies.

Penalties for combines offences, under the Combines Act or the Criminal Code, range from a nominal fine up to two years in jail.

Two years ago, a combines finding was brought in against six Alberta and British Columbia baking firms for conspiring to lessen competition in bread business. After a 99-day trial they were fined a total of $30,000 late last year. The conviction is under appeal.

Only Members Named

In Commissioner MacDonald's finding against the union members—a major milestone in the history of combines legislation in Canada—the union itself was not named as guilty.

The individual members named in the report were Local President J. E. Shephered, General Secretary J. E. G. Robinson and Executive Council members J. Ambler, J. Citulec, W. Coutts, N. Goodman, W. Hall, R. Holt, D. Johnson, A. McKenzie, H. Roberts, P. Scinocca and G. Soole.

Bubonic Plague Reported From Saudi Arabia

LONDON (Reuters) — Bubonic plague has broken out in Saudi Arabia.

An official of the Saudi Arabian embassy here said yesterday three deaths and one other infection were reported June 27 at the village of Binbishr in the desert country's southern area.

The village is about 580 miles from Mecca, holy city of the Moslem world, to which upwards of 500,000 Moslems make annual pilgrimage.

But the spokesman emphasized that the walled city of Mecca itself is untouched by the scourge and that no other part of King Ibn Saud's kingdom is affected.

Six weeks remain before the main body of Mecca-bound pilgrims begin this year's holy trek. Some who started early have been prohibited from crossing the plague-stricken district which lies in their path.

The sick at Bnibishr have been isolated in a mobile hospital while their village is cleared of the rats which carry the plague and their fleas which transmit it to man, the spokesman said.

One of the oldest diseases known to man, bubonic plague can take a week or a few hours to kill.

The most catastrophic outbreak of the disease, "the Black Death," started in 1347 in Constantinople and spread across Europe, killing, authorities say, 25 to 75 per cent of those it infected. In 1664-1665 the disease wracked Britain during what was termed the "Great Plague."

Mysterious Disease Appears Second Time

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — The United States Eighth Army in Korea is troubled again this year with rare and mysterious disease—Manchurian fever.

The fever caused minor trouble last year. This year, through June, 418 cases have been reported among the 250,000 troops. The death rate is less than four per cent.

Newspaper Woman Consents to Give Bookies' Names, Judge Lifts Charge

MONTREAL (CP)—Mr. Justice Francois Caron of Suherior Court today relieved Mrs. Jacqueline Sirois Moore, Montreal newspaper woman, of a charge of contempt of court after she agreed to enswer questions in Montreal's vice inquiry.

Mrs. Moore, a staff writer for Weekend Picture Magazine, was found in contempt July 3 when she declined to answer questions about the names of bookies who gave her information for an article which appeared in the Montreal Standard in 1946.

Mr. Justice Caron is conducting the inquiry into charges that vice was allowed to flourish in the city during a 10-year period.

In holding her in contempt, Mr. Justice Caron ordered her to appear in court the following day, July 4, for sentencing. Later, he said he was discussing the matter with Jacques Courtois, Mrs. Moore's lawyer, and would postpone his decision until today.

Reads List of Names

Asked today by Pacifique Plante, counsel for the petitioner's of the inquiry, whether she was ready to answer the question and give the court the names of the bookies, Mrs. Moore told Mr. Justice Caron, "yes, my lord."

"I have tried to make out a list to the best of my ability," Mrs. Moore added. But she said the article was written long ago—in 1946 — and her memory might not be completely accurate.

Mrs. Moore then read out a list of more than 10 names.

Mr. Justice Caron asked counsel if there were any further questions.

Told there were none, he turned to Mrs. Moore and said: "I congratulate you for having consented to answer the question. You are relieved of the contempt ruling."

THE WEATHER

Relatives of Victoria Girl in RCAF Fear Foul Play in Disappearance

VICTORIA (CP)—Relatives of a Victoria girl serving in the R.C.A.F. said today they suspect foul play in the girl's disaappearance.

AW2. Isobel Burton, 26, has not been heard from since April 10 when she left the R.C.A.F. station at Aylmer, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. A.G. Sim, uncle and aunt of the missing girl, said Miss Burton's Air Force uniform has been foud and that a man absent without leave from the Canadian Army and with a previous police record is involved in the case. They did not disclose the source of their information.

Miss Burton had lived with Mr. and Mrs. Sim for 20 years before joining the R.C.A.F. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Burton, live at Abernathy, Sask.

The Sims said Miss Burton enlisted in the R.C.A.F. here, was sent to St. Johns, Que., then posted to Aylmer. She now is listed as a deserter.

The Sims said their niece had written them regularly until suddenly, in April, the letters stopped.

The final word from her was that she was going to London, Ont., to visit friends she had met there on a previous trip.

The case was raised in the House of Commons when Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., Progressive Conservative member for Nanaimo, criticized what he said was the air force's failure to institute a proper search

The Sims said that although several agencies are presumably investigating the affair they felt that no real effort is being made to trace Miss Burton.

Mr. Sim said the girl's father is considering travelling to Ontario in an effort to find some trace of her.

SPOKESMAN SAYS RAIL DEMANDS INFLATIONARY

Predicts Recession If Increase Granted

OTTAWA (CP)—H.H. Hannam, president of the Canadia Federation of Agriculture, today termed the railways' latest demand for further freight rate increases as a further inflationary swirl which "could well lead the nation into an economic recession of major proportions."

The leader of the 400,000-farmer member organization said in a statement the railways' application for another 16 per cent hike in rates would deal agriculture a blow that "is both severe and unfair." It would drain away the farmers' purchasing power, already in decline.

The railways already had been granted six separate general freight increases since March, 1948, totalling 70 per cent, Mr. Hannam said. The new applications will be "a bitter disappointment to Canadian citizens, consumers as well as producers, coming as they do at a time when there was a general feeling that inflation had been licked."

"Whether railway employees in the non-operating trades are deserving of some adjustments in wages and working conditions, we do not know," Mr. Hannam said. "But organized agriculture wishes employees, railway officials and government authorities to know that freight rate increases now asked for by the railways, and on top of this a 45-cent-an-hour increase for employees, if all passed on to the public in freight rates would place a intolerable burden on the agricultural industry.

"This whole thing looks to us like another swirl in the vicious spiral which, beginning by draining essential purchasing power from Canada's basic industry of agriculture, could well lead the nation into an economic recession of major proportions."

Canada Takes Action to Prevent Fur 'Dumping'

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has taken action to prevent the "dumping of Russian muskrat furs on the Canadian market, a customs spokesman said today.

He said that last May Canada set a fixed valuation on foreign raw muskrat skins subject to the general tariff rates. The move followed complaints from the fur trade that the Russians were "dumping" skins in Canada — marketing them in this country below what they would sell for at home.

Now Russian and other foreign muskrat furs marketed in Canada below the home market price are subject to duty equal to the difference. The effect, the spokesman said, is to keep the price of foreign pelts in line with that of comparable Canadian muskrat furs.

BLAST ROCKS PLANT

TORONTO (CP)—Several firemen were overcome by fumes when an explosion rocked the John E. Goudey Manufacturing Ltd. plant last night in west-central Toronto. The blast, believed caused by ignition of hydrogen peroxide, caused damage estimated at $80,000.

White House May Seize Strike-Bound Steel Plants To End Critical Shortage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House was reported today to be seriously considering a plan to seize part of the strike-bound steel industry under the Selective Service Act.

This word came from a high administrative source who said Justice Department lawyers were instructed yesterday afatrnoon to prepare papers leading to possible partial seizure of the industry.

Critical Situation

The critical situation which has resulted from the steel strike was discussed yesterday at a White House meeting, presided over by the acting defence mobilizer, John R. Steelman.

The Selective Service Act gives the President power to seize only plants which fail to produce under direct contract with procurement agencies.

Meanwhile, rumors that a secret settlement had been reached between the United Steelworkers Union (C.I.O.) and the mill operators remained officiaally undenied by unconfirmed.

Meanwhile, a fight apparently was going on in President Truman's official family over a government offer of a $5.65-ton price boost for steel if the strike is settled.

High officials said price chief Ellis Arnall is urging that the offer be withdrawn, but that acting mobilizer John R. Steelman is standing by the proposal, which he was reportedly to have made last Saturday to United States Steel Corp.

Arnall would not comment on the dustry is entitled to a $2.84 industry is entitled to a $284 increase "and no more."

The negotiators were reported agreed on certain wage increases for the steelworkers, but stymied over industry's refusal to grant a compulsory union shop, which would require all workers to belong to the union.

The steelworkers' union last night notified the 19 ore-carrying steamship firms that operate over the Great Lakes that their seamen must be granted the same benefits given in any settlement of the steel

Research for Polio Vaccine Gets Encouraging Results In Toronto Laboratories

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says today in a copyright story that research originating at the Hospital for Sick Children here and being continued in collaboration with the Connaught Laboratories has opened the possibility that some day a vaccine for poliomyelitis may be produced.

The story says that though the research still is in the experimental stage, recent successes achieved by Dr. Andrew Rhodes in propagating polio virus on cultures of living flesh open the possibility for the eventual production of a polio vaccine.

The advance by the young Toronto physician and researcher is regarded, the paper says, as a major step in the polio-research programs being carried on in Canada, the United States, Europe and elsewhere.

The paper says Dr. Rhodes first gave a serum from recovered cases of polio to mice, and when these were later infected with polio they resisted the disease.

The story adds:

"This was not a wholly new step, and had been done previously on rhesus monkeys as lab animals. . . .

"Secondly, and this is the step that holds out great possibilities of a toxoid, which in turn would be a resistance-producing agent in the bodies of inoculated persons, Rhodes' group has been maintaining and propagating polio virus on living flesh tissues, using heart, testicular and similar tissue. . .

"The next phase is the . . . culturing of these viruses to ascertain whether they may lose some of their lethal and paralyzing qualities, yet retain the power to cause mild infections and consequent natural body action to fight them.

"If they do, they could produce the first active resistance immunization known."

Plates Show Wear 35,000 Replaced

TORONTO (CP) — More than 35,000 Ontario motorists with licence plates nearly illegible from rust and wear, have obtained new plates, officials of the Ontario Highways Department said today.

Officials blamed the issue of paper stickers to validate 1951 markers for the abnormally high replacement rate. They said the usual number of new plates issued in an average year at this time was around 7,000.

Plates for next year are being produced at the Guelph reformatory. They will have white figures on a royal blue background with a crown above the figures and "Ontario—1953" in the lower corners.

Labor Party Retains Seat In By-Election

Labor candidate George Morgan Thomson won the seat in a four-way fight. The election was caused by the death of Labor member Thomas Cook who won the seat in last October's general election with a majority of 3,805 over his only opponent, a Conservative candidate.

Results of yesterday's test were: Thomson 22,161; Paul Cowcher, Conservative and National Liberal 14,305; Donald Stewart, Scottish National party 2,931; Edward MacFarlane, World Parliament party 290

Two other parliamentary by-elections are pending. Both are considered safe seats—one for Labor, the other for the Conservatives.

Present party standing in the House of Commons: Conservatives and Allies 320; Labor 294; Liberals 6; Irish Labor 1; Irish Nationalists 2; vacant 2; total 625.

Part of Ontario Lashed by Heavy Storm Last Night

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Thunderstorms flashed across Ontario last night, flattening crops, felling trees and flooding streets. One person was struck by lightning.

In the southwestern section of the province, lightning struck a barn setting it ablaze, near Wingham. Hydro poles were snapped and the area was blacked out for more than two hours. Telephone circuits from London to Exeter and Zurich were out for some time.

On the south shore of Lake Simcoe around Sutton the thunderstorm was trailed by a baby cyclone which ripped a half-mile swath through the outskirts of the community.

Winds reported up to 96 miles an hour thrashed through several garages and splintered a 125-foot chicken house.

A 65-foot maple tree was split by lightning and sent crashing down on a six-room house, crushing the roof.

At Timmins, Paul Dubois, 12, was struck by lightning during an afternoon storm. His condition was termed "good" by hospital authorities.

QAVAM SUCCEEDS MOSSADEGH AS IRAN'S PREMIER

U.K. Hopeful Oil Dispute May be Settled

TEHRAN (AP)—Former Premier Ahmed Qavam, a rightist who led Iran safely through perilous disputes with Soviet Russia in the wake of the Second World War, succeeded Mohammed Mossadegh as Premier yesterday.

The change in leadership possibly may bring settlement of the long quarrel between Iran and Britain over Mossadegh's nationalixation last year of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's Iranian properties.

Shah Refuses Bid

Mossadegh resigned the premiership after the Shah, Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, rejected a bid of the frail but iron-willed Nationalist leader to become his own War Minister in a new Cabinet.

The lower house of Parliament, the Majalis, nominated Qavam in a secret meeting boycotted by 25 or more pro-Mossadegh deputies.

The major problem Qanam inherits is Iran's near-bankruptcy, brought about by the oil-nationalization policies that Mossadegh once forecast would lead to general prosperity.

Was Premier In 1946

Qavam, 77, was Premier in 1946 and 1947. He pressed the Security-Council fight that led to the ouster of Russian troops from the border province of Azerbaijan and rejected subsequent Russian demands for the right to exploit oil resources in northern Iran.

Qavam is regarded as pro-Western and long-dimmed hopes of an Iranian oil settlement flickered to life again in London. Only a trickle of oil is coming from installations that, under British control, once turned out 30,000,000 tons a year.

Diplomats in London said they believe, Qavam ultimately will be willing to talk with the British about oil, though none expects an immediate resumption of negotiations.

Malayan Papers Attack Charges Of Tin Cartel

SINGAPORE (Reuters)—British and Chinese English-language newspapers here today use such terms as "lying charges," 'nasty propaganda,' and "a sop to American taxpayers" in attacking American allegations yesterday of a tin cartel involving Malaya.

"The United States Senate sub-committee reported that American officials had defeated a combine determined to squeeze the last drop of profit out of the American treasury, regardless of the consequences to our economic strength and the strength of the free world, the British-owned Straits Times says.

"This blatantly mendacious report must be about the nastiest piece of propaganda that has ever come out of the United States."

CRUSHED BY TRACTOR

EAST HEREFORD, Que. (CP) —Marcel Gelinas, 41-year-old farmer and his nine-year-old son, Claude, were found here last night crushed to death beneath a tractor in this Eastern Townships community.

They were found by a neighbor near their farm home lying beside the overturned tractor. There was no immediate indication how the accident happened.

Easy Marches for Young Soldiers Recommended by Army Doctor

WASHINGTON (AP)—An army doctor today recommended easier marches for young soldiers in training—to help save their feet from injury.

Lt.-Col. Francis O. Threadgill of the United States Army's Fort Ord, Calif., hospital, reported evidence that long road marches given before proper conditioning of new men helped cause "march fracture"—a fracture of certain bones of the forefoot.

Although commonest among soldiers, it is sometimes seen in waitresses, postmen and others who walk a great deal, the colonel said.

In actual combat the footsoldier is seldom called upon to do long-lasting marching without let-up, Threadgill said. "It would appear unwise to cause march fractures by creating conditions which will not be met in the field"

The colonel also took a whack at "speed" marching, and said, moreover, that road marches should never be made on paved roads.

Three Men Rob Toronto Factory Of $13,000 Payroll

TORONTO (CP) — Police say three armed men stole a $13,000 payroll from the Rowntree Co. Ltd. today.

The bandits walked into the west-end chocolate-manufacturing plant shortly after the payroll money had been delivered. They held up the staff and left with the money.

Car Found

Fifteen minutes later an automobile believed used by the men was found by police but there was no trace of its occupants or of the money.

One of the hooldup men was described as five feet nine inches tall, weighing 175 pounds. He had slicked-down blond hair. Another bandit was blond, too, but the third was dark. Police report they range in age from 25 to 30.

One of the Rowntree employees spotted the fleeing bandit car—a 1950 two-tone cream one—and gave police a description. It belongs to a Toronto businessman, police said, and was stolen shortly before the holdup.

Damage Switch Board

The bandits pulled the earphones from the switchboard girl's head when they appeared in the plant. They damaged the board to prevent calls to police.

Office manager Len Gelly said the men entered the plant 10 minutes after the armored car delivered the payroll.

Sleeping-Car Rates to Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pullman Company received permission today to raise it minimum charge for sleeping-car accommodations by about 23 per cent.

The United States Inter-state Commerce Commission said the company could put the increase into effect July 28.

The new schedule of rates will establish a minimum charge of $5 for a lower berth in a standard pullman car. The present minimum is $4.05 for that type of accommodation.

Since all sleeping-car charges are tied to the basic lower-berth fare, all other types of sleeping accommodations will take a proportionate advance. Thus, the minimum charge for a lower berth in a tourist sleeping car will advance from $3.20 to $3.95.

The upper-berth minimum will become $3.80 in a standard pullman and $3.05 in a tourist car, with roomettes priced at a flat $7.

The authority to make the changes in the minimum rates in the United States was also extended to Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Pacific Railways for sleeping-car travel between points in Canada and the U.S.

Too Much Chrome Says Oldest Driver

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) —Robert L. Dring, reported to be the oldest licensed automobile driver in the United States, thinks there is too much chrome on the modern automobile.

"It's a waste," he observed yesterday as he celebrated his 101st birthday.

He drove a while in his 15-year-old-car and took a turn at the wheel of a 1952 model. He said he is not contemplating a new car.

Aussie Court Hikes Basic Wage

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — The Australian arbitration court today decided to boost basic wages by as much as 13 shillings a week in an effort to keep up with spiralling living costs.

The announcement came as a shock to many Australians, who claim the government adjustment always gives a further spur to commodity prices.

The court's quarterly adjustment goes into effect Aug. 1. It brings the Sydney minimum rate to 11 pounds 15 shillings, more than double what it was during the Second World War.

Kidnapper Given 7-Year Term

GUELPH (CP) — Stanton Lloyd Bowman, 37, today was sent to penitentiary for seven years on a charge of kidnapping two young girls from a swimming hole in nearby Eramosa township July 7.

Crown Attorney J. M. Kearns announced he would not proceed with a charge of attempted rape.

Evidence was that Bowman, whose home is at New Hamburg, Ont., forced the girls, aged 12 and 13, to ride nearly 100 miles with him in his automobile, beat them and left them on a roadside many miles from their homes.

Magistrate Frederic Watt told Bowman, who pleaded guilty, that he had committed an "abominable crime."

FIRE IN ICEHOUSE

A fire in an icehouse may sound a bit unusual but that is just what firemen were called out to extinguish early this morning. The blaze was promptly put out with very little damage reported.

Ice company workers blamed smoking by "wine hounds" who may have slept in the icehouse, as the possible cause of the fire.

SPARK FIRES HAY AND RAIL FENCE

Believed caused by a spark from the motor of a hay baling machine, fire yesterday destroyed about two loads of hay and several hundred feet of rail fence on a farm at Honeywell's Corners north of Corbyville. The tinder dry hay allowed the blaze to spread rapidly despite efforts of farmers to control it and firemen from Belleville had to be called to bring it under control.

NO COUNTERFEIT BILLS REPORTED HERE

Although counterfeit money has been reported passed in Brockville and in the Ottawa district, no bogus money has been passed in the city, according to local police.

The fact, however, that none has been reported does not mean there will be no attempt to pass the counterfeit ten dollar bills locally, it was pointed out by Inspector J. C. Hayes. He warned shop keepers and service station operators to be on the watch for the bogus bills.

Two Boys Escape Serious Injury When Pinned Under Load of Hay

Buried under 50-pound bales of hay which slipped from a passing truck, two of three young boys are little the worse for their experience today after being pulled from beneath the bales.

The third boy, Larry Wiley, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Wiley R. R. 8, Belleville, is in Belleville General Hospital with back injuries and bruises.

The other two lads, Jimmy Clarke, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Clarke, and Bill Forgie, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Forgie, Sinclair Street, escaped injury but received check-ups from family doctors.

The freak accident occurred shortly after four o'clock Thursday afternoon as the three lads were playing on the sidewalk in front of the Forgie home.

A truck load of baled hay was being delivered to the stable of a bread delivery firm by Alf Tyrell, local trucker, when the load slipped and broke a restraining rope. Fifty-six bales tumbled off the truck onto the sidewalk.

The driver claimed that the uneven condition of the street had caused the load to slip.

Larry Wiley and Jimmy Clarke were both pinned under the bales and had to be pulled free by the trucker and mother of one of the lads. The Forgie lad was able to jump clear as the bales fell and was not buried.

"It is a miracle they were not all killed," stated Mrs. Wiley as she waited at the Forgie home while her son was taken to hospital.

The baled hay had been purchased by the bakery firm from a local farmer and was being delivered after passing over the city scales.

Glen Miller Bridge Will be Closed To Repair Damage Caused by Truck

The Hastings county bridge over the Trent River at Glen Miller will be closed for an indefinite period for repairs made necessary when a heavily-loaded truck broke through the timber flooring causing stringers in two bays of the bridge to fail.

New stringers for the 300-foot bridge structure have been hauled to the scene, together with new timber flooring and repairs are underway under general foreman Joe Haight, County Engineer Larry Langlois said the work would be completed as rapidly as possible, but that it was impossible to state when the bridge would be reopened for vehicular traffic.

Replacement of the Glen Miller bridge by a new structure, has been recommended by the county engineer for several years.

The present bridge has a gross load limit of only six tons, but despite the fact limit signs are plainly placed, truck drivers persist in crossing with much heavier loads than considered safe for the structure.

Mr. Langlois said the truck which broke through the flooring was prevented from crashing through into the river only by the steel plate trackways. These were installed two years ago to prevent objectionable noise and to make smoother riding.

The engineer pointed out that the Trent is deep at this point and persistent crossing with heavier gross loads than the bridge limit could easily result in a fatality.

Bay Water Level Still Keeps High

Harbor Master George Tice stated today the water at Government dock still washes over the pier with the least wind.

However, there has been a five to six-inch drop in the level since spring. This, according to Mr. Tice, amounts to almost nothing. Meanwhile the Moira River seems to be getting lower each day. Toward the mouth, the river holds to a fairly even depth. Further up stream, patches of the rivers bottom are clearly visible.

The present level of water at government dock stands at 16½ feet in contrast with the depth in the spring and earlier part of the summer of 17 feet.

The ship "Blue Cross" berthed recently at the pier loaded with 800,000 gallons of gas. Mr. Tice believes this to be one of the heaviest cargoes to tie up here in quite some time.

Estimating the number of inquiries at 50 per week, Mr. Davis said this total is on a level with the number of inquiries last summer. On top of the personal inquiries, he said, many requests for information on vacation facilities are received through the mail each day.

OAKVILLE (CP)—An Otario Provincial Police administration building will be opened next week in this town, 15 miles west of Toronto. The building is situated at an intersection where three persons have been killed in accidents within the last six months.

Courses Cut To Qualify Officer Cadets

OTTAWA (CP)—The Defence Department disclosed yesterday that in search for officers it has decided to allow cadets in the services colleges and universities to cut their courses sharply before qualifying for commissions in certain fields.

Badly in need of leaders for the expanding forces, the department issued new details of the scheme under which it will subsidize the education of young men who agree to serve three years in the regular forces on graduation.

There are two main fields, would-be line (general duty) or executive officers on the one hand and technical and specialist officers on the other.

In either case, a student at one of the service colleges or members of the university military training plans may apply for government help after one year at his own expense.

In the first group, the government will finance an extra year of study and then the man can join the regular forces instead of doing the second group, the government will finance an extra three years of study.

This subsidized plan is in addition to the normaal plan under which young men go through college or services colleges—Royal Military College and Royal Roads—on their own or on scholarships and then decide whether they want to join the regular forces.

W. Berlin Blocks Off Criminals' Escape Routes

BERLIN (AP)—West Berlin crews hammered the last spike today into 127 barriers blocking off escape routes for Communist criminals seeking the safety of the surrounding Soviet zone.

At the same time, the western allies lifted an old restriction and permitted the West Berlin police assigned to border and commando duty to carry rifles. Pistols had been standard equipment since the force was created after the war.

The measures grew out of public indignation over the Communist kidnapping of Dr. Walter Linse, a leading official of the anti-Red Free Jurists League. The lawyer was whisked into the east zone and despite personal intervention by the United States high commissioner, John J. McCloy, with Soviet General Vasily Chuikov, has not been seen since.

The 127 points now protected on the western side flank all three western sectors where they touch on the east zone.

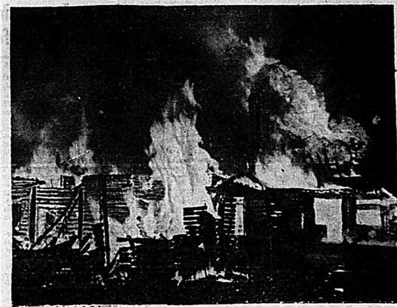
Lodge Levelled, but Guests Decide to Remain



The million-dollar fire at Jasper Park lodge, Alberta, destroyed the largest log building in the world, but failed to spread to the 50 bungalows that surrounded the lodge. Most of the guests, quartered in the cabins, elected to remain and, instead of dining in a luxurious hall, lined up for bacon and egg breakfasts. — Central Press Canadian.

STURGEON FALLS (CP)—because a waitress in a restaurant here accidentally overcharged a United States couple for breakfast, the tourists are to be treated to a steak dinner in a hotel or restaurant close to their home in Rochester, N.Y.

Henri B. Lecomte of Rochester wrote the Chamber of Commerce here that recently he and his wife were charged 85 cents for a serving of toast and coffee in a restaurank in this Northern Ontario community 30 miles west of North Bay.

The Chamber of Commerce sent a letter of apology. Then the directors decided to arrange through the Rochester Chamber of Commerce for the steak dinner. Mayor Roy H. Cockburn of Sturgeon Falls donated a pound of caviar as a side dish.

The Chamber of Commerce letter said the waitress who served the Lecomtes made a mistake in the amount of the check.

Can't Do More Than Five Bucks Says Steer-Riding Indian Girl

CALGARY (CP) — A little Indian girl with pigtails got into the boys' steer riding contest at the Calgary Stampede's opening day this year by the simple expedient of not saying she was a girl.

Shifting a wad of gum to the other side of her mouth and offering a shy grin, 11-year-old Linder One Spot explained how she got into the boys' contest.

"The people think I'm a boy but I keep it a secret all to myself." she said.

A grade three student at the Sarcee Reserve school, she has been riding horses since she was six years of age. This was the first year she tried steer riding and it was also the first time she had made a ring appearance anywhere.

Linder One Spot, daughter of Eddie One Spot, a leader among the Sarcee Indians, said she would rather ride a steer than a horse.

Why? "Oh I just like cattle."

With the typical shyness of an Indian child, she said she started steer riding at home when her brother got some cattle.

"First time I fall right off," she laughed, "and then I stay on up to five times before I fall off once. At the first day of the stampede I stay on four times. I like it. I can't do more than five bucks."

Russian Diplomat Returns Home

LONDON — (AP) — Russian diplomat Pavel Kuznetsov, asked to leave Britain for wheedling state secrets from a British Foreign Office employee, left for home last night.

A Foreign Office announcement today said the former second secretary of the Soviet Embassy sailed on the Polish ship Jaroslaw Dabrowski. He was accompanied by his wife and their five-year-old son.

The British government last Sunday asked Russia to recall Kuznetsov within a week because he received official secrets from William Marshall, a young Foreign Office radio operator.

Marshall was convicted July 10 of passing Kuznetsov secret information of value to an enemy. He was sentenced to five years in prison.

Diplomatic immunity protected the Russian from prosecution.

ANOTHER MISHAP AT JASPER

If the building at Jasper Park Lodge which was deroyed during a million-dollar blaze a few days ago could ave revealed its secrets, many interesting stories would ave been told.

The building was a resting spot where kings and ueens found leisure. Business moguls and potentates ined politicians and statesmen to loaf in this fairyland ipped deep in a mountain valley. Many of these guests ere of the stamp whose names made news, no matter hat they did or did not do..

But one of the best stories to come from Jasper Park a Cinderella story in reverse. The story concerns a cGill University medical student who was employed uring the summer months driving one of the open-top mousine which take guests on scenic tours through some the mountain scenery, and the daughter of a rich merican who came to the Lodge with her parents and room-about-to-be for a holiday ere the wedding.

The girl's parents brought their own automobile hich was shipped in a railway express car attached to a assenger train on which the party travelled. The McGill tudent was assigned to drive the private car, taking the arents and the engaged couple on day-long trips through asper Park.

But something went askew for the groom-about-to-be nd the parents of the bride-to-be. Somewhere along the our the student and the girl fell in love and decided to lope. Papa's automobile was requisitioned and a teleram a few days later confirmed what happened. The tudent and the girl were man and wife.

Jasper Park Lodge will be missed by a lot of people, ut among those who wish it had never been built is that over who was jilted in the mountains by a girl who rode ff with her father's chauffeur.

NO ONE IS SURPRISED

Although its outcome was never actually in doubt, he re-election of the National Union government in Quebec this week is added evidence that the French-Canadian province is enjoying prosperous times.

Like the western province of Saskatchewan which reurned a socialist government to power because of the rosperity which comes with good wheat prices and a otential oil boom, Quebecers voted for the return of Premier Maurice Duplessis because of the prosperity enoyed by the province in recent years.

In British Columbia, a coalition of the Conservative nd Liberal members failed to stem the popular tide. Previous to the election, the Socialist C.C.F. members domnated the opposition, but when the votes were counted a ew weeks ago, residents of the Pacific Coast province emonstrated that they wanted neither of the old-line arties, nor were they willing to swing far to the left. They elected a Social Credit government partly, no doubt, ecause of the record of excellence demonstrated in the eighboring province of Alberta under Social Crediter Premier Manning.

As for Alberta, the forthcoming provincial election will be a mere formality. Alberta is aboard a spiraling urge of prosperity which outstrips any boom in Canada. Electors are unlikely to change drivers when the economic machinery is ticking so well.

In prosperous times the government that is "in" is practically assured of remaining in office. This is poor solace for minority groups which, had they been in the majority earlier, would no doubt have continued in office and basked in the reflected glory of full employment at fair wages which, after all, is the desire of those important people — the electors.

ADAM AND EVE AT THE ZOO

Most people will admit that women can easily make a monkey out of a man but a recent news dispatch from Toronto reports that a monkey can make a monkey out of a monkey.

It appears that a monk escaped from the zoo and was finally spotted on the prowl in the north end of the city. Efforts to capture the animal failed. Then "Deep Six," a female monkey, was brought from the zoo in a station wagon to engage the escapee in conversation. For four hours they chattered in monkey talk and "Deep Six" finally lured (or trapped) the boy friend, bringing his days of freedom to an end.

And what is so odd about that? Nothing. It happens every day, but then that is another story.

The Saar territory, administered by France since 1948, produces more than 12,000,000 tons of coal yearly.

No females are allowed on the promontory of Mount Athos in Greece, occupied by a score of monasteries.

THE RULES

Business or traffic or a game,
The rules are for us all the same.
Never for one aside to sweep
And others rigidly to keep,
Never for one to think that he
For breaking them excused should be:

My boy I bid you, work or play,
The rules established to obey.
There will be times the penalty
Imposed will seem unjust to be.
Yet, keep the rule, for this is true:
'Twas meant for all, including you.

It may be some day you will meet
A rival who prefers to cheat
And in a moment, tense and grim,
Decides the rules weren't meant for him.
Should that occur, know this you can:
You'll leave the field the better man.

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP)—In the first year of radio broadcasting 31 years ago, listeners on crystal sets who were tuned to pioneer station WJZ heard a voice saying: "Lopez speaking."

It was the debut on the air of Vincent Lopez and his band, playing from a cloakroom converted to a studio in Newark, where WJZ then was located.

The suave bandleader hasn't been off the air since and currently is heard seven times a week over two networks in "Luncheon With Lopez" on Mutual; Tuesday evening on ABC in "Mayor of Times Square" and Saturday afternoon on ABC in "Shake the Maracas."

Lopez also is no stranger to television, having performed daily plus one evening a week for two years.

Retains Popularity

How has Lopez remained popular for nearly a third of a century while many other bands and bandleaders have come and gone?

"As long as bands stick to the melody and keep it understandable, music will be popular," he says. "We've proved it."

Even so, he adds, playing on the air isn't as easy as it once was because, in his opinion, radio and TV have made the public more discriminating.

"They've been educated," he explains. "They know if a band is in tune or out of tune—before they didn't.

"And the children, who keep their ears turned to a loudspeaker or their eyes on a television screen a lot of the day, are becoming a big factor. A lot of children five years old can tell you things about music that grown-ups don't know."

Nevertheless, Lopez says he doesn't believe the right technique has yet been discovered—for television or even in pictures.

"Unless a band has a plus or a gimmick," he says, "there's little to offer television."

TV Tubes

Since TV first arrived on the scene with pictures the size of a postcard, the public preference has been swinging to bigger and bigger picture sizes.

As recently as four years ago, the 10-inch tube still was the most popular—mainly because of price. Then came the 12½-inch round tube, the 16-inch round tube, the 17-inch rectangular tube, and then the 21-inch rectangular. Now sets are being made with 27-inch and 30-inch viewing tubes.

There are indications the 21-inch set will remain the most popular for these reasons: Anything bigger than a 21-inch tube would require a larger cabinet than most folks find suitable for their living room. That size tube gives a picture large enough and clear enough to satisfy most viewers. And the price is within reach of most persons.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Whenever anybody complains about the behavior and manners of the younger generation, somebody is bound to say:

"Aw, the older generation always finds fault with the young! It's human nature for us older people to bewail the habits of the new generation."

And upon this, we who complain are supposed to sigh and let the little divvils continue in their carefree ways.

But that remark is not valid. And a little examination of it will prove the point. It is only one generation ago, or two at the very most, in which a parental authority that dated back hundreds and possibly thousands of years came to an end. One hundred years ago, the older people complained and bewailed the habits of the young. But they did more. They raised cain about it. At the slightest sign of youthful carelessness, insolence, slovenliness, it was the parental duty to discipline the offender. In this, the parents of a hundred years ago were no different from parents of fifty years ago and even as late as twenty-five years ago. In other words, the older generation always complained about the behavior of the younger generation and then promptly did something about it to put it right.

What has happened quite lately is that the older generation still complains, as they always did. But they cease doing something about it. And that is brand new.

Probably for the first time in history, parents are afraid of their children. A hundred different reasons can be offered for this immensely important change in human relations. Economic reasons, such as the fact that a teen age child can be independent, if he or she likes. Social reasons, such as the enlightenment of our age, thanks to the candles and gig-lamps of the psychologists and sociologists, none of whom believes what he believed ten years ago, and doesn't expect to believe what he now believes in another ten years. Meanwhile, the younger generation is enjoying a hilarious recess while the world tries to figure out what goes on.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

HERE'S COURAGE FOR YOU

A man who had been in an automobile accident was told by his doctors that he would lose the sight of both eyes. Later they revised their diagnosis and said that while they could save the partial sight of one eye, it would be necessary to remove the other eye and replace it with a glass eye.

The doctors told the patient expecting to hear wails and the declaration that life was no longer worth while. Instead, there was silence for a moment and then, with a smile on his face, the injured man replied, "Well, doctor, when you take out that eye and put in a glass eye, I want you to make sure that the glass eye has a twinkle in it."

It might be a good thing if government began decorating people for bravery in civil life as well as in military life. If they did, they would run out of medals before they were through the first hospital. There is more heroism on our city streets, more brave hearts fighting great battles behind the walls of humble homes, in hamlets and on countrysides, than there is on the field of battle.

A man can throw himself against the cannon's mouth knowing that, for good or evil, it will be all over in a minute, but the man who faces life-long blindness and asks for a glass eye with a twinkle in it is a chap who knows how to take what life has to give and take it bravely. Life knows no greater heroism than this.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HAPPINESS IS CONTAGIOUS

We stay away from things that have proved to be harmful to us, things like contagious diseases but there are many things contagious that are good for us — Happiness, for example. There is something in the makeup of us all that welcomes happiness in others. We like to share in it, even though it is no more than to be happy because they are happy.

In a recent quiz on the TV a father was lucky enough to answer all questions correctly, which gave to him and his family a free trip to Africa, a mink coat for the daughter, and other articles. Their happiness knew no bounds, and, judging from the applause from the audience, that happiness was certainly contagious.

No matter what enjoyment comes to us, it is always made richer by sharing it. And even though we are just happy, and carry that spirit around with us wherever we go, everyone with whom we come in contact reacts to it and gets some of its spirit. The tired father coming home and noting his child upon the floor, or in the yard, having a happy time, sheds many a burden because of the contagion of his child's happiness.

The nurse in a hospital who goes about her work in a happy frame of mind has a wonderful effect upon her patients. They count the minutes that bring her to their bedside. Running into a happy person during the day is like opening a letter and finding a big check there that you didn't expect.

Every child loves the Clowns. They go through all sorts of antics just to please the children, and undoubtedly they are richly rewarded in seeing the laughter and joy that result from their acts. But often behind that mask may be many a sorrow or disappointment. They radiate the best, however. Happiness is the commodity in which they deal. It leaves its echo in an endless number of human beings.

Personal Health Talks

HAS ANYBODY A WELL BALANCED DIET?

Although babies today are a great deal healthier and happier than babies were when you and I wore didies, it is sad to note that there are still too many tots of pre-school age with malnutrition. These children are tired, irritable and listless. Compared with healthy children they look pale. Usually they are anemic, but the moderate anemia is the consequence, not the cause of their faulty nutrition.

In many instances one of the causes of this condition is failure to wean the baby completely and finally from breast and/or bottle before the baby is 11 months old. Only the fittest mothers can successfully nurse a baby ten months and in any case it is well to supplement breast feeding with bottle feeding when the baby is eight months old, or, better, with feeding from cup or spoon if the baby will take food that way. This makes the weaning process simpler.

The excessive indulgence in sugar, in the form of candy, ice cream, cookies, cake and pop, by young children is a common factor of malnutrition. Not that these sweets are harmful but when the youngster has free access to such things he or she generally has little appetite for real food.

Another cause of pre-school age malnutrition is the assurance or adivce so frequently parroted by doctors who by now should know better, that a "well balanced" diet supplies all the vitamins and minerals the body needs. This half-baked utterance has probably prompted many parents to discontinue supplementing the baby's diet with vitamin C and vitamin D after the first few months.

Still another common cause of pre-school age malnutrition is misunderstanding of the recommendation of health and nutrition authorities that every child should have not less than 1½ pints (three glasses) of milk daily. This does not mean that milk alone is adequate, even for the youngest infant. Milk is prabably the most nearly perfect food, but still it is deficient in vitamin C, vitamin D, iron and, for many children, in vitamin B complex. Therefore it is necessary to supplement the diet with these essentials of good nutrition, particularly when milk is, as it should be, the main sustenance, as in infancy and childhood, or a requisite for vite in youth and maturity (as in the basic or pattern health diet outlined in The 7 Keys to Vite, for which send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope).

Ask any doctor who parrots the dictum that you get all the vitamins and minerals you need from a "well balanced" diet to outline in writing such a diet. The most enlightening answer you are likely to get is: Any fool knows what a well balanced diet is.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Food and Complexion

I am 18 and have oily skin and large pores. Most girls my age eat whatever they want and have good complexions. I'm very careful about my diet...(G. H.)

Answer—It seems too bad for a child to be so careful about diet. Send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope for booklet Save Your Skin.

Magnesia Habit

Started eating magnesium carbonate, the block kind, after my baby was born, but laid off for nearly two years. Now I crave and eat it a block a week.... (Mrs. S. C.)

Answer—It interferes with assimilation of calcium and a good many common complaints are due to calcium deficiency. Try chewing a mouthful of plain wheat or raw oatmeal or both together, instead. These natural foods are good chewing and good for nutrition and health.

Doctor Keeps Customer Worried

Six months of the year I work in the office in town, and six months running cattle on my ranch. For years all that my annual physical examination shows is a trace of albumen in urine. But the doctor just shakes his head and says we must watch it. He never tells me what it means or may mean or what can be done... (H. C. R.)

Answer—Obviously the doctor is stringing you along. If he doesn't know whether it means anything, he should say so. That is, if he is your own doctor and not the company's.

Britain Refuses To Ban Imports Of Comic Books

LONDON (Reuters)—The government declined yesterday to stop British children from reading racy, imported American comic books.

The only way to ban such literature would be to impose literary censorship, the Commons was told by Sir Hugh Lucas-Tooth, Parliamentary under secretary for the Home Ministry. And the British public wouldn't stand for that, he added.

He said the best solution to the problem is for parents and teachers to encourage children to devote their time "to more suitable reading matter."

FIND FASTEST CURRENT

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The fastest current ever measured in the open ocean—almost 11 miles an hour—has been found in the Gulf Stream, University of Miami scientists reported yesterday. Dr. F. G. Walton Smith, head of the uiversity's marine laboratory, said this "amazing flow of water" was discovered about 15 miles offshore from Miami Beach 10 days ago.

Canadair Cancels Contract With Ford

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP) —Canadair Limited has cancelled a contract awarded last December to the Ford Motor Company of Canada for the manufacture of jet aircraft wings, Ford officials announced yesterday.

Ford officials said Canadair felt "there were definite advantages" to carrying out the work at its plant in Montreal.

$10 Bogus Bills Turn Up at Brockville

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Several counterfeit $10 bills have turned up here within the last few days. Bogus bills were passed at a restaurant, a cigar store, a groceteria and two banks.

Police said the bills, of poor quality, were easily recognizable as counterfeit.

PICTON

Picton Merchants To Discount American Money

PICTON—Merchants in Picton will discount the United States dollar at the prevailing rate of exchange, it was decided at a Chamber of Commerce meeting yesterday. This action was decided upon following a report of a survey which saw 93 percent of those polled favoring such action. Cards will be printed and placed in stores to remind United States residents.

For the past month, there has been considerable confusion over the matter of discounting the American dollar, some stores doing so and others taking it at par. Eleven tourist resorts are taking American money at par, charging it to advertising and will continue to do so unless the discount reaches the five percent mark.

Another survey showed a majority of merchants in favor of observing the Wednesday half holiday even if another holiday is marked the same week.

Plans were completed for the erection of street marking signs, the work to be in co-operation with town council.

Albert Keech Dies

Widely-known resident of Picton and district, Albert Keech died suddenly at his home Wednesday afternoon. He had not felt well that day and was stricken with a heart attack.

Previously he had been active as field man for Mowbrey Foods Ltd.

The funeral is to be held at the Anglican Church, Saturday afternoon.

Lack of Rain Cuts Crop Yields

PICTON—Lack of rain is seriously affecting crops in Prince Edward County. During the past six weeks, there have been a few light showers but these have not been general.

Grain harvesting is well under way and while fall grains are turning out well, the spring grains are very short and not filled out.

Tomatoes and corn look promising. Strawberries were a very short crop and the raspberry crop, which looked like a bumper one, will now be a short one.

Beekeepers state that the lack of blossoms is affecting the yield of honey. There is nothing for the bees to do and the yield is down 65 percent, several stated.

9 Dead, 134 Hurt, As Earthquake Rocks Japan

TOKYO (AP)—At least nine persons died and 134 were hurt early today when they were pinned in buildings collapsed by an earthquake in central Japan, police reported.

At least 350 houses were knocked down by the tremor at 1:10 a.m. (12:10 pm. EDT Thursday). The shock, felt throughout Japan's main island of Honshu, was strongest in the thickly-populated Osaka-Kyoto area. It hit Tokyo with a rippling motion that lased more than a minute.

Foot-and-Mouth Disease on Wane In United Kingdom

LONDON — (CP) — Livestock breeders throughout the United Kingdom were buoyed by a Ministry of Agriculture announcement yesterday that restrictions imposed because of foot-and-mouth disease are being removed immediately in 11 English counties.

This news, coupled with the announcement 10 days ago that foot-and-mouth is virtually under control in The Netherlands, brought some indication that the livestock scourge may be easing.

RAWDON

Over 220 Attend Lawn Social Sponsored by Parsonage Committee

RAWDON — On Wednesday evening the members of Rawdon parsonage committee and their assistants staged a successful lawn social on the grounds of Wellman's Public School.

Over 200 adults and approximately 100 children were in attendance from the three appointments and this included visitors from Carmel, Hoards, Burnbrae, Salem, Campbellford and other near-by points.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mr. Herb Mack, Wasaga Beach, who are holidaying at Wellmans. Herb lived at Wellmans for many years and spent a delightful evening visiting friends of long ago.

All the public school children and under were admitted free and it was a big night for the kids. They romped and raced on the spacious grounds with carefree, happy hearts. The location is ideal for a circuit social, far from the traffic of main thoroughfares and centrally located to circuit folk.

Decorated Entrance

The entrance to the school was decorated with evergreens. Chairs were provided for the program folk. A P. A. system was installed to carry the program. Benches were set about the grounds for the convenience of those who wished to sit after their day of toil in the hot sun and a few more benches would have proved a delight had they been available. Whole families were in attendance, mother, dad and even the wee babies in carriages.

The Fish Pond Booth sponsored by Wellmans folk did a roaring business with one of the chief attractions being balloons.

The Mount Pleasant group were in charge of the "mystery" parcels, selling at 25 cents each. There were some pretty souvenirs and one lady had a real surprise when she opened the parcel and found a white crocheted doily in white pineapple design.

The Bethel ladies sold various assortments of home-made candy in boxes and bags.

A mixed group from the circuit were in charge of a booth with the usual soft drinks, ice cream and confectionery.

At 7:30 the main attraction was a ball game made up of youngsters on the circuit and all worked hard to be on the winning side and the final score showed there had been keen competition with Mount Pleasant winning by a slight margin over a combined team of Bethel and Wellmans'

Refreshments were served on long tables, south of the school house in cafeteria style. Each plate contained two sandwiches, (one meat and one salmon), pickles, cheese, light and dark cake and a generous piece of pie, topped off with coffee.

S.A. Band

—Rev. R. R. Bonsteel, pastor of Rawdon circuit, was master of ceremonies, for a short program Four members of the Tweed Salvation Army Band were in attendance and opened the worship service with "Onward Christian Soldiers". Mrs. Sinclair read the Bible lesson and Mr. Sinclair offered prayer. Lieut. Peterson delighted with a fine repertorie of jokes, stories and monologues, interspersed with Band music and a vocal solo by one of the ladies.

The Minto orchestra contributed a few selections of music and were applauded for their efforts.

Donna and Iona Sharpe, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sharpe, of Campbellford, and former residents of Rawdon, delighted with piano music and tap dancing.

Free guesses were given on a jar filled with beans, buttons and macaroni, and Mrs. Robert Wallace guessed the nearest number of objects, and won a parrot ornament and the jar and its contents.

Following the ball game, a group of men sponsored several races for the youngsters and the winners gained some silver money to spend later at the booth.

The booths were decorated with evergreens and crepe paper, and strings of electric lights along the school, gave the school-yard a dressed up appearance.

The finances after all expenses are paid, will give the parsonage fund something over $100 and besides the joint social is an ideal way of promoting good fellowship among the various families on the circuit.

This is the one event, annually, when everyone can enjoy an evening together at a minimum of expense. Dozens of folks spent the evening chatting here and there and for them no program was needed as they were enjoying the chance to just sit and talk. Others chose seats where they could enjoy the music and singing.

At midnight, the social came to a close with the rendition of "God Save Our Queen" and prayer.

Europe, America, UN-Christian Too Missionaries Told

WILLINGEN, Germany (AP)—Europe and North America are as fertile fields for Christian missionaries as Africa and Asia, the fifth world mission conference of non-Catholic Christian churches said today.

Two hundred delegates from 43 countries, concluding their two-week conference in this Ruhr town, issued an appeal to "stop speaking of the Christian west and the heathen east — the world is equally un-Christian."

The appeal said "Evidence of a divided church hinders the spread of faith."

"Certainly there are differences between the churches, but there should not lead to disunity and division." It added:

"Europe and North America are just as good mission territory as Africa and Asia. The young churches of Africa and Asia should themselves assume important missionary tasks."

Truman Returns To White House

WASHINGTON — (AP)—President Truman's doctor gave him the last of a series of medical tests today while Democratic politicians waited impatiently for his dismissal from hospital.

After nearly a week's bout with a virus infection, the President's temperature had returned to normal.

Truman expects to return to the White House tomorrow, but there is no indication that he plans to make known his choice of a successor in advance of the national convention balloting. Such a move on his part could be the deciding factor in selection of the Democratic nominee.

Deadlock Still Continues Over Prisoner Exchange

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—Korean truce negotiators resumed off-the-record talks today with no sign of a break in the deadlock over prisoner exchange.

United Nations and Communist delegates met for 41 minutes, ending a four-day recess asked by the Reds. They agreed on another session at 11 A.M. tomorrow (10 PM. EDT Friday).

Today's was the 11th meeting under a Communist-requested news blackout which began July . The Reds' requests sirred speculation that they were consulting higher authority on possible concessions in the prisoner issue—final obstacle to an armistice.

Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckols, Allied spokesman, would not say whether the Reds were ready to accept the U.N refusal to force unwilling prisoners to rejoin Communism.

He declined comment also on announcements from the United States that Jacob Malik, Russia's U.N. delegate, cancelled plans to sail for home, and that India has initiated discussions with Red China aimed at ending the war.

Narcotics Charge Fails in Court

VANCOUVER (CP)—Stories of the sale of narcotics in Vancouver schools and of students seeking drugs "just for the thrill" collapsed in court here yesterday.

A 17-year-old key witness repudiated a statement he had made to police whe a campaign opened June 26 to curb addiction among juveniles.

It was on his statement that a roundup of narcotic peddlers was ordered.

Sixteen suspects, young men and women, were arrested and later charged with giving or selling narcotics to juveniles.

The crown yesterday withdrew charges against eight of the accused and federal prosecutor Douglas Brown told the court:

"The boy gave a signed statement to police which if true would have justified convictions against the accused

"He has now repudiated it and he now states that he never was given or sold drugs or substances represented to be drugs by any of the persons he had previously named."

NOT IN SCHOOLS

Mr. Brown then emphasized the fact that narcotic addiction is not present in city schools.

"Only one of the juveniles taken into custody had attended the school term ending last June and at the end of that term she worked as a waitress. It was then that she used narcotics for the first time."

Mr. Brown said that neither the R.C.M.P. nor city police had found evidence of narcotic traffic in the schools.

Outside the schools, the story is different. In another court, a 15-year-old girl told of taking seven narcotic injections—she called them "fixes"—within one week.

She said she started using narcotics less than a week after her school vacation started.

SMITH—KANE

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, was the setting on Saturday, July 12, at 2:30 p.m., for a pretty summer wedding when the Rev. J. G. Hornsby, pastor of the church, united in marriage, Phyllis Jean Kane, of 12 Holloway Street, Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Kane, to Robert Barton Smith, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Smith. White gladioli formed a lovely background for the occasion.

Mr. James Bankier rendered the wedding music, singing "Where're You Walk", during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her gown of snowdrop white lace and net over slipper satin, featuring a moulded basque, long sleeves and round neckline, set off by a sheer yoke effect, and tiny, scalloped collar. A tapered lace peplum fell over the very full, gathered net skirt, which ended in a back sweep. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion, was gathered to a lace bonnet, and she carried a shower bouquet of red roses and stephanotis.

Miss Loreen May, of Belleville, was maid of honor, and Miss Margaret Kane, of Belleville, sister of the bride, and Miss Jean Craig, of Toronto, cousin of the bride, were bridesmaids. All wore identical gowns of figured organdy over taffeta in pastel shades of yellow, and blue with matching mitts and headdresses, and carried similar nosegays of mixed 'mums, roses and baby's breath.

Mr. David Kane, of Belleville, brother of the bride, was groomsman, and Mr. Albert Farrar, cousin of the bridegroom, and Mr. Ronald Eaton, were ushers.

At the reception, which was held in the church parlors, the bride's mother, gowned in navy mesh with white accessories and corsage of white gardenias, received the many guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore mauve sheer with white accessories and corsage of white gardenias.

For travelling to the United States, the bride donned a natural colored linen suit, trimmed with brown, and natural colored accessories, with cream rose corsage. Upon their return, the young couple will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Rochester, Trenton and Kingston.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was the honored guest at several showers, a personal shower, given by Mrs. MacMillan and Miss Jean Craig, of Toronto; a miscellaneous shower by Miss Loreen May and Miss Marie Marinoff, at the home of Miss Loreen May; and a kitchen shower given by the office staff of the Corbin Lock Company at the home of Miss Joan McIntyre.

C.G.I.T. Keep Heavy Schedule At Conference

SKELETON LAKE. (CP) — Sixty-four campers attending the Canadian Girls in Training summer conference in this Muskoka district community have a daily schedule that would leave the average man limp.

The teen-aged girls arise at 7 a.m., and keep on the go until camp regulations put an end to their frolic at 11 p.m.

Daily meetings are held in the rambling assembly hall and sometimes the girls become so engrossed in their discussions they have to be persuaded to return to their boats, swimming, camping and other activities.

They discuss such problems as qualifications for promotion or how to increase their 30,000 national membership. Decisions are forwarded to the National Committee of Adults for consideration.

Former R.C.A.F. Man Arrested as Killer of Columbia Girl

Victim of one of the most sensational murders in recent years in the U.S., blonde Eileen Fahey was shot to death in her office at Columbia University by a tall young man who, without warning, fired several shots into her body. He then walked out of the building, told several persons he had just killed a girl, and disappeared. Police later arrested a former Columbia University student Bayard Peakes of Dover-Foxcroft, Maine, who, they report, said he shot Miss Fahey because "I was mad at Columbia and she was the first person I ran into." He served with the R.C.A.F. during the war. — Central Press Canadian.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The Promises of an Alcoholic — Are they Trustworthy?

When a person is miserably unhappy in any given set of circumstances, it's only human to believe that any change must be for the better. It's specially understandable when that person is a teen-age girl, and a boy only a couple of years older wants to marry her and take her out of the home in which she has been mistreated all her life.

Such a girl is not likely to stop and wonder if the young man really is the type to make her a good husband, particularly when he silences all her doubts by constantly reiterating his determination to spend all the rest of his life making up to her for what she has gone through. All she sees is a sudden miraculous opportunity to escape from her troubles. If she thinks about the future at all, she usually regards it with desperate hope, sure that it must be brighter than anything she would have to look forward to if she remained where she was. That she might possibly be jumping out of the frying pan into the fire is something that doesn't even enter her head.

This was the prologue to the marriage of one 18-year-old girl who now finds herself the distracted wife of an alcoholic. For nine years she has suffered in silence, hoping against hope that each time her husband promised her that he would "never touch another drop of liquor" would be the time when the promise would be kept. But that time — the time of the fulfilled promise — is still to come.

A few months ago, unable to stand the strain any longer, she packed up her things and left him. But while she had escaped from his actual presence, she had not been able to escape his pleadings and promises, nor the nagging of her own sense of responsibility toward him.

"Perhaps I should go back and give him one more chance," she writes: "Perhaps this really is the time when he has come to his senses and will leave liquor alone, as he promises. But, I keep thinking, can I put any faith in his promise, as he has already broken so many? Would it be better if I just leave him for good and stop trying to go on any longer?"

Strong Desires

Tragically enough, a trail of broken promises all along the way is one of the most characteristic marks of an alcoholic's career, for the simple reason that he is completely incapable of keeping such promises. At the time he makes them, he sincerely means to keep them. He honestly believes he can, too, for at that moment — usually at the end of a drinking bout— his periodic craving for alcohol has been satisfied and he is sure the desire is gone for good. But then it comes again, and the desire is stronger than the will to keep the promise.

Without definite and effective aid of some sort, an alcoholic cannot keep his promise to stop drinking. If he is willing to seek help — from a doctor, from a psychiatrist, from that remarkable group of former alcoholics known as Alcoholics Anonymous — the odds are greatly in favor of his eventually becoming able to control his disease, for disease it certainly is. But if he tries to rely solely upon his own will power, it is almost sure to fail him, and the trail of broken promises will grow longer and longer.

And so, since this wife has asked the question, I can only answer her by saying that I do not believe she can trust her husband's promise now any more than she could trust his promise to stop having tuberculosis, if that happened to be his trouble. Not, as I say, unless he backs up that promise by taking a resolute step toward getting expert help.

If she can persuade him to do that, make it a condition of her return to him, she may yet be able to turn this unhappy marriage into a happy one, as many other wives have been able to do under similar conditions. If she can't, and he fails to come to that decision himself, then I am afraid a permanent decision to live apart from him is her only alternative.

Food for Thought

Readers' Friday Column

By Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I was not the only one burned up at War-Bride's letter. How can anyone think that a person who is so helpful was bragging? . . . .better leave it at that. . . I also am reducing, being 5' 3' and over 150 lbs. . . I started in earnest to reduce . . .I follow a good meal-planning schedule, but oh those unnecessary nibbles that do the damage. . . I have lost 12 lbs. in 7 weeks and intend to reach 125 lbs. again. . .but how do you keep your figure with all the nice things that you give to us. . . I saw and heard you some time ago. . . now I wonder if you could help me. I have lost a recipe for "Onion Squares". The original I think was under the name of Aunt Lucy's pot roast with onion squares. . . .they are baking powder biscuit dough covered with onion rings, then 1 can evaporated milk and egg. They are delicious.—Chris.

ANSWER:

Thanks for that kind reference to my figure. . . I must have had my stomach well pulled in that night!

ONION SQUARES

(Or shortcake)

Peel 1 lb. onions, cut in thick slices and cook in water to just cover with 1 teaspoon salt until barely tender. Add 3 tablespoons butter when onions are drained (saving the liquid) and when melted gently stir in 3 tablespoons flour. Measure the onion water and make up to 1 1-2 cups with evaporated milk. Stir this gently over low heat into the onions, and just bring to boiling point. Serve on buttered baking powder biscuit squares.

ONION PIE

Line deep pie plate or shallow cake pan with 1-2 inch thick crust of baking powder biscuit dough. Slice 1 lb. mild onions in 1-2-inch slices. Pour boiling water over them and let stand 5 minutes. Drain well. Arrange over crust. Mix together 3-4 cup evaporated milk, 3-4 or 1-2 cup hot water and 2 beaten eggs, and 1-2 teaspoon salt. Pour over onions If desired sprinkle with 1 cup grated cheese. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 325 deg. Fahr. for about 15 minutes. I recommend the addition of cheese. This is a delicious dish.

Congratulations on your weight reducing program.

QUESTION:

Your column beats them all for plain everyday helpfulness. . . would you be so kind as to print some recipes for frozen desserts—just the family kind. . . can you tell me what I can make for the table from black currants, red currants, gooseberries, etc.? I've heard of black currant pie but do you have recipe. I'd like to use as many as possible while in season. . . .many years ago I worked with a girl whose mother came from Denmark. She told me of a recipe that called for soda crackers rolled fine (were they buttered in frying pan?) A baking dish was lined with crumbs —a layer of sweetened applesauce put in a layer of crumbs, continue until dish is filled and topped with crumbs. This was baked and chilled. Covered completely with whipped cream . . . that is what I remember. Do you know if that is the right recipe. . .Now to bed.—M. S.

ANSWER:

There's some kind of devotion in a letter written at 3 a.m. I hope I'm worthy of it. You ask for "just the family kind" of frozen desserts. Alas, the most economical one I can find at the moment is

APRICOT REFRIGERATOR CAKE

("With cookies or cake" as requested by M.S.)

It is not cheap, but neither is it as expensive as most of them.

One 6-oz. can evaporated milk, 1 tablespoon gelatin, 1 tablespoon cold water, 1 teaspoon each lemon juice and grated orange rind, 1 20-oz. can apricots, 1-4 cup each sugar and orange juice, 16 sponge lady fingers or equivalent in sponge or plain cake. Soak the gelatin in the cold water 5 minutes. Scald the milk in double boiler and dissolve soaked gelatine in it. Freeze until nearly set in freezer tray. Beat until three times its original volume, adding lemon juice after it begins to stiffen. Meanwhile drain and force apricots through sieve. Add their juice and the orange juice and rind and sugar, stir until sugar is dissolved and chill. Fold into whipped milk mixture and pour into two refrigerator trays lined with lady fingers or strips of cake. Chill until set. Serve with or without whipped cream.

The Women of the Bereaved Family Should Wear Black Clothes at Funeral

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Last week I attended the funeral of my father, in a city some distance from the metropolitan city in which I live. I was dumbfounded to see that at the funeral none of my sisters or other relatives were dressed in black. In fact, they wore nothing black except shoes. When I commented on this, I was told that no one wore black at funerals anymore, that only a "hick" would wear black at a funeral. My own costume was a black dress, a black straw hat, and black shoes. And honestly I felt so out-of-place. Tell me, Mrs. Beeckman, am I really so far behind the times in thinking that it is proper for the members of the immediate family to wear black at a funeral?

G.

You were absolutely right in your point of view...and you were absolutely right in wearing black clothes to your father's funeral. It is true that today many of the rules concerning the wearing of mourning have changed greatly...but one rule that remains absolutely definite is that the women of the bereaved family wear black clothes at a funeral. This does not mean that they must wear black stockings, as formerly, or heavy black veils, as formerly; but it does mean that they should wear black dresses, black hats, black shoes. And they should wear black clothes at the funeral, even if they don't believe in mourning and don't plan to wear it after the funeral. So, dear lady, your costume was correct, showed good taste, proper respect.

Engagement Presents vs. Wedding Presents

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

During the past few months we have been invited to a number of engagement parties. Although an engagement present is considered "optional," I'm quite sure that a gift, in most cases, is "expected." We prefer to give gifts for the future home, especially silver or crystal. We have been criticized for this, and we have been told that personal gifts, such as lingerie, are more appropriate. Which type of gift is most proper? Or doesn't it really matter?

J. M. W.

An engagement present is supposed to differ from a wedding present in that an engagement present is usually something personal for the engaged girl herself or for her trousseau, while the wedding present is something for the new home. However, some people do give presents for the new house as engagement presents, and if, for some special or personal reason, you and your husband prefer to do this... I am sure the bride-to-be will be most happy at your thought. (Generally speaking, a present of silver or crystal is apt to be more expensive than the rather-inexpensive engagement presents given by those who are not close relatives of intimate friends of the engaged girl.)

BEAUTY

By Helen Jameson

Brush Your Hair for Growth and Lustre

If girls can spend thirty or forty minutes every night putting up their pretty hair in pin curls, you would think that they might spare a few minutes for brushing. With them it is all for looks, nothing for scalps care and hair health. This, of course, does not make sense. Locks that are neglected have a woeful look. They have to be shampooed frequently and there should be a rousing brushing every twenty-four hours.

By purposeful brushing — not done in a haphazard, superficial or perfunctory manner, but systematically — the scalp is stimulated and the flow of blood is increased. It is from the bloods streams that those silky threads get food and drink. If your tresses have a downcast look, won't stay in curl and cling to your scalp, new life will be imparted to the growth by the vigorous use of the brush. It will show its gratitude by carrying lustre it will have a better disposition and will stay put.

Every girl should have two brushes, so a clean one is always at hand. They should be kept in a covered receptacle, so they will be free of dust. If you have a perfumed box, your hair will be delicately scented.

Don't get the notion that, because there are a few ravelings in the bristles of the brush, this treatment is depleting your growth The shafts are always doing a hail-and-farewell act. The life of a shaft varies from two to seven years, so some are always shedding. The sooner the dead ones are out the better; the little soft understudies will appear and carry on. It is only when new shafts do not take the place of fallen ones that one need worry. By using the brush, this state of affairs will be more likely to continue than if you use only a comb, which has no effect upon the health and vitality of the scalp.

Don't fancy that brushing will weaken your permanent. If it does, seek another operator; the treatment you are getting is not being done correctly.

Don't be economical when buying a brush. Those with weak bristles are ineffective. Nylon bristles are strong, will last for years.

When washing the brush, use a small nail brush and soap suds. Rinse well with warm or tepid water and place the brush bristles-downward in a sunny window.

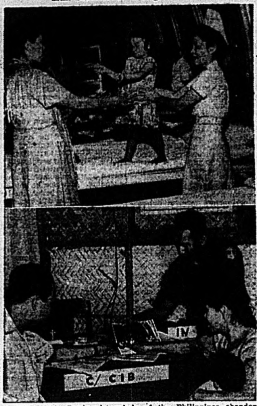
Huk Surrenders to Regain Child



When Huk Communist rebels of the Philippines abandoned several children in their retreat before government forces, the advancing soldiers sent the children to an orphanage then scattered leaflets with the children's pictures for the Huks to see. One of the women guerrilla fighters in the Huk ranks recognized her child in the photo and, toting another child, surrendered. Top, she is shown as she holds out her arms to her youngster in the orphanage, and above, when she identifies her child in the government photo. She gave her name as Mrs. Peronilo and said her husband had been killed the previous month. — Central Press Canadian.

Royals, Wings Split Twin Bill; Leafs Win Again

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rochester Red Wings had their pursuit of the front-running Montreal Royals stalled last night as the two teams split an International League doubleheader, each taking a 7-2 decision.

But the third-place Syracuse Chiefs won a twin bill from Baltimore Orioles 2-1 and 4-2. That put the Chiefs just 2½ games back of the Royals and a half-game in arrears of the Wings.

Springfield Cubs defeated Buffalo Bisons 9-5 and Toronto Maple Leafs turned back Ottawa Athletics 13-2 in other league action.

Mal Mallette went the seven-inning route for the Royals in the opener although he gave up nine hits. Freddie Martin, who was bombarded off the hill in the third, took the loss. Ellis Deal held the Royals to six hits in the nightcap. Ray Jablonski hit a home run for the winners and Jim Pendleton one for the Royals. Tom Lasorda was the loser.

Arnold Landeck held the Orioles to five hits in the first game while Bob Keegan and John Griffore teamed to hold them to six safeties in the second. The Chiefs made their seven first-game hits and six nightcap bingles count.

Higden Homers

Outfielder Bill Higdon hit a home run with one on, the big blow, in the Cubs' triumph. Dewey Adkins was the winner although he needed help.

Hal Hudson hurled a three-hitter for Toronto. He chalked up his victory with a minimum of effort as his mates clubbed 17 hits.

Olympic Notes

HELSINKI (AP)—All activity came to a stadstill yesterday at the Olympic village training field when a famous head of golden hair made its first appearance on the running track.

Mrs. Fanny Blankers-Koen, the flying Dutch woman who won four gold medals at the London Olympics in 1948, was the centre of attraction as she practised starts and a few flights over the hurdles.

Five women barbers clip and shave some 3,000 athletes at the Kaepylaf Olympic village, but this is not strange in a country where 25 per cent of the practising physicians and 75 per cent of the dentists are women.

None of the five barbers can speak English. If you ask the young lady for a shampoo or the time of day, she still smiles, nods, and begins clipping.

A virtually unknown high-jumper from behind the Iron Curtain appeared at the main Olympic village track and field training field yesterday and startled onlookers with his prowess.

Ion Soter of Romania, 23-year-old university student, soared six feet 7½ inches over the high jump standard. He did it five times and with utmost ease. Skiptical witnesses who had never heard of the six-foot youngster used a measuring pole afterwards to make sure.

They are a fast, aggressive team, apparently hard as pine knots, and they'll take any blue ribbon prize for pre-game calisthenics. But in the big tournament opening July 25 the team probably will be swamped.

This was the impression of two Associated Press men, the only outsiders to attend the Reds' 90-minute workout at the observatory tennis hall.

Their biggest man is Anatoly Koneff, six feet six, and he's a poor shot. Most of the players are six feet and under. They drive hard, pass wildly and hit consistently only on layups.

Sport in Brief

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bredan Macken, Lorne Maine, Jack Spencer and Henri Rochon have been chosen as Canada's 1952 Davis Cup team.

The selection was announced in Montreal yesterday by Dr. Georges LeClerc, chairman of the selection committee.

Macken, Spencer and Rochon are from Montreal while Maine, redoubtable tennis ace from Vancouver, now makes that city his home also.

Dr. LeClerc said Canada's representatives will meet Mexico in the second round of the American Zone play at the Mount Royal Tenis Club in Montreal, Aug. 1, 2 and 3.

He said the committee believed James Macken of Vancouver, who had a good record in tournament play this year, was entitled to a position on the team. Machen told the committee he was unable to get time off from his job for training and play and asked to be left off the team.

Five intermediate players were considered, and the committee announced it believed they will be ready to represent Canada in the next Davis Cup team. They are, Paul Willey and Lawrence Barclay, Vancouver, Jim Bentley and Don Fontana, Toronto, and Robert Bedard of Sherbrooke, Que.

In addition to being chairman of the selection committee, Dr. LeClerc is non-playing captain of the Canadian team.

Bob Moran, president of the Big Four Toronto Argonauts, said in Toronto yesterday Calgary Stampeders have decided to uphold the release clause in Royal Copeland's contract with them and have sent the Canadian Rugby Union release form to the Argonauts. Moran said there are "no strings attached" to the release. "No cash and no players are involved."

The Canadian heavyweight boxing championship match between champion Earl Walls and Verne Escoe, both of Toronto, was postponed last night because of rain. The winner of the Edmonton match is to get a crack at the British Empire titleholder, Johnny Williams.

George (Specs) Torpercer, former major league baseball player and well-known International League manager, was guest speaker at a Hamilton service club luncheon yesterday honoring Hamilton Cardinals of the Pony League. Torpercer criticized the "bonus" system used in baseball today. He said it often ruins any incentive a player may have.

Dispatches from Guatemala City yesterday said the Guatemalan government had received a message from Lieut. Carlos Bracamonte reporting the republic's Olympic team had been robbed of $3,000 and was stranded in New York. Bracamonte heads the Guatemalan team en route to Helsinki. Passage of the team to Finland was prepaid but the money stolen was for expenses and for the purchase of uniforms. No details of the robbery were given.

Cardinal manager Eddie Stanky yesterday was suspended for three days for "offensive gestures" to umpire Babe Pinelli in Wednesday night's game with New York Giants. Cardinal shortstop Solly Hemus was fined $50 for his conduct in the game.

Redmen Strengthen Lead In COBL With 2-1 Defeat Of Kingston

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

YOU CAN'T BEAT THAT

Any baseball game that will cause the gun-tipped mosquitoes to lay off their carnivorous feeding of hapless fans at the Exhibition Grouds, should have some sort of credit mark.

That is exactly what happened last night.

To those of you who were not present, we might say you missed the finest baseball treat of the season.

Art Wright, and "Babe" Stinson, respective hurlers, hooked up in one of the most dramatic hurling duels seen here in many a moon. Wright was touched for six hits. The Babe was nicked for five. The fielding was excellent, Monarchs raced for two double plays. The Redmen outfielders galloped yards to pull down hard-hit balls.

TOSSED OUT

A protest, signed by the coaches and captain of the eliminated Paul's Motel peewee baseball squad, has been tossed out by the Belleville Minor Baseball Association peewee division executive.

The protest was based on the fact that Schwab's Little Giants, which ousted Motels in a best-of-three playdown series, used taped bats.

Advice from Tom Rowdon, secretary of the Ontario Baseball Association ruled the protest was null and void since the use of tape on bats is permissible.

Two referees for a single wrestling match is an almost unheard of condition. However, that will be the ticket when Lord Athol Layton, the bombarding Britisher, charges at Whipper Watson, with malice and Whip's British Empire title aforethought, in the main wrestling bout at the Memorial Arena tonight.

In view of past fireworks and the intense rivalry between these high-powered mat battlers, two referees doesn't seem like a bad idea. No doubt Layton's controversial judo chop will be in for special official scrutiny, especially when it gets in the environs of Whipper's adam's apple, a favorite landing-place for Layton's scimitar slash. The officials would be well advised to step lively, too, to avoid being trapped in the heavy-hitting barrages for which the Layton-Watson feuding is noted.

Warren Bockwinkle, of St. Louis, will have Dangerous Dan O'Connor, of Toledo, in the semi-final. The first bout will be Roberto Pico, of Mexico, who will attempt to render Tico Tico on Bill Stack, of Oshawa.

KINGSTON JUVES HERE SATURDAY

We owe the "Ole Cuffer" a spot of apology, or does somebody else owe us one. Anahoo, the "Cuff's" juvenile baseballers play a Kingston team of the same ilk here on Saturday night, not Friday as was formerly reported. The "Ole Cuff" is all het up about this do and figures his charges will knock the baseball bejabers out of the Limestone city aggregation. Noakes has been working his noggin off with his charges and he'll be a pretty proud Joe when the team steps out there tomorrow night. Besta luck, pal. And "youse fans", would not be amiss by dropping around and giving the "Cuff" and his Colts a bit of cheering from the stand. They deserve it. It won't spoil your evening's fun, in fact it will add to it.

IT'S OUT!

The Ontario Amateur Softball Association announces its playdown draws today. The bulletin issued by pal Frank Feaver has four teams in the Intermediate "A" Zone namely Belleville, Kingston (who said they weren't in), Peterborough and Whitby. Looks like CNR Diesels and Kingston in that first round.

Only two teams ase in the zone for Intermediate "AA" and they are Belleville and Kingston.

The Glen Roy juniors appear to have a lot of travel if they get places. Included in the zone list are Belleville, Brockville, Montreal, Oshawa, Quebec (Thought this outfit was ONTARIO ASA). Nine other teams are in the running.

Only two teams in the zone peewee section (attention Geordie Fordyce) these are: Belleville and Brooklin. That's near Oshawa, not N'Yawk.

Sixty-Nine Nations, 8,000 Athletes Represented in Olympic Games

By BEN PHLEGAR

HELSINKI (AP) — Another 24 hours and the greatest sports show on earth—the 15th summer Olympic Games—will open on the green turf of Helsinki's modernistic stadium.

Sixty-nine countries, a record, and almost 8,000 athletes, another record, will be represented at the colorful ceremonies tomorrow.

A 70th country may show up, but probably not by tomorrow.

The ticklish question of which China—Communist or Nationalist—can be the China in the Games was settled temporarily yesterday. The International Olympic Committee voted to let both take part.

Nationalists Won't Play

Nationalist China then said it did not care to play with the Communists and cancelled plans to compete.

Communist China will be eligible for one sport, swimming. But its teams will have to get here by a week from tomorrow when the first swimming events are scheduled. Present whereabouts of the squad are unknown.

Today the International Olympic Committee delves into East-West politics again. It will discuss East Germany. As far as the Helsinki games are concerned the question is theoretical. The East Germans can't take part here.

The West Germans are here more or less by default. At its Vienna meeting last year the I.O.C. ordered the Germans to get together and form one squad. The East Germans balked and the West Germans showed up at the Oslo winter Olympics.

The I.O.C. again told the Germans to get together before the summer games but the East Germans weren't in a consolidating mood.

To Cut '56 Games

As the big show here prepared to go on the committee confirmed final arrangements for the 1956 games at Melbourne. Now they will tackle the problem of reducing the size of the affair. Team sports—basketball, soccer, field hockey and water polo—will have to put up a good case to justify their retention.

The 1952 Games are so large that preliminary competition has been running in three sports for the last four days. This was necessary to squeeze the 20-sport program into the prescribed period of 15 official days.

Canada, Bulgaria and the Philippines qualified yesterday for the basketball tournament and three more teams will qualify today. These will be the winners of the Belgium-Cuba, Greece-Hungary and Italy matches. The United States and Russia didn't have to play in the qualifying rounds. Neither did Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Mexico, Finland, France, Czechoslovakia or Uruguay.

Two qualifying rounds were needed in soccer and the regular field hockey tournament started Tuesday.

All 70,000 seats in the main Olympic stadium have been sold for tomorrow's opening. The prices range up to $14.

Error Paves Way for Win, Wright, Stinson Hook Up In Brilliant Pitching Duel

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Lorne Ferguson's wild throw to first base in the seventh innings followed by Mouse Bush's ringing single provided the margin in the 2-1 victory of the Redmen over the Kingston Monarchs here last night.

The Monarchs' defeat shoved them into third place in the Central Ontario Baseball League standing, a half-game behind the Peterborough Petes.

It was the best baseball game seen here in many a moon. Art Wright, Redmen righthander, and Babe Stinson, Monarchs' ace, hooked up in a thrilling pitchers' duel with the Redmen getting the nod in a game that could have gone the other way.

Hurling Duel

Both teams scored single runs in the first innings. The brilliant fielding behind equally brilliant pitching saw both squads battle on an even basis for the next five and one-half innings.

Ferguson's wild toss over first base in the bottom half of the seventh paved the way for the winning run. Tony Pettitt went all the way to second on the heave-ho and on to third when Vern Goyer hit into a fielder's choice. A near rhubarb threatened on the play.

It was a pitcher's game all the way. Wright and Stinson backed up by outstanding fielding, staged a nip-and-tuck battle all through. Wright scattered six hits while the Monarch's ace allowed but five. The only extra-base hit of the game was Ferguson's double. Wright struck out eight and allowed the only walk of the game while Stinson whiffed five.

The Redmen spotted the foe one in the first. Rank lofted a high single; White whiffed and Wright nicked Levandoski to get him aboard; Ferguson struck out. Scrutton walked and an error by Pettitt gave the foe a one run lead.

Both teams threatened in the ensuing innings but it was strictly a pitchers' duel with the issue not decided until the last chukker.

The only extra base-hit of the game was the double by Lorne Ferguson. The fielding of both teams was excellent with the Monarchs pulling off two smart twin-killings.

The Redmen's five hits were garnered by Wright, Reeves, Pettitt, Gilmour and Mouse Bush.

Chinese Athletes Withdraw When Reds Admitted

HELSINKI (AP) — Both Red China and Nationalist China were unexpectedly admitted to the Olympic Games yesterday, but the Nationalists promptly announced they would not compete in protest against the "unlawful decision."

The action of the International Olympic committee in admitting two groups of athletes claiming to represent one country was unprecedented. The I.O.C. approved the question by a 33-20 vote.

Dr. Otto Mayer, Oympic chancellor, said that under no circumstances would East Germany be permitted to compete here. A strong West German team has been entered, however.

Presumably the Red Chinese team is in Moscow or even closer, ready to come to Helsinki on short notice. There is no Nationalist team here.

Dr. Mayer said the committee acted on the fundamental principle of allowing the youth of the world to compete.

Mayer said that Red China, under the committee's ruling, could compete only in football, basketball and swimming because these are the only sports in which the Peking regime is recognized by international federations. He said the Nationalist China group is recognized in eight sports but did not name them.

Bill Cowley Acquires 'Pub'

SMITHS FALLS (CP) — W. M. Cowley, one-time star centre for Boston Bruins in the National Hockey League, has turned hotel-keeper.

Cowley has purchased a three-storey, 28-room hotel in this eastern Ontario railway centre and settled down to business life.

Said Cowley: "I'm through with hockey. Besides I'll be too busy to take on any coaching."

Canada's Basketball Team Sets Pace for Optimism in Leafs' Camp

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (CP) — Canada's Olympic basketball team yesterday set the pace for all-around optimism in the Canadian camp as the Olympics draw closer.

The hoopsters got past some weird officiating to defeat Egypt 63-57 and step into the Olympic tournament proper with three straight triumphs in the preliminary double elimination tournament.

Satisfied With Boats

The oarsmen—both Hamilton Leanders and Toronto Argonauts—are more than satisfied with their made-over boats borrowed from Sweden. They open the Games program Sunday and coaches Paddy Cline of the Leanders and Frank Kaysmith of the Argonauts have scheduled three-times-daily workout for today and tomorrow.

The Argonaut eight took a trial spin for a few minutes yesterday morning as soon as the boat was fixed up and went out again in the afternoon and evening. The morale of the crew was lifted tremendously by the excellent shell.

On the track Shirley Eckel of Toronto and Jim Lavery of Calgary are progressing to the point where the coaches take a rosy view of their chances of competing. Miss Eckel has not been hurdling but this is only a precautionary measure. The Calgary star was out this morning and able to take relay passes.

"He's coming along fine and the picture of the track team looks a lot better," said Bruce Humber of Hamilton, coach of the men's team. He is optimistic that Lavery, who competes first in the 400-metre race July 5, will be able to anchor both the 400- and 600-metre relays.

Team Ready

Ron Miller of Toronto easily pole-vaulted 13 feet, three inches. Bob Adams of Saskatoon, who will compete only in the decathlon, worked out on broad-jump, quarter-mile and distance running. Rich Ferguson of Toronto went out for two three-quarter-mile time trials within 15 minutes and turned in 3:07 and 3:11.

Fred Hayward, St. John's, Nfld., walker, went out for 13 miles on the 50-milometre course. He said he would like to compete in the 10,000-metre walk but believes he will not be able to make it three days after the longer distance event

A casualty in the camp yesterday was boxer Jim Saunders of Winnipeg, who is undergoing treatment for nose trouble. It's not serious although it is keeping the heavyweight out of the ring.

Always a Winner...
With flashing spikes the runner comes sliding into the base! Will he beat the throw or be tagged out? Thrilling close plays like this make baseball . . . always a winner!

Yankees Increase Lead In Tribe Series; Brooks Up 6 Games

Indians Now in Third Place Boston Two Points Behind; Giants Lose to Cardinals 3-2

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Chuck Dressen is playing the old P. T Barnum line on his Brooklyn calliope to flim-flam the poor downtrodden brethren of the National League.

The Brooks have won 35 of 36 games—a glittering .972 pace—against Boston, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh, the sixth, seventh and eighth-place clubs. Aginst the rest of the league, they're playing just .500 ball.

Both Jackie Robinson and Billy Cox, his second-base replacement, were run off the premises by umpire Augie Guglielmo in the ninth when the Red knocked out Preacher Roe and tied the score at 1-1.

Robinson was chased when he kicked his glove in the air in protest of a "safe" call on Eddie Pellagrini's steal of second. Cox didn't last long when he continued the argument. Joe Black was the winner, Frank Smith the loser, both in relief.

Lead By Six

The Dodger lead measured six full games after Max Lanier walked Enos Slaughter with the bases loaded and the score tied in the last of the ninth for a 3-2 St. Louis Card victory over New York Giants.

Lanier, who walked 11, gave the Cards their first run when he walked Del Rice with the bases loaded in the first.

The "big" American League series at Yankee Stadium ended with New York and Cleveland splitting a double-header. The Yanks took the series 3-2 and added a full game to their lead, now 4½ games.

Joe Collins' ninth-inning home run off reliefer Bob Lemon gave the Yanks the second game 5-4 and dropped the Indians into third place, two percentage points behind Boston. Collins' smash came a few minutes after Barey McCosky's pinch homer, his first of the season, tied the score in the top of the ninth.

Reynolds Knocked Out

Allie Reynolds, who had pitched 18 complete games since last Sept. 11, finally was knocked out of the box in the first game, won by Cleveland 11-6. The Tribe rocked Allie for six runs and six hits in two innings and rolled up 15 hits in all, including a homer and triple by Larry Doby.

All the Yanks' runs in the opener came on homers by Mickey Mantle, Johnny Mize and Collins.

Little Bobby Shantz turned in a six-hitter for Philadelphia against St. Louis Browns to win his 16th, 3-1, in the second game of a double-header. The Brownies won the opener 9-5 when pitcher Tommy Byrne hit two singles, a double and a homer.

Spec Shea shut out Detroit with five hits and scored the only run to bat Hal Newhouser's five-hitter, 1-0, for his sixth straight victory and ninth of the year.

Boston squeezed past Chicago, 2-1, in the American's only day game. Sammy White's home run and George Kell's run-scoring double were enough to win with the help of an effective ninth-inning relief job by Ray Scarborough.

Phils Drop Two

Down in the second division of the National, the big noise was provided by Pittsburgh's sweep of a doubleheader with Philadelphia, 2-1 and 4-2.

WINNIPEG (CP) —Phil Farley of Toronto yesterday was named captain of the seven-man Canadian team to meet the United States and Mexico at Seattle Aug. 14-15 in the first of the America's Cup matches to be held every two years.

Canada Qualifies In Basketball, Defeats Egypt

HELSINKI (CP)—Canada qualified for the Olympic basketball competition by defeating Egypt 63-57 in a qualifying round-robin tournament game.

The victory over Egypt gave Canada a sweep of their three qualifying-round games. They defeated Italy 68-57 Monday and beat Romania 72-51 Tuesday.

Canada led 38-31 at the half in today's game and Egypt was able to shave only one point from the margin in the final half.

Six Can Qualify

A total of 13 teams entered the pre-tournament competition, of these only six can qualify to join 10 other teams which automatically qualified for the games by virtue of performance in the 1948 Olympics.

In the preliminary round-robin tournament two losses were required to eliminate a team from further play.

Canada led for all but a few moments in a closely-fought struggle against the fast Egyptians.

The climax came two minutes from the end when Egypt fought to within two points of the Canadians and the score stood at 59-57. With the Egyptians putting on pressure, Bill Pataky, of Windsor, Ont.—the smallest man on the Canadian team—broke away for a solo basket which clinched the issue.

By FRASER MACDOUGALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—A dark horse from North Carolina today led a field of an even 100 golfers, survivors of the two opening rounds, into the third stage of the 72-hole race for the Canadian Open golf championship and its $15,000 in prize money.

Johnny Palmer of Badin, N.C., who figured mildly in pre-tournament speculation, put a second-day 65 alongside an opening-round 66 for a 36-hole figure of 131, 13 under par, and a four-stroke lead over his closest competitor.

A second-day par-smashing attack on the short, tricky St. Charles golf and country club course all but wiped out any hopes of a Canadian winding up in first place. The closest Canadians—three of them—were eight strokes off Palmer's pace.

The starting field of 142, cut to 132 yesterday through withdrawals, was automatically reduced to the low 100 for today. Tomorrow the low 60 and ties will set out on the fourth and final round.

The 34-year-old Palmer, only one of the three first-day leaders to stand up under the pressure, shot his lowest competitive score of 1952 and set a tournament record for St. Charles the second day in a row.

He, Skee Riegel of Tulsa and Stan Leonard of Vancouver shattered the old mark of 67 Wednesday with 66s. Riegel slipped from his starting pace to a 69 yesterday for 135, four strokes behind Palmer. Leonard, who said he "played like a donkey," took a three-over-par 75 for 141.

Opposition Strong

Palmer, who has been playing golf for 21 years, faces opposition from several tournament veterans.

Three were tied at 136, one stroke behind Riegel: Roberto De Vincenzo of Buenos Aires, who holds the Open championships of Argentina, Mexico, Belgium and Italy; Dick Mayer, playing out of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Dutch Harrison of Ardmore, Okla., who won the Canadian Open three years ago.

Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon, Canadian Professional Golfers Association champion, and two other Canadians shared the 139 bracket with six Americans, including Jim Ferrier, the defending champion.

Fletcher, who started out Wednesday with a 73, shot a 66 yesterday, helped along by a hole-in-one on the par three 129-yard sixth hole when an iron shot he lofted into a tree caromed onto the green and into the cup.

Henry Martell of Edmonton shot a 72 to go with his opening-day 67. Gordie Brydson of Toronto Mississauga came around in 69 after a starting 70.

Ferrier Pulling Up

Ferrier's play indicated he may be getting back into form that won him the Canadian Open for the last two years. Starting from 71, he got his putter to work and went around in 68.

Thirty-one players broke par on the second round, led by Palmer whose 65 was two strokes under his best previous competitive score this year. Then came Fletcher with 66.

De Vicenzo, Tommy Bolt of Durham, N.C., and Dick Metz of Maple City, Kansas, each shot a 67.

Galt Leafs Lose 5 Straight; Sox Edge Majors

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Members of the Senior Intercounty Baseball League are wondering: How many times do you have to hit 'em before they fall down?

The league-leading Guelph Maple Leafs last night were belted for the fifth straight time but they still hold a one-game edge on the second-place Kitchener Panthers.

Galt Wins 9-2

It was Galt Terriers' turn last night and they made it good, walloping the Leafs 9-2.

In the league's only other action London Majors slid out of fourth place when they were edged 3-2 by Brantford Red Sox. The Majors are replaced in berth No. 4 by Galt.

Don Miller pitched his third win of the season for the Terriers, allowing only five hits, four walks and fanning six.

At the end of the first inning Galt was on the top of a 3-2 lead and they added another in the sixth, exploding for five in the seventh.

Centrefielder Ed Boehm collected two of Guelph's five hits, both of them doubles.

John Adie started for the Leafs and was blamed for the loss, being relieved by Mike Pilarski in the seventh.

Alf Gavey pitched a three-hitter for Brantford. He walked two and struck out 10.

Wilson Hits Well

Centrefielder Gerry Wilson took batting honors for the Sox with three for four. Playing-manager Stan Lipka drove in the winning run on a triple in the top of the eighth.

Quebec Champ Leads Field

KINGSTON — (CP) — Mrs. Graeme Pyke of Montreal, the 1952 Quebec ladies golf champion, yesterday led 76 entries in the international ladies golf tournament at the Cataraqui Golf and Country Club.

Mrs. Pyke, defending champion in this second annual tournament, shot a one-under-par 77. It qualified her along with 15 other low gross scorers to enter today's match play in the second round of the three-day affair.

Marlene Stewart of Fonthill's Lookout Point Golf Club, the Canadian Open and Closed ladies champion, was the second lowest of the field, shooting a two-over-par 42 on the first nine and two under-par 35 on the return round for a 78.

Mrs. M. J. Carlson of Toronto Rosedale placed third with a 79.

Others qualifying included:

Mrs. L .Ross, Cobourg 41-40—81; Miss A. Sharpe, Lookout Point 39-44—83; Mrs. R. Barr, Ottawa, 41-44—85; Miss J. Allen, Cobourg 42-43—85.

The Kibitzer

The Bridge World, edited by Ely Culbertson, is tops as a magazine for expert players. Aside from its interesting hands, in it is aired each month what the big shots do and think and advise.

Some time ago it spent four valuable pages to review the basics in my Horse Sense system. The only real fault they found in it was that Horse Sense looked too easy. So, they must be good.

But what I really want to tell you here is about one of the deals they showed. It was written by one of their entertaining contributors. The hands are worth discussing in more detail.

Here they are:

NORTH
♠8 6 3 2
♥A Q J 10 8 4

WEST
♠J 9 7
♦J 10 8 7 2
♣A 5 3

EAST
♠Q 5
♥K 9 7 6 3
♣J 7 4 2

SOUTH
♠A K 10 4
♥None
♦A K Q 6
♣K Q 10 9 6

Following Horse Sense rules, a pair sitting south and north would end at five spades with bids like this:

South	North
2 C	2 H
2 S	3 H
4 D	4 S
4 NT	5 D
5 S	Pass

With a heart lead from west, careful play will take 12 tricks. But the correct lead is the diamond jack; top of a sequence. This or the opening lead of club ace will hold it to 11 tricks.

Why stop at five? Four no-trump is the ace and king asker. Five diamonds in reply is the signal for showing one ace and no kings. This tells south the opponents have an ace and a king.

The north heart rebid indicates his ace is in that suit. A club ace and possible trump trick is with opponents. So, six is dangerous.

Let me tell you the reasons for each one of these bids. The bigger you are the harder you'll fall for it.

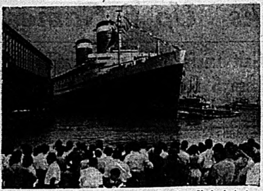
Record Run Wears Off Liner's Paint



Crowds of curious sightseers line the New York dock for a glimpse of the superliner "United States," which broke records crossing the Atlantic both ways. The sightseers are rewarded with this awe-inspiring sight of the ship towering over a four-storey warehouse. The fast run across the ocean and back wore off the paint at the waterline. — Central Press Canadian.

TREATY RATIFIED

OTTAWA (CP)—A Canadian-United States extradition treaty providing for extradition of "stockateers" making fraudulent stock offerings in the United States or vice-versa, has been ratified by an exchange of notes. The treaty, approved by Parliament at the last session, makes it possible for residents of one country to be taken to the other country for trial.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Alan Ladd was the victim of thievery, but he has failed to register a complaint.

"Aren't you worried about having that scene thefted from you?" Ladd was asked.

"Not at all," he replied blandly. "Tamiroff can do all the stealing he wants to. If it makes the picture better, that's all right with me."

Ladd's attitude is not completely altruistic. He has a half interest in the film, one of those North African things called "Desert Legion"

Home Base

It's a sentimental return for Ladd. He got his screen acting start on the lot in 1933.

"Universal had a fine program in those days," he explained. "The studio had talent hunts all over the country. College youngsters would have two months of extensive training and put on a show every week for the executives. We didn't get paid anything, but it was great experience."

Ladd suggested that the studios should institute such programs now.

"Hollywood will have to do something about finding new talent or the industry will be in serious trouble," he remarked. "This business is based on stars, but most of the studios are doing almost nothing about finding and developing new personalities."

Ladd is up to his brawny chest in production deals these days. He just completed a Warners picture, in which he has a percentage in the profits. He'll spend the rest of the year making two other films which will also deliver him a healthy slice of the proceeds.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, JULY 19, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—You were blessed with fine mentality, a retentive memory, and today is a real opportunity for these gifts. Get started early, set an even pace.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—If you know your capacity and keep within wise limitations you can make considerable headway. Take a thoughtful slow pace with no foolish moves.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Encouraging for you who will watch your openings and know the right way around. Planetary indications favor extra special endeavor and contrasts.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Some unfriendly opposition may annoy during a.m. Take all philosophically, and blend the humorous with the serious, tactfully, of course.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—May be better to be content with holding your own most of day than trying something new or that could cause confusion. Be most mindful to whom you intrust financial matters.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Watch inclinations to be too credulous; review carefully what others promote, suggest. Proceed only when you have double-checked.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Deference, politeness often gain more than cold business dealing. Don't overstress money angles. Excellent opportunities in many ways.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Be on the deliberate diplomatic side today. The friendly smile and encouraging boost will put you in the driver's seat.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Observation of people and closer study of prospects needed in money, business and personal matters. Don't be upset at things; be alert, on the job.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Regulate your affairs with system. Progressive, logical action throughout can be gainful, lead to new achievement. Auspicious aspects extra favorable from 1 p.m.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—You can advance in favorite work on this generous day. Go confidently after your goals. Romance highly favored, especially after 3 p.m.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Be alert during this mobile day. Don't be led by foolish suggestions. You should turn in excellent results if you watch these things.

YOU BORN TODAY are innately versatile, yet sometimes you upset good chances by hasty action, going ahead without facts or study of prospects. Stop worrying whether you can do this or that; you can make great strides when you really try. Birthdate: Samuel Colt, inventor of firearms.

Why We Say--

PROPAGANDA

. . . Not always bad

Since the last war this word is generally thought of with the idea that it means false news, etc. But propaganda can be good publicity as well. The word was started in 1022 by Pope Gregory as the name of a committee to publicize the good work of foreign missions. It literally means "things to be spread".

Sunday School Lesson:

Our God Is Contemporary

By ROY L. SMITH

Gideon had an outlook which was, in at least one respect, very modern. He had no difficulty seeing the hand of God in the past but he could see no evidence of God working in his own time.

For years the hands of the marauders had fallen heavily on his people. Life had become unbearably hard. It looked to Gideon as though God had utterly deserted his people. It might have been true that he had struck out in their defense in the past. It was of course true that he had brought them out of Egypt. But something had gone wrong. God had either lost His power, or He had lost interest in His people.

Terrified by Limitations 6

In the midst of his nation's distress Gideon heard the call of God. Perhaps someone might say it was the call of destiny. At any rate, whoever or whatever the "angel" was, Gideon felt impelled by some profound inner urge to take the leadership of the people, inspiring them to strike out in their own defense.

> The Uniform Sunday School lesson for July 20: "Gideon, a Man of Faith and Humility," Judges 6:1-8:28.

But as he faced the situation he was terrified by his limitations. He was a son of one of the poorest families in the nation, a nobody. He had nothing. He was so poor that he had to thresh out his little stack of wheat in a wine-press. There was not enough to pay him to take it to the threshing floor. And no one knows how hard it is for a nobody to step out in front. He suffered from an inferiority complex; he could not believe anything great about himself. That kind of man is extremely hard to set on fire.

Defied Father

Gideon's father was the keeper of the local shrine, and as such had yielded to the pressure of the neighborhood and had built pagan altars on which sacrifices were laid. The Hebrews were taking no chances. They offered sacrifices on all altars, lest by failing to do so they might infuriate whatever god would give them good crops.

Sometime in the night Gideon tore down the pagan altars and built one to Jehovah instead, and by morning he had a sacrificial fire going and an old bullock roasting over the fire. The uprising in the community was terrible. The populace, frightened lest the young upstart had wrecked the town's economy by irritating a god, demanded his death.

But the son's courage aroused his father, and the old man took his stand alongside him. "If Baal cannot defend his own altar, then of what use is he?" the old man demanded, as though he had been full of courage all the time.

One Leads to Another

Thus a great and heroic life began. There was something divine in that first daring defiance. Having won his victory over his enemies within his old home town, he proceeded to lead the people to victory over the oppressors. His gallant faith, his unsullied life and his utter devotion to the people's cause proved to be irresistible.

It wasn't long until the very ones who demanded his life began insisting that he let them make him king, but he was too wise for that. He had been called to save them, not to rule over them.

With a modesty that matched his piety he disclaimed all kingly ambitions. He knew it was better to be the power behind the throne than the unhappy king upon a throne.

The great discovery of his life was that God is contemporary. As one victory led to another, he found that the power to win victories was delivered into his hand on the same schedule as the necessities for victories.

God always goes just a short time ahead of our necessities! But He is always ahead, never behind!

Death In The Sierras

By Doris Hudson Moss

He spoke very softly, and with deadly seriousness. "I want that gold. Get back from it, all of you. You, Roberts, lift up that box. If one of you moves a finger toward me, I'll kill him."

The gold suddenly became inconsequential. Life itself was the stake we played for and to this man who disguised himself in the accepted garb of the mountaineer, who hid behind a mask, our lives quite obviously would mean nothing at all.

Even Sergeant Duncan seemed respectful of the nearness of the gray steel gun barrel. Ordell was pale and tense, his kind blue eyes dull with fear.

So David slowly but obediently lifted the quaint, rotting little trunk from the earth.

"Lift the lid," whispered the masked figure, his whispering voice thick with excitement.

I had forgotten Susie. When we dismounted she ran after a scolding squirrel but I, intent on discovery of the treature, forgot her. But when she heard the pistol shot, she came tearing back, sensing danger.

As the big dog came over the high ground beyond the granite rocks, she saw the figure with the revolver. Silent she poised her big body for action, terribly powerful she crouched behind the masked man, her fangs bared wickedly, her 8 pounds of furious strength waited for a perfect attack and then sprang mercilessly at our masked asasilant.

The figure whirled with gun levelled as he heard Susie's low and savage snarl— but not in time.

The dog leaped to kill, her wide jaws searching for the man's throat. The force of that powerful attack made the revolver go off, throwing man nad dog to earth. Its bullet hit a rock and ricocheted close to me.

Revolver in hand, both David and Duncan leaped to Sue's rescue, but the rolling mass of man and dog was too entangled.

"Don't shoot," I begged. "You'll kill her."

Using his revolver as a club the man gave Susie a horrible blow across the shoulders and as the dog relaxed her grip and reeled back, the figure sprang to his feet.

Both Roberts and Duncan fired. Roberts' shot grazed a booted leg. Duncan's shot went wild. Sue again flung herself upon the man and knocked his revolver to earth. The man cursed horribly and his whispering voice broke wildly as Sue's teeth sank deep. Again, Roberts and Duncan fired and both shots went home. But one of them wounded Sue in the left hip. I found myself screaming hysterically. When the bullet hit her, Sue lost her hold. The man was up and running, leaving blood where he had rolled on the earth. Again poor Sue threw herself upon him and they went down together, his arms around her as he tried to push her away from his throat. They rolled down the slope, past the spring and into the canyon below.

I drew back from the edge of the abruptly sloping hill, sick and still screaming wildly.

"On your horses," shouted David. "Follow the cliff trail. I'll carry the trunk. Lift it up to me, Ordell," he commanded as he made a run for his horse.

The Professor lifted the trunk which was light and with no promise of gold. Bending from his horse, Roberts lifted the lid. We crowded about, standing on tiptoe to see only a scrap of yellow and molded paper. It bore a faded pencil message. "If you be the rightful owner of the gold, it be yourn."

Aghast, we stared at the paper. There was no other word, only this enigmatic sentence.

Our mounts were nervous and frightened by the noise of the shooting and were difficult to control. They raced down the zig-zagging path that wound back and forth across the face of the mountain to the floor of the canyon and stream below.

My mind was a jumbled tangle of amazement at the turn of events. I dreaded finding the two mashed bodies that must surely lie below us. It seemed unlikely that either man or dog could live through that awful fall.

Despite the terrible rolling of man and dog down that earthy cliff, despite their united fall, the dog held her grip.

They had struck up on growth of scrub willow and pine which somewhat broke their fall. The man died instantly. His battered head rested upon a granite boulder.

Susie lay on top of and across his body. Her left foreleg and left hip were broken. She was conscious when we found her but lay spent and quiet; her beautiful amber eyes filled with pain and terror, lighted with love as I knelt beside her.

This man was our host, Rodney James.

Roberts knelt and began a thorough examination of Susie while Duncan spread a saddle blanket over James. The Professor looked ill and deathly pale. This last shock, together with his grieving for his wife, was too much for him. His aesthetic nature was capable of intense suffering and I pitied him from the bottom of my heart.

Miss Hansen also noticed his anguish and gently took him by the arm. "Come over here, Professor, and sit down on this rock. Try to breathe deeply." Of course her manner was wholly professional and yet I wondered if this nurse cared for him. It was the second time such a thought had flashed through my mind. I was ashamed of my suspicions when I saw the Professor's tragic face and remembered he had not been told that his wife was alive.

David made temporary splints for Susie's leg and hip. The hurt dog whimpered while he worked with her, but when he finished David said, "unless she's injured internally, I think she'll recover."

When we came within sight of the lodge, Professor Ordell and Miss Hansen rode ahead to prepare Mrs. James for the shock. She, the sheriff, Bob, Dick, Rhumba and the officers were waiting, as well as the Alberts family, Pete Dupres, and old Jed Downey from the gate house.

Mrs. James was pale but had herself under control. Bob seemed the most hurt. Dr. David Roberts patted her shoulder comfortingly.

Within an hour Duncan came clattering up to the lodge on horseback. "Found your car, Miss Curtis," he said. "Figured that whoever shot at you at Horseshoe Springs probably wanted to get that bullet out of your car. He was the same person, maybe, who is responsible for the other dirt around here."

"Where'd you find it?" I asked.

"Down on the rocks below the cliff. It's a mess and the bullet's gone." He hesitated a moment and added, "I guess you know Elsie Martinson drove a car like yours."

After the sergeant left, I thought of Mrs. Ordell, still imprisoned in the cave, of her husband, still grief-stricken over the belief that she was dead. Perhaps David had gone to Mrs. Ordell now.

I looked at the professor who stood by the window, stooped. tired, his pale face set in sad lines as he watched puffy white clouds gathering over Old Baldy.

My sympathy and natural liking for him overcame my memory of Mrs. Ordell's request for me to tell Bob of her imprisonment in the cave and not to tell the professor. On impulse, I decided that I would be the one to tell him the glad news.

I opened my lips to speak when a commotion and voices on the lodge porch stopped me.

Sergeant Duncan entered escorting a woman by the arm. She was a large, rather coarse looking woman, pretty after a fashion, with thick, curly auburn red hair and Irish eyes.

A clatter of horses' hooves accompanied their entrance and David Roberts swung off a badly lathered horse. I did not imagine that David would so misuse a horse.

The Doctor came up to the lodge steps three at a time. He was dirty with splashed mud and dust and looked tired to the point of collapse.

"If you folks will very kindly follow me," he said, "I shall take you to an unusual and impromptu inquest. I believe that we have the murderer, the killer who murdered Elsie Martinson and who stabbed Mrs. Odell."

David began herding all of us out of the lodge and up the trail, toward the stream. I spoke to Susie, who lay quietly suffering. "Wait good dog, I'll come back to you."

We did not go to the water hole. I was thankful for that. Instead we went up the shoulder of the mountain where the willows had stood when I crawled from the passageway.

Now the bushes lay in a heap, unrooted beside a pile of damp earth and rocks. The entrance to the cave had been enlarged until, by stooping one could enter the rocky little tunnel with comparative ease. David and I entered first. After the sunshine of the outer world the large room of the cave seemed very dim in spite of the candles that glowed bravely. Gradually I began to see more plainly.

Mrs. Ordell still lay in the bunk against the wall but looked less pale and much happier. A bright fire burned on the rude hearth and a big pail of coffee simmered fragrantly on the iron crane over the fire.

And then I saw the man of the pool. He had been standing against the rocky wall all but indiscernible in the dim light. He stepped forward to greet us. He was wearing a pair of faded overalls and a blue work shirt, which though unironed, were clean. His hair was slicked down with water as neatly as a school boy's. He was clean shaven and one could see that he had dressed very carefully.

He came quietly to meet us. I remembered my abject terror the first time I saw the cave. Yet this man who stood before us was not at all frightening. Just a rather small, stocky countryman with one of the saddest faces imaginable.

David spoke quickly as he heard the group coming through the passageway to the cave. "Miss Curtis, this is Sam Burdick. Mr. Burdick saved Mrs. Ordell's life and deserves a great deal of credit."

Again confusion confounded me. Here before me stood the man I had reason to believe might be Mrs. Ordell's assailant. This man whom I had believed to be nothing less than a monster extended his hand and so strong is the urge of convention, I shook his hand.

Then the professor saw Mrs. Ordell.

Silently he stared at her for a long unbelieving second. Then with a low sob he ran to her and threw himself upon his knees beside the bunk, catching her gently, but oh so protectingly, in his arms.

"Mamie," he wept. "Oh, Mamie. You are safe. Oh, thank God. Why did you not send word to me that you were here? Has this man hurt you? Who hurt you, my darling? Oh, my dear, how can I ever make up to your for such neglect?"

His words tumbled from his lips as his voice shook with tenderness and emotion.

Mrs. Ordell gently smoothed the thin hair on her head as tears slowly ran down her pale cheeks.

Dr. Roberts interrupted this pathetic scene. "Now, professor, will you and the others seat yourselves and we will get through this as quickly as possible. We all have some explaining to do."

Spinster Leaves $250,000 Hoard

Attorney Ben Boutell is shown going through a 50-year accumulation of newspapers and magazines in the home of the late Emma Schuknecht, who died at the age of 76 in Detroit, leaving a secret hoard estimated at $250,000. The aged spinster lived frugally and kept her wealth a secret until she died. Cash, bonds and securities were found among the papers that had been accumulating for half a century. — Central Press Canadian.

Little Benny's Note Book

We had frankferters and beans for supper, being my favorite thing if I have my choice and even for a serprize, and ma said, Now Benny, remember you are a boy and not a storage warehouse. The last time we had beans and frankferters you ate so mutch I had to give you something to settle your stummick, she said.

Yes, Benny, for Peet sake remember you only have one life to give to your digestion, so try to spred it out through the years, pop said, and I thawt, Heck, just for that I've got a good mind to just eat what's on my plate and not ask for even a 2nd helping, and if they want me to eat more they'll have to beg me.

And I started to eat slow as if I didn't give a darn what I was eating, the way I felt about food, thinking, maybe I'll even only eat half of this and leave the other darn half.

Which I didn't, eating it all and just sitting there waiting, and nuthing kept on happening, and after a while I said, Well, I guess I've had enough.

Mersey, the age of miracles is still with us, ma said. He has lerned moderation at last, she said, and pop said, By gollies he has come of age, he has become fillosophical and started to think with his head instead of his stummick.

And they kept on talking about their own bizzness, and I thawt, Aw cramberries, gosh shang the luck.

And pritty soon I said, Well, I dont know, I'm not quite sure.

For land sakes if you want some more I wish you would say so, ma said, and I thawt, Oh boy, she's forcing me.

And I passed my plate feeling lucky.

Fire on Freighter Forces 49 of Crew and Passengers To Jump for Lives Into Sea

NEW YORK (AP)—A Norwegian freighter carrying 49 persons and an inflammable cargo burst into flames last night 65 miles at sea. Coast Guard headquarters said early today that 45 men had been rescued.

Survivors were treated by the Gripsholm's doctor, and then all but one were moved to a Coast Guard cutter, the Mackinac, which raced to the scene of the disaster from its nearby patrol position.

The man kept aboard was too badly injured to be moved.

The cutter warned it is "not deemed advisable to attempt to fight fire as there is danger of explosion," adding the area had been searched "thoroughly for the four missing persons with negative results." Another Coast Guard cutter was to continue the search.

The ship, the Black Gull, dumped its passengers and crew into the Atlantic Ocean without life rafts at 11:58 p.m. EDT.

Hours later, the Coast Guard cutter Mackinac reported to New York that 45 men had been taken aboard the Swedish liner Gripsholm, which put off course to hunt survivors.

The Mackinac said the survivors were being transferred to the cutter.

Spilled Into Water

The Gripsholm picked up the survivors after hours of searching for the men, spilled into the water without life rafts. Lighting the scene was the eerie glow of the burning vessel and flares dropped by Coast Guard planes droning overhead.

Heavy loss of life had been feared. The Gripsholm and another liner, the Excalibur, had hunted long without success.

A Coast Guard flier who earlier had circled the burning ship reported that the vessel was engulfed by fire.

Lieut. William G. Fenlon, who looked down on the scene from his plane, said the after two-thirds of the 5,000-ton ship spouted flames that were "blinding" even at 3,000 feet in the air.

"The flames were a bright orange color shooting up about 25 or 30 feet high," he said.

The fire was fed by a cargo of 500 tons of napthalene stored in metal drums on the deck. Naphthalene is used in making dyes and explosives.

The missing four men leaped from the vessel's poop deck some 35 feet above the water, the Coast Guard quoted survivors as saying.

The cutter Mackinac reported it would stay at the scene until a complete search is made for the missing men.

This was taken to mean that the survivors were not in serious condition.

High-Class Moron Best Car Driver Says Researcher

CHICAGO (AP)—The best type of motorist is not a person of high intelligence but a high-class moron with a mental age of 10 or 12 years.

The job of operating an automobile is not for one who is mentally keen.

These observations were advanced yesterday at a seminar of Northwestern University's traffic institute by James Stannard Baker, director of the institute's research and development. Said Baker:

"The low mentality motorist, once he is taught to drive properly, will not deviate from what he has learned. The higher mentality is inclined to experiment and also to think about other things to the detriment of his driving."

Eva Peron Reported In Critical Condition

Official reports from the presidential press office said Mrs. Peron showed some improvement after a serious turn for the worse yesterday. She was "resting quietly" at 3 a. m. EDT.

But Argentine government officials appeared downcast and gloomy. Peron stuck close by the bedside of his wife, who fought beside him through the battles of his six presidential years.

The diagnosis of Mrs. Peron's illness has never been officially disclosed.

Fifty Cancer Patients Treated Daily With Cobalt Bomb at London

Dr. Ivan Smith, director of the clinic, states extra staff had to be hired to keep the $50,000 bomb operating 16 hours a day.

Inquiries have been received from all Canadian provinces except Saskatchewan, where Canada's second C-bomb is located, all 48 of the United States, Mexico, South America and the West Indies.

Dr. Smith in an interview cautioned against over-optimism and said use of the bomb is restricted. More than 1,000 victims have been turned away because their conditions were unsuitable for treatment.

Majority of hopeless cases are these where the cancer has spread from its primary site. To date cancer of the liver has proved to be resistant to cobalt radiation, he said.

Surface cancers and those of the prostate, lung, gullet, the upper end of the stomach and even the pancreas have been relieved by treatment, as have deep-lying, localized tumors.

Each patient receives about 15 treatments, one each on successive days, Dr. Smith said. Thus only 70 new patients a month or 900 a year can be accepted at the clinic.

The Saskatchewan bomb was put into operation in August, 1951, and the one here a month later. Each bomb does the job of $45,000,000 worth of radium. Radioactive cobalt for the units is produced at Chalk River.

BUMPER CROPS INDICATE NEED FOR HARVESTERS

Labor Department Ready to Move 3,000

OTTAWA (CP)—The likelihood of bumber crops on the Prairies this year indicates the probable need for 2,000 to 3,000 harvesters from other parts of Canada and arrangements for their movement have been made.

The Labor Department said in a statement today that as in other years, the railways are co-operating in providing special low rates. The movement is expected to begin about the middle of next month and reach its peak about the end of August or beginning of September.

The department said it anticipates "no great difficulty" in recruiting harvest workers for the west from the areas of Ontario and Quebec which provided them in the past. It also was considered likely that a substantial voluntary movement of workers from British Columbia would take place.

The existing farm labor situation was described as "fairly well under control." There had been some shortage of workers for haying in eastern Ontario bt this had been met with farm workers from the west, the Maritimes and Newfoundland.

The annual movement of skilled tobacco curers to Ontario from ing in eastern Ontaro but this had the southern United States also has been arranged.

U.N. Infantry Renew Drive On Korean Hill

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — Tank-supported United Nations infantrymen fought through furious artillery fire today in a renewed drive to dislodge Communists from the northwest slope of "Old Baldy" in western Korea.

Late reports said the Chinese were resisting fiercely.

The dawn attack opened a third day of bitter, rain-drenched fighting for the hill west of Chorwon.

The battle has been raging since Thursday, when the Chinese opened up with a screeching artillery barrage and Red infantrymen assaulted the height under cover of tank fire.

Both Allied and Communist big guns have been firing ever since.

Truman Signs Legislation For $540 Million More Social Security Benefits

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman yesterday signed legislation providing for a $540,000,000-a-year expansion of United States social security benefits.

The new program provides that: About 4,500,000 retired persons will have their monthly social security payments increased by $5 or 1½ per cent, whichever is greater, effective after September 1.

Almost 3,500,000 recipients of public assistance—the aged, blind, totally disabled and dependent children—will share in a $300,000,000 boost in the federal government's grants to the states for such programs.

The act calls for a $5 boost in monthly payments for the aged and disabled to begin Oct. 1 and run for two years; and this amount would be doubled if the federal grant is matched by the states.

The provision affecting the blind, calling for a like increase, is retroactive to July 1 and will run until Sept. 30, 1954.

The aid to dependent children will be boosted by $3 a month for each recipient and this will run from Oct. 1 until Sept. 30, 1954. Sept. 30, 1954.

The amount of earnings a retired person can get without losing his benefits will be $75 a month instead of the present $50.

Canadian Airman Says MIG Plane Good But Pilots Stupid

MONTREAL (CP) — FO. Bruce Fleming, of the RCAF, said in an interview yesterday the Russian-built MIG-15 fighter is one of the best planes in the world but "thank heavens the pilots flying them are stupid."

FO. Fleming, who probably destroyed one Communist jet and damaged two others over Korea while on exchange duty with the United States Air Force, left here yesterday by air on transfer to Chatham, N.B., as an instructor. He was in Korea three months.

Communist pilots, he said, failed to take full advantage of the speed and manoeuverability of the MIGs.

He said it generally was believed that European pilots, probably Russian, used Korea as a training ground, but no one knew "for certain."

Russ General's Obstinacy Caused Train Wreck

BERLIN (AP)—A Russian general's obstinacy caused a recent Soviet troop train crash that cost him his life and killed about 160 of his soldiers, informed Allied sources said tonight.

The crash occurred July 9 on the east side of the Oder River in former German territory now part of Poland, according to well-authenticated reports reaching Allied officials here.

The reports gave this account of the accident:

The train was carrying Red Army men on leave to the Soviet Union. A Russian general insisted his personal automobile loaded on a flatcar in the middle of the train. Railroad officials protested that putting a light flatcar between heavy coaches might lead to disaster. But the general was adamant, refusing to have the flatcar hitched onto the end of the train.

sThe train started off with the flatcar in the middle and the general himself sitting in his automobile. Near Bottcho, a settlement in Frankfurt on the Oder and Posen, the prediction came true.

The train buckled on a bend and plunged into a lake. The general and soldiers died in the wreck.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden will consider the possibility of negotiating with Qavam's government when he returns o his desk Monday after a three-week bout of jaundice.

BRITAIN CALLS MILLION PERSONS FOR DEFENCE

Recruiting Drive To Start at Once

LONDON (AP)—Britain called today for 1,000,000 more men and women volunteers to bolster home defences.

Sir David Maxwell Fyfe, Britain's Home Secretary, has written all civil defence authorities urging an immediate door-to-door recruiting drive.

Britain now has 213,500 civil defence workers, nearly half of them women.

Fyfe's letter disclosed elaborate defence plans already have been made:

Mobile C.-D. columns will be trained to rush to any area under attack; an experimental mobile column manned by volunteers from the R.A.F. and the army will be ready for action by January; complete food convoys already have been stationed at strategic points, while teams to man them now are being trained; and emergency evacuation plans also are being discussed.

Bail Refused Women Held In Counterfeit Case

OTTAWA (CP)—Magistrate Glen Strike in police court yesterday refused to grant bail to two women held on bogus money charges on the ground "there are too many ramifications to this case."

He told Gordon McMichael, defence counsel for Rita Gatt, 27, and Rita Bourdeau, 18, both of Jackson's Pint, near Toronto, that "these accused should be held."

The women were arrested earlier this week on charges of passing bogus $10 bills and their arrest opened police investigation of a possible counterfeit ring.

Police said they now are seeking two men in connection with the case. The men, in Ottawa at the time of the arrest of the two women are believed to have returned to the Toronto area.

Officers said the case involved the passing of $300 in bogus $10 bills in Ottawa alone and these are still trickling into police headquarters.

No Charges Will Be Laid Against Riot Leaders

LEVIS, Que. (CP)—Mayor Adelard Begin of Levis said yesterday no charges will be brought against persons connected with an election night disturbance Wednesday near the home of Raynold Belanger, Liberal candidate elected for this city constituency.

Mayor Begin said police collected the names of about 15 leaders in the riot but no charges will be pressed. However, he said persons who were attacked or suffered property damage could take civil action.

Cars and windows were smashed in the five-hour disturbance which attracted 1,200 persons at its height.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Skies are partly cloudy in most southern forecast regions today, and this condition will continue throughout the day. Scattered showers are in prospect both this evening and again Sunday evening. While southern regions continue to swelter in warm, humid air, drier and more comfortable air is gradually moving into northern and central regions.

Picards' Flight Into Stratosphere To Observe Mars Needs $250,000

The plan is to learn some of the answers to the mystery of the planet Mars, which, when nearest to earth, is some 35,000,000 miles away.

Since prehistoric times Mars has been a riddle to man—is it inhabited, can it sustain life? It is known to have canals—sharp thin lines—which have held the attention of scientists for decades.

"If there is oxygen on Mars there must be vegetable life," said Dr. Picard in an interview here. "Where there is vegetable life, there may be a race of human beings."

"We have set the flight for 1954 because in that year Mars will be in the most favorable position for observation."

One thing is lacking for Dr. Picard to complete his plans, a sponsor with $250,000.

Violent Rioting Erupts in Tehran; Qavam Denounced

Demonstrators Attempt To Fire Newspaper Building

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Violent riots erupted in Tehran today as supporters of former premier Mohammed Mossadegh demonstrated against the appointment of new Premier Ahmed Qavam.

First fragmentary reports said at least seven persons were bayonetted as mobs shouting "death to the traitor Qavam" roamed the streets.

Officials of the newspaper Etelaat, which opposed Mossadegh, reported an estimated 300 demonstrators stormed their building and attempted to set it on fire.

Newspaper workers battled with the mob and tossed rocks, bricks and hammers for an hour before police and soldiers drove off the demonstrators.

Tanks Guard Square

Six tanks took up stations in the square opposite the parliament building while armored cars patrolled other parts of the capital.

Unconfirmed reports said police fired over the heads of the crowds and used tear gas. Eye-witnesses reported the bazaar section, a stronghold of Mossadegh support, was blocked off by soldiers.

Police officials admitted there were "disorders in the city" but claimed "generally it is under control."

Qavam, a veteran Rightist politician, took over from Mossadegh Thursday and said he would seek a friendly settlement of the British-Iranian oil dispute, warning he would take strong action to maintain order and arresting several Nationalist demonstrators.

Secret Sessions In Truce Talks May End Soon

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—Korean armistice negotiators met in their 12th straight off-the-record session today, but there was no indication of progress in settling the truce-blocking issue of prisoner exchange.

Another secret session was set for 11 a.m. tomorrow 10 p.m. E.D.T. Saturday.

However, reporters got the impression the secret sessions may end in a day or two, a speculation touched off when Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckols, U.N. command spokesman, refused to discuss even the atmosphere during the 29-minutes session at Panmunjom.

Nuckols had described previous sessions as businesslike and devoid of propaganda. Saturday he said merely: "No comment."

Orangemen Elect New President

He succeeds Lt.-Col. T. Ashmore Kidd of Kingston, Ont., who retired after three years.

Orangemen are members of a Protestant organization, originating in Ulster, which exists in Canada, Great Britain, other Commonwealth countries and the United States.

J. M. Andres, of Belfast, was reappointed imperial grand master. H. Loftus Reid of Toronto, who retired from the office of imperial grand secretary, was replaced by H. Burdge of Belfast.

Senator Lehman Hopes for U.S. Approval Seaway

CHICAGO (AP)—Hope for eventual congressional approval of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project was voiced at the Democratic platform session yesterday by Senator Herbert H. Lehman of New York.

His comment came as N. R. Danelian, executive vice-president of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Association, urged Democrats to back the seaway in their platform.

Danelian and Lehman said powerful pressure and "lobbying" by eastern railroads, utilities and seaports had been able to block the project in Congress for nearly 30 years.

If Canada goes ahead with recently announced plans for constructing the seaway between the Atlantic and Great Lakes alone, Lehman said, she will have sole control over the seaway and tolls to be charged.

Danelian estimated that the seaway project could be completed for about $300,000,000 and that tolls would repay the entire cost within 50 years.

Lehman agreed and said a number of private banking firms are anxious to finance the seaway.

Diamond, Cash Missing from Body

BEAVERTON (CP)—A diamond ring and about $700 in cash were missing from the clothing of Saul Mager, Toronto clothing manufacturer, when his body was searched after his death in a level-crossing crash north of Brechin a week ago.

This was revealed by Crown counsel at an inquest last night.

Joe Mager, brother of the victim, said in a telephone conversation later that his brother had telephoned him shortly before his death and told him he had purchased a diamond ring at Montreal and that he was carrying $700.

Beaverton is 50 miles north of Toronto.

TRIP COSTS $1,500

BRAMPTON (CP) — A resolution which Deputy Reeve J. C. Saddington said was passed in jocular spirit, will cost Peel county council $1,500. The resolution, passed in June, approved an all-expense trip for the 15 members and clerk of county council to Calgary to attend the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Reeves convention. It was fortunate, said Mr. Saddington, that only four persons accepted the offer of the free trip. The bill was $375 for each member. If everyone had gone, the county would have had to pay $6,000.

During his stay in the city Bishop Iezekel visited all Greek homes in the city and conducted special service at St. Thomas' Parish House, assisted by Priest Philip Ramfos.

SHORT CIRCUIT DOES LITTLE DAMAGE

A short circuit in a wall socket caused firemen a brief run to 13 Earl Street, yesterday. The blaze was quickly put out with little damage reported.

ASLEEP AT WHEEL DRIVER HITS POLE

Raymond Tweedy, Cannifton, received bruises and a shaking up shortly after midnight last night when his car went out of control near Cannifton and skidded into a hydro pole. He was taken to Belleville General Hospital by Bush's Ambulance and was admitted for observation.

Tweedy is reported to have said that he fell asleep while driving his car home.

TWO MEN CUT IN STREET BRAWL

Two young men were taken to hospital early today as a result of a fight at the corner of Pinnacle and Dundas Streets.

Police said Al Browning suffered a slashed wrist, and Gordon S. Hay, 8 St. Paul Street, a cut in the head.

The men were taken to hospital in the police cruiser.

RAIN WILL BENEFIT DISTRICT CROPS

Crops in general got a new lease on life Friday evening as result of the rain which fell over the district. Officials at the filtration plant said .37 inches of rain fell during the brief but heavy shower.

Farmers agreed the rain would help some but said big rains were needed if pastures, grain and garden crops were to receive any real benefit.

Service Station Operators Hear Timely Address

Reny Barki, representative for the Ethyl Corporation of New York, adressed a group of 150 B.A. dealers of this city and district in the Hotel Quinte recently. This was the first lecture of its kind in Canada dealing with automobile engines and what makes them go wrong.

Mr. Barki used a cross section of a gasoline engine to illustrate his statements. The working model was put in motion and dealers were able to view what actually goes on in the engine of an automobile.

Explaining all automobile engines in use today are four cycle engines, the speaker touched on intake, compression, power and exhaust. Describing the inside of the engine, the speaker said, "To complete one operating cycle in a car running 60 mph, this complete cycle takes place in each cylinder about 1,500 times a minute."

Mr. Barki dealt briefly with some of the more common engine troubles. He advised them what to look for in certain cases of engine difficulties.

Blame Products

He urged attention be paid the ignition system of an auto, even the smallest defect in the system can cause a customer to blame the dealer's products when the motor fails to start.

Mr. Barki described some of the common distributor troubles to dealers urging them to check this operating piece in all cases where fuel consumption is questioned.

"Gritty oil is death to cylinders", the speaker said. "Don't let anyone tell you oil never wears out," he cautioned. "Water never wears out either; but, you could not keep your hands clean if you washed them for months in the same basin of dirty water."

Lastly Mr. Barki turned the dealers attention to the carburetor "the heart of the fuel system." Breaking the carburetor down into three sections he explained the operation of each individual part.

Mr. G. H. Carveth, B. A. Oil Company's district representative salesman here thanked Mr. Barki for his address.

Trenton-to-London via Montreal Unique Assignment for Reporter

TRENTON (Special) — Just another 600 miles.

When the Public Relations officer at the Trenton Air Station handed out an assignment to cover the graduation of the first women officers in the R. C. A. F. this reporter expected a flight from Trenton to London and return; a distance of approximately 500 miles by air.

But the junket turned out to be twice as long and many times more interesting.

The sturdy Dakota transport took off from Trenton at 7.10 a. m. yesterday. Instead of heading west the pilot nosed the big ship east announcing Montreal was the next stop one hour and a half later. The reporter sat close to one of the observation blisters for a good look at Belleville from 2,000 and still climbing.

From the air the city of Belleville approaching from the west is all but hidden in the natural camouflage of green-leafed trees. Except for the large silver gasoline storage tanks at the waterfront it would be difficult for enemy aircraft to spot the city until they were in direct line of vision with Front Street.

Follow Water Course

The pilot set his course to follow the natural water course down to the Atlantic Ocean. At times the plane flew right along the imaginary international boundary and at Brockville crossed over to the U. S. side to give the passengers a view of Ogdensburg.

It was time to think about the friendly relations that exist between Canada and the United States. It was better to be in a Canadian plane over American territory than a Swedish craft over Russian holdings.

The Long Sault and the Lachine rapids provided a spectacular view from the window of the plane now flying at 3,000 feet and cruising along at 150 miles an hour and being pushed by a stiff tail wind.

The trip to Montreal took exactly one hour and ten minutes, twenty minutes ahead of schedule due to the tail wind.

Toronto Bound

Four reporters boarded the plane at Dorval and the pilot set course for the flight to Toronto. The passengers were given an excellent panoramic view of the Rideau Lake area from 3000 feet up.

The sun was beating down on the silver colored ship as it droned westward. It was just as hot "upstairs" as it was on the ground and there was no fooling about that. The government signal tower at Stirling reported the temperature at 80 degrees as the plane passed.

In Toronto two more reporters and two photographers piled on with cameras and accessories. The weather closed in out of Downsview airport and the pilot climbed his ship to 4000 feet to get over the rough spots.

Rain spattered the windows while reporters and cameramen sweltered inside. Everybody was glad when Air Woman Mary Sime, making her first big trip for the R.C.A.F., P.R.O., passed around refreshing fruit juices and sandwiches.

The ceremony at London with the Hon. Brooke Claxton, Minister of Defence, watching his daughter Helen and forty-nine other college coeds graduate from the summer course as officers, came off in true impressive air force style.

There was a reception afterwards in the officers' mess on the London station with the graduates acting as hostesses for the guests.

The Dakota, with nine tired reporters and cameramen aboard, headed back at 5.00 p.m.

Fly Over Falls

As a fitting climax to a wonderful trip the pilot circled Niagara Falls. Both American and Canadian sides were plainly visible in spite of the haze that promised rain.

By 7.30 p.m. the big ship went down through the overcast at Brighton and it was good to see Trenton Air Station sprawling out over the countryside east of the hometown.

Trenton Nurse Willed Her Body To University for Cancer Research

Trenton (Special) — A Trenton woman who spent most of her life as a registered nurse relieving human suffering has not allowed death to end her humanitarian work.

Mrs. Henry Burton, 68, who died in Kingston General Hospital on June 22nd from cancer, willed her body to Queen's University for cancer research.

Now alone in the world except for his work, the 77-year-old husband feels that his wife has done a fine thing in bequeathing her body for research.

"If something comes out to aid in cancer research, I feel that my wife has done a fine thing," Mr. Burton said. "After all what does it matter to us what becomes of our bodies after death."

He said that his wife first knew five years ago that she had cancer. Since that time she had made regular trips to Kingston for radium treatment and was scheduled to go again in September. However, she suddenly became worse and last month was taken to Kingston where she died.

The will bequeathing her body for cancer research was made by Mrs. Burton last February.

Born in West Virginia, Mrs. Burton was brought up by her grandmother in England after her mother died. She trained as a nurse at the Johns Hopkins Hospital at Baltimore and served overseas as a nursing sister in the First World War.

While she was serving at St. Mary's Hospital in the London district a German Zeppelin was shot down and a seriously injured German airman was taken to her hospital where he was nursed by Mrs. Burton.

The German had received from the Kaiser, the Iron Cross, the highest decoration that can be received by a German soldier. On his deathbed the German gave his Iron Cross to his nurse. Mr. Burton has decoration given to his wife by the German airman.

Accidental Meeting

Although Mr. Burton met his wife while she was a young girl in England he had forgotten her for many years, until he accidentally met her again in a Buffalo, N.Y. hospital. He later married her. Mr. Burton's niece had met with a motor accident and while he visited her in a Buffalo hospital he was introduced to the girl's nurse.

The nurse repeated the name and then recalled she had once met a Burton in England. "I was the Burton," the Trenton man said.

Dr. H. McEwan of Queen's, has written Mrs. Burton's husband: "This generous and public-spirited action on the part of a gentlewoman will always be kept in mind."

Mrs. Burton's body will never be buried.

"I've had enough dirt thrown in my face while I was alive," she told friends before her death.

Mr. Burton is well known in the Trenton district as a specialist in stone masonry and has built many of the "hard head" stone fireplaces that grace homes in the Bay of Quinte district.

Plane Sprays Insecticide To Control Mosquitos

Trenton (Special) — The RCAF is battling with an insect pest that may never be exterminated.

Friday night a Dakota aircraft sprayed 500 gallons of insecticide on the mosquito population in the Middleton Park area just before the rain started to fall. Result of the spraying had not been announced, while other sorties are being planned for the immediate future.

The bombing plane is equipped with 500-gallon tank and an apparatus which spreads the insecticide over a wide area. Spraying is managed from an altitude of 500 feet and lower.

MUCH-NEEDED RAIN

The much needed and much looked for rain started falling here shortly after 7 p.m. last night. At the time the atmosphere was close and sticky and people were seeking relief from the humid heat.

The first sprinkle was followed by a soft, easy fall which grew into downpour proportions by 9 p.m.

MEN DUEL TO DEATH

New York (AP)—Two men slashed each other to death in a 12-minute street duel with pocket knives today as a crowd of onlookers stood by, apparently afraid to try to intervene. Police, who identified the men as Willie Kirkpatrick, 39, and Elmore Hayward, 40, were not immediately able to determine the cause of the fight.

Hastings, Prince Edward Regiment Leaves for Petawawa Training Camp

Upwards of 140 all ranks of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will spend next week in summer training at Petawawa Military Camp.

The advance party of the unit left for the camp on Thursday under the command of Major Bill Graydon, second-in-command of the regiment. The transport, some forty strong, left today under the supervision of Lieut. W. Harding.

The remainder of the regiment, some eighty strong, leaves on Sunday by bus. One vehicle will leave Picton via Trenton and Frankford while another leaves Belleville picking up personnel from Madoc and Bancroft en route.

Lt.-Col. Max Porritt, M.C., commanding officer, will accompany his regiment. A special guest will be Lt.-Col. R. Widdifield, who will assume command of the regiment this fall.

Lieut. Angus Duffy will be the training officer and with his assistants will put the regiment through mechanical transport, Bren gun, 3-inch mortar, 6-pounder anti-tank gun and signals training. Lieut. Gavin Scott is the adjutant.

Another "guest" is the famous mascot of the regiment, "Chief Petawawa-Much", wooden Indian of international repute. The "Chief" was crated in a "rough box" and forwarded to Petawawa where he will greet the regiment on arrival.

A special recreational program has been arranged for the troops. On Monday night they will be taken on a tour of the Des Joachims power project. Tuesday evening they go on a fishing expedition. Thursday night they will be out till dawn on a special scheme and Friday night will be the annual regimental party.

By special arrangement with the regular army authorities the regiment will do its own cooking under the supervision of Quartermaster Captain Lloyd MacKay, M.C.

Col. Porritt and his officers expressed satisfaction today with the number of men who reported to go to camp. It was expected that 100 would be the maximum number, but this was exceeded by thirty. The regiment will return next Sunday.

Berry Growers Delighted By Friday's Rain

The "million-dollar" rain that fell on the city and district was worth the proverbial "dollar-a drop" to raspberry growers of the district.

George Baitley, Wellington grower who has a fifteen-acre patch said today the rain came just in time. He had taken the first picking off early in the week.

The rain will boost the yield nearly 100 per cent Baitley said. Another few days of drought would have been ruinous to the crop.

Growers state that thus far there has been no sign of the white fungus that caused canning factory rejections last year.

Quinte Ladies Play Tournaments

Ladies of the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club played two out of town tournaments during the past week.

On Tuesday six ladies played in the invitation tournament at Cobourg, against ladies from the Kawartha Club, Peterborough, and the host club of Cobourg. Mrs. John Grant won the low net prize for Belleville with a 78.

On Wednesday afternoon, 11 ladies took part in the Peterborough Golf and Country Club's open field day.

Mrs. John Grant won low gross honors for the third flight with 103. Joy Bowerman won the prize for honest score and Mrs. Earl McDonald won a prize on a draw.

Child, 4, Dying Of Old Age

CHICAGO (AP)—A four-year-old girl, who weighs only 7¾ pounds, is dying of old age at the University of Illinois research and educational hospital.

The child is a victim of progeria, or premature senility. Doctors at the hospital said it is one of nature's rarest ailments. Both its cause and cure are unknown.

The child, named Linda, entered hospital Jan. 28, 1948, when she was two months old. She has been there ever since.

A hospital spokesman said Linda is withered and wizened, with thin, balding hair. She is only two feet tall and for clothing wears doll dresses and shoes.

The hospital declined to make public the child's last name.

MUNNS. — In loving memory of our dear father, Archie Munns, who passed away two years ago today.

We often sit and think of him when we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend that all other things decay,

Our love for him will still keep green and never fade away.

Europe as I See It

By Raymond R. Canon

(Article 74)

(Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — Like Philip and his famous son, Alexander the Great, I swooped down on the Greeks from Macedonia in the north, but my intentions were anything but warlike. In fact I think the Greeks were rather pleased to see me, since I brought a few dollars and Swiss francs with me, the two currencies that any country over here receives with open arms. Certainly it was no trouble to obtain a visa, in fact they issued one free of charge, saying that since I was a student, I was probably short of money.

If I wasn't short of money when I arrived, I certainly was when I left, for Greece is about the most expensive country that I have visited in Europe. Inflation has hit their currency, the drachma, harder than any other in Europe, so that today one can exchange fifteen thousand drachmas for one dollar.

The prices that one sees in the store windows are fantastic — a radio, for instance priced in the millions. A train ticket from the Yugoslavian border to Athens costs well over 100,000 drachma which probably explains why so many Greeks still prefer to travel by ox-cart — they just cannot afford train travel.

Wages Lag

Even with such inflation it would still be all right if the wages had managed to keep pace with prices to any great extent. But the truth is that they have not, and so an ordinary worker is having a hard time making ends meet.

Unemployment or the next thing to it is still rather prevalent throughout the country, and the thing that impresses one in the cities is the number of sidewalk vendors. A great many of them take up selling oranges as a pastime, for it seems that on every corner and sometimes in the middle of the block there are oranges for sale, and considering the competition it is a wonder how any of them manage to make a living.

Running a close second to oranges are combs — you can buy these everywhere too — but the drawback is that you cannot wear out a comb as easily as eat an orange, so that there seems to be very few of these sold.

Of course there are any number of other articles for sale on the streets, so it is conceivable that one can do all one's shopping without ever entering a store.

The first city I visited was Thessaloniki. Coming out of the very modern station, which is not yet completed, one enters a very sun-baked looking city — in fact, very rarely is a single tree to be seen. Just the gaunt houses, with their cream-colored plaster stand out ,and they seem to intensify the heat to such an extent that I think the whole population must swelter in the summer time.

Cooling Effect

A cooling effect is provided by a small hill in the city from which one can look out over the harbor and the Aegean Sea. Still, I am glad I arrived before it got too hot. The things which Greece has to offer can best be enjoyed when one doesn't have to worry about the heat all the time.

One thing I was rather sorry to see there was that the theatres are still showing several hate-films against the Germans. The thing which disgusted me most was the prominence which the most brutal pictures were given, almost as if someone was still trying to work up a hate-campaign against the Germans.

Such films, in my opinion, are in particularly bad taste right now, since Greece has recently become a member of the North Atlantic Pact along with Western Germany.

It is proving difficult enough to get the various countries to work together, and forget their pet animosities, without Greece, or any other country, for that matter, making things more difficult.

Such films make an impression especially on backward people, who probably are the only ones who would waste time seeing them. It seems to be a case of opening old wounds, and it is rather surprising that the government, which has a rather strict censorship, does not take steps to remove these films from circulation.

War Not Over

As you probably remember, the war did not end for Greece in 1945, since the Communists carried on where the Germans left off.

It was only four years later that this revolt, or war, if you wish to call it that, was brought to a successful close. This was accomplished on account of two important reasons.

The first is that the Greek government went about exterminating these pockets of resistance in a very methodical way, helped along with money and equipment by the Western Powers.

The second, equally important, was that in 1948 Yugoslavia broke off relations with the Communist bloc, and by this act, the Greek Communists lost their main source of supply, and had to rely on Bulgaria. It was relatively easy to patrol this border, and so the campaign was brought to a successful close. Only then could Greece direct all her forces on the reconstruction of the country.

The Uses of Money

Still, I had the uncomfortable feeling that many people there are living beyond their means. I saw quite a number of fine buildings which seemed to have very little value for the people as a whole. It seems a mistake to spend so much money building a magnificent theatre, when so many of the people are living on the door-step of poverty .

This uncomfortable feeling of mine was further increased by noticing the number of expensive American cars being driven about and since these have to be paid for in American dollars, it seems almost a crime that part of the dollars used for such purposes could have been diverted to where they could do more good. This is true, I might add, not only of Greece, but of all the poorer countries in Europe.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

The Ninety and Nine

There were ninety and nine that safely lay
In the shelter of the fold.
But one was out on the hills away,
Far off from the gates of gold.
Away on the mountains wild and bare,
Away from the tender Shepherd's care.

"Lord, Thou hast here Thy ninety and nine;
Are they not enough for Thee?"
But the Shepherd made answer:
"This of mine
Has wandered away from me.
And, although the road be rough and steep
I go to the desert to find My sheep."

But none of the ransomed ever knew
How deep were the waters crossed;
Nor how dark was the night that the Lord passed thro'
Ere He found His sheep that was lost.
Out in the desert He heard his cry—
Sick and helpless, and ready to die.

"Lord, whence are those blood-drops all the way
That mark out the mountain's track?"
"They were shed for one who has gone astray
Ere the Shepherd could bring him back."
"Lord, whence are Thy hands so rent and torn?"
"They are pierced tonight by many a thorn."

But all thro' the mountains, thunder-
riven,
And up from the rocky steep,
There arose a glad cry to the gate of heaven,
"Rejoice! I have found My sheep!"
And the angels echoed around the throne,
"Rejoice! for the Lord brings back
His own!"

The world, perhaps, will never see again evangelistic meetings like those conducted 60 or 70 years ago by Moody and Sankey. The two men whose soul-winning campaigns became famous were ideal team-mates. Mr. Moody could not sing a note but he was a great preacher and, at the close of every sermon, Mr. Sankey, the singer, backed up the message of the hour with a winning song.

One day in 1874 while the two were conducting evangelistic meetings at the Free Assembly Hall in Edinburgh, Scotland, Mr. Moody preached an eloquent sermon on "The Good Shepherd." When he had finished he asked Sankey to close the service with an appropriate gospel song message.

For a moment Sankey was taken aback. He could not think of any solo that would fit the occasion. Then he remembered a little poem that he had clipped from an obscure column of an English newspaper, while travelling on a train several days before. He had stuffed the poem into his pocket intending—when he had time — to write a tune for it.

Now he retrieved the crumpled verses and placing them on the organ at which he was seated he offered a silent prayer for inspiration and began to sing. The words on that little scrap of paper were those reproduced above, and the song which the great revival singer improvised that day is still sung in churches everywhere.

The song made a deep impression on the audience and Mr. Moody himself was so moved that he left the pulpit and went down to where Mr. Sankey was playing. Leaning over the organ, he exclaimed: "Where, oh where did you find that wonderful hymn? I never heard the like of it in all my life."

Later, Mr. Sankey discovered that the words he had set to music were written by Elizabeth Clephane of Melrose, Scotland. Miss Clephane, who died several years before her hymn verses became famous, wrote "The Ninety And Nine" for a friend who had it published in a children's magazine. It had been copied by the newspaper in which the singer discovered it.

THE APPLE TREE

Beside my kitchen window
There stands an apple tree,
Tho' just a common fruit tree
It brings much joy to me;
And tho' untrimmed its branches,
And little fruit they bring,
The old tree yields a pleasure
And its praises I will sing.

For oh! it is the home-nest
Where little wrens abide,
They are such happy neighbors,
And friendly, too, beside;
In the early summer morning
They cheer me with their song,
And work, it seems a pleasure
Tho' summer days are long.

And from my kitchen window
I see them on the wing,
They go and come so quietly
Good cheer to me they bring;
And when the winds of winter
Make bare the apple tree,
The joy these birds have brought me
Will live in memory.

FISH VS. CHILDREN; FISH WIN

Is there more official concern for the well-being of fish than there is for the well-being of children? In the Belleville district it appears that fish are favorites.

With swimming in waters adjacent to the city described as "dangerous" because of pollution, bathers have been warned away from the rivers and beaches because swimming under existing conditions is a menace to health. Suppose, though, pollution were blamed for threatening the lives of fish, action would be immediate and perhaps drastic to make the water safe.

Health experts blame sewage for contaminating the water in the immediate vicinity. Because of the bacteria content in the water at the pumping station, those in charge of the filtration plant admit that considerable quantities of bacteria-destroying chemicals are now required to make the water safe for drinking.

It is not necessary for sewage to destroy the usefulness of the bathing beaches around a community. To guard against possible typhoid epidemics and keep its water clean, the city of Winnipeg erected a sewage disposal plant which dehydrates the sewage and sells the residue for fertilizer — and at a profit.

If Belleville is to be made safe for children — and adults — steps should be taken to find ways and means by which sewage is not dumped into the water.

NEW LAW FOR THE LAWLESS

It is interesting to note that Ontario will make application for an amendment to the Criminal Code for the inclusion of a new offence — "prison insurrection" — as a result of the recent riot at the Guelph Reformatory where inmates caused damage estimated in excess of $200,000.

To the average man-on-the-street it would appear that the lawmakers should have got around to this eventuality long ago. Following his conviction, it seems reasonable that the law would provide penalties for an inmate who refused to behave himself and do what he was told while confined. Apparently that is not the way it is, so application is now being made for an adjustment in the Criminal Code.

Following the riot in one of the United States prisons, the rioters were made to appear in court. A sharp defence lawyer argued that the charge invaded his clients' "Constitutional Rights" and therefore should not be considered by the court. He was doing fine with his argument until a sharper attorney, acting for the state, reminded the court that the men, being convicts, had no constitutional rights. These men temporarily forfeited their rights upon conviction and forfeiture would continue until completion of their sentence.

While application for an amendment to the Criminal Code is being considered, it is hoped that the convicts at Guelph will be given suitable punishment to deter further riots at the taxpayers' expense.

SNOBBERY PAYS CASH

A woman Labor member of the British House of Commons, Mrs. Eirene White, is on record as saying that the old snobbery practice of paying sponsors to get debutantes to Court has been revived.

The report claims that sponsors are well-placed socially and are usually paid a fee of £1,000 ($2,800 Canadian funds), although one prewar fee was said to have been in the neighborhood of $50,000.

Somewhat amusing, perhaps, is the present that is made to a sponsor in some cases, if the girl "became engaged to a suitable young man before the summer was over."

It would seem that some parents are not above using the Court presentation as a bargaining point in the marriage mart, if it is indeed true that the girl's engagement is considered worthy of a present to the sponsor.

The Old World has gone through much pain and tribulation in throwing off snobbery and wiping out class distinction. It would be most unfortunate if it should return.

Mrs. White suggests that the presentation ritual be abandoned so that the time could be used for the Queen to meet some of the thousands of students from Commonwealth countries who visit Britain each year.

We think most people will agree that Mrs. White has the right idea. — (Sudbury Daily Star.)

FOR HIGHER STANDARD OF LIVING

There is loose comment and abuse about high profits and high wages and high food prices, and what is fact to one is propaganda to the other. At this time with the cost of living levelling off it is at least fair to try to look objectively at the dangerous potential cost of distortion. A break for great bodies of consumers and for pensioners and those on fixed incomes is long overdue. No one part of our economy can be healthy at the expense of another's sickness. It is the general raising of the standard of living, through lifting real wages, that should be the aim. —(Hamilton Spectator.)

A DAY

From dawn to dusk, from toil to rest,
Thus runs a day.
A few brief hours to strive,
at best,
And steadfast stay.

The yesteryears have come and gone
To join the past,
And this new day that's coming on
Not long will last.

Yet every triumph mortals win
Along life's way
Is gained those precious hours within
A single day.

By GREGORY CLARK

showed me a photograph to prove the following extraordinary coincidence. He and a friend were fishing from the same boat and caught two very large pike. One was 24 pounds and the other close to 20. When they were cleaning them, they noticed the stomachs of the fish were very distended. In Eugene's pike was a full grown mink and a half-grown pine marten. In the stomach of his friend's fish were two half-grown martens. The fur of the four animals, if taken later in prime season would have rewarded a hard-working and lucky trapper for two weeks' work.

We think of pike as voracious destroyers of young wild ducklings and of incalculable quantities of good game fish. But we are not in the habit of thinking of them as carnivorous in relation to fur bearing animals. With Maringer's experience in mind, we can visualize the tireless loss and wastage that goes on in wild nature. Wolves are fairly well-documented killers for the sheer lust of it, like sheep-killing dogs. Owls are known to wipe out a whole covey of young roosting grouse, pulling the head off each one and dropping the carcass onto the ground, never to be returned to.

When we speak of the economy of nature, and the balance of nature, we forget that some of the instincts with which nature has endowed certain of her creatures carry with them no sense of foresight and no conception of utility. A 24 pound pike lurking in the shadows sees something moving on the water and attacks. Its massive bony jaws clamped upon even so savage a fighter as a mink would make short work of the animal under water. A mink is a fairly large meal. But no matter: when a larger animal comes along a few minutes later, the pike pouches it too, though it could barely cram it in. Nature says eat, and the pike eats. Nature says to the wolf and the owl, kill. And they kill. If another marten had come by, doubtless the pike would have killed it too, even though it could not swallow it. In nature, there is no morality that the human eye can discern.

Two Brothers Lose Lives Evading Police

PONTIAC, Mich. (CP)—Two Pontiac brothers who were trying to escape pursuing police cars were killed today as they rammed their automobile, at 85 miles an hour, into the side of a truck. A bystander was critically ijured.

Dead are Herbert and Eugene Salee, 25 and 26. Suffering serious internal injuries is Elwyn Wood, 25, a sailor who was hitch-hiking to Flint, Mich. The rear wheels of the truck flew off on the collision impact, struck Wood and tossed him 35 feet.

The chase began when police saw the Salee automobile speeding. They fired 26 shots in a vain effort to halt the careening vehicle over a 12-mile course through city streets and county roads. The chase ended at an intersection.

Lightning As a Killer

(From the Metropolitan Life Bulletin)

Lightning takes approximately 300 lives a year in the United States, about three fourths of them in the summer season. The victims are mainly men and boys, which reflects their greater exposure to this hazard because of outdoor work and recreation.

The chances of being fatally injured by lightning are far higher in rural than in urban areas. City dwellers are protected to some extent by the tall steel frame buildings, which safely conduct the lightning into the ground. Then, too, when sudden thunderstorms occur in urban areas, safe shelter is usually near at hand. In rural areas, on the other hand, one is likely to be caught some distance from a safe place or refuge.

An insight into the details of how and where deaths from lightning occur is provided by information compiled by the Statistical Bureau from the reports of the United States Weather Bureau and other sources. In all, the records for 236 such deaths in the years 1949-1951 were available for study.

The major factor to emerge from this survey is that a large proportion of the deaths from lightning are preventable. About one fourth of the victims for whom pertinent information was available lost their lives when they sought shelter under trees or were near trees when lightning struck.

Because of their height, trees —especially isolated ones — are favored targets. After striking a tree the bolt may flash sideways or it may run along the ground and kill anyone in its path. For example, a group of five girls were fatally injured by lightning July of last year while they were lunching in a wooded area in Idaho. In Texas, during June, 1950, lightning struck a tree under which seven persons had taken refuge, killing four. In July of that year a single bolt killed three members of a family celebrating a birthday outdoors in Connecticut, lightning apparently having hit a chain left dangling from a limb of a tree.

Open spaces in general are hazardous places in electrical storms. In one instance, three out of four infielders lost their lives when lightning swept their positions on a baseball diamond. Two youngsters were killed in a schoolyard when lightning struck the chimney and travelled out along wet grass to where a group of children were playing.

The records also showed that five persons were fatally injured by lightning while they were in boats —at least three of the victims were fishing, one of them casting with a steel rod from a metal boat. Swimmers are in danger not only of being struck directly, but also of being electrocuted by a charge carried by the water from a bolt striking at some distance.

A considerable proportion of the fatalities are accounted for by the persons engaged in agricultural and other outdoor pursuits. Approximately one fifth of the deaths in this study were among farmers working in their fields, herding cattle, operating tractors. Others were killed in barns.

In some instances, the lethal discharge killed people standing in a doorway or on a porch. Several of the victims were gathering the family wash from clotheslines attached to tree hit by lightning. Curiously enough, a substantial number were reported being hit while they were in the living room, the bedroom, or kitchen.

A Pig in Every Pen

By JOHN GOULD

(In Christian Science Monitor)

Everybody ought to keep a couple of pigs — not for their intrinsic value alone, but because they teach many valuable lessons about economy and prosperity. They stabilize security — but not the way the government thinks. It is a shame that "plowing under little pigs" ever became a national policy or a symbol of one. It tended to obscure the true importance of a pig.

We have just started our annual pair, and with sunburned ears they are reducing their abode into a hole in the ground. They are reducing with their noses, but their ears are sunburned, all right. They will continue to sunburn and reduce until late fall, when discarded corncobs will be a monument to their industry and one well of the freezer will be dedicated to their laudable performance.

When I was small, many precepts were advanced to me to show that pigs should never be neglected. One of them was that when baby pigs cost more than $3, you can't afford to start one. Another is that you can't buy grain and show a profit on pork. The pig thus becomes a barometer of foreign affairs and a Geiger counter on domestic relationships.

I was also instructed how to move a pig from one place to another — either by knotting a string to a hind leg and steering him, or by backing him out of a pail. This latter is invaluable, and if you have a heavy shoat to deliver ten miles away, you can back him every step of the way out of a bucket and hit the destination on centre. It might get tedious on a long haul, but for putting one through a barn door or into a truck body, a pail is to the pig what reins are to a horse and the goad to an ox. I see evidence on every hand that a lot of people don't always know the right way to do the right thing.

A pig is by nature, almost fastidious. He will live in filth and degradation if obliged to, but always upon the insistence of his owner. If left to himself, a pig keeps clean, and actually shows a natural disposition to keep a neat house. I can see abstract morality in that, too. And more than any other animal a pig shows talent for relaxation when the fever and fuss of a busy day is done. A sleeping pig is the equation of immobible inertia, just as one in flight is a good demonstration of momentum.

I am sorry that garbage grinders invented by modern home improvement experts have been called "pigs." When disposal of garbage becomes a paramount problem in its own right, completely divorced from real, flesh and blood pigs, we have a basic trouble in definitions. One of physics' laws is that you can't destroy matter, and a farmer's pig proves that, while the apartment "pig" seems to say 'tain't so. Something is bound to happen to a generation that wastes its substance this way, and a kind of poverty has set in when you clean off a table and get only a grinding noise in the sink for your donations.

Give me a real pig, one that becomes a member of the family, and eats what we eat. I don't throw anything away. I get up from the table with deep satisfaction in every fibre of my well-fed physique, and I gather together the orts from the provender, and I gently commingle them into a tasty mess — adding a little salt, some skimmed milk, a handful of middlings, and making the most of my opportunity. Then while poor people go to a ball game or tune up their television, I wander down to the sty and have a few minutes' profitable enjoyment with the pigs.

It is good to see a pig eat. They approach the project in a manner which shows that nothing is impossible. When I ransomed these two at $10 the per from a livestock dealer, they weren't sure of my intentions, and for a few days had to be instructed. But now that they have found out which way we are headed, they cooperate exuberantly, and I can count on them for 100 per cent assistance at all times.

When they learn that I am coming, they become demonstrative. They speak interestedly of the general arrangement, and gird their loins for the task. A pig who knows you are coming is glad. I have seen ticker-tape receptions, and once I saw a President welcomed back to his old home town. But those things are for show and are artificial. A pig's reception is real, and the tone of his voice is authentic, and he leaves nothing to doubt. When my two pigs welcome me, it is tops for this kind of a reception.

Feeding pigs (described by the farmers' bulletins as "administering nutrients") takes time. It isn't like swishing things down the drain and rushing to a movie. You lean against the fence and admire their dexterity. It is always a pleasure to see a skilled craftsman ply his trade. A real pig puts on a real show. The soft noises he makes are music of a kind, and are muted with his intense joy.

Agronomic economy is one thing and the world has made great strides. To me a pig is a hearty henchman, a collaborator. He amalgamates first rate and co-ordinates fine. He works a full day, and his fringe benefits come when I reach in with a stick and scratch back of his ears. He likes that.

I think everybody should keep a pig. A real one. He correlates meanings all his days, and is the sole proprietor of pork chops.

Meat broth, bouillon, clear soup or cosomme is a mild stimulant to the stomach or digestion and the circulation if it is taken hot, but it has virtually no nutritive value. Neither has meat juice or so-called extract. The old timers imagined these items were "nourishing." They are not.

A preparation of meat extract with a little vegetable extract still enjoys considreable demand in England as a "tonic." In Yankeeland various preparations with a meat flavor contain enough alcohol to meet the requirement if the doctor wishes to precsribe alcohol without mentioning whiskey, brandy or other liquor.

To the best of my knowledge a person cannot assimilate or utilize the calcium in drinking water. On the other hand, no matter how much calcium in the water (calcium sulphate, chloride, carbonate or bicarbonate) nor how hard the water may be, if it tastes good it is good drinking water regardless of calcium content.

(Answer to V. W.)

No, five weeks was not long enough for a test. It probably took five years or at least five months of calcium and D deficiency to bring on the joint lameness. Even if it seems so much better now the trouble will presently develop again if you resume your deficient diet. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for the pamphlet Calcium and Rheumatiz—and please remember you are merely supplementing your inadequate diet, not taking medicine.

(Answer to Mrs. H. F.)

I don't know why the heart skips a beat now and then. It can't be very dangerous and it shouldn't scare you. Mine has done so for many years—it merely makes me wonder why and how the heartbeat can be so well regulated most of the time.

(Answer to H. R. F.)

Please do not ask me to comment on or give a post-mortem opinion on information you supply. I never could see how I could do any good that way.

No, sun bathing is not contraindicated for persons with pulmonary tuberculosis, but patients should take the sun only under the supervision of their physicians.

(Answer to Miss B. J. M.)

Varicocele (enlarged veins in spermatic cord) usually has no effect on health and needs no treatment unless there is actual discomfort, in which case it is up to the doctor to decide whether a suspensory or operation is required.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Cleft Palate

Baby born six weeks ago has cleft palate. Doctor said it is lucky that harelip did not occur with it. At first he said plastic operation would be best when baby is about four months old, but later said he had changed his mind and that the corrective operation could be done when the baby is 1 to 2 years old. Now relatives, neighbors, Mrs. Sumsey and the traffic cop down at the corner all have us worried ... (E. H.)

Answer—Provided the baby's condition is fair, as indicated by steady gain in weight, the earlier the plastic surgery for cleft palate or cleft lip ("harelip") or both is done the better the results.

The Sun and Tuberculosis

Recently discharged after year in tuberculosis sanitorium—I had minimal involvement. Is it true that sun is bad for both active and arrested cases...? (Miss G. A.)

Answer—No. It is good for all cases, but only under observation and advice of your own physician.

THINK IT OVER, YOUNG FOLKS

Restraint is imperative in every age. It appears to be particularly imperative today because so many social customs which tended to protect all people, and especially young people, from moral irregularities have now been removed. Today it is more up to the individual than it has ever been. The people who are good today really want to be good, for there is very little in modern social life to encourage them to be so.

Then of course liquor has come in to complicate the picture; not that liquor has been lacking in the past, but fifty years ago drinking for the most part was done by certain groups which drank very heavily. Today that great mass of our population known as the middle class has taken up drinking. Liquor has come into the home, which has made the custom more prevalent. When youthful vigor and alcohol get mixed up, the combination is a bad one. In the old days, girls remained sober, but very often they don't today; and when a situation like this occurs, almost anything can happen.

Every young person should consider the extent to which he can damage his life in his early years and the harm he may do himself if he falls into bad habits. Above everything else he should ask himself whether any pleasure he gets out of drinking is worth the complications and dangers involved.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

YOUR OTHER SELF

We are not as compact as we think. We may be several persons in one, or we may be two individuals. Ourself and our Other Self. We can even make a companion and adviser of that other self of ours, as J. M. Barrie, the English writer, did.

Barrie tells about his Mr. M'Connachie, the name he gave to the unruly half of himself—the writing half. This imaginary person became both complement and supplement. Barrie was the dour and practical and canny, and M'Connachie was the fanciful half.

I think that Barrie's idea was excellent. We ought to have a great deal of fun with our Other Self and become very friendly with him. Perhaps we may turn over to him a few of the problems that face us, but not unless he promises to handle them efficiently and with courage. We can even give a name to this imaginary individual, as Barrie did, and make a confidant of him.

In the Metropolitan Museum of New York is a great piece of carved marble, showing two figures in apparent combat. It is by the noted sculptor George Gray Barnard and is called "I Feel Two Natures Struggling Within Me." You can't help but do a great deal of thinking as you look upon this magnificent work of art.

We can be very severe with this Other Self of ours at times, and it may turn out as good for all concerned. We often resent the suggestions of others, but if we can keep them "in the family," as the saying goes, our Own Self and Other Self ought to get along fine! We are responsible human beings, no matter what our birth, and something definitely good is expected from us all. And if that Other Self helps out, then we are that much ahead.

I am of the opinion that we meet many people who may display their wrong self to us and there is danger that we may not be interested in the self met. This should teach us to hold our judgment until the other half should turn up! That half may be the one we may want as a friend.

L./Cpl. Gordon Manktelow, 20, of Ajax, Ont., the man the Chinese couldn't kill, is about ready to get his own back. Recovering from wounds suffered last March 26 when Chinese Communist soldiers beat him, stabbed him with bayonets, set off a hand grenade beside him and outlined his body with burp-gun bursts, Manktelow expects to return soon to his unit, the 1st Battalion Royal Canadian Regiment, in Korea. The young corporal said of that terror-filled incident, "God sure was looking after me that night." — (CP Photo.)

'God Was Looking After Me' Says Veteran Korean Fighter Of His Escape from Reds

(Bill Boss, Canadian Press war correspondent in Korea, has been in the theatre far longer than any Canadian newspaper man and probably longer than any Canadian soldier. The bearded reporter, who covered Canadian troops in Italy and on the western front, prides himself on his accuracy and his authentic detail. Last April his story of "the man the Chinese couldn't kill" was widely played in Canada—and was precise in detail—but he had the man's name wrong. To get this single story exactly right, Boss travelled more than 1,000 miles between assignments with the Canadian Navy, at the Korean front, at Koje Island—finally finding the right man in a convalescent depot in Japan. Here is Boss' story, an evidence of the front-line reporter's determination to tell the story and tell it right)

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KURE, Japan (CP)—The man the Chinese couldn't kill is about ready to get his own back.

L.Cpl. Gordon Manktelow of Ajax, Ont., has about finished convalescent training here and expects to return to his unit, the 1st Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, within a few days.

Last March 26 Manktelow played dead while Chinese Communist soldiers pummelled him, stabbed him with bayonets, set off a hand grenade beside him and outlined his body with burp-gun bursts.

His presence of mind was the talk of the battalion. But my story by error gave the credit to another soldier, Cpl. Ken McOrmond of Sudbury, Ont.

'Miracle' Story

Manktelow, a 20-year-old corporal just 16 months in the army, has a story more harrowing than the version first reported.

"We were a six-man outpost," he said at No. 6 convalescent training depot here. When the position was mortared, our corporal asked permission to withdraw."

The withdrawal was under way when Manktelow remembered a carbine with the latest infra-red sight had been left. He returned to the position, blew up the carbine with a grenade and used a few more grenades against Chinese he heard on the way back.

By then there were Communists ahead as well as behind him and he went to ground. One of seven Chinese running uphill tripped over him.

"They tried to 'wake me up,' slapped my face after taking my rifle, and then dropped me again.

"I was lying face down, arms outstretched. They started to drag me. Then a fellow started bayonetting me. Each time he hit I was able to sag. That's what saved me—that and my parka.

"There were four superficial wounds—two on the right arm, one in my seat and one in the muscle of my left leg.

"The man with the bayonet hit me on the side of the head with the butt of his rifle. Then the two holding me threw me down. I had a No. 36 grenade in my hand and they found it

Grenade 'Big Laugh'

"They must have pulled the pin, then put the grenade sideways on the ground beside me. They walked away, waiting for the grenade to go off. The base plug went into my thigh, but the fragments wet off in other directions. They thought it was a big laugh.

"They kicked me a couple of times, poked me, then walked away. I had been turned over and now waas lying face up.

"Two men fired burp-gun bursts at me. One burst grazed my head, knocked my cap away and threw dirt on my face. The other seemed to follow the outline of my body. I could feel the heat of the bullets in the ground, and again they threw dirt all over me."

Those Chinese left, but Manktelow heard others and decided he'd better stay where he was. He was in pain and weak from loss of blood. Luckily his uniform helped the blood congeal over some of his wounds.

'I'd Had Enough'

"One of the first group came back. He started to undo my parka, but just as he reached my neck somebody called and he left. I don't know what he was going to do. I don't think I could have taken much more—I'd had enough.

"After he left I wasn't bothered any more."

The corporal lay there until R.C.R. mortara fire began to fall. He got his bearings from spotlights and crawled off a path into an R.C.R. minefield.

"I don't know whether I flaked out or what happened, but next I remember it was fairly light. Then I got on the path again. I heard noises and thought it might be more Chinese.

"It turned out to be a patrol (led by Lieut. Russ Gardiner of Arnprior and Kingston, Ont.) to see if there were any survivors, and to bring in the dead and wounded.

Couldn't Believe Safe

"They came over a crest. One man aimed his Sten gun at me. I said 'Don't shoot.' Then I started to cry. I couldn't believe I was safe again."

He emerged from the ether at a hospital near Seoul to find something taped to his shoulder; The base-plate of the grenade. Someone stole it from him later at the Commonwealth hospital here.

Manktelow's recovery has been complete, and a skin graft is healing over the base-plate scar.

'God Looking After Me'

"God sure was looking after me that night. If I'd been lying on the ground that bayonet would have got me. . .the grenade on its side. . .the burp gun. . .the minefield. It was more than pure luck, I'm telling you. It was uncanny.

"I get scared even now just thinking about some of the things that could have happened—and about some of the things that did."

How does he feel about going back?

"I'm looking forward to it—in a way. My buddies are there. I'm interested to see how I'll react to action again. But I know that when it comes I'll be too busy to worry."

How did the error in names occur in my first story?

I first got the wrong name at Brigade headquarters and my notes list McOrmond's name with a page of detail on what actually happened to Manktelow. I went to the R.C.R. to talk to McOrmond—but he had left for Canada on rotation. His company commander confirmed my notes on "the man the Chinese couldn't kill," but didn't realize I had the wrong name.

And I never did get the story of another patrol exploit, a week before Manktelow's experience, that later won McOrmond the Military Medal.

Little Benny's Note Book

Dorey Shorty Judge's berthday is next week, and everybody has been wondering if he is going to have a party, including Shorty, and us fellows were talking and arguing around the letter box, and Shorty started to go past, and we said, Hay Shorty, are you going to have a party, are you having a berthday party, Shorty, how about it, Shorty?

Aw, it's all off, there's no chance, my mother is too mad at me now, Shorty said. I left all her change on the counter around at the market. That's where I'm going now, to zee if it's still there. Hay, why dont you guys go to my house a while and ask her about a berthday party? If she thinks you're expecting to be invited to one, maybe she'll be ashamed to say I'm not having any, he said.

Sounding like an idea, and we went and rang Shorty's doorbell, and his mother came out, and Puds Simkins said, Is it true Shorty is having a berthday party, Mrs. Judge?

I haven't heard about it, Mrs. Judge said.

Not saying yes or no, and I said, We just thought we'd like to know, on account of the presents.

I'll tell you about some berthday parties he did have, Mrs. Judge said. He was only 5 when we had his ferst party, but he managed to upset the lemmonade pitcher all over the table. He had 2 more parties after that. He forgot to mail the invitations for the ferst one, and at the other one he swallowed a whissle. Now do you expect me to let him have still another? she said.

No mam, we said, and we walked away diskusted, Puds saying, Good nite, that's the dopiest guy that ever lived. Meening Shorty.

HOUSING No. 13
HOMES FOR NEWLY WEDS

Although the comparatively small payment down required on a dwelling with a N.H. Act loan looks attractive, it is to be avoided if at all possible by newly weds. Under present requirements of the Act a young couple must assume a much greater obligation than they can ordinarily suffer.

These houses are built to size or floor area and those essentials that one must have for comfortable living must be paid for extra after the house is purchased.

My submission is that a smaller house but completely built with concrete walks, proper permanent steps, porches, complently fenced, graded, top soil in place ready for sodding or seeding, modern tiled bathroom, completely equipped kitchen including electrtic stove, refrigerator, ironing board, oil burner hot water heated, electric heated water boiler, convenient laundry with plastered walls, tubs, attractive interior painted wall finish, good style interior and exterior doors, modern floors and counter top covering. Venetian blinds, screens, screen doors, storm sash and brick fireplace, can be supplied for the same or lesser price than an N.H.A. house built bare and to size only, and is in every way more desirable for newly weds.

By a smaller house I mean a house with living room, kitchen, breakfast room, bed room, entrance hall and closet, and tile bathroom and suitable cupboards. This small house may take a little larger down payment but the overall carrying charges are cut to a minimum.

Only the ALL-CROP Harvester has air blast separation. Between cylinder and strawrack, shelled grain and straw are whirled upward in a high arcing blast of air. Kernels are thrown free from the lighter straw and chaff, separating much of the material even before it reaches the big ten-foot strawrack.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By

WINIFRED E. WILSON

POOR TASTE

All spring the pair of robins had been dogged by bad luck, and now, after mid-July, they were making a third attempt to bring up a family. However, the babies were only a few days old when more trouble came. Mr. Robin yelled in protest; Mrs. Robin cried aloud. Such a rumpus! The two girls ran out of the house and over to the Robin family's tree.

"The nest looks all right,' said Edith, gazing up into the big spruce, "but I wish it were not above eye level."

Just then one robin after the other dashed past her head with snapping bill. Some enemy lurked near. Again the birds flew by, screaming. Was that a ball of red brown fur a few feet from the nest?

"Alice, look here, a red squirrel is sitting calmly on the branch below the nest, holding a baby robin in its paws. It is eating the baby! How terrible!"

Less than a week afterwards excitement reigned again.

"Alice, come and see the robin!" Edith shouted.

Mr. Robin was on the narrow path just inside the gate, and seemed to be having a hard time, holding down an end of something with one foot, and apparently pulling pieces off the other end with his bill.

Snack of Snake

"It's long and thin," said Alice, looking intently — then hastily added, "My goodness! It's a snake, the one we so often see in the garden! The robin is eating it, head first, biting off little bits at a time. What poor taste!"

Sure enough, the garter snake was being demolished. After a while Mr. Robbin stopped snipping off sections. He shook his head, gulped, and rested; shook his head, gulped, and rested. The snake was very, very slowly disappearing. Mr. Robin seemed to be tired out, and much too full, but persistent.

When at length only three or four inches of tail hung out of his mouth he flew heavily up onto the fence, and rested before finishing his protracted meal. Finally, even the tip vanished, but it was several minutes before the glutton was able to fly a few yards into the lower branches of the spruce.

"I hated to have that snake eaten," Alice remarked. "It was harmless, and a good flycatcher for us."

"Yes," Edith admitted, "but the robin needed compensation. Do you suppose he'll survive that meal?"

U.S. Sending Only Non-Voting Observer to Red Cross Meeting

WASHINGTON. (AP)— The State Department, bracing for a new Communist propaganda drive, announced today that the United States will send only a non-voting observer delegation to the international conference of the Red Cross opening next week at Toronto.

The aim is to keep the U.S. government as such out of a direct clash with the Reds over charges they are expected to bring up.

Charles B. Marshall, a member of the State Department's policy planning staff, was named to head the government group. The American Red Cross delegation, which will have voting power, is headed by James T. Nicholson, executive vice-president.

Communist delegations are considered certain to drag in such matters as charges of germ and gas warfare in Korea, and attempts to outlaw the atomic bomb. All the Soviet bloc countries have sent word they will be represented by voting delegations from both their governments and their national Red Cross societies.

The State Department, officials said, was persuaded by Switzerland, Britain and other countries not to send an official American delegation because this might provoke a head-on east-west collision threatening the future of the whole international Red Cross humanitarian movement. A number of other western governments likewise will send only observers.

WORMS DESTROY GRAIN

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Serious outbreak of army worms were reported in two sections of Bruce County yesterday. At Berndale, farmer Robert McCutcheon had lost 100 acres of grain valued at $5,000. Neighbors are treating their fields in an attempt to halt the insects. A small outbreak was reported on one farm in Tara Tours. Worms were reported in the Stratford area.

Many Fine Pictures Seen In Camera Club Exhibit

A fine display of photographic art by professional, local photographers, Camera Club, and amateurs of the magic lens has been on view for several days at the McCarthy Theatre. This exhibit includes portrait studies in black and white, and tinted, both of children and adults; scenes of cities and places 'south of the border', and close-ups of wild bird-life.

The portrait studies are most interesting, especially that of the soldier lieutenant in military dress, by Riley, which had been accepted last May at the National Convention of the Ontario Society of Photographers, at Toronto, and that of the lady, "Ready for the Opera",—for want of a better nane—by D. Riordan, which had also received the same merit at the convention. Mr. Riley also showed several other photographic gems, one being the Bakelite factory at night, and portraits of well-known city of a bettef name—by D. Riordan, exhibits those of children were of great charm, catching, as they did, the flitting, whimsicality of childhood.

Charming Child Picture

Another charming child picture was by the McCormick studio, which held a sunny and elusive smile. The "Churchman" with his ecclesiastical trappings the "Heavy Side of the Law," in wig, and gown, were also exceptionally fine studies, both of expression and in their detail effects.

Meyers Studio showed some effective child studies in soft colorings by Loyola which were most pleasing.

Wild Bird Life

For those who are lovers of wild bird life, there is a real treat, depicting some unusual, close-up pictures of birds in their natural habitat; the "Great Horned Owl" and nest of eggs with one tiny fledgling; a lonely, "Bald Eagle" on a tree perch; the "Virginia Rail" with eight eggs; the "Green Heron" beside her scraggy nest of six eggs, and the "Barn Owl" with her downy, monkey-faced chicks, by D. Muir.

In the alcove some new oils have appeared: "The Harvest Field," by Moorman; "The Wedding", showing Christ Church with the wedding guests and the bridal couple wending their way to the Parish Hall for the reception; "The Sanctuary" of St. Thomas Church, and the church itself, by Charles R. Bone.

These, and the photographic display are most interesting and well worth an hour of inspection.

Even Shakespeare Would Have Approved This Luxurious Motel

STRATFORD-ON-AVON, Eng. (AP) — William Shakespeare might have been horrified by the word—but now there is a "motel" down the road a bit from Anne Hathaway's cottage.

Shakespeare of the classic phrase, might find it somewhat difficult to accept the name of this new enterprise, but he would approve heartily of the breakfasts served at the motel.

A motel, the British are being told, is an American version of the medieval road house at which both a man and his horse were bedded down, genially and comfortably for the night.

Hundred Chalets

At this motel in the Shakespeare country, the motorist's car is greased while he reposes in one of a hundred chalets spread out over a picturesque estate.

The Shakespear—land motel, says its owner, millionaire-showman John Collins, is grander than any he has seen. The heart of it is Rouncil Towers, about eight miles from Stratford-on-Avon. In Rouncil Towers are restaurant and recreation rooms for travellers wanting a conventional hotel atmosphere. But Collins' special pride is the cluster of chalets, each costing about 1,000 pounds.

If the place isn't full, the visitor has his choice of chalets finished in light or dark oak, walnut or mahogany. There are two built-in beds, parquet flooring, step-down bath and shower, electric cooker, electrically heated towel rods and ice water on tap.

All Air-Conditioned

All are air-conditioned and Collins expects that Canadian and U.S. visitors will find a perverse joy in heating their chalets to 80 degrees and cooling themselves with his ice water, or the iced highballs that come at the touch of a button.

There are tennis courts and many games, and laundry comes back in 90 minutes. One may do a bit of cooking in the chalets, but the real fun is to order food, at any hour, and have it delivered promptly by trolley by a staff which never sleeps.

Collins operates the pleasure gardens in London, which are left over from the Festival of Britain, and fun fairs in many parts of Britain. He doesn't mind going to the ends of the earth, and hauling back any novel paraphernalia for mass entertainment.

The motel, he thought, was a need for which Shakespearean pilgrims have been clamoring.

$1,000,000 FIRE DAMAGE

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadian National Railways yesterday estimated damage at $1,000,000 in the Tuesday evening fire which levelled the main building at its fashionable Jasper Park Lodge, Jasper, Alta. A statement also said the resort will continue to operate for the balance of the season. The bungalows which house most of the guests were untouched by flames.

Minister and Congregation Beat High Building Costs By Erecting Own Church

With their former meeting place at the corner of Bridge and Coleman Streets inadequate, congregation members began thinking seriously last autumn of building a church. The growing congregation was still small, and there was the matter of finance to be considered.

Boost Finances

But with the cash sale of their current quarters the building fund was given a big boost. Individual contributions from church members and others were accepted and they began to see hope.

The lot at the corner of North Front and Earl streets was purchased and on February 28th., ground was broken. Since then it has been a series of headaches and much hard work on the part of Mr. Ellis—preacher, carpenter, general contractor and handyman.

But the small congregation with their plucky minister are winning through, and with the walls going up, have visions of a completed parsonage.

October has been set for the dedication and opening services for the church. The date is still three months away but already Mr. Ellis is thinking of the church library planned for the new structure.

Donations for the library would be welcome and gifts of books would be much appreciated. A telephone call to Mr. Ellis or his wife at 173-J-13 would get prompt attention.

The Pentecostal Church in Belleville was started 30 years ago as the Penetcostal Tabernacle by Rev. Joseph Kleinsteuber. It is affiliated with the United Pentecostal Church of St. Louis, Mo.

And for the skeptics who don't believe such a broad statement there is the proof offered by congregational members of the First Pentecostal Church here who through pluck, determination and a willingness to work are building themselves a new $70,000 church for less than one third of the estimated contract price.

First of all they are doing it by almost 100 per cent volunteer labor, and secondly by paring costs on the purchase of materials. And a lion's share of the credit for the whole undertaking goes to the congregation's young and enthusiastic minister Rev. Allan Ellis, who has been instrumental in assuring the success of the venture.

"Some people call it faith and some call it courage, but I term it just plain stubbornness the overalled young minister declared as he paused a moment from actual building operations. "But let me assure you there has been lots of discouragement."

14 Hour Day

Site of the new First Pentecostal Church is on North Front Street, where, since late in February, when the ground for the new edifice was broken, Mr. Ellis has put 10 to 14 hours every working day directing operations and working the hardest of any of his volunteer church members.

"We have cut a lot of corners in buying materials at less than the regular retail price," the young minister went on. "A hundred or so saved here and another hundred there soon begins to mount up."

Most of the required materials are now on the grounds and Mr. Ellis is certain the completed cost of the church will not exceed $20,000.

And his statement is not merely wishful thinking for he has the experience gained in building two other churches to back him up.

An American from the State of Maine,' Mr. Ellis built one church in his home state and another in the Maritimes before coming to Belleville, two years ago.

In neither instance did he go to the charge with the idea of building a church. It was just that a new church was needed so a new church was built.

And in the case of the new church at Belleville, when the structure is completed it will be nearly all paid for.

A Parsonage Too

While the new church is being built a new parsonage is also underway in another part of the city.

The volunteer labor force at the North Front Street site of the new church has ranged all the way from 50 workers when concrete pouring for the foundation was in progress to one or two men during other phases of construction. Evening hours see the greatest labor force out.

But the building is definitely taking shape; the basement walls are completed, the joists are in and the sub-floor is laid.

Last week the superstructure began to take shape. The completed structure will be a Colonial New England type church, complete with front pillars, steeple and belfry. Definitely the new church will be distinctive.

The church will be 40 by 80 feet with a basement auditorium 25 by 59 feet. Also there will be six small Sunday School classrooms in the basement.

Mr. Ellis feels the North Front street location is an ideal one for the new church as it is in an area where at present there are few churches. He feels that its Sunday School will appeal to many children of the area who at present may have too far to walk.

SISTERS ALL

It always seems such a pity that photographers' proofs are thrown out when the photo to be finished is selected. Just the other day, a mother was showing us a transparent plastic booklet about five by seven inches into which she had inserted nine proofs of her baby's photo. . . . They say these proofs fade in time. At least she has them preserved temporarily for her own enjoyment. They look well.

Sunken Treasure

News reports say that the Duke of Argyll is going to make another try at salvaging the wreck of the Spanish galleon Duque de Florencia, which lies in Tobermory Bay off the Argyllshire coast of Scotland. The old ship is thought to contain gold worth about eight and a half million dollars. It was sunk in 1588.

The 49-year-old Duke of Argyll who is legal owner of anything found in the wreck, is convinced there are many jewels on board, much gold plate and probably a crown which belonged to the Pope. He has already spent three thousand pounds trying to locate the old galleon.

Canada's Stage

There is a big hullabulloo in Toronto over whether Canadian showmanship can be successful in filling the grandstand at the Canadian National Exhibition without an American headliner.

With the R.C.M.P. musical ride, Canadian ballet spectacles, the Leslie Bell Singers and a Calgary Stampede act, it looks as if this year's show will be something everybody will want to see.

The grandstand show should be a place for developing the best entertainment Canada can give. Money has always been lost on this big stage show, even with U.S. headliners. The year Olsen and Jonson were on, the Exhibition had to give away a lucky draw car every night to fill the seats.

The elevator dropped down the shaft of an annex of the main Parliament building, the agriculture wing bounced on safety springs at the bottom and shot up to the second.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Dr. Charles F. Menninger, a doctor who once had nothing but "sugar pills and a few words" for patients with emotional disorders, celebrated his 90th birthday this month still active as chairman of the country's largest training centre for psychiatrists.

Today the Menninger Foundation is a non-profit organization operating on an annual budget of more than $1,600,000 and employing 400 persons, including 150 professionally trained in psychiatry, neurology, psychology and related fields.

It spends more than $100,000 a year on research alone.

The senior Menninger is not only active in affairs of the foundation but teaches classes in gardening, mineralogy and conchology (sea shell collecting) for patients and maintains responsibility for landscaping of the foundation grounds.

Primary Interest

But treatment of the mentally ill remains his primary interest and today, more than ever, he is confident mental illness will be conquered.

Menninger says that patients used to come to him with all sorts of pains—obviously suffering—but with no physical signs of illness.

"After a while I came to the conclusion their physical complaints were merely roundabout efforts to communicate their vague feelings of emotional need. I did what I could to help.

"First, I would usually make them take something—a sugar pill perhaps (we had many different colors, sizes and shapes) and then I would talk with them.

"I really didn't know anything about psychotherapy at that time—there were few who did."

The dream of establishing a clinic was born when he attended an inter-state medical meeting at the Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minn., in 1908, Menninger says.

"I went home filled with a vision of what medicine could be when practised in a group. When doctors worked like a team, instead of always alone, sick people got well.

It was then that Menninger decided that his sons would help him make the dream a reality.

Karl, then 14, now is director of the foundation's educational programs. William, then 8, is general secretary of the foundation. Both have gained international renown as psychiatrists, authors and lecturers.

Greatest Change

Looking back on his long career, Menninger says one of the greatest changes he has witnessed in medicine followed the discoveries of Sigmund Freud, the father of psychoanalysis.

"Nowadays we all know, in spite of prejudice that still exists, that we have a minship with the mentally ill. We have a key to understanding them and to understanding ourselves better.

"This fellow feeling, as it spreads farther and deeper, will do more to benefit human beings than any other one thing."

FASHION FLASHES

STAYING CLOSE to the head, nowadays, is the big, shallow cartwheel that used to be a fly-away when winds blew. But with flowers-or-ribbon-covered wire, or clips under the brim on either side, the hat stays put.

BEACH TRICKS this Summer include such ideas as halter tops of elasticized cotton mesh, usually striped, with a matching belt that can do duty also as a bandana. The tops are liked with shorts, as well as with cotton skirts.

AT HOME in town or country or resort, is a new line of separates fashioned of denim treated to look like linen. One piece is a short, fitted jacket with pretty petal collar and short, cuffed sleeves. The skirt has much front fullness.

WE'RE HAPPY to see pretty prints emerging after a long eclipse. Black silk shantung forms a nice background for a large red rose print spattered here and there over the skirt, and with one long-stemmed print rose at the left shoulder. Full skirt is flared over a ruffled net underskirt.

EVENING GALAS this season have brought out some very beautiful evening gloves. Deep pink suede is used for one long glove trimmed with a tiny self bow with gold thread tassels that match the tiny flower embroidery of the glove.

GETTING BETTER all the time is the Summer bag, even those with a very low price tag having perked up a lot. Madagascar straw, decorated with natural colored wooden beads and straw braid ornaments in various designs, adds up to a really elegant shoulder bag. Plastic shantung and plastic pique make up into nice low-bracket bags in various shapes and sizes that look much more than their modest price tags.

GOOD FORM on the links is just as important for a beginner as it is for a tournament star—and the pro will be the first one to tell you so. Even if you miss that putt, you won't look too amateurish if you are dressed for the game when you are addressing the ball.

The golfing outfit worn by this young enthusiast is a cool and comfortable combination. It consists of a cotton knit shirt with striped chambray trim around the neck and on the short sleeves and a chambray striped skirt which matches the bands. Both were designed to give plenty of freedom for action.

Food for Thought

Readers' Saturday Column

By Mary Moore

QUESTION:

. . . .very interested in your column. . . the recipes are wonderful and although not able to eat all the things, being a diabetic, they do sound good. . .you mentioned using sucaryl tablets and water for strawberries for the freezer. Would it be possible to use these for canning them? . . . an elderly man has been asking for an old-fashioned Black Currant Roly-poly. . . it was boiled or steamed. . . .wonder if you could send me the recipe . . . . am sure it would deligent him. . . enjoy hearing about your daughter-in-training. . .I too passed that way.—B. L.

Note: M.S. letter was in this column yesterday. She too wanted way of using black currants. I love giving you this recipe. It belonged to my beloved mother who made it with a skilful hand for my English father. As I type this there are goose-bumps on my arms, in memory of those happy days.

BLACK CURRANT ROLY-POLY

Sift together 2 cups stirred but not sifted flour, 5 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, and quickly stir into them 1-2 cup milk—or enough to make a stiff dough that will roll out to 1-4 inch thickness, on floured board. Have ready 1 1-2 cups washed and dried black currants. Spread these over dough to within 1 inch of edge. Sprinkle over 1-2 to 2-3 cup sugar and 1-4 to 1-2 teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg. Dot with 2 tablespoons butter. Carefully roll up, folding over and sealing the ends with a little water. Now gently pick it up and place on floured cloth, big enough to make at least 2 thicknesses when pudding is rolled. Fold over generous fold and tie with new string, so that ends cannot escape. Boil 1 hour. Serve with

HARD SAUCE

One-quarter cup butter, 3-4 cup powdered sugar, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, 1-8 teaspoon grated nutmeg. Cream butter and sugar and when white and fluffy (this takes about 10 min.) add vanilla and nutmeg. Don't stint on the beating. Heap with fork on serving dish and chill.

For those who are not familiar with roly-poly the pudding is rolled out of boiling cloth onto platter and cut in slices like jelly roll to serve.

Further reply to B.L.—Yes you can use sucaryl tablets in canning strawberries. Dissolve them in a little of the hot juice and then stir this into the main batch just before boiling.

CONT'D ANSWER TO M.S.

CURRANT SAGO PUDDING

(Danish—Rodgrod med flode.)

One lb. red currants off stems, 1-2 lb. raspberries, 1-4 cup black currants are stewed in 2-3 cup water until tender. Strain. Pour off a little of the juice to cool and mix with 2 oz. sago-flour. Stir this into the remaining juice and bring to boil stirring, and boil 2 minutes. Remove from heat and stir until cool. Pour into stemmed glasses and serve with cream and sugar. Very fine (sifted) minute tapioca may be used but needs a little longer cooking, than sago.

CLEAR RED SAUCE

Boil 1 cup stemmed red currants with 1-2 cup water gently until tender. Strain. Mix together in a saucepan 1-2 cup sugar and 2 tablespoons cornstarch and stir in gradually 1 cup boiling water and the strained currant juice. Boil 1 minute, stirring. Stir in 1-4 teaspoon almond extract and if desired few drops red coloring. Keep hot to serve.

For Black Currant pie wait until early apples come and mix them half and half with black currants for a pie. All black currants are too strong. Have any of our readers any black currant ideas for M.S.? If so, please mail them to me. I'll be grateful.

GOOSEBERRY TARTS

Make 8 baked tart shells. For the filling cook together until tender 2 cups fresh stemmed and tailed gooseberries and 1 cup water. Drain off most of the juice and stir into a mixture of 1 cup sugar and 2 tablespoons cornstarch and cook until thick, then cook over boiling water 10 minutes. Add fruit and 1 tablespoon butter. Chill and pour into baked shells. If you don't care about the calories top with whipped cream or serve with cheese.

Thanks M.S. for asking me for these seasonal desserts. I might have missed the opportunity of giving them to you, because I'm snowed under with requests for canning instructions. Your recipe for the Danish pudding is right. Butter the crumbs.

GOOD MANNERS

"The art of being kind" . . .It's still "The World's Need"!

"So many gods, so many creeds—
So many paths that wind and wind
While just the art of being kind
Is all the sad world needs."

Ella Wheeler Wilcox, "The World's Need".

"Thank you" when leaving is not enough. . .visitor must write bread-and-butter letter

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Today I returned from my first visit away from home, a week-end visit to the country place of a schoolmate of mine. My mother insists that I must write a thank-you letter to her mother and one to the girl. But I don't think this is necessary, because I thanked both of them when I said goodby. —Dolores M.

Naturally you thanked your hostess and her daughter when you said goodby. . it would certainly be most surprising if you didn't! But this doesn't take the place of your must-write bread-and-butter letter. So sit yourself right down, my lass, and write the very best letter you can possibly write. . . the first one to your hostess, your friend's mother, thanking her with most appreciative words for her hospitality, for her kindness in inviting you, and then thank for the special plans she or her family made for your happiness and comfort.

Perhaps they gave a party for you, or took you to a party. . . thank for that. Thank her for perhaps planning for your favorite sport. Thank her for giving you the opportunity of meeting their delightful friends. Tell her how lovely and comfortable was the room assigned to you. What fun you had browsing in their library. . . or in their garden. Tell her how much you enjoyed knowing her family, how much you thank them for their hospitality, too. These are, of course, only suggestions. . .if you were a good guest, a guest with a really appreciative eye and heart, you'll think of many things to thank for. Think what you'd like to be thanked for, if you were she trying to make you happy. Then write to your friend, enthusiastically commenting on the various activities you shared with her, particularly those she herself planned for you.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

After an enjoyable evening date, is it proper for the woman or the man to ask for a second date?—A. S.

This is the man's privilege. . . to ask for a date. But a bright gal with alert know-how can say her appreciation-on-the-first-date with such subtle grace that she may very well land the request for a second date at once. For example, she may say, with her most charming manner, "I had a wonderful time this evening, Bill . . .I enjoyed every minute of it. What a perfect host you are. . . to plan such a perfect dinner, and to choose such a grand movie. Thank you so very much for inviting me." Hint: Get that important word "inviting" right up in the highlight. . .so it will, we hope, strongly suggest a second "inviting"!

Walking along the good-looks trail

"O Sole mio"—that pet song of Venetian gondoliers—could serve as the national anthem of American shoes. By their shoes they kill or cure. If they are of flexible leather, you are likely to escape many common foot ills; if they are rigid and slant trianglewise, they offer the wearer plenty of pangs and a grim future.

Uncomfortable shoes are often responsible for a snappy, snarling disposition. The woman who keeps the domestic treadmill going all day, wearing old party shoes that have lost their shape, is not likely to greet her husband with a kiss and a smile when he comes home from work. The nerves in the feet are yowling, other nerves are in sympathy, and a woman feels that life is bitter.

If she had anything the matter with her teeth, she would run to a dentist. If her hair started to fall, she would rush to a dermatologist. But she can have all sorts of things the matter with her hoofs and consider it just so much bad luck. Sometimes all she has to do is to get shoes that provide comfort and ease. She won't even do that. She picks the kind that she considers cute. She must be in style if it kills her. Silly. Why not style and foot health?

The modern woman realizes that health and beauty are inseparable, that feet cannot be ignored in this connection. That is why fashions stress more and more the free and unconfined foot, protected by flexible leather soles to build firm muscle tone, to promote lithe and graceful carriage. The present vogue of open shoes is an unconscious revelation of the age-old importance attached to feet as a vital detail of feminine loveliness.

Dr. William J. Stickel, dean of the Illinois College of Chiropody, addressing a convention of specialists along these lines. Some years ago, said that the larger the foot the greater the beauty, which statement should please some of our young ladies who shuffle along in number nines. He claimed that nobody admires tiny little feet any more. Certainly small ones seem ridiculous carrying along a woman who has a figure like a spreading chestnut tree.

Also he claimed that he can tell a woman's temperament by her feet.

Short, thick toes denote lethargy, lack of imagination, plodding —the kind of woman who doesn't walk, just pushes herself along.

Long toes and long feet signify an artistic nature, love of beauty.

High arches mean that a woman is artisocratic, and never walks if she can hop into some kind of conveyance.

Boston Blasts Cleveland Hopes With 9-2 Victory Brooklyn Extends Lead

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

IT COULD BE!

Jersey Joe Walcott, the Satchel Paige of ringdom will defend his heavyweight title against either Rocky Marciano or Harry "Kid" Matthews at Yankee Stadium all depending on who wins when the pair clash at Yankee Stadium on July 28th.

This could be the end of the colored domination of the heavyweight titular bauble since Joe Louis knocked out Jimmy Braddock in the 8th round in Chicago on June 22, 1937. Marciano who knocked out Louis in the most tragic ending to any heavyweight career in history, stunned his supporters with a stumble-bum showing in his next fight and his stock went down quicker than an ice-cold mild-'n'-bitter in a 90-degree temperature.

That, however, could be a flash in the fistic pan but a lot of the socalled experts across the border do not look at it that way. They figure the dynamic "Kid" will teach the toughie rock-fisted Marciano a lesson, but then again, the experts have been, oh, so wrong, in some of their pre-fight prognostications.

One thing in Matthews' favor, is that he has one of the best, if not the best managers in the boxing world, one Jack Hurley. Hurley, as one writer puts it, belongs to that fast vanishing breed of men, the genuine fight manager. Most managers are merely guys with an aversion for work. They contribute no more to their sweaty charges than to slap them in the kissers with wet sponges and slice up the gate receipts. They are truly proficient in the latter department.

Hurley is a good manager and there's one guy in the world that knows it for sure. His name is Hurley. He prices himself at fifty per cent of his charge's cut — and they say he's worth it.

Matthews, then a failure in the ring, sought the Great One's services, and kicked high wide and handsome over the traces when the G. O. said "fifty per cent".

"After all," protested the Kid, "I'm doing the fighting."

"What fighting?" challenged Hurley. "You haven't been able to make a living out of it in ten years of trying. You don't know how to fight. You've proven yourself a failure. I've proven myself a successful fight manager, I'm a going concern. What actually is happening you're getting fifty per cent of me. For that I'm gonna teach you how to fight and publicize you and manoeuvre you into matches where you'll make big money. You don't realize how lucky you are".

The G.O. was right. He taught the Kid all the tricks piled up in his vast storehouse of knowledge. Under his tutelage the Kid won 35 straight, twenty-eight by knockouts. Hurley claims he kept and maintained the Kid for a year and a half while he earned nothing. "To me he was an investment, that cost me twenty grand."

It is not news that the International Boxing Club gave Matthews the brush-off with long stiff bristles. It absolutely ignored him as a heavyweight contender. Hurley went to work. He made such a fuss it was heard in the US Congress and string-tied white moustachio'd senators started charging a "brush-off" over mint juleps and whisky sours in the congressional canteen.

But meanwhile the astute Hurley was booking the Kid all over the country for purses of from $50,000 to $70,000. The G.O.'s magic gift of public relations paid off. Magazines carried Matthew's mug on covers. He was dubbed the "uncrowned champion." And Master Hurley smiled with a hand-covered mouth.

And in, the background looms the Walcott-"Winner" fight. Two tentative dates, Sept. 8 and 15 have been set aside. If Marciano wins the fight will be held in the east while a Matthews' victory will take the big scrap to the west coast possibly Los Angeles, Seattle or San Francisco.

Matthews at present weighs 186, four pounds over the weight he expects to make for the Marciano fight. The fighters will split 60 per cent of the purse which may draw more than a half million dollars. Television and radio have been barred and no arrangements made thus far for theatre T. V. in the United States. It is likely Canadian radio stations will carry the blow-by-blow version. (Let's hope they dig up a couple of neutral announcers for this one).

Meanwhile Joisey Joy will start training this week. The site probably depends on where the big fight will be held although Walcott's dynamic manager Felix Bocchicchio leans towards Atlantic City. "Rocky" insists on 45 per cent as the champ's share of the loot while the challenger will collect 15 per cent.

U. S. ARMY HERE

The Camp Drumm baseball team, a gang of G. I. Joe diamond experts will be here on Monday night to play an exhibition game with the Redmen. U. S. Army Captain Ayrhart tells us he has three budding potential Yankee stars on the team, all of 'em bonus babies. More about the squad, Monday.

DOTS 'N' FLASHES . . .

Don't forget Cuffer's Colts tonight in that juvenile baseball exhibition game with a Kingston crew at Exhibition Grounds. The ole portsider figures he has a classy bunch of youngsters who will give a good account of themselves. Game starts at 6.30 so you can carry out any plans for the evening . . . The Redmen are in Smith's Falls about this time readying for a battle with the Royals of the St. Lawrence Baseball League. Our side trimmed 'em here 11-1 in the first tilt of the series . . . District Softball League's get-together is slated for Oct. 10th in case you are figuring away that date. Probably be held at the RCAF Station Trenton, where the boys tossed a fine meal on the occasion of the Trent Valley Hockey League annual a while back . . . This department will publish all reports of minor baseball games. Trouble is most managers send in the dope when their teams win, and forget about the defeats. Taint fair to the kids, fellas. Let's have the reports, win, lose, or draw.

Fergus Bows To Owen Sound

FERGUS (CP) —Owen Sound Crescents last night squeaked past Fergus Thistles 16-15 in an Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior A tilt.

Don Campbell with four, John Lumley with three and "Onion" Smith with two, were top goal-getters for the Crescents, while Ron Landoni popped in three for the losers and Len Caruso, Frank Chambers, Al Garbutt and Bob Dobbie each collected a pair.

Don and Bob Gear of Fergus and Harry Kazarina and Smith of Owen Sound picked up majors in the fourth quarter for fighting.

Bomb Brissie in 1st Start, While Senators Trim Browns; Houtteman Snaps Loss Streak

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Casey Stengel got the horse laugh with his spring training boast:

"I've got the best outfield in the league."

Cleveland rushed up to lodge an objection, pointing to its Dale Mitchell-Larry Doby-Harry Simpson trio. Yankee fans wondered if Stengel had forgotten Joe DiMaggio had retired. Even Stengel weakened and traded two of his outfield crop—Jackie Jensen and Archie Wilson—with pitcher Spec Shea to Washington to get outfield help from Irv Noren.

Backed By Averages

Gene Woodling, .335, is second in the Amzerican League. Mickey Mantle, .313 is a surging fifth. Hank Bauer, .302 is No. 10 in the league's top 10 hitters. Jensen, the big one that got away, is seventh at .309. Woodling's two-run blast gave the Yanks enough power for a 6-3 win over Chicago yesterday, although Chuck Stobbs and Howie Judson held the champs to six hits. Tom Gorman, called up from Kansas City early this week, won his second game with relief help from Johnny Sain.

Boston blasted Cleveland's Lou Brissie, making his first start in 13 months, for a 9-2 decision that kept the Red Sox 4½ games behind the Yanks.

Despite Marty Marion's desperate use of 22 players, one short of the league record, his St. Louis Browns lost to Washington, 6-5, on a 15-hit attack that included three singles by Jensen.

Snaps Losing Streak

Art Houtteman snapped a nine-game losing streak as Detroit edged Philadelphia 2-1, with the help of Walt Dropo's fourth inning home run.

Brooklyn continued to belt the National's weaklings, beating Pittsburgh 6-2, for the 11th straight time. The Pirates made three errors and gave the Dodgers another run on a balk by Bob Friend, suffering his 14th loss.

The win boosted the Dodgers' lead over the New York Giants, who were rained out in Chicago after holding a 3-0 lead at the end of three innings. The Brooks' margin now is 6½ games.

Billy Johnson's first 1952 homer was a bases-loaded smash off Max Surkont in St. Louis' 7-2 romp over Boston Braves.

Philadelphia Phillies blew a four-run lead and came back with three in the ninth to top Cincinnati, 7-5

Olympic Games Open in Helsinki With Traditional Pomp, Ceremony

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (CP)—The 15th modern Olympic Games opened in Finland's capital today with the traditional color and pomp that every four years ushers in this greatest sports extravaganza in the world.

There is a touch of greatness in almost everything connected with these 1952 games. There is a record-breaking total of 5,780 athletes from a record number of 70 nations.

The nattily dressed athletes, many colors, converged on the great slate-white Olympic Stadium almost in the heart of downtown Helsinki, a city of 400,000.

From behind the Iron Curtain Russia marched about 400 athletes for the first test of Soviet athletic strength against the rest of the world since the 1912 games.

70,000 In Stadium

Seventy thousand persons were shoe-horned into the oval-shaped stadium, where for eight days the elite of the world's track and field performers—both men and women—will streak over the red-brick and leap, jump, toss discus, hammer and javelin on the paddy-green infield.

Thousands of persons who couldn't get tickets thronged streets leading to the stadium to watch the athletes who came by buses from their Olympic villages and lined up in formations as they alighted.

The formation for the ceremonial opening march followed the names of the countries alphabetically except that Greece—the country where the Olympic Games were born—took the lead-off place by tradition, and Finland, the host country, was last.

Russia—which is Neuvostoliitto in Finnish—was midway in the parade. The United States—Yhdysvallat—was at the end except for Finland.

President Paasikivi of Finland officially declared the games open, artillery guns boomed a 21-gun salute and the torch-bearer mounted the majestic 240-foot tower to light the Olympic flame.

Captains of the teams of the world swore a solemn oath that they are participating. . . "In the true spirit of sportsmanship, for the honor of our country and the glory of sport."

More than 3,000 pigeons, loosed from cages, circled over the ranks of athletes.

Bill Parnell of North Vancouver, who will run in the 800-metre event Sunday, was Canada's flag-bearer. Parnell was a competitor in the 1948 Olympic Games at London and also represented Canada at the British Empire Games of 1950 in New Zealand.

Canadians Ultra-Smart

The Canadians were ultra-smart in dress of blue, white and red. The 111 athletes were led by officials of the Canadian Olympic Association.

The United States, champion since 1896 in the unofficial point-scoring, was again favored to dominate the games, but there were expectations that there would be a dramatic sports rivalry between the Americans and Russians.

The two countries have the largest teams—334 Americans and nearly 400 Russians.

The parade of athletes around the running track to take up positions in solid masses of color behind their flags was accompanied by cheers from the crowd. Some persons paid as much as 10,000 finnmarks—about $28—on the black market for their seats.

After the Olympic flame burst forth—kindled by the torch relayed across Europe from sacred Mount Olympus in Greece—massed choirs sang the Olympic hymn composed for the occasion by Jaakko Linjama. Then Archbishop Llmari Salomies pronounced the benediction.

Record Entry List

Never before have so many athletes from so many countries vied together on the fields of sport. At London in 1948—the biggest games up to then—there were 4,106 competitors, 1,764 fewer than here.

The track and field competition—central sport of the games—starts tomorrow, and the whole vast show ends in solemn ceremonies in the same stadium Sunday, Aug. 3.

Actually, preliminary competition has been going on all week in basketball, soccer and field hockey simply because the fields in these sports were too unwieldy to handle in the period of the games.

This is the smallest city—400,000 population—in which the games have ever been held except for Athens at the start. It is bulging at the seams with tourists from abroad and Finns from the provinces.

The main stadium is virtually track and field, and near-capacity crowds are expected for most of the other sports, particularly swimming and soccer.

Although the games have developed into tense team rivalries, actually under the Olympic code there are only individual championships. Gold, silver and bronze medals are given for the first three places in each event—whether it is the blue-ribbon 100-metre dash or the weightlifting.

Royals Defeat Ottawa 5-2; Birds Blank Cubs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Young Johnny Podres may be a big help to the International League-leading Montreal Royals in the approaching stretch run.

The 19-year-old, six-foot, 170-pound lefthander pitched his first complete winning game last night as the Royals whipped Ottawa Athletics 5-2 and increased their first-place margin to 2½ games.

Baltimore blanked Springfield 4-0 in the circuit's only other contest. The Buffalo-Toronto double was rained out, and Rochester-Syracuse was called off due to wet grounds.

Podres, who had hurled only one complete game up until last night, scattered nine hits and did not walk a man, while fanning five. It was his best performance of the season.

Walt Moryn paced the Montreal attack with two hits, including his 11th homer, and drove in three runs. Royals picked up 10 safeties, with Ed Burtschy and loser Joe Murray the victims.

Baltimore's Orioles cracked a five-game losing streak as Dick Starr, who went 7 2-3 innings before succumbing to the heat, and Jocko Thompson combined to whip sliding Springfield.

The winners put over three runs in the seventh on Herm Besse when Al Lakeman homered to break the scoring ice and Roy Weatherly doubled home another pair of tallies. Buddy Kerr's triple and a long fly by Lakeman added the final run in the eighth.

Sport in Brief

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Heavyweight Rex Layne, only man who has fought both Rocky Marciano and Harry Matthews, said yesterday that "Matthews will counterpunch Marciano silly" when the two meet July 28 in New York.

"Matthews is sure to beat him," Rex said at his training camp at Ogden, Utah. "He's too fast and too clever for Rocky."

Layne, training for his 10-round fight here against former heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles Aug. 8, said Matthews "is the hardest man to hit I've ever fought."

Matthews won 10-round decision over Layne in Portland, Ore., last May 19 and Marciano kayoed him in six rounds in New York last year.

Henry Szonert and William Lynch, both of Toronto Weston, realized best net scores with a 15 handicap cutting their gross scores of 74 each to 59.

The time keeper's signal to be used in the Olympic basketball games at Helsinki is like nothing ever seen in North American gymnasiums.

A huge gong shaped like an ancient warrior's shield, it stands beside the time-keeper, who whacks the bejabbers out of it with a little wooden hammer whenever necessary.

The resulting sound is very effective. Some referees have been seen to drop their whistles in alarm when it went off.

Little Request, with jockey Johnny Longden aboard winning his fourth race of the day, won the $25,000 Starlet Stakes yesterday and the mythical two-year-old championship of the Hollywood Park meeting.

Quarterback Bob Waterfield yesterday signed a two-year contract with Los Angeles rams at a salary that makes him one of the highest paid players in the National Football League.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed but reliable sources said Waterfield will get a nice boost over the $16,500 he received last season when he led the Rams to the U.S. pro football championship.

Jackie Robinson and Billy Cox fined for demonstrations in Thursday night's game at Cincinnati. Robinson was fined $50 and Cox $25. They were advised of the fines by telegrams from National League President Warren Giles.

Robinson was ejected from the game after he protested a play in which Eddie Pellagrini was called safe while stealing second base.

Cox replaced Robinson at second and a short time later he began arguing about the same play. He was also ejected.

The Aga Khan's three-year-old Tulyar, winner of all his 1952 races including the Epsom Derby, ranked a firm favorite last night to take Britain's richest prize, the $77,420 King George and Queen Elizabeth Stakes at Ascot today.

By FRASER MACDOUGALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—Johnny Palmer, a precise golfer who studies each shot with calm determination, today has an almost certain grip on the Canadian Open golf championship.

Only a collapse as sensational as his astounding 54-hole score of 197—19 strokes under par—could remove the $3,000 first prize money from the grasp of the 34-year-old tournament player from Badin, N.C.

He had an eight-stroke lead on nearest opponent—Doug Ford of Harrison, N.Y.—who carried a 205 into today's fourth and final round to settle distribution of the $15,000 total prize money in the 72-hole competition.

Three Tie At 206

Within striking distance—if they get hot and Palmer's game cools out—stood three players at 206: Skee Riegel of Tulsa, Okla., Dick Mayer of St. Petersburgh, Fla., and Dutch Harrison of Ardmore, Okla., the champion in 1949.

Defending champion Jim Ferrier, 14 strokes off the pace with a three-under-par 211, was virtually out of the running for his third straight Canadian title. He won two years ago at Montreal with a 72-hole score of 271. Last year he won at Toronto with 273. Palmer was 14th last year with 285.

Two Canadians joined one U.S. player in a three-way tie for ninth place with scores of 209—Stan Leonard, of Vancouver, last year's low Canadian, and Henry Martell, former Canadian amateur champion from Edmonton.

The gallery of some 5,000 centred most of its attention on Palmer yesterday—and he didn't disappoint them. He went around the St. Charles Golf and Country Club course in 66—six strokes off par—after earlier rounds of 66 and 65 for the hottest three-day consecutive scoring pace veteran observers can recall in the Open's 43 years.

He was within striking distance of shattering the Open's scoring record—a 269 by Bobby Locke of South Africa shot over the par-71 Toronto Scarboro course in 1947. Palmer needed a 71 today over the par-72 St. Charles course to equal the Locke score, a 70 to beat it.

Third Par-Breaking Round

One of the late starters in the field of 100 who survived from the starting list of 142, Palmer started his third par-breaking round on the first hole with a birdie. He got another before he wound up the first nine and shaved another four strokes off par on the home stretch.

He was somewhat shorter off the tee than many of his rival U.S. pros. But he compensated for that by crisp iron play, laying the ball near the pin with deadly consistency to set the stage for his accurate putting.

Jim Turnesa, U.S. P.G.A. champion who took a 71 yesterday for 210, may have called the shot. He said Thursday the winning score would likely be a record-breaker, that the winner would have astonishing third and fourth-round scores—and Palmer was the likely man.

In any average year, Ford's 205 would be plenty for a third-day lead. Ford shot a 67 yesterday to go alongside two rounds of 69. Riegel had a 71 with 66-69, Mayer 70 with a 67-69 and Harrison 70 with 69-67.

Three players stood at 208: Al Zimmerman, Portland, Ore., Freddy Haas, New Orleans, Winner of the Canadian amateur in 1936 at the St. Charles course; and Roberto de Vinzo of Buenos Aires, who holds more national open championships than any other golfer—Argentina, Mexico, Belgium and Italy. Smiley Quick, short, affable Pasadena, Calif., entry, was at 209 with Leonard and Martell.

Lead Canadians

Leonard and Martell stirred Canadian hopes by hot first-day rounds. Leonard got a 66 to tie for the first-round lead but on Thursday he went to 75, three over par, and came back to a 68 yesterday—helped along by three long putts for birdies on the back nine. Martell started with 67, followed with a par 72 and had a 70 yesterday.

The low 60 players—with scores of 221 or lower went into the final round today. Thirteen were Canadians. One was an amateur, Allan Boes of Winnipeg. The only other amateur in the final field was Jack Penrose of Miami Beach, Fla.

The leading amateur gets a gold medal. The 35 low pros split $15,000—ranging from $3,000 for first to $100 for 35th, with the low Canadian collecting an additional $200 in cash.

The first three players tee off today at 11 a.m. EDT. The last group—Palmer, Riegel and Harrison—at 3 p.m. The finish was expected home four hours later.

TWEED

Madoc Juniors Eliminate Tweed

TWEED—Madoc juniors eliminated Tweed from the Centre Hastings Softball League playoffs by edging the home-towners 8-5 in a close game here. The Juniors won the best of three series in two straight. They defeated Tweed 11-5 in the first game.

The visitors piled up an early lead, as they scored once in the first, and then added two in the second and three more in the third. Tweed pulled back into the game by scoring four runs in the 4th on three walks and a pair of singles. The Tweedsters edged to within one run with a run in the sixth. Carswell sewed up the contest for Madoc with a two-run homer in the seventh. That ended the scoring with the juniors ahead 8-5.

Radnor went the full nine innings on the mound for the visitors. He fanned thirteen and walked six. Cassidy started for Tweed. He gave up one walk and struck out two. Finkle came in in the third and finished the game. He whiffed five and issued three free passes.

Carswell led Madoc at the plate with three hits including the homer that assured the juniors of the victory. Pigden and Blakely both got on three times for five attempts. Kumph hit three singles for the hometowners. Sherry also got on three times for Tweed.

Ontario, Quebec Golfers Qualify

KINGSTON (CP)—Two Ontario and two Quebec golfers yesterday qualified for the semi-finals of the ladies' international golf tournament at the Cataraqui course.

Daintry Chisholm of the Royal Montreal Club will meet Miss N. Carlson of Toronto Rosedale in one semi-final today while Rose Kampman of Kitchener Westmount clashes with Mrs. J. C. Whitelaw of Laval-sur-le-Lac in the other.

Miss Chisholm eliminated Marlene Stewart of Fonthill Lookout Point, Canadian open and closed champion, 3 and 1 in the morning round and then went on to get by Shirley Woodley, Ontario junior titleholder, 3 and 2 in the quarter finals.

Miss Carlson moved in the semi-finals by defeating Miss J. B. Seawright of Toronto Scarboro one up in their quarter-final match after she had beaten Miss N. Laing of Toronto Mississaugua 4 and 2 in the morning round.

Miss Anne Sharpe, of Fonthill Lookout Point 1952 Ontario champion, was eliminated in the morning round, losing to Miss Woodley in Toronto Ladies 5 and 3.

Sports Roundup

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — One round Billy Martin says he's hanging up the bare knuckles. The New York Yankees second baseman, a wiry 156-pounder, is retiring as the undefeated middleweight champion of the American League—unless somebody throws a punch at him.

In a way it's a shame. This sudden ending of the fistic career of a ball player who really can fight. But then the acute shortage of a ball player who can plag ball makes it necessary to conserve the supply.

"Casey (Stengel) told me if the Yankees wanted a fighter they would have hired Rocky Marciano," said Martin in the Yankee Stadium dugout.

Casey wouldn't have gone too far wrong if he had signed Marciano, either. For the hard rock from Brockton, Mass., was a pretty fair catcher who tried out with the Chicago Cubs' chain a few years ago. That was before he found out a guy could collect a fortune for exercising 30 minutes with boys like Harry Matthews.

Ball Player—Not Fighter

Martin takes little pride in his ball park fights with Jim Piersall and Clint Courtney. Long ago he decided he wanted to be a ball player—not a fighter.

"Sure, I had lots of fights, street fights, when I was a kid in Berkeley (Calif.)," he said. Funny thing, I never really wanted to fight. But if somebody does something to you, you've got to fight. I never was in any Golden Gloves or anything like that.

"I hung around with fighters. But I never wanted to be one. I always wanted to be a ball player.

"A long time ago I made up my mind that I'd fight only if I had to. If it was a real fight, all right. But no boxing."

Martin had a few bouts in his minor league days. One, in particular, was a preview of his Yankee Stadium scrap with Courtney.

"I was playing with Phoenix in 1947," he said. "Courtney was playing with Bisbee, the Yankee farm in the league. This was before I belonged to the Yankees.

"Courtney roughed up our manager, Arky Biggs, at second base. Spiked him and broke his arm. And we were fighting for the pennant. Clint and I tangled, but good.

Had It Coming

"I hated to fight him again, because we're friends. He's a good guy, always hustling. But I've got no regrets about that other fellow—Piersall. He had it coming."

In case the details slip your memory, Piersall and Martin engaged in a bench jockeying duel this spring at Fenway Park. They wound up under the stands with Martin's right hand punch prevailing, until they broke it up.

Last Saturday, Courtney of St. Louis Browns kicked a double play ball out of Martin's hands and spiked Yogi Berra. Later in the day, when Courtney attempted to steal second, Martin plated the ball in Clint's mouth.

As Martin trotted toward the dugout Courtney started after him. Martin wheeled and deposited two catcher in full view of the fans.

Whip Ends Up Bye-Bye in Pews So Refs Call It 'No Contest'

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Blimey, it was a bit of a go at that, matey.

The blinkin' British Humpsh wrestlin' title was not transferred from the handsome noggin of its current wearer, Whipper Billy Watson, to that of 'Is Ludship, Lawd Athol Layton, but it was perilously close, it was.

It was a decent ole beano the lads 'ad at Memorial Arena last night even if the Whip did land up in the laps of the front row pewsters listening to the birdies warble "I'll Walk Alone".

He was chucked there, 'e was, by that old nawsty Layton, while two blokes in white, said by "Moe" Callaghan to be referees, alternately consoled one another whenever their panties were soiled by the dust of the ring, or sumpin.

What, No Asperin?

However they did come to sufficiently, did Marsters Sam Godder and Brer Cliff Fox, to semaphore the fact that the blinkin' contest was no go while 'Is Ludship did a reasonable facsimile of the Charleston in the lovin' arms of his man Friday, one Lou Petrocia in the ring. Outside the pewsters shrieked their disapproval 'cause Athol, who 'ails from someplace in Surrey, or Brooklyn is as popular as a beggar in Petticoat Lane of a Sunday mornin'.

But they didn't blow their blinkin' tops, as one might say Like they did last week. They were too sympathetic about the Whip, whose sweat-streaked booy lay supine on one of the pews apparently satisfied that he had "whipped" m'lud in one of the two falls and willing to call it a day.

Meanwhile, Athol, a decent Joe at that if you know him, pranced with man Lou in a victory dance. His scimitar slash, more popularly known as the judo chop had mince-meated the Whip's jugular in the first heat, while the Whip called on his first favorite hold, which gave him his name to subdue the tall Briton in the second fall.

Right Good, It Was

It was the open season on the boys in the surgical uniforms Sambo Godder ran afoul of a couple of chops during the course of the evening's entertainment, but Brer Fox was at hand with his first aid knowledge and sympathy as Sammy writhed on the mat in agony. Gad, it must have hurt. In case you're interested, across the ring, m'lud had the Whip star-gazing and actually had the blighter out. But no one paid much attention as Brer Fox went well on his way to his second bedtime story to palsy walsy Godder.

The Whip got a bit of his Irish up, he did, in the third fall and vented his East York spleen on Layton's man Friday. He was right rough, he was, with the poor fella, hitting him here, smacking 'im there, and finally tossing him in the air like a blinkin' pushball. Even 'Is Ludship became incensed with the goings-on of Friday, chastising him on a couple of occasions after Lou offered to bet the Whip, that Daisy Mae would win the Lil Abner stakes in the fifth at Zwick's Island. The first thing you know, they'll be calling these guys professionals. Gad, men, who wants to see the nasty blemish of professionalism taint the escutcheon of the noble art of "rasslin".

However, the Whip wasn't satisfied, nor was m'lud. So five gets you fifteen they'll be back agoin' at each other come next fish day.

Trudeau's Defeat Point Anne 6-3

Trudeau's Midgets won their ninth game in 11 starts Thursday night when they handed the Point Anne midgets a 6-3 setback at Point Anne.

The win left the Trudeau entry firmly entrenched in first place in the midget division of the Belleville Minor Baseball Association.

STUDENTS DECREASE

Full-time enrolment of undergraduates in Canadian universities and colleges in 1951 was about 72,000, a 10 per cent decrease from the previous year.

Bobby Shantz Smallest Player In Major Leagues

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Robert C. (Bobby) Shantz is on the official records now as the smallest player in major league baseball.

The little southpaw for Philadelphia Athletics was placed on the scales before last night's home game with Detroit Tigers to satisfy once and for all the mystery of his height and weight.

Bobby, top hurler in the big leagues with a record of 16 victories against only three defeats, had complained from time to time in the past that his size was vastly underrated.

The midget southpaw tipped the beam at 139½ pounds and reached five feet 6¼ inches in height.

Shantz said: "This means I've shed something like 14 pounds since spring training as I reported at 153 pounds back in February."

Rain Prevents Softball Games

The Kingston-Alcan exhibition game slated last evening for the CNR Recreation Field was washed out on account of rain.

The draw, sponsored by the CNR Athletic Association which was to have been held last night will take place at the Glen Roy-CNR "A" game at the Recreation Field Thursday night.

The Frankford-Point Anne series, scheduled to commence last evening in Frankford, was also rained out. By mutual consent of the teams the series will get under way Monday night in Point Anne with the second game Wednesday evening at Frankford.

Scribes Tab Olympic Queen

HELSINKI (CP) — Newspaper men and photographers in an informal poll have tabbed a brown-eyed, copper-haired American swimmer as the queen of the 1952 Olympic Games but two Canadian girls were high in the ranking for the No. 1 photographers' delight.

The queen is Deliana Meulenkamp of San Francisco. The Canadians are Irene Strong, bright-eyed swimmer from Vancouver, and Shirley Eckel, petite blond hurdler from Toronto.

Eleven Starters In Rich Stakes

CHICAGO (AP) — Eleven of the nation's top three-year-olds charge from the starting gate in the $151,450 Arlington classic today to scramble for $106,750, richest first prize in racing history for three-year-olds.

Calumet Farm's Mark-Ye-Well, oddly never a starter in a stakes event and one of the lowest money earners in the field, probably will go to the post a 2-1 favorite. The colt, winner of three races in five starts, never has raced on an off track, and a heavy rain that hit the Arlington course today may alter the whole setup for the Calumet colt.

Olympic Records

Canada's entries Sunday in Olympic track and field events and their best competitive performances:

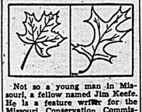
100-metre dash—Olympic record, 10.3 seconds. Canada's entries: Pete Sutton, Toronto, 10.8; Don McFarlane, Hamilton, 10.5; Bob Hutchison, Victoria, 10.7.

800 metres—Olympic record, 1:49.2. Canada's entries: John Ross, Oakville, Ont., 1:51.8; Jack Hutchins, Vancouver, 1:50.6; Bill Parnell, North Vancouver, 1:51.

Nature's Magic

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables.)

Most of us, particularly those of us who are lucky enough to live on the outskirts of town, are apt to take the workings of nature pretty much for granted. Each spring the countryside turns from brown to green, pale greens at first, with later the lush greens of summer. That is to be expected — the way things are. We accept it as such and think no more about it.



Not so a young man in Missouri, a fellow named Jim Keefe. He is a feature writer for the Missouri Conservation Commission. Evidently he has done not a little thinking about the greens of spring and summer,

So he sat himself down and wrote a news feature about the magic of spring and summer. Here it is, just as he wrote it. He calls the piece, "Nature's Wonder Worker — Chlorophyll."

"The green of a leaf has challenged a good many people from a lot of different angles, but few people consider its importance to life. It's pretty, all right, but the tiny miracle reproduced over and over in leaf cells has a fascination like few other things in nature.

"Pick a leaf and look at it carefully. If you hold it up to the sun you can see the delicate tracery of veins through its body. With a microscope we could see that the entire leaf was made up of tiny cells, most containing the green stuff we call chlorophyll. The word chlorophyll is Greek, and simply means 'green leaf.' It might have been better named 'life giver' for that is what it does. We couldn't eat; we couldn't breathe, without it.

"Most of us have heard of this stuff — chlorophyll. Lately, there have been a rash of products flooding the stores, all advertising its wonderful qualities. It has been used on bandages, in dog food, soap, toothpaste and breath tablets. We'll pass over all that. We are concerned with the processes of life and death, and in this, chlorophyll plays a star role.

Carbon Essential

"All living things contain carbon. Most have to get this necessary element from some outside source, usually their food. That's where the plant comes in; it need not depend entirely on other sources for its carbon, but can prepare its own, in its leaves. The chlorophyll is the agent that makes this possible. No animal can make its own carbon; it has to get it ready made.

"A valuable by-product of the plant's manufacture of food is oxygen, without which life would be impossible on the earth. Here is the process in detail. First, look at this simple formula: carbon dioxide plus water and light equals sugar and oxygen.

"That is the master plan of our existence; halting it would wipe us out in short order. The scientists have an impressive formula to explain the action, but they are dry-as-dust fellows, so let's skip the formula and see how it's done without using their complicated figures.

"The leaves on a tree are arranged so that all are exposed to the most light available. A single maple tree may have a third of an acre of leaf surface. Light furnishes the energy necessary to the chemical reaction. Water has been brought to the cells of the leaf from the roots. Through tiny openings on the leaf surface, carbon dioxide gas is taken into the leaf from the air. Then, with the help of the green-colored matter, chlorophyll, carbon dioxide and water are changed into sugar glucose and oxygen. The glucose contains the vital carbon. The oxygen is given off into the air. At night this process ceases because of darkness, and carbon dioxide is given off by the leaves; this is one reason why plants are removed from hospital rooms at night.

Lots of Sugar

"An average of about a gram of glucose per square yard of foliage is produced each hour. It would take about 240 yards of leaf surface, working 10 hours a day for 150 days, to supply one man's sugar requirement for a single year. As a waste product of this process, 150 square yards of leaf surface — a husky branch of the maple tree — can furnish a man's yearly replacement of oxygen! A leaf shining in the sun is more than something green; it is nature's greatest and most important factory whose products are essential for the life of almost every living thing — including ourselves.

"Green stuff in shining leaves. It is nice to contemplate on a day like this. And though our scientists have dissected and analyzed, their attempts to recreate this process in the laboratory have not been successful. As yet, only God can make a tree and only chlorophyll can perform its magic."

Next time you drive through the country, think a little about what Jim Keefe had to say. I think he said it well.

Usually I like to do my own thinking, the result of which you see in these news stories. However, I enjoyed reading Keefe's story so much that I am breaking established custom in order to share it with you.

Games Posponed In Intercounty

Three Intercounty Senior Baseball League games, scheduled for last night, were postponed. Rain prevented playing of the St. Thomas at Guelph and London at Brantford contests, while the Galt at Kitchener game was postponed in order to allow an exhibition clash between two touring United States clubs. The St. Thomas at Guelph tilt has been rescheduled for Aug. 5.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You can have a good cry sitting back of a guy who was made to play bridge with his wife. At the end of a game he is never the same. All he got out of bridge was his life.

The deal we are discussing is shown here:

♠8 6 3 2
♥A Q J 10 8 4

WEST
♠J 9 7
♦J 10 8 7 2

EAST

♥K 9 7 6 3
♣J 7 4 2

SOUTH
♠A K 10 4
♥None
♦A K Q 6
♣K Q 10 9 6

Even a spouse could not find fault if you opened the south hand with a bid of two clubs. With ten tricks you see a game. An opening of two in a suit is the signal for telling partner so.

Such an opening says: "Under no circumstances should we consider stopping before a game is reached. Tell me at once whether or not you have a sure trick so I will know if a slam is probable."

With equal length suits, the first suit to show is the highest ranking. If one suit is longer, bid it first without paying attention to rank. Bid the shorter suit later.

In this south hand the club suit is longer than either of the others. Consequently, an opening in clubs is correct. The other two suits can be shown later in their proper order.

If partner's first response is two no-trump it is a signal that says: "This means I have no sure trick anywhere in my hand. So, you may be sure no ace or K Q combination is in my hand."

It also says: "If I have a biddable suit of my own or support for yours I will show it on a later round. My sole reason for this two no-trump response is to warn you against going to a slam."

With a sure trick in his hand, partner avoids two no-trump. He simply follows at once the S-A-N choice; takeout first, assist next, no-trump last. But his no-trump will be three instead of two.

The whole idea is that the opener of a two bid says they must go to a game; an immediate response other than two no-trump shows a probable slam.

Earl Wall's K.O's Escoe To Retain Title

EDMONTON (CP)—Earl Walls, 190-pound Canadian heavyweight boxing champion, last night knocked out challenger Vern Escoe at 42 seconds of the fifth round to retain the crown he won from Escoe little more than a month ago.

Walls weighed in for the scheduled 12-rounds with an eight-round advantage over the 182-pound Escoe and few expected the marcll to go the limit.

The 22-year-old Walls, from Windsor, is a fomer stablemate of Toronto's Escoe. The two met here June 13 and Walls won by a knockout in the fourth round.

"Lydia Bailey"

From the turbulent pages of Kenneth Roberts' "Lydia Bailey," Twentieth Century-Fox has fashioned a brilliant motion picture of high adventure, lusty romance and violent revolution in the primitive jungle of nineteenth century Haiti. The superb photoplay bearing the same title as the novel and embellished with color by Technicolor closing today at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

An achievement of rare excitement and magnificent scope, "Lydia Bailey" unfolds the unforgettable story of a swashbuckling American sent by his government to the West Indies to search for the lady of the title. After braving the dangers of the jungle, he eventually locates her, falls in love and becomes embroiled in the intrigue and insurrection of the Caribbean republic as it engages in savage rebellion against the forces of Napoleon.

Dale Robertson, the handsome, newcomer plays most important role to date as the daring Yankee and he plays it to perfection. Whether brandishing a pistol, swinging a machete through the underbrush or holding a woman in his arms, Robertson plays Roberts' hero in the ideal tradition.

In the title role, another newcomer, blonde Anne Francis, completely captures the audience with her provocative and enchanting manner. She and Robertson make for a most attractive romantic team.

Charles Korvin and William Marshall, two actors of exceptional ability, offer standout portrayals of the respective French and Haitian leaders.

Producer Jules Schermer and Director Jean Negulesco are to be lauded for this fine epic adventure. They spared nothing in bringing the Roberts' novel to life with all its spectacle, dynamic action and weird voodoo ritual. Much of the film was shot on location in Haiti which lends a substantial note of authentic grandeur. "Lydia Bailey" is captivating and thrilling entertainment. It's a picture you don't want to miss.

Filmed in Supercinecolor for Warner Bros. it opens at the Capitol Theatre on Monday evening. On the same program "The Basketball Fix," exciting and timely thriller starring John Ireland. Both hits are first showings.

JACKSON'S POINT (CP)— A barge carying 35 boys from Camp de la Salle, two miles from this Lake Simcoe resort, was towed back last night after it was reported mising for several hours. The craft encountered engine trouble and was adrift for more than three hours. It was located from the air about 10 miles off shore. The barge was taking the boys, ranging in age from 12 to 14 years, on an overnight trip to Whitney Island.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY, JULY 20, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Unusual day for charity, children's affairs, making money for church needs. Day does not sanction undignified work. Do go to church.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Mild indications for most interests; day especially favors church [illegible], happy doings with children and those confined in hospitals or other institutions.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—One of your best planetary days in long time. Remember it is Sunday, give homage to God, and pray for all troubled lands.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Neither stimulating nor obstructing inclinations. Day leans toward healthful activities, hobbies, outdoor sports, reading, music, visiting the lonely or ill.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Your Sun advises against venturesome changes in any undertaking running smoothly and straining at work that should wait till week days.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Grand day for the many interests you enjoy. Useful gatherings, religious services, pleasant diversion honored.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Cheerful, healthy outlook on whole; all rightful Sunday interests under fine Mercury and Jupiter aspects. Be your genial, sociable self and enjoy your blessings.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—You may be especially creative, eager to direct affairs for children, church, social groups. Today stresses these, and prayer.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Very encouraging rays for personal interests. Start day right by going to church and thanking God for blessings. Seek His aid for unhappy peoples and events.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—This can be a restful, fruitful day with many worthy items honored. Take your choice for a stimulating, vigorous pastime or a cozy, restful one.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Curb hurtful restlessness so that you can enjoy the good activities and useful interests outstanding now. Nourish soul as well as body.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Sensible caution stressed in confidential matters, water activities, sea travel, handling beverages, chemicals, etc. Day is pleasant, can be restful.

YOU BORN TODAY: True family men and women; artistic, pleasant. Don't let gloomy moods take hold, use your fine common sense to overcome these and supersensitiveness. And don't let imagination "run wild." Birthdate of Petrarch, great Ital. poet & humanist; Thos. Lovell Beddoes, Eng. poet, dramatist; Alberto Santos Dumont, pioneer aviator.

Death In The Sierras

By Doris Hudson Moss

David began speaking with tremendous calm and decisiveness.

"To any of you who do not know Sam, I will introduce Sam Burdick. Sam surely saved Mrs. Ordell's life by carrying her from her tent to this cave and by attending to her wound, feeding her and watching out for her generally. I depended upon Sam to do just that or I'm afraid that Mr. James could not have succeeded in hurrying us back to the lodge after we found her stabbed. I protested this action, of course, because I wished to care for her myself and to make other examinations of the tent and so on. But I knew Sam would do what could be done."

"You said she was dead," interrupted Miss Hansen accusingly. "What kind of a doctor are you?"

"That is a strange question to come from a nurse to her chief but you really are quite right in asking. I knew that Mrs. Ordell was not dead, only unconscious from a brain concussion and suffering from loss of blood from a surface wound that ran at a slanting angle beneath her arm. It served the purposes of justice better for everyone to believe she was dead. She had bled profusely, but not a dangerous amount and I hoped the wound would be reasonably free from infection. The blood had coagulated nicely."

"I noticed that and believed it to be because of death," said the nurse.

"Quite understandable. I knew of course, that Sam would care for her, and so was willing to leave her in his hands. The wound proved to me just one of three things. The person who stabbed her did not do a thorough job because Mrs. Ordell may have jumped away, because whoever did it disliked the job and did and did not put the proper strength behind the scissors. . ."

"Scissors?" and Professor Ordell. "Why do you think scissors were used?"

"Because we found blood-stained scissors, Professor. Or the third reason may have been because whover did it lacked physical strength to do it efficiently."

The professor was thoroughly angry. "And why, sir, did you let me, her husband, suffer as I did, believing her to be dead and her body stolen?"

David continued his explanation with an apparent effort at calmness. "I am terribly sorry, Ordell. But I did not dare to tell my story or show my cards to anyone. Not even to you, until the whole chain of events was complete. Since Mrs. Ordell was alive, through no fault of her assailant. I intended to apprehend the murderer of Elsie Martinson because I believe that her death may be laid to the door of the same person. I had inquired into Sam Burdick's history and I learned at Horseshoe Springs that the only time Sam left these mountains was in 1918 when he was a private, it's true, but he would undoubtedly know what to do for a simple wound."

"It beats me how you found the cave, Doc," said Sam shaking his head.

"It was too simple," replied David. "I smelled hearty fumes of bacon and coffee when I walked near the entrance one morning. Then I spotted a faint curl of smoke coming up out of the earth near the supply cabin where Dick and Bob thought they saw a ghost and I found the brush entrance by watching you come out of it one day."

"And," broke in the professor, "since you are so very clever, what reason did you have for believing that this—er— Burdick here would play the good Samaritan?"

"He was standing near the stream as we went into your wife's tent when we found that she had been stabbed. He knows the forest creature's trick of standing perfectly still to avoid being seen. I would not have noticed him probably but Susie growled and looked toward him. Miss Curtis had the dog leashed or she would have gone for you, Sam. I was sure he'd come into the tent to see what had happened and would take care of her. I even thought he might remove her to his cave where he could properly care for the wound without interruption."

Suddenly David whirled and confronted the strange woman who sat by Duncan. "Mrs. Brownley, was it you who struck Professor Ordell over the head in the lodge yesterday morning?"

"Why—no—I"

"Why, only since this morning.'

"Will you pease explain the dried mountain clay on the shoes that are in your suitcase?"

"Certainly. Tahoe mud. I was there for several days."

"How did you reach Gold Lodge?"

"I hitch--hiked as far as the Buckinghorse and walked the rest of the way."

"What is your business here?"

"I wanted a job at the lodge."

"So you came to the lodge, asked for James and then struck the professor over the head?"

"No, I didn't. As I was leaving the lodge after the professor, as you call him, told me James was in the kitchen, a man jumped out from behnid the upright piano and hit the professor. I ran like anything because I didn't want to get mixed up in any trouble."

Dave smiled slightly. "Then how do you explain this paper that was in your suitcase?" He reached in his wallet and brought out the account by professor Ordell up to the time of our late luncheon yesterday. One corner of the paper was missing and David supplied the missing paper which bore, I well remembered, the word "Elsie."

Frightened the woman dropped her eyes and sat very quietly. "We will question you further a little later," David said crisply. "And now Sam, will you please tell us why you live in the cave and all about the buried treasure indicated in the map on the wall of the cave?"

"Well, folks, there's not so much to tell exceptin' that back in 1846 my father had a fight on the wagon trail up the mountain yonder. He hit a man and thought he killed him. May have.

"For years he hid here, just huntin' fishin' and wastin' his life. Then he married a squaw of the Digger type and she was my mother. I was brought up in the Digger way but when I was grown I came back to the cave. I don't like the Injun way of livin'. Pa buried a little bit of money that he had and dug up a little when he needed it for grub.

"Pa claimed that the watch and chain was his but they really did belong to that feller he killed or hurt in the fight. When he got old, they kinda worried him and so he took the money and the watch out of the hole where you folks dug up the trunk and he put that note inside instead. that was about 20 years ago when he was an awful old man. Every once in a while I've written another note and put it in a new box or trunk so's if anybody should find the map and dig for the treasure, he could find the note. I'd know if he was in these parts and give the watch if he wanted it and the money too, if that was his."

"'Bout $50. What I'd like to know is how'd the crazy story of gold ever get out anyhow?"

"Deke Alvord, who is the editor of the San Francisco Journal came up here on a fishing trip," David explained. "A guide told him the story. He worte it up and sent Miss Curtis up here on a vacation so that if a story of treasure hunting should break, she would be on hand. She knew nothing of all this. I, as you know, am a Federal man, Sam. Our office saw the story about gold; also the stat epolice had notified us that they had received word of threatening letters being sent to Miss Martinson who was buying this parcel of land. There was evidently some truth to this gold yarn and it became my business to investigate. I certainly did not gues the situation would precipitate a murder.

"Elsie Martinson was trying to buy the Lake land from the Sacramento bank. Miss Martinson had managed a resort in the Maine woods. Mr. and Mrs. James had failed to make good for money borrowed from the bank and so foreclosure ensued. Is that true Mrs. James?"

"James wrote letters to Miss Martinson, hoping to intimidate her, until he found the treasure, but he could find the treasure," David continued.

"Then James had another idea. He went to the university to see Professor Ordell to tell him of the situation and to ask help in hunting for the treasure. You probably know that Ordell is a geologist."

"He told me absolutely nothing about the letters," broke in the professor.

"I'm sure that he didn't. But you gareed to come to the lodge and hunt for the money. I'm not accusing you, professor."

David continued. "Unfortunately Miss Martinson's death was promoted probably by an affliction. She was very hard of hearing. When she told the state police about the letters, they told her to wait for an escort when she went to the lodge. She evidently misunderstood and she started out alone, reaching the high mountains well after dark. We know that she drove safely as far as Horseshoe Springs where she bought some gas and asked the way to Gold Lake from old Jim. Half an hour later, Sergeant Duncan and officer. Marguard who patrol that stretch of highway found her murdered in her car.

"Within a short time Miss Curtis arrived at Horseshoe Springs in her green coupe. It seems fantastic that both she and Miss Martinson should both drive similar cars and that both should have red hair but such was the case. However, Miss Martinson was in her fifties and Miss Curtis is still in her twenties and different in all other ways. Jim hesitated about coming out of the house after the murder only a short time before but when he heard a woman's voice, the kind old man wanted to warn her. When he saw Miss Curtis by the dim light of the electric lantern he carried, she frightened him thoroughly. Her red hair and green car were too similar to the murdered woman's. Then the rifle shot put an end to any warning he might give her. But the shot was not really intended for you, Rosemary, it was intended for Jim Loomis."

"Not for me?" I gasped.

"No, you were quite harmless in the eyes of the person who held that rifle. Jim believes that he sold the shell that killed Elsie Martinson. Together with the coroner, the officers removed the bullet from the body when they reached Blue Valley. Is that true, Duncan?"

"Yes, the bullet had been disturbed. The murder probably tried to dig it out, but was scared off. It was a 0-0 shell, the kind Jim sells. And it'll probably work out that it was fired from the rifle found in the barn loft this morning. Our ballistics men will be able to tell."

Western Germany Rebounds From Wartime Pounding With Industrial Boom

By BRACK CURRY

BONN, Germany (AP) — West Germany is riding the crest of the greatest boom in its peacetime history—and the outlook is for a big expansion of economic activity this year.

Deep in the economic doghouse just four years ago, the country now appears headed toward economic activity this year.

American officials say West Germany is probably the only western country that can increase its defence contribution and at the same time enjoy increases in its living standard.

Modern Miracle

This economic comeback from the broken remains of defeat is a modern miracle, unmatched anywhere since the Second World War.

In 1948, the West German economic machine was barely turning over. The wear and tear of six years of war production and wartime bombing and the impact of post-war inflation had snapped the country's economic structure.

The Germans of 1948 preferred to work for food or clothing rather than money.

Then came the currency reform of June 28, 1948 and the United States Marshall Plan.

Exports in September 1948 totaled 206,000,000 marks $49,028,000; September 1950, 697,000,000 marks $165,886,000; September 1951 1,368,000,000 marks $325,584,000 and May 1952, 1,407,000,000 marks $334,866,000.

New jobs have been found for 1,400,000 people in these four years.

West German money now is worth nearly as much as Europe's strongest currency — the Swiss franc. After the old, inflated reichsmarks were wiped out in the 1948 currency reform, 100 of the new west marks would bring only 29 Swiss francs on the free money market.

Production Zooms

Industrial production has zoomed.

Using 1938 as 100, overall industrial production has climbed from 63 in June, 1948 to 139 at the present time. American officials predict a further increase of seven points this year.

Steel production in the Ruhr has hit 15,400,000 tons a year. In 1951, it was 13,500,000 tons pected to rise by 7,000,000 tons coal last year Production is expected to rise by 7,00,000 tons this year.

With these tremendous strides toward rebuilding their economy, the daily life of the West Germans say they are better off economically this year than last.

Industries of most other European countries this year are strained to the limit under the twin burdens of export drives and rearmament. But West Germany has both unused industrial capacity and surplus labor for further spectacular economic gains.

Food stocks are better than in previous years and will require fewer dollar expenditures.

The government has almost stabilized prices, reducing the danger of inflation.

Five Canadian provinces have cities of 100,000 or more—Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia.

In 1951 the per capita production of milk in Canada was 1,170 pounds.

Six rooms is the predominant dwelling size in the Maritimes and Ontario.

South America's Jabary River, navigable for 300 miles, forms part of the boundary between Brazil and Peru.

EARTHQUAKE SHAKES CALIFORNIA, NINE DEAD

Suspected Robber Slain in Gunfight With Mounties

Police Were Seeking Bandits Who Robbed Winnipeg Bank

By WILF CHISLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VIVIAN, Man. (CP)—R.C.M.P. constables shot one man to death and wounded another Sunday in a blazing gunfight with two suspected bank robbers near here.

Constable John Frederick Friend was shot in the cheek by a blast from a .45 pistol. He was reported in good condition in hospital at Winnipeg, 30 miles west of this farm community of 10 families.

Hohn R. Zahara, 42, of Penticton, B.C., died under a hail of hail of police bullets.

His companion, 33-year-old Alexander Zakopiac of Winnipeg, was shot in the foot. Police said he was wanted in Vancouver on a charge of attempted murder. He is under police guard in hospital at Winnipeg.

Prowling Woods

The R.C.M.P., searching for two bandits who robbed a suburban Winnipeg branch of the Imperial Bank of Canada of $2,000 Friday, was called to Vivian when residents became suspicious of two armed men prowling in the woods.

Police were greeted by shots when they caught up with the men off a side road about 1½ miles west of here. The fire was returned when the men refused to surrender.

Angus McNeill, 72-year-old war veteran, was the only bystander. He was reading the paper when police entered his home and asked if he had seen the two men. Seconds later he heard shots across the road, about 60 yards away.

He watched the fight from a safe distance and later gave a drink to the wounded men. The dead man lay nearby, his shirt torn to shreds by police bullets.

Tends Wounded

Strips from a sheet were used by McNeill to bandage the wounded men.

The hunt for Zahara and Zakopiac started after Mrs. Fred Anderson, 38, noticed two armed men sitting on the road near her farm home. That was Friday night.

Sunday morning her father, Fred Palmer, 65-year-old pump house man at the Canadian National Railways station here, saw the same men steal water. He told Telegrapher Emile Deconinck, who tipped off police by messaging Winnipeg.

The loot from the bank branch was recovered. Bandits rifled the $2,000 from the teller's cage after forcing employees, customers and the police chief to lie down on the floor.

Fierce Fight Being Waged For Korean Hill

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—United Nations infantry today drove Chinese Communists off the crest of Old Baldy' on the Korean western front in the wake of a tremendous barrage by artillery, tanks and planes.

The bitterly-contested height west of Chorwon was captured, but front-line dispatches indicated the crest of the hill was a no-man's land with U.N. troops dug in below.

A U.S. Eight Army staff officer said the hill definitely was not secured and Associated Press correspondent George McArthur said the Chinese had not given up their bid for the vital hill they wrested from the Allies last Thursday. Chinese soldiers were sneaking back despite intense Allied fire.

More than 50 U.N. planes raked the hill with flaming gasoline, rockets and machine-gun fire. U.N. tanks and artillery blanketed the hill.

Chinese casualties were reported heavy.

Communist artillery fire was heavy but did not equal that of the Allies. Red fire, however, knocked out two U.N. tanks. Both sides continued hurling shells this afternoon.

American carrier planes Sunday hit Communist power installations at Changjin in northeastern Korea and two power plants in the northwest.

American Sabre jet pilots reported they damaged two Communist jet fighters Sunday in a five-minute air battle near the Manchurian border.

Small Proportion Polio Victims Paralytic Cases

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. R. P. Hardman, epidemiologist for the Ontario Health Department, says that because of present knowledge of poliomyelitis only "a small proportion" of those stricken become paralytic cases.

In an article in the current issue of the Ontario Medical Review, Ontario Medical Association publication, he says that only five to eight per cent of those attacked suffer total disability.

Three to five per cent die while from 25 to 30 per cent show only slight weakness or paralysis.

'There Was a Terrifying Rumble' Says Witness Describing 'Quake

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP)—A witness to the earthquake at Tehachapi early today said "there was a terrifying rumble" and in a matter of seconds the whole town "was turned into a shambles." Ed Ritter, of Riverside,, said this was how he saw it:

"I had just driven into a service station in Tehachapi for gas when there was a terrifying rumble.

"The earth rocked convulsively and the entire faces of buildings on the main street crumbled and fell into the roadway.

"The lights went out. Then men, women and children poured from the wrecked building. Some of the men and the children were screaming and moaning as they crouched in the streets.

"A big water tower at the head of the street collapsed and the water swirled through the debris of the main street."

MURRAY CHARGES SETTLEMENT REPUDIATED

Says Industry Agreed To Closed Shop

PITTSBURGH (AP)—President Philip Murray of the United Steelworkers (C.I.O.) charged today that the steel industry repudiated ast rike settlement which he worked out with officials of Bethlehem Steel Corporation last June 17.

Murray told the U.S.W.'s 170-man wage-policy committee that President Charles White of Republic Steel previously had urged the steel companies to accept suggestions made by White which Murray thought could have led to a settlement.

The potent wage-policy committee was called together to hear Murray's report on the 50-day walkout which has made idle more than 1,500,000 and to give the union chief some guidance on future strategy.

The committee heard Murray say that negotiations with Vice-President Joseph M. Larkin of Bethlehem and Bethlehem counsel John Morse produced a "memorandum of understanding" in which the steel company executives "substantially accepted the union shop."

Murray said Larkin and Morse took the memorandum before the other major producers with the understanding they would press for its acceptance.

Murray said that June 20, the Bethlehem Steel men returned and "both expressed considerable disappointment that the other steel companies had refused to accept what they believed to be a solution of every aspect of this situation."

Murray added:

"They stated they had been repudiated and told us they felt a deep sense of humiliation."

Illinois Governor May be Drafted By Democrats

CHICAGO (AP)—The eyes of the Democratic convention focused today on the man who seems to be its reluctant dragon.

Adlai Stevenson, governor of Illinois, heir to five generations of public service, and an overnight success-story in politics, is the man many Democrats would like to see emerge as the party's candidate for the presidency.

Stevenson has been saying, for many months, that he doesn't want that honor, that he wanted only to be returned as governor.

Yet today, with the convention opening, the Chicago story is still Stevenson. There are five principal candidates in the field, each with an apparently solid bloc of supporters—but none with enough to win at this point—and still, wherever you go, people ask:

"What about Stevenson? Do you think he will be the candidate?"

An accurate measure of the interest in the answers developed late Sunday. The Illinois delegation, with Stevenson present, held a last-minute caucus.

It was behind closed doors, but there were large apertures beneath the doors. The best newspaper talent in the country simply glued ears to the wide open spaces.

Most of them were impressed by one point: Stevenson did not say he is immune to a draft.

Stevenson goes before the convention today with a welcoming speech to the delegates. His friends hope it may be the pebble that starts an avalanche.

17 Candidates Running For Democratic Nomination Truman Can End Confusion

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO (CP)—Democrats today plunged into their 31st national convention to pick a presidential candidate with scarcely anyone prepared to make even a guess as to the ultimate choice.

An exception was Estes Kefauver, crime busting Senator from Tennessee. This 48-year-old aspirant made a round of the delegation headquarters late Sunday night and declared he was sure of the nomination and had his campaign and administration plans well in hand.

He is leading the numerous candidates in the number of state delegations pledged to vote for him, but there are many observers here who say he cannot win.

Seventeen Candidates

There are about 17 avowed candidates claiming a total of 725 pledges among the 1,230 full votes on the convention floor. A candidate needs 616 to win. There are at least 500 unpledged votes and it is reported President Truman could swing 400 of them.

Thus the answer to the party's choice may lie with the president who so far has refused to disclose his preference.

Thomas J. Gavin, a Kansas City real estate man, is Truman's alternate delegate on the Missouri delegation and will cast the president's vote.

Best guessing here seems to be that Alben Barkley of Kentucky, vice-president and popular man with all parties, who wants to be president, has a good chance of winning the nomination.

His age—74—is against him, and on that account Labor leaders said they would not support him. But he is notoriously robust. When he arrived at the Illinois central station he walked the five blocks to the Blackstone Hotel.

Averell Harriman, the New York multi-millionaire administrator of mutual security funds and a key man in the administration's international affairs for years, is looked upon as a strong contender. He is believed to have Truman's backing, if any in the field has, but it is doubtful if he could get southern support.

1948 Plank

He advocates the 1948 Democratic platform plank for a Fair Employment Practices Commission which split the party wide open then and now threatens to do it again.

This will be a subject to debate on the convention floor today or Tuesday and it would seem there must be some sort of compromise before the party can hope to win an election next November.

The F.E.P.C. proposes a federally-administered organization to ensure fair treatment of Negroes. Southerners oppose it on grounds that such things are for the states to administer.

Senator Robert Kerr of Oklahoma, an oil millionaire who was born in a log cabin and has a replica of it in his committee rooms, is a colorful but probably unsuccessful candidate.

Federal and Two Provincial Elections Likely Next Year

Nova Scotia and Manitoba, with governments elected in 1949, may decided to go to the polls at or about the same time as the federal government.

The federal government has until Aug. 25, 1954, to fix the date for the next election. However, there has been speculation that the election will be held next year, probably in the fall. In unofficial circles, Monday, Oct. 5, 1953, is mentioned as a possible date.

No precedent will be set if Nova Scotia and Manitoba decide to hold elections about the same time. In 1949, three provinces—British Columbia, Newfoundland and Nova Scotia—held elections within a few weeks of the federal election.

Forthcoming elections in New Brunswick and Alberta will bring to five the number of provincial legislatures elected this year. Three were elected in 1951.

Saskatchewan voted June 11; British Columbia June 12 and Quebec July 16. Alberta has an election set for Aug. 5 and New Brunswick for Sept. 22. Ontario, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland elected new legislatures last year.

The situation in British Columbia is such that a new election may be called at any time. In the recent election, Social Credit elected 19 members, the C.C.F. 18, Liberals 6, Progressive Conservatives 4 and Labor 1.

The minority Social Credit government could be defeated in the legislature unless given continuous support of some Opposition members.

In other provinces, the governments are solidly entrenched.

Premier Qavam Resigns, Hours-Long Rioting Subsides

TEHRAN (AP)—Premier Ahmed Qavam resigned tonight after violent hours-long rioting in Tehran and other cities subsided. He gave up, after two days, his attempt to form a government pledged to solving Iran's oil deadlock.

Before Qavam gave up, near-revolutionary violence flared, with Communists strengthening Nationalists mobs. Government forces, with gun shots, tear gas and bayonets fought to keep control.

Report 20 Killed

Twenty persons were reported killed in the bloody rioting. No official reason was given for Qavam's quitting but apparently he acted to stop bloodshed.

As news of Qavam's resignation spread crowds began marching towards the residence of former Premier Mohammed Mossadegh.

Today's fighting broke out when a crowd of some 2,000 persons tried to storm the parliament building.

Wild disorder reigned throughout the city. Countless numbers of demonstrators were injured or arrested. In many instances troops charged into surging crowds with fixed bayonets leaving bloody injured behind.

"Death to Qavam," the mobs shouted wildly, venting their fury at the new Premier's declaration that a settlement of Iran's long and crippling oil dispute with Britain would be a chief aim of his regime and that nationalist violence would not stop him.

Today's demonstrators were supporters of the former premier, Nationalist leader Mohammed Mossadegh, but many members of the outlawed Communist Tudeh party swelled the crowds.

The ultra-Nationalist Pan-Iran party, spearhead of a drive to force Mossadegh back into power, has threatened Qavam with assassination.

Witnesses to the firing in the Parliament Square said police and soldiers opened up with revolvers and automatic rifles as some demonstrators attempted to climb the gates and walls. The soldiers fired into the air at first in an effort to disperse the crowd. When this failed, they threw tear gas.

One reporter said at least 12 persons fell to the ground after the first volley of shots.

Mobs of 600 to 700 converged on the square from various parts of the city for an hour after the first outbreak, but military police finally gained control.

In the city's main square a crowd of 3,00 swarmed over an army tank and surged on toward other waiting soldiers.

The soldiers and demonstrators began embracing and kissing when a false report spread that Qavam had resigned.

"Thousands of troops patrolled the city.

SAYS 12-IN. DROP IN LAKE ONTARIO COULD BE MADE

Commission Chairman Makes Lakefront Tour

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—The chairman of the United States section of the International Joint Commission predicted today that the level of Lake Ontario could be lowered 12 inches.

Augustus O. Stanley added, after a 160-mile power-boat tour of the lakefront near here, that he expects the joint commission to "afford a degree of relief" after a public hearing scheduled for tomorrow.

Stanley said the Gut Dam in the St. Lawrence River contributed at least 8½ inches to the height of the Lake Ontario water. Drainage of the Ogoki river in Northern Ontario into the Great Lakes basin, basin in 1937, accounted for another two or three inches, he said.

Meet Tomorrow

Stanley, former U.S. senator from Kentucky, was accompanied on today's tour by Roger McWhorter, a commission member, and State Department and army engineers representatives.

At tomorrow's hearing, the commissioners hope to see and hear every particle of evidence."

Three Canadian members of the joint commission are expected tomorrow for the hearing here. The group moves to Toronto Wednesday in an effort to hear all sides of the Lake Ontario problem of water levels.

The commission plans to conduct other hearings in Ogdensburg, N.Y., Thursday and in Cornwall, Ont., Friday. This series of hearings is a new step toward clearing the way for a start of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project. The water level problem of Lake Ontario constitutes a matter related to the seaway project.

Also injured in the Saturday night collision were Glen Lockhead, 37, facial lacerations, and Gertrude Lockhead, 35, hip injury. Both live at Napanee. Their condition today was described as satisfactory. Police said the driver of one of the cars, Mary Schwar, Kingston, was not injured. The other driver was Glen Lockhead.

CP Extends TTS Circuit to West

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Press now is transmitting its news day and night to the daily newspapers of Manitoba and Saskatchewan by teletypesetter operation.

Teletypesetter is an automatic type-setting device. Through code punched in a tape, an operator at a central point operates typesetting machines in distant newspaper offices. If they wish, newspapers can continue to set type manually; copy is delivered as well as tape.

With last night's opening of the Manitoba-Saskatchewan teletypesetter circuit, the number of Canadian dailies served by this method reached 38. Conversion of the 25-paper Ontario wire from teletype to teletypesetter was completed July 2.

Electrician Touches Live Wire Survives 44,000-Volt Discharge

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—A man was hit with a 44,000-volt charge of electricity yesterday and lived.

The charge was 20 times the voltage and from 125 to 200 times the amperage used in some electric chairs.

Don Cunningham, 27, an electrician's helper, was preparing to help clean and paint the electric sub-station of American Foundry and Machine Company when a wire-reinforced ladder he was moving touched a 44,000-volt power line in the building.

The blast of electricity caused severe burns on Cunningham's feet and chest and knocked him several feet across the room.

When other workers reached him, Cunningham was not breathing and his hair and clothing were afire. Chief electrician Lester Hansen applied artificial respiration and revived him.

Cunningham was taken to hospital, where his condition was described as "fairly good."

Stricken Town Of Tehachapi Appeals for Help

Quake Reported Heaviest In Nearly a Half-Century

LOS ANGELES (AP) — At least nine persons died today as California's strongest earthquake in nearly a half-century hit with sudden violence in sparsely-settled mountains north of here.

Reports filtering out of the little mountain community pleaded for doctors and nurses.

Sheriff's Capt. F. D. Jones in Bakersfield, nearest major city to the quake's centre, said: "It looks like there must be many injuries."

Tunnels, Roads Blocked

Two tunnels, used jointly by the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe railroads were blocked by cave-ins, Jones reported.

He added that the situation on the main highway between Bakersfield and the desert town of Mojave which goes through Tehachapi, was so bad that ambulances and sheriff's cars were trying an old road through the hills.

The quake was felt generally through much of California, from San Francisco south to the Mexican border and inland into Nevada.

The Ridge route, main inland highway between here and San Francisco, was closed by a towering earth slide, which the state highway patrol reported was 25 feet high at one point.

The first report of loss of life came from the Kern county sheriff's office, in Bakersfield.

Sgt. Carl L. Weber said "the whole town of Tehachapi is down, according to our reports."

He ordered all available ambulances from Bakersfield and other county towns, and from the naval ordnance test station at China Lake, northeast of the little town in the foothills of the Tehachapi Mountains.

Oil-Tanks Aflame

Fire in the Paloma oil field. about seven miles southeast of Bakersfield, swept storage tanks within moments after the quake, Weber said. There was no reported loss of life there.

At California Institute of Technology, seismologists gave the first clue to the centre of the quake, felt over most of a vast area with a rolling motion.

Caltech rated its intensity at 7 1-2 on a scale of eight, compared with 6 1-4 for the Long Beach quake which killed scores near here in 1933. The San Francisco quake of 1906, one of the worst on record, rated 8 1-4 on that scale.

Millions of Californians were awakened by the first shock, felt here at 4:52 a.m. P.S.T., 7:52 a.m. E.D.T. Its intensity here, 120 miles away from the centre, could be gauged by the fact that dawn's light disclosed cracks in buildings and showered plaster.

The rolling motion, in contrast to the wrenching jar which accompanies some quakes, was credited with minor damage in the heavily - populated metropolitan Los Angeles area.

CRASH KILLS FIVE

Eastern Canada Suffers Nine 'Bombing Raids'

ST. HUBERT, Que., (CP)—Eastern Canada suffered nine bombing raids in the first 24 hours of the mock-war involving more than 800 R.C.A.F. and United States Air Force planes, headquarters of the R.C.A.F. Air Defence Command announced yesterday.

The week-long operations, called Exercise Signpost, are designed to test the vulnerability of Eastern Canada and the United States to long-range bombing attacks.

There was no information as to the strength of the raids, the points attacked, where the aircraft came from, or how successful they were in penetrating the defence network of fighter planes and anti-aircraft guns.

It is believed the raids were made by R.C.A.F. Mitchells from the Trenton training command and Lancasters from the Maritime group, as well as by aircraft of the United States Strategic Command with headquarters in Omaha, Neb.

Fire Destroys Factory on Day Strike to Start

DURHAM (CP)—Fire extensively damaged the Durham Furniture Company plant early today, forcing a shutdown on the same day that 150 employees were due to strike for higher wages and union security.

Damage may reach $25,000. The fire was believed caused by lightning.

The employees, members of Local 152 of the International Woodworkers of America, (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) had decided to strike when the company refused to meet their demands for a 12-cent-an-hour wage boost, union checkoff and fringe benefits.

A conciliation board, in a split report, had recommended an eight-cent-an-hour wage boost. The company representative had recommended a six-cent increase, the union representative, 15 cents.

There was no immediate indication how long the fire would force a plant shutdown even if there were no strike.

Durham is about 25 miles south of Owen Sound.

Motorist Gets Caught Between Guard Gates

To be trapped on the railway track with the guard gates down was the experience over the weekend of "Duke" Smith.

Mr. Smith had waited for a train to pass over the C. P. R. tracks near the station and as the gates lifted drove onto the track. Before he could cross the track, however, the gates again came down and the Smith car was trapped on the track.

George A. Douglas, signal shack operator, said he had just raised the gates after passage of the train when the signal indicated another train was coming so he lowered the gates. The gates were raised and the track cleared before the second train passed.

Rapid Progress Being Made Laying Pipeline

Rapid progress was made last week in the Belleville area in the laying of the 10-inch pipeline being constructed by the Trans-Northern Pipeline Company between Montreal and Hamilton.

During the week ditching was in progress in Sidney Township and the weekend saw the pipe sections laid end to end and welded together. Long sections of the pipe are already placed in the ditch.

Ditching machines inched their way across farmers' fields on the right-of-way previously purchased by the pipeline company and in their wake came trucks loaded with pipe sections. These were laid end to end and welding crews welded the sections into one continuous line of pipe. The pipeline is buried in three-foot ditches.

The Sparling-Davis Construction Company has the contract for laying the pipeline in the Belleville area, while the Mannix-Williams Brothers are doing the river crossings.

The crossing at Cannifton over the Moira has been completed, while drilling operations are now underway for blasting a trench in the Trent River bottom at Glen Miller.

W.C. Allen Takes Over Managership Of Bank of Nova Scotia Branch

W. C. ALLEN

A member of the banking company's staff since 1923, Mr. William C. Allen has been named as manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia in Belleville. He took over his new duties early this month, succeeding John A. Thornbury, who had been transferred to Arnprior.

"I think I am going to like Belleville fine," the new bank manager said today. "Naturally it will take some time to get acquainted and to become accustomed to the city. Belleville is larger than I expected."

A native of Weston, Ont., Mr. Allen has lived there with his family most of his life and commuted from that centre in to Toronto when he was associated with his bank's various branches. Since 1949 he has served as inspector at the bank's general office. He started with the bank at Mount Dennis and has been associated with branches at Bloor and St. Clair, Toronto; at Weston; Montreal, and at Queen and McColl Streets in Toronto.

Living at Weston and commuting to the city every day, prevented Mr. Allen from becoming associated with any service club in Toronto. "I was rather out of touch with such work in Toronto, but it may be different here."

Married with one son, William Jr., Mr. Allen brought his family to the city last week and was fortunate in securing living accommodation.

While at Weston Mr. Allen's hobby was his garden in which he spent most of his leisure time during the summer months. He also prided himself in being a poultry fancier, but he expects that is "out" here.

Bancroft Child Dies of Strangulation When Head Gets Caught Under Slat

BANCROFT (Special) — Jimmy Woodcox, 17-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Woodcox, Brancroft, died of strangulation on Saturday afternoon when he attempted to slide under a slat over his upper bunk where he had been sleeping.

The lad was discovered by his grandmother, Mrs. Roy Sears, who had put him to bed ten minutes earlier. She threw water in his face in an effort to revive him and when this failed she called the doctor who pronounced him dead.

The Woodcox family live at the edge of the village in Faraday township where they occupy a trailer on the Sears property. The parents of the lad were away on Saturday and the boy was being looked after by his grandparents.

Mrs. Sears put the lad to bed in the upper bunk in the trailer where he had been accustomed to sleep. When she returned she found the lad hanging between the mattress and the slat.

Dr. O. W. Anderson, coroner, stated there will be no inquest. The funeral will be held today with interment in St. John's Anglican Cemetery.

American Army Baseball Team Here Tonight

The American Army baseball team from Camp Drumm, near Watertown, N. Y. will be here for the game scheduled tonight at the Exhibition Grounds, Redmen manager Jack Carson announced at noon.

The heavy rains of last night did not spoil the playing field, Carson said, but decision to hold the game was held off until confirmation was received from the groundskeeper.

The Americans boast a powerful squad, according to reports, with three Yankee farmhands on the playing roster. They have met and defeated some of the toplight teams in New York state as well as in Eastern Canada.

The game gets under way at 8.30 with the return match slated for the army camp on August 16th.

HOUSING No. 14
HOMES FOR ELDERLY PEOPLE
What I said in Homes for Newly Weds applies also to Homes for Elderly People, especially people who like to have a garden, but there are a great many elderly couples who find the modern apartment much more to their liking.
Granted, if you can afford it, an apartment with an extra bed room is to be desired, but I am considering only for the moment economical but comfortable living. An apartment of not more than three rooms but well appointed is ideal for older couples. No stairs to climb, a convenient modern kitchen with a back door, are musts.
Many good layouts or designs are available for apartments of from 4 to 6 suites that are wonderful to live in and rents are moderate.
Modern apartments for newly weds and elderly couples are almost non-existent in Belleville, but it is hoped that some cooperation will be given the builder to encourage him in supplying this demand.

8 Persons Driven Into Street By Fire in Restaurant Kitchen

TRENTON. (Special.)—Downtown Trenton was threatened today by a fire that burned out the kitchen of the Shasta restaurant in the Ireland block on Dundas Street. Apartment residents living over the eating spot were forced to flee the building in scanty clothing as flames broke through the roof and smoke enveloped the apartments. It was pouring rain at the time.

A short circuit caused by rain-soaked electrical wiring is blamed for the outbreak discovered by Policeman Bruce Westfall making a morning check of property.

Those persons sent out into the street were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stain and daughter Pamella; Mr. and Mrs. Norman Johnson and daughter, Ina Ray, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brenaugh.

Firemen had the flames under control in 45 minutes. Damage, mostly to kitchen equipment and the kitchen itself, has not been estimated. The building will be repaired and the kitchen put back in working order. Repairs will commence at once. The restaurant will be closed until then.

The restaurant is operated by Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Prettie. At 10.30 p.m. last night when manager Jerry Prettie left the premises there was no sign of fire. Firemen were called at 4.00 a.m.

Youth Suffers Fractured Skull Condition Serious

TRENTON. (Special.) —Jack White, 14, is in Trenton Memorial Hospital in a dangerous condition suffering a fractured skull and other head injuries. A cut in his head needed four stitches to close.

On Saturday the youth was riding his bicycle south on Front Street ahead of a car driven by Charles McGraw of Trenton. He put out his hand to make a left hand turn and was struck in the middle of the road.

The impact threw the boy 62 feet and he came to rest on the pavement in a pool of blood. His bicycle slithered across the road, over the curb and was found on a lawn nearby.

The car continued along the street and stopped on a lawn 244 feet away from where the crash occurred.

It had also mounted the curb.

The boy's head struck the front corner post of the car. There were no skid marks on the road to indicate that the driver had applied his brakes before the accident.

The boy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph White, of 409 Front Street.

Board Cancels This Week's Cheese Exchange

In the attempt to get a 30c price for Ontario cheese, officers of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association, meeting in the city on Saturday, decided to postpone cheese exchanges further until such time as an understanding, relative to imports of cheese into Canada, between the provincial and federal government is reached.

The fear of cheese being imported from New Zealand this year is causing the Ontario government's six cents per pound credit guarantee to the Ontario Cheese Producers' to be delayed. It is reported that everything possible is being done between the two governments to get a workable understanding on this question. As the matter stands the price cannot be negotiated upward until more concrete information forthcoming from the governments is made known.

The Federal Government's Council met on July 15th and approved the adding of the provincial's proposed 6c per pound for any cheese the association is obligated to handle to the 24c initial payment as contained in the 1952 agreement which the producers made with the Government of Canada.

As soon as the two governments can get this importation question settled the negotiating committee will meet and get a new price established for cheese from July 1st on so that exchanges can again open. This disruption of the normal movement of cheese is detrimental to good marketing conditions and the board feels it cannot cancel exchanges further than this coming week as this question must be settled.

Huge Black Bass Caught Off River Bank

Sportsmen who spend a lot of money buying elaborate tackle and then spend hours to reach their favorite fishing spot, would have cast envious glances along the west shore of the Moira river, just south of the lower bridge last night, when 19-year-old Harry Bridge, of 178A East Moira Street, pulled in a six-and-one-half lb. black bass from water. Fishing with his 12-year-old brother, William, Harry earlier pulled a larger bass from the river but it got away, making off with the plug.

"I guess if I had not got so excited I would have landed him," Harry declared. "But I'd like to catch him again and get my tackle back."

The one that didn't get away was landed shortly before 10 o'clock last night.

GIRLS BREAK JAIL

English Couple Travels By Trailer, Tractor

A jaunt across the Atlantic coupled with a ride which began from Quebec city and which will end at Bracebridge, Ontario by means of a farm tractor and a trailer is gradually approaching a close as Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Pocock of Minstead Hants near Southampton, England are realizing a dream born 18 years ago.

For many years the middle-aged couple wanted to settle in Canada. They worked, saved their money, bought themselves a trailer and tractor and on July 4th docked at Quebec aboard the S. S. Scythia.

Stops Over in City.

Their tractor, a Ferguson machine, purchased in England, averages around 12 miles per hour and Mr. Pocock says he has had no trouble with the tractor since leaving Quebec. Yesterday he drove in to Pringle and Cooper, dealers of the Ferguson tractor in this city.

The trailer, also of British make, is a home on wheels, complete with propane gas stove and lighting, cupboards, closets and two beds, four feet by six feet. Mrs. Pocock sits all day by the window and watches the country side. She feels that she is seeing something travelling in this method which she would ordinarily miss.

Get Early Start

Mr. Pocock rises early in the morning and climbs aboard his tractor. The idea in beginning early, according to the Englishman, is to beat the traffic. "As slow moving as we are," he said, "we really tie up the fast cars."

On arrival at Bracebridge, the family hopes to acquire a farm in the area. Mr. Pocock is extremely interested in forestry and until things get settled he feels he may take a job with the forestry department if possible.

"It's been no bed of roses," Mr. Pocock said, "if we had it to do over again I don't think we would attempt the trip. We're not so young." He is 53 and his wife is 56.

"Our friends laughed at us," his wife said a little sadly, "but, not counting the red tape, we have enjoyed ourselves and we will be very glad when we arrive at our destination."

Eva Peron Rallies Slightly

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Eva Peron, gravely ill wife of Argentina's President Juan Peron, was reported holding her own today after rallying slightly over the week-end.

A medical bulletin said there was no change in her condition in the last 24 hours. Fears had been expressed for her life Friday after she took a turn for the worse in her nine-month-old illness.

Yesterday thousands of organized workers under leadership of the general confederation of labor stood in the rain in Buenos Aires' central Plaza de la Republica for nationwide mass praying for her recovery.

The blonde first lady underwent an operation last November after consultations with a New York cancer and tumor specialist. The nature of her illness has never been officially disclosed.

Humble previously was charged with attempted murder. He is alleged to have shot Miss Peters three times on July 9 during an argument in the house they shared. Police found her lying in a pool of blood on a chesterfield

CANTERBURY, England. (Reuters).—A number of Americans worshipping in Canterbury Cathedral walked out last night during a sermon by Dr. Hewlett Johnson, the "red" dean of Canterbury.

The dean repeated charges that the United States has used germ warfare against Communist China.

"I defy you to go into the pulpit," the unidentified woman told Johnson as he strode forward to preach at the 1,000-year-old main seat of the Church of England.

But the dean brushed the woman aside and two vergers led her away.

GOOD PUBLICITY

Hollywood press agents and public relations experts erywhere would admit that the Chamber of Commerce Sturgeon Falls recently staged one of the smartest pubity and public relations moves on record. For the price two steak dinners, the Chamber of Commerce put the ame of Sturgeon Falls on the front page of many daily ewspapers and after reading the account of what the hamber of Commerce did, the reader is left with the imression that the folks in Sturgeon Falls must be pretty ce people.

While visiting Sturgeon Falls recently, a United ates couple stopped to breakfast at a restaurant and dered toast and coffee. For this they were charged ghty-five cents.

Upon returning to their home in Rochester, N.Y., the an wrote to the Chamber of Commerce complaining that ghty-five cents was pretty steep for toast and coffee. The hamber of Commerce checked with the restaurant and arned that the waitress had accidentally overcharged the merican tourists. To make amends, the Chamber of ommerce arranged for the couple to enjoy a steak dinner ear their home and the bill would be paid by the hamber of Commerce.

And now, instead of two disgruntled tourists who ould have complained to their friends that they were gypped" while visiting Canada, they will be loud in their raise for that community in Northern Ontario. It is kely, too, that they will make Sturgeon Falls a stopping oint if they pass through the area again. And all this oodwill merely for the price of two steak dinners!

A CONE FOR A NICKEL

Well, kids, we finally have a cost-of-living index hich we all understand and darned if it does not prove hat living costs are going up. Anyway, there is a chance or the return of the five cent ice cream cone. That is mportant.

But don't throw your hat in the air too far. This ew cone will not be the real thing at least not real by re-war standards. Actually, it will not be an identical endition of ice cream, because the government is permiting reduction from 11 to 10 the per centage of butter fat llowed in the goodie.

Candy bar manufacturers geared their bar down to even cents, not ten cents, simply by reducing the size of he bar until it became so small it was almost lost in the rapper. Not so with the ice cream. The five-cent cone ill match the real thing in size and color but whether it ill taste as good as it used to remains to be seen.

But while the quality is being altered, ice cream endors in Belleville have not reached price accord on the urrent cone. Some are content to receive the nickel hile others demand six cents.

PARKING WITH MUSIC

A Chicago bus company is reported to be spending a arge sum of money on new fare boxes. One of the feaures of the new boxes will be three tones. When a passenger drops in a nickel, the box will respond with a melodious signal. The tone will be even more melodious when a dime is dropped. But when a passenger, accidenally or otherwise, drops a slug in the fare box the response will be a loud, razzberry-type sound.

This seems like a pleasant way of transacting busiess which might well be extended to other fields, as for example parking meters. It would brighten up the city o end if the meters were to play a few bars of "Pennies rom Heaven" for short-term parkers and "One Hour With You" for those who spring for a whole nickel.

Those who try to feed the machines slugs might hesitate if they knew the meter was all set to break into a loud version of "Clap Hands, Here Comes Charlie MacIver." — (Winnipeg Tribune.)

PENSIONS MAKE A DIFFERENCE

Pensions are a wonderful thing!

No wonder the M.P.'s were so fast in voting themselves one.

Now qualified for full pension are a group of 12 including Earl Rowe, Gordon Graydon, Joe Harris and Hughes Cleaver. When the next session of Parliament meets, there will be 87 qualified for some pension.

But now it is reported that some M.P.'s who thought of retiring at the next election are reconsidering. One more round and some will qualify for the full pension of $3,000 for the rest of their lives. Members first elected in 1940 could put up $4,543 next November and qualify immediately for a life pension of $2,754 a year.

It's a lovely deal.

THE IMPORTANT TASK

My father used to tell me:
"When you're given a task to do
You may think it unimportant but it means a lot to you.
It's a mission you've been given, and perform it well you must,
Or the boss will have discovered you're a boy he cannot trust.

"As you build your reputation, every duty is a test.
You will lose men's good opinion if you fail to do your best.
It's your worth that you are showing and you prove it by your work,
And you'll never get the greater if the lesser task you shirk.

"I want you to remember, for it's Gospel that I say:
You're the living advertisement of yourself from day to day.
It is you that you are building; and, it's true, beyond a doubt,
If to trust you are unfaithful others quickly find it out."

THE UNAVOIDABLE GATEWAY

"And they went out and preached that men should repent."

In these few words are summed up the evangelistic campaign carried on by the Twelve Apostles after Jesus had sent them out to preach. They were instructed to proceed in the simplest fashion, to make no pretense whatsoever to learning, to make no provision for their own comfort. They were to go out and preach, and the burden of their message was that men were to repent.

This sounds strange to modern ears. We are willing to do almost anything but repent. As a matter of fact we see very little necessity for it. "Am I not as good as the next fellow? Who has any right to criticize me and pass judgment on my behavior?" The echo which comes back to us after we have asked these questions is a single word—"repent."

We all need to repent because there is no spiritual health in any of us. We need to repent because repentance is the unavoidable gateway to better living. It is never until we shed the old that we take on the new. It is never until we renounce what we have been that we walk unto the glorious possibility of being what God has always wanted us to be.

Get rid of the past. It is possible to do so—but only through repentance.

Nature's Air-Conditioning System Only 6 Miles Away--Straight Up

By ROBERT E. GEIGER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nature has a giant air-conditioning system that would keep North America cool all summer—if scientists only knew how to control it. It might keep us warm in winter, too, with little or no fuel bill.

Almost every time a searing heat wave hits North American cities, a mass of polar air a comparatively short distance away is trying to come to your relief. And the ingredients usually are close at hand, in the upper atmosphere, to break up troublesome and disastrous drought, flood and blizzards.

The trouble is that when you want coolness nature is likely to send a puff of sweltering heat. When you want a warm, chinook breeze in mid-winter nature looses a blizzard.

Long Way From Control

The United States Weather Bureau is a long way from being able to do anything about violent weather changes except to issue forecasts and warnings.

But weather scientists gradually are understanding more about how the changes occur.

Think of an orange sliced exactly in two equal parts. The northern hemisphere resembles one half, with its rounded side turned upward. At the top is the north pole.

Now think of a plastic cap that fits exactly over the upturned, curved surface. This thin plastic cap has a pattern imbedded in it like a jig-saw puzzle, with areas of odd shapes and sizes scattered through it. These correspond with the elements that make up the weather pattern over the top half of the earth, of which the U.S. and Canada are a part.

Some portions of this weather pattern are fairly stable. For instance, the air over the North Pole, is nearly always cold. At high altitude it also generally is under lower pressure than air at the equator.

Pattern Shifts

If one part of the pattern shifts, the whole thing is likely to shift. This is what changes weather on earth.

The air that is under high pressure forms huge bubbles. These come close together at times. At other times they are far apart.

When one bubble starts moving northward and begins approaching another a narrow path is formed between the two. This path is used by the winds, which in the northern hemisphere generally move west to east.

When the path narrows the winds speed up as fast as 250 miles an hour. If this occurs at the boundary line between the winds of the north and the winds of the south, a high-speed, high-altitude wind called a jet stream often is created.

If the pressure is high in the cradle it may push polar air down. If the pressure is low it may allow hot air to come northward from the Caribbean Sea.

In 1951 there was a comparatively high pressure area off the north west coast of Canada which pushed down a lot of cold air. Another pressure area over Mexico pushed northward.

Hot winds, laden with moisture, struck the polar air across the mid-United States, particularly through Kansas.

There was a heat wave in the southeast, a cold spell up north. In the middle the violent change in temperature as the cold and hot air met caused the hot air to drop its moisture. Everyone knows how the rain came.

This June the pressure in the weather cradle was comparatively low. This allowed the high pressure of the hot Mexican border country to move far northward. A jet stream was created along the Canadian-U.S. border instead of in mid-United States. This caused most areas to go hot.

On a weather map it doesn't appear that nature had to move its elements very far to achieve this complete change from one year to the next. But it changed the courses of a couple of "rivers" of cold and hot air in the upper atmosphere. This sounds easy. But will scientists ever be able to do it?

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The jolly host of the inn is almost as old a description of the proprietor as the institution of hostelries itself. Jolly my eye. The modern hotel manager, whether of the big city castle or the tourist rookery, is among the most melancholy and annoyed appearing of all mortals. He wears a constant air of suspicion. Whether it is his staff or the guests he is suspicious of, neither will ever know.

The face that greets you over the hotel reception desk, manager, assistant manager or mere clerk on duty, is never jolly, seldom eager and rarely warm. The characteristic expression of hotel greeters nowadays is one of doubt. He doubts if you are registered. He doubts if you can have a room. He doubts if you are the kind of guest the hotel caters to.

The jolly host of the inn probably went out of date in Chaucer's time. Ah, those were the days to travel, even if only so far as Canterbury. But if the jolly host has vanished fro mthe big joint stock company hotels, he has equally disappeared in the tourist hotels. I have lately had to travel a tourist route, stopping overnight at tourist resorts both large and small. The harried host rather than the jolly host would be a more apt description of the managers of these caravanserai. Most of the time, they keep out of sight. Many of them are women, and a woman hotel manageress has three strikes on the customer before the game starts. She is eager, harried, slightly bewildered. The guest is always the unexpected guest to a lady hotel keeper.

One jolly host I did encounter. But he was full of his own beer, spending most of his time, naturally enough, on that part of his establishment which paid him the most, the tavern. It might well be that the jolly host of olden days was jolly from the same causes as this one I encountered. If so, we are better off with the dour and doubtful greeters of our time Because my jolly host had a dirty hotel, the rooms were not made up, the meals were awful, and everybody in the hotel save the manager was cranky.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

MY HIDE-AWAY

For another few weeks of the summertime I am privileged to be at my small island home — "Weskawenaak," on Grand Lake, in unspoiled Nova Scotia. Here is my comfortable Lodge and log dining cabin, nested among the pines. Here it is that I write and read and find peace among the fragrant varieties of pines that continually bend their branches in welcomed rhythm.

Here is quiet. Walking over the mossy paths you are reminded of the years of falling pine needles that form a cushion of silence as you stroll about. And there are wild flowers always in bloom while I am here. I know the names of them all and pass a salute as I come upon them. Many a towering hemlock have I interviewed, and many a tiny warbler has sent dainty notes of song to me as I have watched each in its happy world.

No matter what the news, whether tragic or not, these songsters on "Weskawenaak" only know one life—the life of work, the raising of a family, and bursting their joy in song. They know nothing of war. I sit on the sunny verandah and study the habits of these tiny birds with my field glasses. How much we can learn from them! How frugal, how thrifty each is!

Hazel Woodliffe, who for so many years has served me on my hide-away, is with me this year, and her kindly spirit and thoughtfulness are a joy to one trying to extract all the beauty and wonder in so small and enchanted a place as this where I now live and write and relax, and try to gather up for better improvement some of the important values of life.

Gentle breezes sweep my face as I work at the corner in my Lodge. A tapestry of light and shadow meets my view during the day, and at night I watch the stars dance upon the water of the Lagoon. When the Moon is full, as it soon will be, it is like a traveling globe of gold and I watch it rise in the East and later settle in the West, and the sky is a canopy of stars—God's eyes looking down! In the words of John Burroughs, "I come here often to find myself. It is so easy to get lost in the world."

WHICH KIND OF SUGAR?

It is not just by chance that babies today are more vigorous, have lower mortality rate, are more likely to survive the perils of childhood, grow and develop faster and are happier than babies were when you and I wore didies.

For one thing, doctors, druggists, nurses, neighborhood saireygamps and parents no longer make a practice of plying infants with opium, in the form of laudanum, paregoric, soothing syrup, colic cure or cough mixture.

Nowadays intelligent people give babies a break in the way of cleanliness, fresh air, light, comfortable clothing and bedcovers or none, as weather and common sense dictate, pure wholesome food and protection against unsolicited advice by interfering relatives.

Although some people remain unconvinced that it would be advisable or even proper to instruct boys and girls in the care and feeding of infants, I predict that this will eventually become a prerequisite for entrance into high school.

The newer knowledge of nutrition, acquired since Topsy was a colt and her driver an honest (99.44%) doctor in Penn Yan, enables us to prevent manifestations of deficiency diseases—conditions which formerly made many babies unhappy and still do handicap underprivileged children. I use that destable word "underprivileged," not in the snobbish sense Lady Bountiful and the lunch club boys do, but as meaning just one thing, that the parents of these unhappy babies lack intelligence or common sense. They pay more than 60 cents a pound for fancy sugar prescribed by a trick pediatrist, although no reputable physician or nutriton authority has shown or even dare claim it is in any way superior to ordinary cane or beet sugar in infant feeding or in the diet of invalids or healthy persons.

Theoretically lactose, the sugar naturally present in milk, should be preferred for infant feeding. It was commonly used for the purpose in the era of mathematical formula feeding Some investigators today believe milk sugar makes more utilizable the calcium which has been assimilated from food. Whether this is so or not, milk sugar costs more than pure cane or beet sugar and physicians who prescribe it in preference to cane sugar or beet sugar do so principally because it is not so sweet as cane sugar and therefore does not accustom the baby to sweet foods.

One kind of sugar is as easily digested as another and yields the same number of calories. The sugar of milk represents about one-half the caloric value of milk and sugar of one kind or another should supply one-half of the caloric requirements of the baby.

Treaty Papers to Moscow Shocks European Exiles Who Distrust Soviet Intentions

By SIGRID ARNE

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ever since big four talks on an Austrian treaty started in 1947 the United States State Department has agreed that the final, signed papers should be deposited in Moscow.

The arrangement, however, has only recently become generally known. The news has been met with shocked surprise by leading European exiles here. They fear the effect on Europeans.

Traditionally, treaties are deposited in the capital of one of the signing countries. The official papers which pledge 60 countries to the United Nations, for example, are kept in Washington.

Moscow is the depository for the Second World War treaties with Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria, all now virtually parts of the Soviet Union, and the Russians demanded that Moscow be the guardian of an Austrian pact too.

Filing Site Unimportant

U.S. and Austrian negotiators feel that if a treaty can be signed, moving foreign troops out of Austria, it will be unimportant where the agreement is filed.

European exiles feel differently.

George Dimitrov, former leader of the Bulgarian Peasant party and now secretary of the International Peasant Union, says:

"Granted, it will be a seeming victory for the west if the treaty moves Red troops out of Austria.

But, Dimitrov says, it will seem to many Europeans that the Russians have advanced a step, and Washington has lost, if Moscow becomes the guardian of the treaty.

"Further, the Russians will use their guardianship in their own peculiar way. It will be easy for them to create a 'disturbance' in Austria. Then, quite likely, Moscow will reason that since the Soviets are the guardians of the treaty, they must also be the guardians of the peace. That is all the Kremlin needs as a reason for moving further into Austria."

Stanislav Mikalaiczck, former premier of Poland, who had to flee to save his life, doubts there will ever be an Austrian treaty. He says "Austrian oil is too important for the Russians. They won't leave Austria as long as they need the oil."

450 Meetings

U.S. State Department records show that the Big Four—the U.S., Britain, France and Russia—have had more than 450 meetings about an Austrian treaty since 1947. The meetings broke off in 1949, and Austria continues to be occupied by troops from all the Big Four. It costs the little country something over $20,000,000 a year to quarter the troops. Only the U.S. pays its own way.

The State Department says the negotiators started to work first on a draft treaty written in Moscow. It had 59 articles, including the arrangement to deposit the final paper with the Soviets.

Now, just to get a new start, Washington has proposed that talks start all over on an abbreviated treaty of only eight articles. London and Paris have agreed, but nothing has been heard from Moscow.

Article eight of the new draft says:

"The instruments (documents) of ratification shall, in the shortest time possible, be deposited with the government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics."

State Department experts say the U.S. has never protested this arrangement.

Gardiner Expects U.S. Officials To Lift Cattle Embargo Soon

WASHINGTON (AP)—There has been no consideration so far toward declaring Canada to be free from foot-and-mouth disease, United States agriculture department officials said yesterday.

Dr. B. T. Simms, chief of the bureau of animal husbandry, told a reporter that the matter has "not even been discussed," indicating that the time when Canadian livestock and meats again may move into the U.S. is quite a distance off.

Agricultural Minister J. G. Gardiner said in Saskatoon Thursday night that he expected a declaration today that Canada is free of the dreaded cattle disease. He predicted lifting of the U.S. embargo within 60 days.

Dr. Simms indicated Mexico might beat Canada in being declared free of foot-and-mouth disease. He said no evidence of the disease has been found in Mexico since last August.

Outing Becomes Adventure for Campers

Enjoying a midnight meal none the worse for unscheduled stopover on Lake Simcoe, Ont., are three of 36 boys of De La Salle summer camp, who were near Sutton, Ont., aboard the LST when it was stranded on lake during a violent rainstorm. En route to an island, 20 miles from its camp, the war surplus landing craft was stranded when its engine conked out due to a clogged fuel line. Drifting nearly six hours, the barge was finally located by a plane—part of search party composed of air, sea craft — which was organized when boat, three hours overdue, failed to arrive at its destination. — Central Press Canadian.

Oh my! I'll bet this costs us plenty!

Silly accident, but expensive!

All accidents are silly—and unexpected.

The grocer boy does not plan to trip over a toy wagon in your driveway and break an arm.

But it can cost you thousands in a damage suit.

Or your dog may bite a stranger (or a friend). You may hit somebody with a golf ball. Your child may sock a passerby with a rock. A mailman may scoot on the ice or on a roller skate.

A very inexpensive America Fore policy will cover you against damage suits from all these and other unplanned expensive accidents. For example, you can get $10,000 liability protection for only $10 a year.

HOW TO HANDLE green undergrowth in grain crops

Clover seeded with your grain crop builds up your soil, but this green undergrowth may be a problem at harvest time. Here is how to handle it.

A home-owned ALL-CROP Harvester lets you time your harvest perfectly. Catch the grain at full ripeness, but before green undergrowth is too high.

The wide, rubber-faced bar cylinder handles the full swath width with less chopping of green matter — separation is easier over the rack and there is less choking of sieves. Grain is drier, brighter, safer to store.

Power harvest grain this year, valuable seed next year, from the same field...with your own ALL-CROP Harvester.

Stop in and talk to us.

WEDDINGS

CAMPBELL—HOMAN

A quiet but pretty double ring wedding ceremony was solemnized on Saturday, July 19, at 2:30 p.m., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Seldon R. Homan, 5th Concession of Thurlow, when their second daughter, Anna Luella, was united in marriage to Colin Glenn Campbell, of No. 6 Repair Depot, Trenton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Finlay Campbell, Kenora, Ont. Rev. W. R. Merrick, Belleville, was the officiating clergyman.

The bride wore a ballerina-length lilac net gown with a long-sleeved lace jacket, matching headdress and carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses.

Miss Muriel Homan, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. She wore a similar gown of yellow net and lace, with matching headdress and carried a nosegay of sweetpeas and Sweetheart roses.

Harvey Homan, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

After the reception, which was held on the lawn, the happy couple left on a motor trip to Algonquin Park, on their return they will reside in Trenton.

Out-of-town guests were present from Hamilton, Toronto, Peterborough and Frankford.

Hats of British Women for Fall Display An Unusual Aerial Motif

By MURIEL PENN

LONDON. (Reuters) — Public interest in flying saucers is going to the head of the British housewife.

Hats being prepared for sale this autumn inevitably recall descriptions of those hitherto unidentified and, by most of us as yet unseen, objects which people in many parts of the world claim to have observed riding the skies.

Some now appear to have landed almost intact on the heads of London models. Others suggest some damage in a pancake landing, but it still seems impossible that they did anything but drop from the sky—and stay put.

Recipe For Hats

Indeed the recipe for the newest hats seem to be: "Take something flat, something soft, drop from a great height and wear as it lands."

Most of the new hats carry a definitely aerial motif in the shape of birds, or at least of plumes or osprey, whether they are stiff pill-boxes, floppy pancake shapes with peaked crowns and wavy brims, or just an ovel-shaped half turban draped across the top of the head.

Birds, at the moment, look like dominating the autumn millinery scene. They may be made of velvet or silk or even fur—they are rarely feathered—and they may bear little resemblance either in color shape to any known species. But they appear in whole or in part on most fall hats.

The hollow-topped crown of one flat pillbox shown at an autumn collection was filled with a nestful of yellow birds surmounted by a thin, curled plume.

Others, less aviary-like, contented themselves with a single bird perched on top or a couple of smaller ones set one at each side.

Originality of hat design is equalled this season only by the new names given to the materials and colors in which they are made.

What used to be known as "felt" now has acquired new glamor as "peace bloom".

A new pastel shade of blue-grey boasts the name of "lazy mule", although no one can explain why, especially as mules, lazy or otherwise, are generally brown.

Boffin blue, contrary to what its name suggests, is mauve, while "old gold" now is "cognac".

But take heart. Black is still black and white—though it may be called foam white—is still white. Pimpernel, as its name suggests, is a shade of red, while bronze green, honey, citron, mimosa all speak truly for themselves.

With short hair apparently to continue into the autumn, there are few large hats for the coming season. What there are, are "shovel-shaped"—little or no brim at the back and a deep curved one framing the face at the front.

In general, however, the later in the day the hat is intended to be worn, the smaller it becomes. Some cocktail and evening models are virtually only a narrow band of velvet or silk wreather in osprey or trimmed with upstanding plumes.

Dark Eye-Glasses Latest Fad In British Fashion Circles

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON (CP)—British women are wearing eye-glasses not so much because they really need them but as a fashion fad.

Thousands of fashionable women have turned this year to dark glasses as an indispensable part of a smart summer outfit.

It seems the last consideration is to keep the sun out of the eyes. Glasses are worn in restaurants, in tube trains and buses, and under the dullest of summer skies. And it is obvious that milady gives as much thought to the choice of style and color in "blinkers" as to the clothes with which they are worn.

Men's Views

Although British doctors and opticians warn against the constant use of dark glasses unless prescribed by an expert, and just ordinary men say they like their ladies without aids to vision, shops from London's West end to Bond street are selling them from under 5s to upwards of five guineas.

In the west end, Mrs. Penny Whittaker, a tall, fair-haired dispenser designing sun glasses at an average of five guineas, finds the more futuristic the design, the better they sell.

One of the most popular styles are butterfly-wings frames that slant upwards to a sharp point, lending width to the forehead and length to a round face.

Seaside favorites are the half-moon "blinkers" with heavy side hinges and a slot through which a headscarf can be slotted to save it sliding along the frames. Pastel-shaded glasses shot with tints of silver and gold are perhaps the most common choice, but upward-tilting frames tipped with golden corners are the foremost choice of those willing to pay around 30s.

Restaurant Wear

For restaurant wear, the height of fashion is jewelled frames such as the egg-shaped blue acetate blinkers with pearl-encrusted browline. And if you need the real thing, the answer is a lorgnette.

This famed dowager fashion of the 90s is the present fashionable answer for girls who need glasses only for reading. How much smarter, when faced with a menu or program, to unclip a lovers' knot of diamante from the lapel and, holding it by the long tail to the brow, flick out hinged spectacles hidden discreetly behind it, than to dig in your handbag for ordinary frames.

Year-Round Air-Conditioning For Home Available Soon

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Complete year-round air-conditioning of a new home at no extra cost may be just around the corner, say equipment manufacturers.

They hope to be able to show that you could offset the cost by taking advantages of savings in construction that would be possible by designing a house specifically for air-conditioning.

Cloud Wampler, president of the Carrier Corporation, said "it's something we're trying to evaluate," along with future savings in costs of redecorating and keeping draperies, rugs and furniture clean.

However, he said that "we can't say we now know enough to say air-conditioning wouldn't cost the home owner anything."

INHIBITIONS

It depends in considerable part on how much the home owner can get away from the inhibitions of the past in designing his new home.

The home owner could save money by leaving out windows that added little or nothing to the view from the inside or the appearance from the outside. He wouldn't need them for ventilation.

"There would be no need for screens, ventilating devices or storm windows," he said.

Also, another possibility of saving money would be to omit a breeze-way, screen porch or other place designed especially for keeping cool. You could keep cool, better inside.

Meanwhile, what appears to be a boom in complete year-round air conditioned houses has started.

BEAUTY

By Helen Jameson

Self-consciousness

It's no fun being shy and sitting on the sidelines when the guys and gals are having a gay time at the party. Self-consciousness is social fear—fear of people, fear of not doing or saying the right thing—and it is an affliction that may continue all through life. If a little child shows evidence of shyness, a mother can do much to help her to overcome it. The mother should make the home so attractive, be so charming and reasonable herself, that other children will want to be near her. The more friends little daughter has, the more social contacts among her companions, the more likely she is to develop a sense of self-respect and poise.

When the child is in her early teens, her shyness should not be mentioned by members of the family. Any reference to it will only make her more self-conscious. Her mother should tell her that she's just as sweet and pretty and smart as other girls. A little praise, handed out casually now and then, will increase the child's confidence.

The majority of individuals have a feeling of inferiority at certain times in their lives. When Mr. Big is called upon to make a speech, he may have a pounding heart, dry mouth, and shivering flesh. Many famous actors and actresses suffer from stage fright, which is much the same thing. The self-conscious girl isn't the only one who has this affliction, which is not at all abnormal.

The essence of the matter is the feeling of being different from others, of being incapable of doing things as others do them. All that may be based solely on imagination. Therefore the shy young lady should hand herself a little apple sauce now and then. Above everything else she should not cherish the idea that other people are always sizing her up, regarding her in a critical manner. Most people are pretty busy thinking about themselves and their own affairs.

Appearance is sometimes a factor. In girlhood it is important to look like other girls. Anything that sets a child apart from her friends is a social handicap. Mothers should give attention when little daughters express their wishes about clothes, and should grant them, if possible.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The captive bride

Many a teen-ager falls in love with the idea of marriage because she believes it is the open door to complete freedom. Unfortunately things don't always work out that way.

The young girl who writes the following letter is one of those who made the latter discovery. Married at 17 to a young man of 20, after eight months of marriage she is in despair. Here's why:

"After our marriage, my husband and I lived with my parents for about two months, and before we left, he took a great dislike to my family. At first, he didn't say much of anything; he would just get mad when they did something he didn't like, and wouldn't speak to any of us. After we moved into a home of our own, he kept on getting mad if my mother came over, or if she did anything for me. This caused so many fights between us that finally I gave up my mother for him and stopped seeing her.

"But it made me feel guilty to be like that toward my own mother, so after awhile, I started seeing her again, and trouble with my husband began all over. Even when she was in the hospital one time, he told me that if I went to see her, I could just stay away for good. So I didn't go.

"Today I happened to see my grandmother, and she told me that my mother hadn't been at all well since her operation and might have to be operated on again. She said my mother was grieving terribly over the situation between my husband and my family, and that some day I would be punished for having given them up for him. If I even go to see one of my girl friends for an afternoon, he is angry, so I have stopped seeing any of them.

"I love my husband very much, and have tried to do everything to please him. But—it's only when we cut the outside world off entirely that we really get along fine, and you can't live that way and be happy. I want us to live like young people should—to have friends, and visit back and forth with them; to go to church together, and have the good times together that other young couples do. But he doesn't want to.

"What am I going to do?"

Immature Husband

Now even though this girl is only seventeen, hers is not the letter of a completely immature adolescent. In fact, it shows considerable maturity in her obvious desire to find adjustment for the extremely difficult problem her marriage has turned out to be.

Here, therefore, we seem to have a rather surprisingly mature teen-ager who is married to, and still loves, a very immature and maladjusted young man. She wants to work out the big problem in their marriage so they can be happy together like normal young married people. He has no such insight, and will have only his own kind of happiness—if happiness it can be called—and on his own terms.

Is it possible that this wide difference in attitudes can be reconciled?

Much as one would like to be optimistic about the future of this marriage, I'm afraid it is impossible to be both optimist and realist. For unless the young husband can somehow bring himself, or be brought, to recognize his urgent need of an emotional overhauling, and to go about getting one in an intelligent way, I see no alternatives but these for his wife: to set her teeth in desperate silence and accept those terms of his; to refuse to accept them, and instead go her way as she sees right and fit, resigning herself to an atmosphere of constant marital discord; or to call it a day and separate from her husband.

Of these three alternatives, I would, at this time, recommend the middle one. Definitely, she should not renounce family and friends because her husband is jealous—as is probably the case—of anyone who takes her attention, even momentarily, from himself. And it would be a mistake, I think, for her to assume quite so soon that the situation is hopeless and break up the marriage.

Rather, she should try out the experiment of calmly and consistently pursuing the course that seems to her right in regard to all her relationships, trying to avoid being drawn into quarrels and remaining friendly and pleasant at all times. It goes without saying that such a plan will require heroic courage and patience. But it just might, gradually if slowly, finally bring home to the young man the fact that a wife is not a husband's captive, but an individual with rights and privileges of her own.

Help Wanted by Those On Salt-Free Diets

By Mary Moore

A casual comment about salt-free diets brought a shower of letters for more specific help with these tedious meal routines.

I can make suggestions about salt-free foods but I'm no doctor, you know. They have to do all the prescribing. I can give your morale a boost.

Mrs. U. S. asked for a week's salt-free low-protein menus as a guide for her mother who has been placed on this diet by her doctor. I hope Mrs. Alfred L. of Pine St. sees this too.

SALT-FREE BREAKFASTS

—No protein.

(1) Two grapefruit halves, salt-free cooked cornmeal porridge, saltless bread toast with pure fruit jam not preserved with benzoate of soda, tea with milk; (2) large glass fresh orange juice, saltless rolled oats porridge with milk and brown sugar, saltless bread toast with saltless butter and honey, coffee with whole milk; (3) large bowl fresh raspberries, saltless porridge of mixed whole grains ground, milk and brown sugar and dates, saltless bread toast with marmalade, tea with milk and sugar.

SALT-FREE LUNCHES

Low protein.

(1) Saltless tomato juice (this will have to be home canned), skim milk cheese and lettuce sandwich in saltless bread, raw carrot, junket pudding with sliced ripe banana, cocoa; (2) Saltless vegetable soup, chopped egg and lettuce sandwich on salt-free bread, half or whole chilled cantaloupe, skim milk; (3) cream of spinach soup, canned apricot and cottage cheese salad on lettuce, salt-free bread and butter, imported green seedless grapes, tea.

SALT-FREE DINNERS

—Moderately low in protein.

(1) 3-oz. slice broiled beef tenderloin with lemon and watercress, green beans, baked potato with saltless butter, large sliced orange, coffee; (2) 3-oz. piece breast of chicken boiled, green peas, new potato or whole new carrots, sweet cherries, tea. (3) Broiled slice of Restigouche salmon with lemon and parsley, quick-cooked spinach with saltless butter, quick-cooked frozen or fresh lima beans, cucumber or celery (unless celery is prohibited), watermelon, coffee; (4) Broiled calves' liver, fresh corn on the cob, cole slaw, sliced tomatoes, applesauce from new apples, tea.

Mrs. U. S. will you please watch this column for recipe for home-canned soup?

Mrs. Alfred L. of Pine St. asked for information on canning salt free tomatoes.

CANNED TOMATOES

(Without salt.)

Select firm tomatoes of medium or small size that are perfectly ripe. Scald in boiling water for one minutes, immediately dip in cold water and remove skins and top hard core. Pack in sterile jars (boiled 20 minutes), fill with boiling water or boiling saltless tomato juice (see below) to fill empty spaces, seal. Process in hot water bath for 25 minutes for pints, 30 minutes for quarts.

CANNED TOMATO JUICE

Wash tomatoes, remove core, cut into pieces. Bring to boiling point and boil covered for five minutes. Force through sieve or puree strainer. Bring juice to boiling point and then pour into sterile jars and seal with sterile rubbers, and tops. Leave 1-2-inch headspace. Process in hot water bath 15 minutes for pints and quarts. Tighten seal, invert to cool. Never loosen seal.

BEAUTY

By Helen Jameson

COMPLEXION PACKS

There is one good-looks ritual that should be performed in the privacy of one's room. Not because it is anything of which one may be ashamed, but because it may cause the baby to scream, the husband to collapse, and the cat to have fits. We refer to the complexion pack, sometimes called the cosmetic mask. Nothing can make a woman look more ghastly. But it is worth doing, even so, having an excellent effect upon various beauty liabilities.

The clay pack will clear the skin of blackheads when nothing else will. Purchase a small quantity of kaolin from your druggist. Kaolin is our old friend Fuller's earth—used as a cleanser for furs and felts—made pure and clean. Place three tablespoonfuls in a bowl, and add enough witch hazel to form a paste the consistency of whipped cream.

Apply to a clean skin surface that is warm and glowing after the use of soap and water. You can spread it on with your fingers or use a silver butter knife. Start at the collar bones. The kaolin has a mild bleaching effect, and you don't want your face and neck to have a color divorce.

This is your opportunity for a period of relaxation. Lie down, go limp, close your eyes and the doors of your mind. Within a half hour the mask will start to flake. Remove it with a moistened towel and apply a light cream. Then you can play with the items of the make-up box. Never wash away cream; remove it with tissues.

White of egg, well beaten and spread over the face, has an astringent effect. It is helpful in the treatment of enlarged pores, but is mostly used for toning flesh that has gone a bit saggy. The longer it remains on the better. Remove with tepid water, dry gently, and do light tapping movements with a heavy massage emollient. If the skin is tanned, add a teaspoonful of lemon juice to the egg white.

Almond meal is used by some beauticians to give smoothness to the skin, and it has a cleansing effect as well. Place some in a bowl, add enough olive oil to hold the meal together so you can handle it. Spread on evenly. After a few minutes apply a hot, moist compress. Use a large washcloth for the purpose; gauze doesn't hold the heat long enough. After this treatment the skin will have a soft velvety "feel" and good coloring.

Don't answer the doorbell while wearing a pack. You may scare somebody to death.

Correct Attire For Men in Wedding Party of Summer Daytime Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it ever correct, or even permissible, for a groom, best man, and two ushers to wear dark business suits at a church wedding at 11 o'clock in the morning, the last part of July? Or would a white tuxedo jacket and black tuxedo trousers be correct, more suitable? The bride is going to wear a floor-length white wedding gown, with a shoulder-length bridal veil.—Phil

Dark blue suits are permissible for the men in the wedding party to wear at this daytime wedding in church, even when the bride wears a white wedding dress (floor-length), with bridal veil ...If the wedding is not a large one, and if the other details of the wedding are planned on the side of informality.

And correct for the daytime wedding in the summer: (1) white suits (very popular these days)...of linen, Palm Beach cloth, or other light-weight material; or (2) dark blue or dark grey coats and white flannel trousers.

But incorrect for a daytime wedding of any type...anywhere at any daytime hour...is the white dinner jacket (tuxedo) and tuxedo trousers. Why? Because a dinner jacket (tuxedo) white or black, is evening wear, not to be worn before 6 o'clock in the evening at the very earliest.

Perfect Plan...a Two-Day Celebration For the Diamond Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our parents' 60th (Diamond) Wedding Anniversary will be in September. There are five of us children, three sons and two daughters, several grandchildren, and also several great-grandchildren. One married son and one married daughter live out-of-town, and they and their children will come to stay at the homes of the other son and daughter. Of course we want to make a great occasion of this Diamond Anniversary, and we wonder if it could properly be a two-day celebration. That is, the actual date is on a Saturday, and on that date we would like to plan to have a dinner (mid-day) for the family, the "descendants," and the couple who were the wedding attendants (best man and matron of honor). Then on the following day, Sunday, we would like to invite other relatives, friends, also the members of a church organization to which my parents have belonged for many years, and some of my father's former co-workers. What would you think of this plan, Mrs. Beeckman?—One of the Daughters

It's a wonderful plan... a perfect plan! For this So-important-Occasion I most heartily approve of the idea of having one day dedicated to the family-reunion-and-celebration...and then the following day (and it is fortunate that in your case this day is Sunday!) to the receiving of the relatives and friends and neighbors and all others with whom your mother and father have established and maintained such rich and significant human relationships. What a good and full life they have had, your mother and father...no wonder you all want to do honor to them! (I hope the best man and his wife can come to both celebrations... then he can propose the important toast "To the Bride and Bridegroom!")

LITTLE girl fashions are becoming cuter and more practical every year. Today it is really hard to get an outfit that is not flattering and becoming to even the chubbiest figure.

GOOD PROMOTER

Canada's first governor-general, Sir Charles Stanley Monck, was the chief promoter of the federal constitution of Canada.

LOTS OF ICE

The refrigeration plant in the liner United States provides as much cooling as 3,600,000 pounds of ice a day.

Fashion Flashes

BITS O' GLITTER show up now and again in the newest clothes, perhaps presaging a return to more sequins next season. At a recent gala, one of the prettiest dresses had a strapless bodice and full skirt of black Chantilly lace embroidered all over with tiny, deep blue sequins. A matching lace stole had a floral design in similar sequins.

A REGULAR FORD, as the trade calls a popular number, is the black or navy silk dress made with middy type blouse and pleated skirt. We see such dresses everywhere for smart city doings, and they do look nice, even when there are several such at one place. Individual touches and pretty accessories give the design animation.

A PRETTY ACCENT for a white fabric glove is a clip-on band or bracelet of black or navy velvet with a tiny nosegay of flowers attached. Here's something that a handy girl can whip up herself!

AN ACCESSORY that doesn't usually appear in summer is the belt, but this year it is very much in the accessory picture with warm weather clothes. Straw belts are popular, co-ordinated with straw bags. A scalloped belt of natural panama is decorated with a hand-painted floral design, and there is a matching bag. A navy blue straw belt has read and white beads braided with it in a striped design.

Chief Electoral Officer Makes Preparations Well in Advance For Next General Election

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Guessing The Date

tious, second-floor office in downtown Ottawa, Nelson Castonguay, Canada's chief electoral officer, is busily preparing for the next federal election.

"I have no information as to when the next general election will be held," Mr. Castonguay said recently in an interview. "All I know is that an election must be announced before the life of the present Parliament expires Aug. 25, 1954.

"I want to be in a position to run off an election in the minimum possible time once the government fixes the date.

If plans work out he will be ready Aug. 15 to hold an election in a minimum of 60 days. For instance, if the government decides on a fall election it could dissolve Parliament Aug. 25 and have the election Nov. 3.

Guessing The Date

Although the government hasnT dropped any hints, many members of the Commons are predicting that an election will not be held until the fall of 1953. Some are mentioning Monday, Oct. 5, 1953, as a possible date. The party in power fixes the election date.

In 1949, Parliament was dissolved April 30 and the election was held June 27.

The result:

Liberals 193; Progressive Conservatives 41; C.C.F. 13; Social Credit 10, Independent four; Independent Liberal one; total 262.

The present standing in the Commons:

Liberals 182; Progressive Conservatives 49; C.C.F. 13; Social Credit 10; Independent Liberal two; Independent four; vacant two; total 262.

Three New Seats

In the next Parliament, membership in the Commons will be increased to 265. The increase was provided in a bill adopted at the recent session of Parliament. The bill also provided for changes in the boundaries of 125 constituencies.

Probably few voters realize when they mark their ballot on election day how much preparation is necessary to assure them of an opportunity to exercise their franchise.

Mr. Castonguay's office is the nerve-centre of an elaborate smooth-running machine that reaches into every corner of Canada and into every Canadian defence establishment at home and abroad.

As soon as Parliament ratified the change in membership and in constituency boundaries. Mr. Castonguay switched his election machinery into high gear.

He sent revised maps of the constituencies to returning officers in all parts of Canada.

He asked them to revise the boundaries of their polling divisions and to complete the work by Aug. 15. Each division should contain between 300 and 350 electors.

That done, he estimated the number of polling divisions there will be in each constituency. He figured the number of enumerators needed to collect the names of persons eligible to vote.

Tons of Material

The next move was to send to returning officers much of the material they will need to conduct an election. The material—it runs into hundreds of tons—including a copy of the Canada Elections Act, instrctions to returning officers, instructions to enumerators, paper and supplies for enumerators and information on the revision of voters' lists.

The returning officers in each constituency will fill the requirements of their deputies, of polling clerks and enumerators.

Returning officers soon will be in a position to complete an enumeration of electors within six days after the date of an election is announced.

After the date is known Mr. Castonguay will dispatch additional material. It will include blank ballot paper, pencils and papers for polling booths, ballot boxes, instructions on ballot folding and on the type of marks on ballots to accept or reject in counting votes.

The names of candidates nominated in each constituency are printed locally on the blank sheets of ballot paper supplied by Mr. Castonguay.

Besides providing for the vote of some 9,000,000 civilians. Mr. Castonguay also has to plan to handle the vote of service personnel at home and abroad.

Must be Prepared

In a letter to returning officers, Mr. Castonguay informed them that he has no idea when an election will be called. He added: "Nevertheless, it is of utmost importance that you place yourself in a position to put the election machinery in operation immediately upon the receipt of a telegraphic message from this office informing you of the issue of writs ordering the general election.

"Experience has shown that when it is desired to hold a general election, a minimum of time is given for the appointment of rural and urban enumerators and for furnishing them with the necessary supplies."

The 38-year-old Mr. Castonguay, who succeeded his father as chief electoral officer in 1949, will not be setting a precedent if election supplies reach returning officers months in advance of an election.

The returning officers had their supplies for the 1945 election on hand for a year. In 1949, the supplies reached them eight months in advance of the election.

CAME PREPARED

TORONTO (CP) — There was relief all around yesterday when Russia's flag was found tucked away in a corner of the foyer of a downtown hotel. Nikolai Slavin, leader of the Russian delegation to the International Red Cross conference here next week, had complained that the hammer and sickel emblem couldn't be found among the 70 hung around the foyer. Before it was located the Russians indicated they'd come prepared — they brought along their own flags.

HEADS FEDERATION

Vancouver (CP) — Mrs. Margaret Campbell, of Vancouver, yesterday was elected president of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs in convention here. Miss Gladys Moffatt, Ottawa; Miss Jean McCallum, Edmonton, and Miss Isabel Menzies, Montreal, were elected vice-presidents.

Red China Costs Envious Eyes On Hong Kong, Gateway to Asia

By RICK STEVENS

HONG KONG (Reuters)—This British Crown colony on the doorstep of an unfriendly Communist China, is facing a grim future.

There is a widely accepted belief here that the Communists will eventually demand the "return" of Hong Kong.

They obviously regard the colony as "a running sore in the side of China," as one observer put it

According to a private source of information from behind the "Bamboo Curtain," Chinese Communist leader Mao Tse-tung has said privately that one of his greatest wishes is to see Hong Kong "restored" to China in his lifetime.

Bue only Peiping knows at present what, if any, intentions the Communists have.

Valuable To Reds

There is no immediate fear of Communist attack, unless a world war breaks out. For one thing, the colony is of far more value to the Communists in its present status.

Since trade embargoes were imposed last year to prevent strategic war materials going to China, it is no longer a convenient storehouse from which the Communists can purchase their needs. But it is still a useful gateway to the free world.

Also, since it would be an act of aggression to attack Hong Kong, the prize would hardly be worth the consequences, particularly since the Communists are fully occupied in keeping their own house in order.

In the event of attack the colony's defences, geared to action, would present an aggressor with a considerable task.

From across the China-British border, less than 30 miles away, the Communists this year have stepped up their war of words against Hong Kong.

They have declared in press and radio attacks that it is "sacred Chinese territory seized by British imperialists over a century ago."

But whatever the future holds, the colony is carrying on with the same spirit that built it, a barren, rugged island in the sea off China, into Britain's "shop-window of democracy."

Many visitors come here today expecting to find it in a state of chaos. Instead they find the most efficient and peaceful city in the trouble Far East today.

SHED A TEAR

BOSTON (AP)—A home-made tear-gas bomb was set off in the Metropolitan Theatre last night while Johnny Ray, sob singer, was on the stage, driving an estimated 4,000 persons into the street choking and gasping for air. Four women were taken to hospital and a dozen other victims were treated.

Redmen Held to Four Clouts By Smiths Falls Royals; Drop Verdict by 8-1 Score

The Redmen apparently left in such a hurry for Smiths Falls on Saturday afternoon they forgot to take their batting orbs with them.

For with a team that saw Coach Ralph McCabe forced to play first base, the Reds dropped their first St. Lawrence Baseball League decision to Harry O'Neill's prides by an 8-1 score.

It was the Reds fifth defeat in sixteen starts. Their next league game sees them tangle with the Peterborough Petes here on Thursday night.

White, the Smiths Falls hurler was took good for the Reds. He went the route and handed out but four measly hits with Tony Pettitt, Ralph McCabe, Billy Strahan and Johnny Mowat accounting for them.

Get Twelve Off Two

Meanwhile the Fallsers were busy garnering twelve clouts off a duo of Redmen hurlers two of them home runs by McKenny and Hunter. McKenny's came off Bob Bunton in the first, while Hunter blasted one of Johnny Mowat's shoots in the third. Both batters were good for three runs batted in during the afternoon.

Bunton started but was nicked for five hits over two and two-thirds innings good for a quartet of runs. Johnny Mowat went to the rescue with two out in the third and held the Fallsers to seven clouts and four runs over the rest of the pastime.

The Falls gathered two runs in the first off the four-baser grabbed four more in the third which also featured a four-bagger and added a couple of insurance markers in the fifth. Mowat stopped 'em cold after that. The Redmen's lone marker came in the fifth when McCabe drove in Reeves.

Hunter with a homer and two singles paced the winners. McKenny got a homer and a single with Smith, Bingley and Warren accounting for two each. Lovis got a single.

British Runner

Bill Nankeville, 27, is one of the fastest members of the British Olympic team. His time for the metric mile, three minutes 48 seconds, set in Brussels two years ago was the fastest by any British runner since 1936. He is five feet 10½ inches tall and weighs about 130 pounds. — (CP Photo.)

Olympic Hope

Roger Bannister, 23-year-old Londoner, is considered Britain's best bet in the 1,500-metre event at the summer Olympics. Six feet two inches tall, he flashed into prominence four years ago and has had the Olympic metric mile as his objective ever since. He has been the target of some criticism because he chooses to train his own way and is called a "lone-wolf" type. He has an unusually long stride — 7½ feet. — (CP Photo.)

Motors Defeat Athletics 14-10 In Slugfest

Belleville Motor Car, by scoring two runs in the eighth and three in the ninth managed to outlast CNR Athletics 14-10 in the first game of their quarter-final series for the AA division championship of the Belleville and District Softball League, in a slugfest at the CNR grounds Saturday night.

The never-say-die Athletics, who overcame a six-run lead in the first to take a 10-9 lead in the sixth, just couldn't keep coming forever and faltered in the final frames as the Motormen swept to victory.

Motor Car batted around in the first inning racking up six runs on singles by Garvin, Miller, Semark and James, and a double by Callaghan. A walk to Burley and an outfield error swelled the total.

CNR picked up two runs in the second frame on a walk to Pearce and a wrong field home run to right field by Jack Moon. They added three more in the fourth on singles by Pearce, Moon, Boyle and Nichol and a walk to Murray.

Motors held off the challenge with two runs in the fifth and one in the sixth. Reid tripled and Garvin sacrificed him home for the Motors' run in the sixth.

Merry-Go-Round

Boyle started the merry-go-round for the Athletics in the sixth with a triple to deep centre-field. Nichol doubled him home, and then scored on Nolan's triple. Nolan came in when the right-fielder's relay to third flew into the stands. Bertrim and White went out to the infield, but two errors and a single by Jack Moon were good for two runs as Lockyer and Pearce scooted home.

The Motors, trailing for the first time in the game, settled down to blank the Athletics the rest of the way. They counted twice in the eighth to go ahead 11-10 and then added three runs in the ninth for insurance.

Jack Reid did the flinging for the winners and over the route walked two, struck out four and gave up 15 hits for 10 runs. Waite went all the way for the Athletics walking one, striking out one, and being tagged for 18 hits and the loss.

Best at the plate for the winners was pitcher Jack Reid with two singles, a double and a triple in five tries. Pearce and Boyle had three-for-five for the losers.

LONDON (CP)—"Fancy Teacher saying she'd never heard of Gordon Richards."

That was the bemused reaction of an 11-year-old British schoolgirl caught cutting out pictures of the world's winningest jockey, and it neatly illustrates the national mood. Everybody in these islands—except the benighted schoolteacher—has heard of hustling horseman Gordon Richards, the mechanical man.

Wherever the champion rides, cries of "Gordon" transcend all others as the field races for the finishing post. There is no running commentary, so unofficial race callers make it a habit to announce "Gordon's going to do it" or "Gordon can't make it" when the horses are a furlong or so from home.

Dominates Racing

Richards dominates English racing without effort or showmanship, being one of the most modest men in the game. His record speaks for itself—champion jockey 24 times since 1925, winner of at least 100 races a season for 22 years.

He rode his 100th winner this season at Salisbury July 10, bringing his lifetime total to 4,494—more than any other rider in the world. His closest rival is Alberta-raised Johnny Longden, who passed the 4,000 mark this year while riding in the United States.

Racing writers used to accept old-time greats like Steve Donoghue and Alex Archer as tops in their profession, but the chances are most of them now would vote for Richards as the greatest of all time.

Many articles have been written analyzing how Richards, at 48, is able to keep on riding winners with such consistency. The most common explanation is that this swarthy, steel-wristed little man, who rides to the track in a high-powered automobile, has an uncanny sense of balance.

Versatile Rider

Races in Britain are run over many different types of course, some uphill in parts, some downhill, some with queer, frying-pan twists. Keeping a horse balanced and in stride is one of the jockey's toughest jobs, and Richard seems to have the knock. Although he uses his whip only sparingly, if at all, he also is renowned for his ability to coax an extra effort out of a horse that seems to be beaten.

Oddly, he's never been able to win an Epsom Derby. British fans hope he may do so next year aboard the Queen's Aureole, a promising but unraced two-year-old by Hyperion out of Angelola.

One shrewd character managed to get a long price against Aureole. He wrote his bookmaker that he had a dream in which he saw No. 1 win the derby. The bookie promptly offered really long odds, not realizing that if Aureoles runs in the derby he'll automatically be No. 1 on the racing card as her majesty's representative—owner's precedence, they call it.

Four Records Go By The Board As Olympic Games Open At Helsinki

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

DROPPED THIS ONE

The Redmen with a skeleton squad failed to take their batting eyes with them on Saturday and as a result went down to an 8-1 defeat befor e Smiths Falls Royals. It was the first time a St. Lawrence Baseball League team has scored a victory over Ralph McCabe's buckaroos. White's pitching was too good for the Reds, the Smith's Failser hogtying our side with four hits. They touched Bobby Bunton and Johnny Mowat for an even dozen clouts two of them homers. Both teams played fine defensive ball with the only errors of the pastime going to the homesters.

Rain may stop that Camp Drumm American Army team-Redmen game tonight. Nothing was definite at this writing but if the game is postponed it will be announced on a news page.

WILL HISTORY REPEAT . . .

At least one softball fan and former executive will watch with more than passing interest the titular jaunt of the Glen Roy junior squad.

He is Jack (Crock) Boyle, who was the manager and coach of the starry Columbian Squires of 1945 that swept through to the junior "A" championship of Ontario.

That was a team, men, that was a team. Long since over the age hump, and now playing with the CNR Diesels intermediate "A" club vintage, 1952 are members of the Squires squad. These include Vern Goyer, Dick Fitzpatrick, Al. Adams, Don Adams and Red Culkin.

Other players of the 1946 champions were Bob Bunton, now on the hurling staff of the Redmen senior baseball club, Gord Donovan, now attending Queen's University, "Moe" Rollins, Snuffy Locke and Harry Wardhaugh.

Bill Spafford, former member of the Glen Roys "A" squad of a year ago forced to the sidelines with a leg injury and coach of the current junior Glens, is another member of the 1945 Squires. Boyle took the Squires over the rough tough playdown trail. He had a fighting bunch of youngsters who never knew when they were licked, if they were, and came roaring from behind on more occasions than one to snatch victory from defeat. Well-balanced, the Squires had exceptional hurling, hard hitters and one of the best defensive teams in the province.

They won the title the hard way. Brushing aside the Hastings team in two straight victories, the Squires ran into a tough snag when they hooked up with the Oshawa Aces in the second leg of their march to the title. It took four games, Jack Boyle recalls one of them a tie before the Motor City crew was eliminated. It was during this series that Vern Goyer lost the most important part of his pants and "Moe" Rollins hit a home run so hard they haven't found the apple yet.

The Squires encountered tough opposition in the Toronto Mount Carmel nine dropping the first to the metropolitan crew but roaring back with all stops out to snatch the next two tilts.

Then came Hamilton in the finals and the surging Squires took the Ambitious City nine in their stride in two straight games.

It is recalled that the Hamilton team injected a couple of "ringers" in their team in the second game played at Alemite Field. The dark deed was exposed by a rival Hamilton organization and the ensuing investigation at which this department was a star witness resulted in the suspension of the Hamilton manager and the entire team.

Remember the "bolo" twirler who whipped the ball in, out and around the plate but seldom across it. This Joe was one of the ringers with a name that sounded like an Italian advertisemen for macaroni, spaghetti, stromboli and raviola all tossed into one. Every time you pronounced it, the garlic odor was strong.

However this year's junior crop appears to be as strong as the 1945 champions. It has remarkably fine hurlers in the two Bobs, Green and Hunter. They are a well-balanced crew that can hit, run and field and their spot astride the top rung of the District Softball League ladder which they share with the Intermediate "A" Diesels, bespeaks their ability.

Coach Spafford has whipped the Glens into a fighting efficient softball machine. There isn't a weak sister on the squad and if they play the brand of softball they are capable of dishing up, they should be around when the championship baubles are being handed out. They should go far on the junket down the tough championship trail.

According to the draw list issued by OASA secretary Frank Feaver, there are fifteen competitors for the provincial junior "A" crown. These include Belleville, Brockville, Montreal, Oshawa and Quebec in Zone 4; Owen Sound and the Northland winners; Highview, North York and Toronto, and Brantford, Guelph, Hamilton, Niagara Falls and St. Catharines. The Glens will likely play Brockville or Oshawa in the first round.

Back to the Columbian Squires for the moment, Jack Boyle says the team won the only junior championship to come east of Oshawa.

AUTO MEET WED.

Dick Burrows says that one of the starriest collections of throttle-hellions will perform at the Speedway Parkland track near Shannonville come Wednesday night when the mid-season classic will be rut off. Some twenty drivers have entered the meet which will be featured by the twenty-lap grind in the Classic. Frank Andre and others will be out to boost their point totals for the "Star of Excellence" Trophy donated by the Pellar Brewing Company and the added fifty dollars. Drivers are practicing daily for the gruelling race, and a large crowd is expected to watch the lads put their creaking jalopies through their paces. Believe it or not these heaps attain a seventy-miles-per-hour clip on the straightaways and that is not a bad clip for the hot rod jehus.

NOT SPONSOR TEAM

DETROIT (AP) — Fred A. Huber Jr., secretary of the International Amateur Hockey League, said Friday Detroit will not have a team in the league next season. Rising costs and decreased attendance at Olympia games, Huber said, forced the withdrawal of the Hettche team. It will be the first time in its seven-year history that the league will be without Detroit representation.

Hutchins Wins for Canadians; Russians Lead With 23 Points United States Next With 15

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer)

HELSINKI (CP)—Canada's girl athletes make their bow in the 1952 Olympic Games today and they have plenty to shoot at.

Sunday's big opening of the world sports spectacle pointed up one outstanding fact: These games are operating strictly on the theory that records are made to be broken.

Three events were completed yesterday and the Olympic record in every one of them was smashed. A fourth mark was set in a preliminary heat.

Lone Canuck

In the face of this record-busting display, the first-place finish of Jack Hutchins of Vancouver in an 800-metre heat created excitement only in the Canadian camp.

Here's what happened in the record smashing:

Emil Zatopek electrified the crowd of 70,000 jammed into Helsinki's Olympic Stadium by breaking his own 1948 mark in the 10,000-metre race. Zatopek, a major in the Czechoslovakian army, became the first hero of the 1952 Games.

Zatopek, when running, looks as if he were undergoing a major operation without benefit of anaesthetics. He rolls his head, grimaces, sticks out his tongue and waves his arms.

The more it looks as if he were about to collapse, the faster he goes. In winning the 10,000 metres yesterday Zatopek lowered his old mark, made at London four years ago, from 29:59.6 to 29:17.0.

Russian Wins Discus

Nina Romaschkova, a new name among the powerful Russian athletes, hurled the discus 168 feet, 8.46 inches—51.42 metres—to set a record for women discus tossers. The old mark of 47.63 metres was made at Berlin in 1936 by Gisela Mauermayer of Germany. Two other Russian girls placed second and third behind Nina.

Walt Davis, a Texas cowboy, broke the high-jump record, clearing the bar at six feet, 8.32 inches—2.04 metres—to eclipse the old mark of six feet, 7.93 inches set by Cornelius Johnson of the United States, also in Berlin in 1936.

The fourth record went to Charlie Moore, a former Cornell University star from Ithaca, N.Y., who won his heat in the 400-metre hurdles in 50.8 seconds, three-tenths second better than the previous mark.

Hutchins' heat-winning performance in the 800-metre preliminaries proved Canada's best showing in track and field. He came from behind to win by half a step from John Barnes of the United States and Jeno Bakos of Hungary. The finish was close all three runners were clocked in 1:54.5.

Bill Parnell of North Vancouver beat Hutchins' time with a 1:53.1 clocking but had to settle for third place—a qualifying spot—in his heat. He was beaten by France's Patrick el Mabrouk and Denmark's Gunner Nielsen.

Ross Fails

John Ross of Oakville, Ont., whose specialty is the quarter-mile, took a crack at the longer distance and missed qualifying. He was fourth in a heat won by Heinz Ulzheimer of Germany, who had the best heat-winning time of the day, 1:51.4. Mal Whitfield and Reg Pearman of the United States were also qualifiers for today's semifinals.

Preliminary heats in the 100-metre sprints proved a complete blackout for Canada. Don McFarlane came up with a third place and just missed qualifying. He was beaten by Germany's Werner Zandt and Pakistan's Jedmadar Aslam.

Elsewhere in the all-day competitions Canada was still in the running in wrestling and rowing.

Little Wrestler Wins

Little Armand Bernard of Montreal, featherweight wrestler, was the only Canadian winner among the grapplers. He pinned Ignacio Lugo of eVnezuela in 10:55.

Nick Mohammed of Vancouver lost a decision to Alberto Longarelo of Argentina and Robert Steckle of Kitchener, Ont., suffered a fall loss to Willy Lardon of Switzerland. Both Mohammed and Steckle remain in competition under the scoring system.

Russia's soccer team overcame a four-goal deficit to earn a 5-5 overtime tie with Yugoslavia in first-round play. The teams must replay the match. Brazil defeated Luxembourg and Germany whipped Egypt. More first-round matches are scheduled for tonight.

Russia Tops Standing

The first day of competition left Russia on top in the unofficial point scoring compilation with a total of 23. Nineteen of these points were accounted for by the Russian women's triple in the discus throw.

The United States was next with 15 points—all on first and second place in the high jump. Then, thanks to Zatopek, came Czechoslovakia with 10, followed by France with five, Britain, Sweden and Brazil four each; Finland and Japan three each and finally Austria and Romania with two each.

The unofficial tabulation by countries is based on 10-5-4-3-2-1 points for the first six places in completed events.

Canada's rowing team, using borrowed shells from Sweden, had no firsts in the 2,000-metre heats but kept its chances alive. Hamilton Leanders were third in their heat of fours without coxswain; Toronto Argonauts' eight-oared crew got a fourth and so did Bob Williams and Derek Riley of Winnipeg in the double sculls.

Royals Win Two As Wings Split; Leafs, Bisons Tie

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rocky Bridges is proving to be just what the doctor ordered for the International League's pace-setting Montreal Royals.

When the Royals sent out an S O S recently the parent Brooklyn Dodgers sent Bridges to Royals for 10 days to fill the gap created by injuries to Montreal infielders.

Bridges came through in the clutch yesterday, singling home Al Moryn from third base with one out in the 13th inning to give the Royals a 6-5 victory over Ottawa Athletics in the opener of a doubleheader. The Royals also won the nightcap 5-3 behind the six-hit pitching of Bob Alexander. Jim Pendleton shared the spotlight with Bridges as he collected three hits in each game to extend his batting streak to 12 games.

Wings, Chiefs Split

The sweep enabled the Royals to move 2½ games in front of Rochester Red Wings who split a doubleheader with the third-place Syracuse Chiefs.

Lefty Fred Hahn blanked the Chiefs on five singles in the opener. The Wings' pounced on Art Hartley for four runs in the first inning of the second game but Lynn Lovenguth blanked them the rest of the way. Former Red Wing Johnny Blatnik led Syracuse's counter-drive, banging home four runs with a pair of homers.

The up-and-coming Baltimore Orioles shaded Springfield Cubs 4-3 in 10 innings. Al Cihocki singled with the bases loaded to break up the game.

Toronto Maple Leafs and Buffalo Bisons battled to a 5-5 tie as rain brought their game to a halt with the Leafs at bat in the ninth. The second game was postponed. Ed Stevens drove in all of Toronto's runs with his 14th and 15th homers.

In Saturday action, Ottawa defeated Montreal 4-1, Buffalo and Toronto split a doubleheader, the Bisons winning the opener 5-0 and the Leafs the second 1-0, Springfield defeated Baltimore 7-2 and Rochester won 8-4 over Syracuse.

Olympics Blonde 'Angel in White' Denied Speech, Returned to Germany

HELSINKI (AP)—The blonde "angel in white," whose unscheduled 200-metre dash electrified the opening ceremony of the Olympic Games, was returned to West Germany yesterday—her message of peace still not given to the world.

Dressed in black and carrying her Grecian white robe in a brown paper bag, the shapely, 23-year-old miss was escorted to the airport by Finnish police and given a one-way ticket home.

Police were relieved. So were Olympic officials, chagrined at the bizarre touch handed their solemn inaugural program Saturday when the graceful girl leaped onto the track and trotted to the speakers' stand where she sought to make a speech to the 70,000 spectators.

Police identified her as Barbara Rotraut-Pleyer, a resident of Berlin and law student at the University of Tuebingen, near Stuttgart.

They called her a "fanatic peace idealist who insisted her sole motive was to get all the nations united."

A 'Mixed-Up Girl'

A police psychiatrist said:

"She is just a mixed-up girl, a little ill in the mind. She is a religious as well as peace fanatic. She insisted her exhortation was not political."

Police refused interviews but released these additional details from their talks with her:

She had planned the visit to the Olympics for weeks. She had worked her schedule and program to the minutest detail, from the time she should arrive in Helsinki by way of Stockholm to the exact moment she should make her appearance in the vast stadium.

Washington Wins 4th Straight One-Run Victory To Vault Into 3rd Spot

Sweep Twin Bill from Browns As White Sox Whip Yankees; Runaway Dodgers Retain Lead

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Four consecutive victories by one run and 21 one-run decisions for the season—that is the principal reason why Washington's scrappy Senators are in third place today after all but a handful of experts had picked them to finish in the American League cellar.

The Nats took their fourth straight one-run victory yesterday as they swept a doubleheader from St. Louis Browns 7-6 and 6-3 to move into third place, a half-game in front of Cleveland Indians and a half-game behind Boston Red Sox. The double victory stretched their winning streak to five and left them five games away from the pace-setting New York Yankees.

Connie Marrero was the first-game winner and Bob Porterfield registered his seventh win of the season in the second game.

Previous to Marrero's one-run victory, the Senators had beaten Detroit 1-0 Thursday and nipped St. Louis 6-5 Friday and 2-1 Saturday.

Red Sox Advance

The Red Sox picked up a full game on the Yankees, vanquishing the Indians 8-7 in 12 innings while the fifth-place Chicago White Sox were upsetting the world champions 5-4. Philadelphia Athletics took the opening of a doubleheader from Detroit 8-7 and played a 3-3 tie in the second game, halted by Pennsylvania's 7 p.m. curfew at the end of nine innings.

Brooklyn's runaway Dodgers maintained their 7½-game bulge in the National League, taking Pittsburgh Pirates into camp for the 13th straight time 8-5. The runner-up New York Giants whipped Chicago Cubs 9-7 and the third-place St. Louis Cardinals defeated Boston Braves 8-4.

Philadelphia and Cincinnati divided a doubleheader, the Phillies bounding back with a 4-3 win after the Reds had taken the opener 6-5 in 10 innings.

Del Ennis smacked two doubles and a home run as Robin Roberts won his 14th game for the Phillies in the nightcap. Andy Seminick, former Phil, cracked a fifth-inning homer in the role of a pinch hitter for the Reds in the first game.

Panthers, Leafs Share Top Spot In Intercounty

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

After six straight losses Guelph Maple Leafs find themselves sharing their first-place niche in the senior Intercounty Baseball League with Kitchener Panthers.

For the first few weeks of the season Guelph and Kitchener exchanged the top berth nightly until Guelph snared league leadership and held it for more than three weeks. In that time they built up their lead to 4½ games. In little more than a week their lead was trimmed down until today they are back where they started.

Majors Now Fourth

The Leafs took their sixth defeat —a 4-0 blanking—from london Majors Saturday. The win boosted London into fourth place.

Kitchener spent Saturday evening edging Galt Terriers 4-3, while Waterloo slipped under 4-2 to the third-place Brantford Red Sox.

Both Guelph and London went scoreless until the fourth inning when London collected two. They added another pair in the sixth. Rain halted the game in the seventh.

Jim Gifton went the route for the Majors, allowing only three hits.

Marty Philp started for the Leafs and was tagged for the loss. He was replaced by Lou Faut and Bob Audie.

Leftfielder Russ Evon and third baseman Ken McFadden paced the Majors at the plate with two for three each.

Homer Ties Score

Galt took an early 2-0 lead in the first inning but a home run with one on by Kitchener centrefielder Freddy Thomas tied the score. Galt added another in the fourth and Kitchener tied it again with another homer, this time by rightfielder Dick Welker.

Sport in Brief

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Detroit police department's track and field squad, led by Elmer Coleman, easily outclassed the Toronto police force in all but two events to win the team championship of the annual police games at Toronto Saturday.

The Detroit cops racked up a total of 106 points to 47 for Toronto. Coleman, a sprinter and jumper, accounted for 23 of Detroit's total to take the individual scoring laurels.

Doug Wallace won the quarter-mile and Jack Hilder the 56-pound weight throw for Toronto's only victories. Jim Henderson, a field man, topped the Toronto point-winners with a total of 14.

Coleman's top performance came in the 220, which he ran in 21:9 seconds.

Bill Watson of Detroit was the leader in the field events, winning the 56-pound distance throw with a heave of 37 feet, 8¾ inches, the discus with a mark of 143 feet, 9½ inches and the 16-pound shot put with a throw of 47 feet, one inch.

The Toronto and Detroit teams meet again in Detroit, Aug. 2-3.

The senior Intercollegiate Football Union, in its effort to obtain additional qualified officials to handle its league games next season, intends to make the selections from the results of written examinations. These tests will be held the latter part of August in Toronto, London, Hamilton, Kingston, Montreal and possibly Ottawa.

Quebec retained the Lord Athlestan trophy by holding Ontario to a draw in a one-day cricket match Saturday at Montreal. Final score was: Quebec, all out for 257; Ontario, 109 for 6.

Dick Miller, newly-elected president of the Indianapolis Coliseum Corporation, said Saturday Indianapolis Capitals of the American Hockey League have cancelled their affiliation with Detroit Red Wings. Miller, who succeeded Arthur Wirtz as president of the capitals, said the team will operate independently.

The United States Hockey League, placed in the deep freeze last year, may be revived on a smaller scale this winter. Representatives from five cities—Denver, Omaha, Kansas City, Tulsa and Wichita—will meet in Wichita before Aug. 1 to discuss reviving operations.

At Ridgeway, Ia., it wasn't rain or wet grounds which postponed a Northwest Iowa League baseball game here yesterday. It was fire. New Hampton led Ridgeway 3-0 in the fifth inning when the local fire gong sounded. The home club volunteers dropped their bats and went to fight the blaze. When they returned to resume play, New Hampton had packed up and gone home.

Johnny Palmer Writes Golf History With New Record in Canadian Open

By FRASER MACDOUGALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—Johnny Palmer, a friendly invader from North Carolina, wrote a new chapter for the record books and debunked two golfing traditions in winning the Canadian Open golf championship Saturday.

Palmer took home $3,000 first prize money and the Seagram Gold Cup with a record medal score of 263 over the 72-hole route on rounds of 66-65-66-66—25 strokes below par. That clipped five strokes off the previous record of 268 shot by Bobby Locke of South Africa in 1947.

His 11-stroke margin over the second-place finishers was the biggest in records dating back to 1933. Lawson Little won by eight strokes in 1936 and Joe Kirkwood by eight in 1933. Figures for previous years are not available.

Shatters Tradition

Palmer shattered a Canadian Open tradition that the second-day leader won't wind up on top. And he reversed the old theory that in golf the pressure is on the leader. His nerveless, near-perfect play put the pressure on the field—and the field gave way.

His score was 10 strokes better than the 273 Jim Ferrier, the big Australian who plays out of San Francisco, shot to win the title a year ago. Ferrier, also winner in 1950 with 271, was completely out of the picture this year with a score of 284 which put him in a tie for 21st place.

Freddy Haas, Jr., of New Orleans, who finished with a brilliant 66 over the St Charles Golf and Country Club course where he won the Canadian Amateur in 1936, pulled into a second-place tie with Dick Mayer of St. Petersburg, Fla., in the final standing with 274.

Canadian pros didn't get into the picture until the 12th-place ranking where Stan Leonard of Vancouver appeared with 280 to win the Rivermead Cup as low Canadian professional for the fifth time—more than any other golfer. Bob Gray of Toronto is a four-time winner. Leonard has three consecutive wins plus others in 1945 and 1946. His score was two strokes better than the 282 he shot last year to finish sixth. The record score for a Canadian was the 276 Gray shot in 1941. Leonard won $325 plus $200 as low Canadian.

Four Canucks In Money

Four other Canadians got into the money list—Henry Martell of Edmonton won $200 with his score of 282, Rudy Horvath of Windsor $175 with 284, Al Balding of Toronto $141.66 with 285 and Gordon Brydson of Toronto $75 with 287.

Many Purchase Trout Streams

LONDON, (CP)— Concern at the number of persons purchasing small trout streams, therefore cutting down the number of places where less fortunate individuals might fish, was expressed Saturday by the executive of the Huron and Erie zone, Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters.

In a discussion of amendments to the Game and Fisheries Act conducted by E. R. Meadows, of the Lands and Forests Department, members expressed anxiety regarding the future of trout fishing.

The situation was termed "serious" by Mr. Meadows because of the number of persons purchasing head waters of trout streams.

"COOL CONTROL"

THE STANCE

1-Square Stance
Balance and control are 'musts.' There are three basic stances — first, the Square Stance, as above. This stance requires both feet to be placed square to the intended line of flight.

2-Open Stance
All stances require the club to be soled directly back of the ball so that the bottom of the club sits evenly on the turf. If toe of club sticks up, you are too far away. If toe is down, you are too close. In Open Stance, left foot is drawn back from line of flight, and body is turned slightly toward left. Use when slice or fade is desired.

3-Closed Stance
Opposite from Open Stance. Draw right foot back from line of flight. Use when hook from right to left is required. Recommended for driving because of overspin imparted to ball when hit.

It's control that counts, in golf as in every sport — control which brings the balance, the comfort and the extra quality that sets one performer apart from the other, in the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better play.

This is one of a series designed to increase the pleasure of Canadians who participate in sports.

Ship Passenger Says Stewardess Was Heroine

NEW YORK (AP) — The luxury liner Gripsholm turned mercy ship Saturday and snatched from death 45 of 49 persons fleeing a freighter fire 65 miles off the eastern tip of Long Island.

The 5,000-ton freighter, the Black Gull, carried nine passengers, and a general cargo including volatile chemicals.

A Gripsholm lifeboat, churning through the tossing waters of the Atlantic before dawn, plucked 21 officers and crew members from the bow of the flaming freighter.

They were clustered together, ready to leap into the sea as the chemically-fed inferno roared relentlessly toward them.

Another 24 crew members and passengers had jammed into the Black Gull's last lifeboat and pulled away from the burning vessel.

The other lifeboat had been lost.

Four Men Lost

Coast Guard cutters and planes found no trace of them.

Forty-four of the 45 survivors were transferred from the Gripsholm to the Coast Guard cutter Mackinac and were brought to Staten Island here Saturday night. Eight went to hospital.

The 45th man, Third Officer Nils Varen, was burned so badly he was kept aboard the Sweden-bound Gripsholm for medical treatment.

Stewardess Lauded

One of the surviving passengers, Thomas Lesson, a Briton accompanied by his wife, said a blonde stewardess known only as Suzanne was the Black Gull's heroine.

She calmly went about the ship, arousing passengers and helping them into lifebelts and the one lifeboat, he said.

Lesson said persons in the lifeboat found the heat from the burning ship so intense they had to crawl into the water to keep cool.

The man who might be the leading contender but for a reluctance just short of absolute refusal is Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, a 52-year-old divorced man whose marital status might be against him even in spite of his great popularity. No divorced man has ever been president. All this uncertainty adds up to about the dullest convention on record.

Strangely enough the most activity about the convention hotel Sunday was a demonstration of placard carriers booming General Douglas MacArthur, who made the keynote address at the Republican convention.

About the only thing likely to spark the convention into life would be an announcement from the White House that Truman would himself be available or had made a straight endorsement of a candidate.

The Same Fight

The question of whether Truman would agree to run again in the event of a deadlocked convention was still being discussed. George Allen, a close friend of the president, said in a television broadcast he believes Truman would let the Democrats nominate him for another term if the party's convention should become a "real deadlock."

Democrats, like Republicans, have a fight over disputed delegations. Two delegations are here from Texas and Mississippi, each claiming to be the rightful representative of its state.

Thus far the anti-Truman delegations hold the upper hand but administration supporters, including Kefauver and Harriman, have served notice they intend to press for seating of pro-Truman delegations.

They plan to place before the convention two proposals for changing the rules so that the disputed delegates will not be permitted to vote on delegate contests; and that if seated, the delegates must pledge to support the national nominees. This is aimed at forestalling a southern walkout like the one in 1948.

The fight would have started today at the opening of the convention but the matter of adopting rules was laid over until Tuesday in hopes that the delay might cool off tempers.

In Anticipation

The identity of the next first lady of the U.S. is still uncertain. But whoever she may be, this is certain — the day after election she will get a present that will go to her head. It's a "victory hat" designed by Peggy Bronzell of San Francisco and it will be delivered to the new first lady-elect by messenger on Nov. 5, wherever she is in residence. The hat starts out with a platform of felt, swathed with pink illusion veiling. From there on, it runs the gamut of political trappings. A key to the White House decorates the back as well as a two-headed animal — a china elephant on one end and a donkey on the other. Miss Bronzell won't charge anything for this creation. —Central Press Canadian.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Any droopsnoop may grin at his own bidding sin if his partner will kid him along. But the fellow worth while is the guy who will smile when his partner is bidding them wrong.

Deal yourself in here:

♠ 8 6 3 2
♥ A Q J 10 8 4

WEST
♠ J 9 7
♥ 5 2
♦ J 10 8 7 2
♣ A 5 3

EAST
♠ Q 5
♥ K 9 7 6 3
♣ J 7 4 2

SOUTH
♠ A K 10 4
♥ None
♦ A K Q 6
♣ K Q 10 9 6

South opened with a bid of two clubs, demanding that partner help go to at least a game. With no sure trick, partner is asked to bid two no-trump first; with a sure trick, anything else.

The north ace is a sure trick. He should takeout to his heart suit. Should it be two or three or four hearts? Two hearts. No jump is necessary. A signal forcing to game already exists.

With slam information needed, every bidding round is precious. A jump to three or four hearts would merely close the gap too soon. Use a sensible guide you can follow with pride.

A rule for choice of suits is not a whim. Nor is it too hot to handle. If you do not change it with the looks of every hand, it can give partner some handy information.

So, when north bids two hearts, south says two spades. Having bid a lower rank first, he shows his clubs are longer. North then says three hearts to show his heart suit is at least rebiddable.

South now steps in with a bid of four diamonds. What has north learned by now? No suit is biddable with less than four cards. So, south has shown five clubs, four spades, four diamonds.

Therefore, south must be void in hearts. Which tells north not to persist in that suit. Instead, he will show his preference for one of the south suits; preferably the one he can best support.

Ignore rule for choice of suits and you have trouble with freak hands. Too often you are in the dark as to which suit is best.

The partners who fail to agree are frequently found up a tree.

Average wage of male farm help in Canada at May 15 was $4.90 a day with board.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Bright Victory"

"Bright Victory," the new Universal-International release which opened today at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre unfolds as one of the most tender and moving love stories to reach the screen in the past decade.

A timely and provocative theme, that of a blinded war veteran and his heroic fight to return to a normal life, "Bright Victory" is played against a background of quiet courage, hope and the love of a veteran for an understanding girl.

In the leading role, Arthur Kennedy, former Broadway star now winning new fame in Hollywood, portrayal of a man facing a life of darkness. Wounded in North Africa during the Tunisian campaign of World War II, he returns to society as an embittered man to find, in the end, the hope and courage to live a useful and enjoyable life.

Peggy Dow who played the romantic lead in U-I's "Harvey," unfolds as a full-fledged star in her own right playing the feminine lead opposite Kennedy in "Bright Victory."

Miss Dow plays the role of a U.S.O. hostess who falls in love with Kennedy, not through pity for his plight but through a sincere, heartfelt admiration. Her scenes with Kennedy are tenderly and understandingly played and offer some of the most arresting moments in this unusual film.

Other players in the picture who contribute outstanding performances are Julia Adams as Kennedy's childhood sweetheart who breaks up with him when he returns home a blinded and different man; Will Geer and Nana Bryant, as his parents; Russell Dennis, Richard Egan, John Hudson, Murray Hamilton and Don Miele.

Mark Robson's direction of "Bright Victory" is a masterful example of motion picture direction at its best.

"Bright Victory," adapted for the screen from the highly-successful novel "Lights Out" by Baynard Kendrick, was produced by Robert Buckner who also wrote the screenplay.

"Mark of the Renegade"

In 1830 a group of Mexican pirates informed of riches, lands near Los Angeles. Ostensibly one of them, Ricardo Montalban, is recognized by Gilbert Roland — a despot plotting to become emperor of California. Using the knowledge as a weapon, Roland forces Ricardo to woo the already engaged Cyd Charisse, daughter of Antonio Moreno. A romance between the two will disgrace Moreno, who is endeavoring to establish a republic of California; while the pirates' plundering will prove Mexico cannot protect California. The villainy is eventually exposed by Ricardo, secret Mexican agent, who eliminates Roland in a duel. In the face of Ricardo's heroism Cyd's fiance, Armando Silverre, can do little else but allow Cyd to follow her heart to him.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Some unfriendliness likely. Don't become confused. Suggest you hold some issues in abeyance till sure of things. Changing conditions may run through day, in personal affairs also April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Think twice before you speak or act, avoid unpleasant situations or words; restrain remarks, acts. Demonstrate your best qualities not your worst. Be diplomatic in all directions.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Faulty approach, even when not meant, can disrupt possible speedy progress. Be not too militant or commanding, no one likes it and many won't stand for it. Get somewhere by tact.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Don't go out on the limb in matters that could react unfavorably, upset best intentions. Well organized and worthwhile endeavor stressed especially for business matters.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Go by the rules. Observe humanity and help its best causes, be ready to offer services in your cheerful natural manner, it will help you, too. Build good will.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Some good aspects, some not so. But you natives of Virgo can do wonders with things when you try without worry. Co-operate with those around you, they will in turn help you.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—You are among some changes. Day lends itself to you who will be unemotional and have wideawake unbiased attitude. Publicity, real estate, manufacturing, engineering have their innings.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—May be little offered today. There is also little to fear, so use your fine mind and reap your just reward.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Not particularly suspicious unless you handle matters calmly with determined will to attain. Maintain even tempo; know your limitations and do your best.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Mostly uninteresting at first glance. You eager, alert ones will delve under the surface, get at the essence of things where others have missed.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Heart interests, family (and maybe social) affairs have upper hand much of day. Business, professional matters can be most gainful if properly handled.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—You will never know what you can do, if you don't try. Doers make mistakes, but they also are the only ones who progress. Don't be easily irritated.

YOU BORN TODAY have much varied talent and what it takes to follow through. But don't be too changeable; practise consistency. You can make a going concern out of a slow business. Could become fine lawyer, doctor, teacher. Birthday of: Anthony Ashley Cooper, Earl of Shaftesbury, Eng. statesman; Phillip Holmes, actor.

TRANS-NORTHERN PIPELINE, CARRYING REFINED PRODUCTS FROM MONTREAL REFINERIES OF "SHELL"-"B-A" AND "McCOLL FRONTENAC"
LINE VIA DON VALLEY FROM NORTH YORK TO TORONTO

Two underground pipelines, now weaving their way across southern Ontario from Sarnia to Toronto and Montreal, will carry a potential year-round supply of nearly 3,000,000 gallons of oil per day. First operations of their type ever attempted in Canada, both lines, identical in construction, are especially designed to carry the same capacity in various grades of gasoline, fuel oil, kerosene and other oil by-products without the necessity of separating plug to keep each batch from mixing. The system not only allows each batch to flow through the same line without mixing, but by maintaining a turbulent flow, each liquid leaves the pipes clean as it passes through. Engineers, during the past 15 years, developed what is known as the "cathodic treatment" to protect underground steel pipes. By treating them with electric current, the pipes never become pitted by corrosive action. Owned by Canadian, American companies, the project is scheduled for completion in the early fall. — Central Press Canadian.

TRADE PACT EXPECTED

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — A diplomatic source said yesterday Japan and Brazil will reach agreement soon on a $68,000,000 trade pact. Brazil will export cotton, rice, wool, castor oil and wood in return for ships, electrical power plant and railroad equipment, tin plate and copper products, machinery and parts for trucks, tractors and buses.

DISMISSAL UPHELD

KITCHENER (CP) — Dismissal of a millroom employee of the Dominion Rubber Co. Ltd tire factory here, has been upheld by an arbitration board in a report handed down yesterday. The worker allegedly threatend an assistant foreman with a knife. The company dismissed the man May 27. This precipitated a walkout by the rest of the more than 1,200 employees. They were out four days.

TALKS RESUMED

TOKYO (AP) — The Nippon Times reported today that secret talks between Japan and the republic of Korea were resumed on July 11, dealing with such questions as the nationality of Koreans in Japan and Japanese prewar property rights in Korea. Talks were suspended last April by disagreement.

72 Countries Are Represented at International Red Cross Conference

More than 750 delegates representing 100,000,000 members are expected to arrive in Toronto for conference of International Red Cross Society which will begin on July 26. The conference, expected to be the biggest ever held in the history of the organization, will see members of 72 governments facing each other in erstwhile peace though many of them represent powers fighting on the Korean and Malayan battlefields. Above, seen in Toronto, following their four-day air trip from Moscow via Stockholm and New York, are six members of Russian delegation, Nikoli Tshikalanko, left; Mrs. Elena Khokhol; Prof. Boris Pashkov; Mrs. Sofie Speranskaia; Nikolai Slavin, all of the Red Cross, and Dimitri Bellatzkij, government representative for the Byelo-Russia. — Central Press Canadian.

One of the first delegates from overseas to arrive for the 18th gathering of international organization, Dr. Teodoro C. Arvesu, of the Philippines, seen with his wife, may set the pattern for the hundreds who will be at the gathering. Disinclined to make any concrete statement of his country's policies — he is both government and national Red Cross representative — Dr. Arveru regards his role as a "waiting" one — waiting to see what the Russians will do. And that the Russians will do something, or at least have something to say, regarding Communist "germ warfare" charges against the U.N. and Communist refusal to permit a Red Cross investigation of these charges, is now apparent. — Central Press Canadian

Perseverance Pays Off

The mystery of this collie's vigil at the mouth of an abandoned mine shaft near Spring City, Mo., is in process of solution here as workmen begin pumping water from the 130-foot shaft. For the past 19 days the dog has sat and whined at the shaft mouth, refusing all inducements to lure him away. It is now believed that the dog's master may have fallen into the shaft. — Central Press Canadian.

Death In The Sierras

By Doris Hudson Moss

David Roberts turned to Rosemary Curtis and resumed his story. "You drove quite fast through the mountains after leaving the Springs and suddenly you saw a tree lying across the road. You didn't stop, but drove your car over the tree. I doubt though if you'd have been harmed, had you stopped. Is that right, Mrs. Brownley?"

As Mrs. Brownley hesitated, Professor Ordell stood and pointed at her. "There's your killer, Dave. I've been watching her—she's wearing a wig and she's not a woman, but a man!"

With that he snatched at the hair. The hat and wig came off as the officers seized the professor. Before us stood Officer Wallace, in woman's clothes. Makeup, including eyeshadow, rouge and lipstick along with the wig, had cleverly concealed his identity.

"Why, you were the officer that stopped me at Carquinez! No wonder you kept out of my way and pretended not to recognize me here!" I said hoarsely.

"You and Mr. James are the murderers!" muttered Rhumba.

I shuddered as I thought how Wallace had almost trapped me on the road with the fallen tree.

"You believed that you could frighten her into going back to San Francisco, was that it, Wallace?" asked David.

"Yes," said the officer in shame.

"You fooled us completely," admitted David.

"I'll say," muttered Duncan. "I was a sap not to have thought of it before I did. I remembered only this morning that you do female impersonations. I remembered your stunt at the Benefit last year and I got to thinking about you when I heard over the car radio that you were missing from your patrol route."

"I might as well make a clean breast of it," Wallace said thoroughly ashamed. "I thought that it would be easy to make up to look like the Curtis woman because I had seen her at State Headquarters in Sacramento. I heard the story of the letters and read about the buried treasure and I decided to have a fling at it and get back on my beat before I was missed. I'd been transferred from the Carquinez territory to this stretch. I was on that motorcycle while you and Marguard were on the cut-off of Blue Valley. But I know nothing about the murder. After I rode through Horseshoe Springs on my motorcycle, I went on for about five miles. Then I got off and wheeled the machine into the woods."

David and Duncan exchanged glances.

"Then I changed to these togs. I didn't bother to put on any make-up because it was so dark. I decided to put a tree across the road to stop Miss Curtis whom I thought was Elsie Martinson. I picked out a small tree and got the ax from my machine and was just ready to start chopping when I heard a horse running. I dodged back into the brush as horse and rider went by. A little beyond where I stood the rider turned the horse down the mountain toward Gold Lake."

"And they came in the gate pretty fast, too," said old Jed Downy who had been cupping his hands carefully over his bad ear in order to miss nothing. "Said he'd been chased by a bandit or something, I couldn't rightly hear."

"Who was riding that horse?" asked Mrs. James in a strained, frightened tone. "Do you hear me? Who was riding that horse?"

"It was . . ."

He was interrupted by the terrible report of a revolver which filled the cave with echoing repercussions of death.

The tall form of the Professor crumped swiftly and silently to the gravel and rock floor of the cave.

The murderer had taken his own life in preference to the trial which he knew would end in black death in the lethal chamber.

"Where did he get that gun?" asked Duncan.

"We slipped up there," David replied, as he and Duncan left the cave following the stretcher. "I'll bet he picked it up at the foot of that cliff where we found James and the dog. Thank goodness he didn't hurt anyone with it. He wouldn't have minded killing anybody, only he gambled that by assuming his charming and pedagogic manner he would fool us all. And he almost did."

Officer Marguard and Bob carried Mrs. Ordell to the Lodge. She was admirably calm and seemed almost relieved that the whole affair had ended as it did. She had lived in constant fear of her husband. Behind a charming exterior and within an able mind the Professor's cruel, self-centered, ruthless character was cleverly hidden. To his students in classrooms at the University he was a brilliant lecturer. To the world he was a charming member of the intelligentsia. But to his wife and to Bob, his brother, he was quite different.

James was Ordell's first cousin and Bob was the Professor's half brother. Mrs. Ordell tearfully confessed to me that he had beaten her.

"Then why on earth," I asked her tactlessly and almost furiously, "didn't you leave him or report him to the police."

"I was afraid of him," she wept. "Then, too, I loved him. I know that you can't understand that but when he was his charming self he was a kindly, intelligent, and delightful person."

David interrupted my talk with Mrs. Ordell, and took me gently by the arm and led me out onto the porch which overlooked the Lake. It was twilight, the kind that comes only at very high altitudes.

Around us the high Sierras were bathed in gold which turned to violet and deep rose on the lower slopes.

The officers had taken the bodies of Rodney James and Professor Ordell to Blue Valley, and with their leaving, peace returned to the high Sierras.

David Roberts and I strolled on the porch. "Tell me some other things I want to know, David," I said.

"Well, my dear, since you'd rather talk of crime than of love, here goes. Miss Martinson phoned James that she was arriving in the early evening. There was much secret conversation an. while I naturally wasn't in on it, I suspected a good deal because I already knew a part of the story.

"After dinner while it was still fairly light I saw Ordell go to the stable. But of course, I had no idea what he intended to do. He had secreted his rifle in the barn or in the woods. By highway the Springs are 12 miles from the lodge. By the trail which goes straight up from the bowl of the lake meadow, it's only one and a half miles. Ordell lay in wait for Miss Martinson after he had bought shells from Loomis for his rifle. As she rounded that sharp bend past the Springs Ordell ordered Miss Martinson to pull off to the side of the road and he shot her in cold blood. He tried to remove the bullet but was frightened off by a car coming on the road across the canyon. That was the patrol car of Duncan and Marguard. Ordell spurred his horse back to Horseshoe Springs, intending to silence old Jim about the rifle shells.

"It shows how irrationally Ordell's mind was working. He was both subtle and very obvious as are most criminals. When the professor saw you in the green coupe and when Jim's light shone on your hair, it must have given him a jolt. But he wasn't the type to be afraid of ghosts, so he decided to ignore you for the moment and take a shot at old Jim. Well, he missed and went into a panic. He rode wildly back to the lodge by the short trail, left his mud spattered, exhausted horse in the barn after unsaddling hurriedly, hid his rifle in the loft and ran to his tent.

"Meanwhile you had come into camp. Mrs. Ordell, believing that you were Elsie, was more than thankful to see you safe, but was in terror of what might happen. She begged Bob to phone the police, but James prevented him from doing it. James believed you to be Elsie as did all the rest. When you went to your tent that first night James placed the poisoned meat in your tent because he was sure that you were Elsie and had brought Susie along for protection.

"After breakfast the next morning the Ordells went to their tent. Ordell came back innocently enough and that misled me. I couldn't believe he stabbed her 20 minutes before we heard the scream."

"But," I interrupted. "How could Mrs. Ordell scream twenty minutes later?"

"She didn't. Officer Walalce came along in his ladies' outfit, saw James dash out of the tent and went in to see what the hurry was about. Wallace is a poor officer but he is not a criminal. It was he who hit Ordell over the head later, of course, thinking Ordell was the killer. And it was he who pitched his voice high and gave a good loud feminine scream. He knew it would bring us."

"And the powder on the baked ham?"

"James again. James and Ordell, as I said, were cousins and their family is cursed with the taint of insanity. An uncle is in the asylum at Stockton. James was the more dangerous of the two though neither was exactly tame."

"And you and I walked those trails in the dark with the professor," I shivered. "Why, you even left me to go on alone to the lodge with him!"

"No, I didn't leave you, dear. I only pretended to. He knew you weren't Elsie and I thought that if he was the killer he would want to sneak away in the dark to wreck your car or at least to hunt for the bullet. I walked along near you just behind those willows. He fell into my trap and went straight to the barn. As soon as you were safe at the lodge, I trailed him. But Bob had already dug out the shell.

"Then Ordell pulled a fast one. He tipped James off to follow us when we went after the treasure and to demand the money."

"Who was the ghost that Rhumba saw?"

"That was Wilmot. He smeared his face with powder and water to scare poor Rhumba. Just his idea of fun."

"And who ran along by the kitchen when I heard the shot and ran away from you?"

"Sam Burdick. Incidentally, Cam was decorated for bravery in the war. Loomis told me all about him so I knew that I was taking but a small chance. Jim says that Sam acts as a sort of doctor in these parts whether the patient is a cow with a broken leg or a man with indigestion. So I just played my ace card and it worked."

"But why did you stage that dramatic scene in the cave? Why didn't you merely arrest Ordell and Wallace?"

"It's always better, Rosemary to get a confession from a criminal. It saves the state time and money. Then, too, Ordell needed breaking down. I had caught Wallace only a short time before and Duncan and I had checked the time in which Ordell could have ridden back to camp from the Springs and we found that the whole story proved the professor guilty. And now, let's just forget the whole mess."

We sat by the fire a long time that night. We had much to plan, a lifetime ahead of us, and, when Susie could be up and about again, a honeymoon at Gold Lake Lodge.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a Satturday walk with pop and asking him diffrent questions sutch as which would be the safest, to sink a little ferther in a leeky subnareen or fall all the ways in an airoplane, and whether munkies feel like peeple and we started to go past the big house with the iron railings around it, and said, Oh boy, talk about having it soft

Meening some kid on the lawn practicing throwing baskit ball goals into a real baskit ball thing on a pole, and I said, Jimminies, imagine having your own private baskit ball game. You could elect yourself the captin of the teem even if you were the smallest guy on it, and nobody could argue you out of it, I said.

Oh for the life of a dictater, pop said, and I said, Gosh, if he's got that mutch on the outside of his house, imagine what he must have on the inside. I bet he's got a whole jiminazium with flying rings and paralell bars and Indian clubs and medecine balls and everything, I said.

It's a good sized house he's got there, that's a fact, pop said, and I said, Oh boy, I bet the hallways are so wide he can skate rite inside the house, and maybe even ride his bike.

Still, I don't know that I envy him, pop said. Just as there are compensations for things you haven't got, there are drawbacks to your surplus possessions. Now for instance there must be at least 8 or 10 bathrooms in a house as big as that, and they cant possibly ever be all bizzy at the same time, so a boy caught in a trap like that would have to be a pritty fast thinker to get out of taking a bath, he said.

Making me feel partly luckier.

Not Competent to Deal With Anglo-Iranian Oil Dispute Says International Court

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands (CP)—The International Court ruled today that it is not competent to deal with the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute.

The vote was 9 to 5.

Britain contended the court had power to settle the dispute between the British-controlled Anglo-Iranian Oil Company and the Iranian government which had nationalized the company's $1,000,000,000 Iranian holdings.

Premier Mohammed Mossadegh who pushed through the nationalization-law personally appeared before the court to argue that it had no competence to judge the dispute.

Nationalization of the oil industry he contended, was entirely an internal matter.

He was the second winner of the heavy day of track and field. Mal Whitfield of Columbus, Ohio successfully defended his 800-metre championship, tying his own record.

Consolini, the defending champion in the discus event, was second with 176 feet 5.37 inches.

Jim Dillon of Upper Sandusky, Ohio, finished third and also beat the former Olympic mark with a throw of 174 feet, 9.69 inches. Fortune Gordien of Minneapolis, the world record holder, was fourth with 172 feet 9.27 inches.

DIES FROM BURNS

MONTREAL (CP) — Alfred Peters, secretary to the manager of Jasper Lodge at Jasper, Alta., died early today in hospital in Edmonton from burns suffered last week when fire destroyed the lodge, Canadian National Railways officials said.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Most of Ontario will be in warm but relatively dry air today, but the low humidities will be short-lived for all southern and central regions. A storm centre developing South Dakota is moving northeastward and will be centred in the northern White River region on Wednesday morning. As a result, hot humid conditions will again prevail over much of the province. The source region of this hot air is the mid-western states where temperatures on Monday rose to well over 100 degrees. Huron, South Dakota reported 103, while Yuma, Arizona and Las Vegas, Nevada, both reported 108. However, in Ontario temperatures everywhere are expected to remain below the 100 degree mark.

MORE WORKMEN NOW ENTITLED TO COMPENSATION

Minimum Lowered To One Employee

TORONTO (CP)—Several thousand Ontario workmen, never before entitled to compensation and medical aid for accidents suffered at work, will gain protection under new regulations announced today by the workmen's compensation board.

E.E. Sparrow, chairman of the board, said firms employing one or more full or part-time workers may obtain immediate coverage for their employees. Previously in certain industries a firm had to employ a minimum number, four or six, before its workers could obtain benefits of the province's compensation plan.

Such protection must be obtained by employers by Jan. 1, 1953, Mr. Sparrow said.

Types of Work Covered

Among types of work covered by the new regulations are blacksmithing; butchering; a variety of bush operations; prospecting and development work; building maintenance; picture framing; laundry or dry cleaning shops; restaurants; upholstering; window cleaning; the operation of taxis, buses and for-hire farm equipment; and the manufacture of stationery items and cheese.

Mr. Sparrow urged employers to get coverage for their employees quickly and thereby protect themselves against liability for on-the-job accidents suffered by their workmen.

Australian Girl Wins 100 Metres Ties World Mark

By JACK SULLIVAN

OLYMPIC STADIUM, Helsinki (CP)—Marjorie Jackson, 21-year-old Australian girl, won the women's 100-metre Olympic sprint today, electrifying a crowd of 5,000 already rocked by a day of sensational performances.

Miss Jackson's time of 11.5 seconds tied the accepted world and Olympic records.

Sim Iness of Southern California won the discus throw with a record-breaking heave and Mal Whitfield, the brilliant American runner, tied his own Olympic record in winning the 800-metre run.

Miss Jackson led four other girls of the British Commonwealth to the first four places in the women's blue-ribbon sprint event. Daphne Hasenjager of South Africa was second, Shirley Strickland de la Hunty of Australia third and Winsome Cripps of Australia fourth.

Bob Richards, La Verne, Calif., parson, won the pole vault championship when he cleared the bar at 4.5 metres (14 feet, 11.14 inches) after Don Laz of Illinois failed at the same record height. Laz took second place.

Verbal War Between States Marks Democrat Convention; Stevenson Draft Seems Sure

By CLYDE R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO (CP)—The verbal war between the states kept delegates to the national Democratic convention in session until after two o'clock this morning.

They were no nearer selecting a candidate for the presidency than before the convention opened, but it seemed certain they would succeed in drafting Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois to be their standard bearer.

Meanwhile, in spite of the hopes and efforts of those who wanted to keep the party from airing party differences, the old question of states rights boiled over to submerge and put into the background the oratory and eloquence of the keynoter and others.

Moody Starts Debate

The late debate was precipitated by Senator Blair Moody of Michigan, the young Washington newspaper correspondent picked by Governor Mennen Williams of Michigan to complete the senatorial term of the late Senator Arthur Vandenberg. Moody is up for re-election in November.

Moody, apparently trying to head off a revolt such as split the party in 1948, presented a motion which would bind all delegates to get behind whatever candidates for President and vice-President the convention agreed upon.

His motion was finally adopted without a roll call at 2:06 a.m.CDT in an atmosphere which the chairman, Governor Paul A. Dever of Massachussetts, said was so confused few knew what was happening.

Veep Bows Out

Meanwhile a popular candidate had removed himself from the running. Vice-President Alben Barkley, apparently smarting under lack of support from President Truman who earlier said "the "Veep" at 74 was too old, bowed out.

Barkley said publicly that his withdrawal was due to labor opposition to his candidacy. Also was on the grounds of age.

Barkley's withdrawal statement reflected anger against "self-annointed political labor leaders" who had termed him too old.

Barkley, as a "favorite son" candidate, had Kentucky's 26 first-ballot votes. Mrs. Susan Pollard, committeewoman from Lawrenceburg, Ky., said "there is a strong possibility we will vote for Stevenson on the first ballot."

States Rights Issue

Today the convention resumes for routine oratory which may be interrupted at any time by the argument within the party on states rights and the seating of delegations from Texas and Mississippi with differing views on that subject.

The Democrats nominated and elected Harry Truman in 1948 with a positive plank giving the federal power authority to protect the rights of the Negro minority, but nothing was ever done about it and nothing can be done about it until or unless congressional rules are changed.

Congress filibustered every effort to enact a federal fair employment practices law and can continue to do so unless rules are changed.

But the party feels it must get the important Negro vote to elect a president, and there is little ground for compromise between the northern demand for a federal law and the southern argument that it is a matter for the states alone.

Govt. Takes Hand in Railway, Unions Wage Negotiations

MONTREAL (CP)—The federal government took a hand today in resumed negotiations between Canadian railways and the 17 unions representing 125,000 non-operating workers.

The meeting was under the chairmanship of Arthur MacNamara, deputy Minister of Labor, assisted by M. M. Maclean, chief conciliation officer for the Department of Labor.

Mr. MacNamara and Mr. Maclean were appointed July 14 when the railways and the unions asked for a conciliator when their negotiations for a new agreement to start Sept. 1 reached a stalemate.

The unions, made up of workers not engaged in the actual running of trains, are asking for a wage increase of 45 cents an hour and an automatic cost-of-living bonus that would give workers an extra one cent an hour for every one-per-cent increase in the official cost-of-living index.

They are also seeking a union shop and compulsory check-off of union dues.

Claim Cost High

The railways maintain a 45-cent increase would be equivalent to a 35-per-cent pay raise, and the two principal companies, Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Pacific Railway, say it would cost them from $150,000,000 to $167,000,000 a year.

The existing agreement, due to expire Aug. 31, gave the unions a seven-cents-an-hour increase and cut the work week to 40 hours. It resulted from an arbitration award in 1950 by Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock of the Supreme Court of Canada following the ending of a nine-day railway strike by special legislation of Parliament.

Flying Saucers Spotted on Radar Same Objects Seen by Airline Pilot

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States Air Force today investigated reports that several "flying saucers" had been spotted by radar virtually in its own back yard on the outskirts of the country's capital.

Not only were unidentified objects seen on radar—indicating actual substance instead of mere light—but two airline pilots and a reporter saw eerie lights fitting the general description of flying saucers the same night.

Officials could not immediately agree on whether this was the first time radar has picked up flying saucers. All agreed it was unusual.

The objects also were different from the average reported saucer in that they travelled at a relatively slow speed, as well as later disclosing the customary burst that far outspeeds normal planes.

One thing was certain: A thorough investigation is being made by the air technical intelligence centre, Wright-Patterson air force base, Dayton, Ohio, which has been set up to look into flying-saucer reports.

The saucers over the capital were reported late Monday, about 36 hours after the incident actually occurred.

This is the story as pieced together from air force reports, persons involved, and other sources:

An operator at Washington National Airport spotted eight unidentified images on one of his radars. The images were going probably 100 to 130 miles an hour. That was around midnight.

Capt. S. C. Pierman of Detroit, piloting Capital Airlines flight 807, soon reported seeing seven objects between Washington and Martinsburg, W.Va. He said they changed pace, sometimes moving at tremendous speed, at other times hanging almost motionless.

Another airliner, Capital-National Airlines flight 610, also reported seeing a light following it from Herndon, Va., to within four miles of Washington.

Saul Pett, an Associated Press reporter, said he saw a "flying saucer" that same night near River Edge, N.J., outside of New York. It was orange-colored, round, moved swiftly and soundlessly, and he did not think it could have been a plane, balloon, or meteor.

Pope Deplores Luxury Spending

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (Reuters)—The Pope today urged a new deal for the poor, advocating a "fair share of responsibility" for workers in running national economies and ownership of property

He deplored the "intolerable growth of luxury spending, of superfluous and unreasonable expenditure which violently contrasts with the poverty of a great number of people."

His pronouncements, made in a letter to a Roman Catholic conference on social problems which opened today in Dijon, France, were released at his summer home here.

In appealing for a more just distribution of the world's wealth he outlined the teachings of the Roman Catholic Church and commended the Dijon Congress for choosing as its theme "wealth and poverty."

The Pope admitted the necessity for governmental powers to coordinate economic policy but insisted that they do so "without substituting their oppressive omnipotense for the legitimate autonomy of private initiative."

BARKLEY LOSES LABOR SUPPORT, OUT OF RUNNING

Said 'Too Old for Job' Blames Union Leaders

CHICAGO (AP)—Labor union leaders helped 74-year-old Vice-President Alben Barkley out of the running for the Democratic presidential nomination, but they weren't too proud about it today.

Barkley, the reliable party wheelhorse acclaimed by union leaders as a friend of organized labor, nevertheless lost the support of many of them for the top job at the party's convention.

It can be said that the union leaders were genuinely sorry to see Barkley lose a promising chance for the nomination. Yet, a number of top union leaders had virtually kicked Barkley out of the running. They said he was too old for the task. They were afraid, they said, that the "Veep" might team with party conservatives to give anti-"fair deal" forces control of the party.

Barkley, in his dramatic statement pulling himself out of contention for the nomination, blamed his troubles on "certain self-appointed political labor leaders."

But there were other reasons why Barkley pulled out.

It was reliably reported that Barkley felt he had been led to believe he was President Truman's choice for the nomination. He felt Truman's support was going elsewhere—to Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois—and so Barkley decided to bow out.

The union frown on Barkley came from C.I.O.-member delegates to the convention and from George Harrison, an A.F.L. vice-president friendly to Truman.

Hold Man In Stabbing Affray

DELHI (CP)—Stenn Pakulsky of Toronto today was arrested in connection with the stabbing of Bud Barber, 33-year-old Simcoe district resident.

Barber was stabbed in the back with what he believed was an ice-pick after he picked up a hitch-hiker while driving near here. Barely conscious and bleeding badly, Barber staggered to a farm home five miles southeast of Delhi and was taken to hospital. He is reported in fair condition today.

The hitch-hiker drove away in the car, later found abandoned on a country road.

Police said that Pakulsky had admitted fighting with Barber.

Barber suffered a deep wound in the back and another along the cheek. Police found a large carving knife on the floor of his car, along with a bundle of personal belongings.

Soon after Barber was admitted to hospital, John Strauss, who lives two miles east of here, told police a car had been abandoned in the road near his home. It proved to be Barber's.

Charge Laborer With Murder

OTTAWA (CP)—Albert Lafrance, 47-year-old laborer charged with the murder of Azel Bigras July 4, appeared in city magistrate's court today and was remanded to Aug. 7.

He was arrested after Bigras' body was found in the Ottawa River within sight of the Parliament buildings. Police said the men held a drinking party on the river bank where they had been fishing.

B.C. Farmer Drags Mine 15 Miles Blast Leaves 20-Foot Crater

VICTORIA (CP)—The Second World War ended seven years ago, but the Royal Canadian Navy is still battling Japanese mines which drift on the British Columbia coast.

These old mines are still dangerous, having no automatic devices to render them harmless after a time despite the fact that the Geneva Convention demands this safety measure. Age often makes the explosives more sensitive.

Forty mines have been reported and investigated on this coast since 1944. In all cases where actual mines were found—more than 30—the mines have been defused or exploded.

Occasionally a citizen does not realize he needs protection. In 946 a Queen Charlotte Island farmer found a mine high and dry on the beach. He dragged it 15 miles on a stoneboat to his farm and was on the point of sawing it in two to make drinking troughs for his cattle when a provincial policeman chanced by.

A navy disposal team exploded the mine, leaving a 20-foot crater in the barnyard.

Two Young Men Killed When Car Struck by Train

Accident Occurs at Locust Hill Crossing Near Markham

MARKHAM (CP)—Cecil W. Watt 18, of Toronto, and Graham Carberry, 21, of Markham, were killed early today when their car was struck by a train a few hours after they started out on a holiday fishing trip.

The accident occurred at Locust Hill crossing near this community, about 15 miles northeast of Toronto.

Long skid marks on the highway indicated a desperate attempt to stop the car after the Toronto to Ottawa train was sighted. Holidy clothing and fishing gear was strewn along the track. Their late model car was dragged 120 feet by the train.

Border Patrol Seizes 8 Aliens 6 Are Canadians

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—The United States border patrol today seized eight aliens from Canada. Six were Canadians, one a German and one a native of The Netherlands, authorities said.

U.S. Immigration and Naturalization service officers said the names of the men would be disclosed later this week when Arthur J. Karnuth, district director of the service, returns to this city.

It was reported one of them swam the Niagara River from Ontario to Lewiston, N.Y. The others, officials said, entered the U.S. illegally via Niagara River bridges.

Two were captured near Batavia, the other six were taken into custody along the Niagara frontier.

Chief of investigations Richard Haberstroh said that deportation proceedings were under way against all eight men.

Power Question Poses Problem

WINNIPEG (CP)—The controversial power question comes up for discussion today when the Manitoba Legislature convenes for a special session which is expected to last into next week.

The main business will concern a power shortage in greater Winnipeg predicted five years ago by a commission headed by Dr. T.H. Hogg, Toronto consulting engineer and former chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

A government move to prevent the predicted shortage by taking over control of the province's power industry and assuming responsibility for its power needs was discarded by Winnipeg residents April 16.

Admiral Sees Hope for Truce

HONG KONG, (Reuters)—Admiral William M. Fechteler, chief of United States naval operations, said today he is hopeful of a Korean truce soon.

"I think the Communists want it," he said. "Their stalling is typical of their tactics of trying to get a better bargain. The truce will come when they find out we are not going to back down."

The admiral is touring the Far East.

Eleven Reported Dead in 'Quake

TEHACHAPI, Calif. (AP)—With 11 persons dead and more than 25 injured, Southern California today began counting the cost of the second-strongest earthquake in the state's recorded history.

Focal point of the death and ruin was this farming community of 2,000 on the edge of the Mojave Desert, which caught the full fury ofthe bucking, rumbling upheaval that struck before dawn Monday.

But here, as in other stricken areas, officials said it was too early to put a dollar sign on the damage, which appears certain to mount into the millions.

Millions in Damage

Ten persons, nine of them children, died in this town as the walls came tumbling down. The 11th was crushed in the collapse of a guest-house roof at a nearby ranch. Twenty-five persons required hospital treatment.

The quake was felt from San Francisco to the Mexican border.

Every large business building here was damaged. The main street was deep in rubble. The Red Cross reported 31 business houses suffered major damage, with 25 per cent a total loss.

Fifteen homes were destroyed, 53 severely damaged and nearly 100 incurred minor damage.

Mass of Wreckage

At the nearby women's state prison, 417 inmates spent the night in tents after officials declared the six major buildings unsafe.

At Arvin, a community of 8,000 18 miles west, damage in the business section was almost as severe. The city's main street was a mass of wreckage. Fronts were knocked out of almost all buildings. Water, power and gas services were temporarily cut off.

Roads leading in the Tehachapi area were buckled and blocked by landslides, but by nightfall all but one main highway had been cleared.

Cave-ins blocked four Southern Pacific Railroad tunnels.

In scores of other communities from the coast to the Nevada border, windows cracked, chandeliers fell, cornices toppled and high-tension lines parted.

Without Power

In Los Angeles many areas were without power during the morning.

There was a fire in a refinery at Bakersfield and an explosion in a refinery at Long Beach.

Dr. Beno Gutenberg, director of the seismological laboratory at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena, said after-shocks of the quake will continue for two or three years.

He said only the disastrous San Francisco earthquake of 1906 exceeded Monday's in power.

Cheese Factory Destroyed by Fire

CENTREVILLE (CP)—Fire of undetermined origin last night destroyed the century-old Centreville dairy and cheese factory. Loss was estimated at $25,000.

The blaze is believed to have started in the cheese box storage room and was out of control before fire fighting equipment from nearby Newburgh and Enterprise could answer the call. No one was injured.

Centreville is 30 miles northwest of Kingston.

RECORD TEMPERATURE AT PLAYGROUNDS

An all-time temperature high was registered at the C.N.R. playgrounds at 10 o'clock this morning, when a thermometer rose to 110 degrees.

The thermometer was located in a window of a building.

Phone Booth Hot Place On Warm Day

It doesn't pay to carry on long telephone conversations this time of year providing the phoning is done from a public phone booth.

At 10:14 this morning, the thermometer registered 86 degrees on entrance to a booth. In three minutes it climbed to 88 degrees. Two minutes later the mercury was up another 2 degrees to 90. From then on the temperature climbed in leaps and bounds. Six minutes after entrance the mercury had touched the 96 degree mark, a jump of 10 degrees.

By 10:23 the thermometer had literally jumped to 106 degrees and 16 minutes after entrance a high of 120 degrees was showing. How high after that reading the mercury would have climbed remains unknown, because the thermometer was not calibrated any higher and because it got a little too warm in the booth for comfort.

Nature Stages Colorful Show

Nature put on a show last night for anyone who cared to look over the bay around midnight

A heavy belt of clouds sat far down on the southern horizon. Behind them, intermittent flashes of lightning would light up the whole southern sky to give one the impression a great war was going on behind the clouds. The occasional roll of thunder added to the effect. Meteorites flashed across the sky every few minutes.

Robert Brown, veteran of the European campaign stood and watched the show for a few minutes. "If there was more noise" he said, "I'd swear I was overseas again."

'That's My Pop' Says Son Archie

"Yuh can't do that to me, son" ran through the mind of Walter Thornton, Trent Road when his son Archie brought home a thirteen-pound, thirty-two inch muskie the other day. Archie and his brother Orville who were visiting their parents, caught the fish in the Moira River.

And Mr. Thornton meant what he thought.

The next day or so he took along son Archie on a Moira river fishing jaunt and just to show the lad the "old man" was as good as ever, Mr. Thornton hauled in a 28-pound beauty which measured 48 inches in length.

No, no big one got away. They landed it!

Trenton Briefs

TRENTON. (Special) — Trying to avoid striking an oncoming motorist Charles Jackson of 81 South Street, Port Hope, took to the ditch at the roundhouse corner in south Trenton on Saturday striking a telephone pole and cutting it off close to the ground. Passengers in the car, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Welsh and Mrs. Jackson and the driver were not hurt.

The pleasure cruiser, "Easy Going," out of Toronto found the going a little rugged entering Trenton harbor Sunday night. The craft struck a sunken log damaging the propeller which disabled the boat.

Yesterday workmen utilizing a wrecker's crane from the dock hoisted the hull up out of the water so that repairs could be made to the twisted wheel.

Owner of the boat, Larry Jones of Toronto helped the repairmen. The boat is registered with the National Yacht Club at the Queen City.

The Trenton Country Club's mascot "Duffy" is dead. He was a black and white Persian cat that became the favorite pet of many members and visitors. Poison is blamed for his untimely demise.

Jack Zigman, sponsor of the Zigman Boxing Club, has been granted a permit for building a training headquarters on Division Street at the Front Street junction.

The gym, with facilities to handle the club's large membership, will cost in the neighborhood of $5,000.

Construction is expected to commence at once.

Dick Bailey of Brantford displayed a fine catch of pickerel and bass to a downtown merchant yesterday. He had spent the morning fishing in the Trent River below No. 1 dam with his brother-in-law, Vic Ryan.

SUFFERS CRUSHED HAND

Ted Holsey suffered a crushed right hand when he attempted to stop a racing hull striking the dock at the waterfront on Sunday.

He caught his hand between the boat and the dock. A painter, he will be off work for some weeks.

Talk on Repair Of Polio Damage Given Rotary Club

There were no canes or crutches leaning against the wall of the dining room nor any wheel chairs parked on the verandah of the Hotel Quinte yesterday; but, an outstanding bone surgeon told Rotary members at the meeting, 'All but ten of you men here have had polio.'

Dr. James Melvin, head of the orthopedic surgery clinic at Belleville General Hospital explained, "When I say you have had polio I do not necessarily mean the real "ocean going type," there are milder forms. Many people have had the disease and have never been aware of their condition."

Makes Monthly Visits

The surgeon visits the city once a month for the clinics which are held in co-operation with the Rotary Club in connection with crippled children's work. He is clinical tutor in orthopedics at Queen's University and also is in private practice.

"Orthopedic treatment works from an entirely different angle than other treatments," the doctor continued, "In the case of a child attacked by polio, the main issue is to keep the child alive until the disease has run its course, then pick up the pieces."

"For two years the diseased muscles must heal and we can do nothing to interfere with this healing process.If we were to go into these muscles with a knife, we might seriously hinder the healing process."

The doctor stressed polio is not cured in one month adding, "you might as well get used to the idea this clinic you have here is a going to be a long term deal. In many cases it will be necessary to see these people two to three times a year for the next 15 years of their lives."

Describes Method

Doctor Melvin explained one of the methods of correcting the short leg. "In many cases of polio, if one leg is affected, the leg will cease to develop. In the case of a growing child, this can be treated successfully. Naturally the other leg will continue its growth so what we do is figure how much the child's good leg will grow and then we stop growth of the limb at a certain point; thus balancing the growth of the legs."

Guests at the meeting yesterday were Leon G. Yeuell and John O. Jesse, both of Springfield, Ohio; W. P. Dickie of Valleyfield, Quebec; Charles Allen, Peterborough; Rev. Ralph Middleton, Bayside; Rev. James Semple, North Bay; H. Lathan, Oshawa; Lloyd Weese, Trenton; Dick Donagohy, Kent, Ohio, and Dr. Bruce Cronk of this city.

Dr. Melvin was introduced by Dr. George Stobie and thanked by Dr. James Loynes. A memento of appreciation was presented the speaker by the club president.

COME, COME, OLD CHAP

LONDON (CP)—John Yarwood, northern secretary of the General and Municipal Workers' Union, says the workers of Britain spend too much money and time on sport. In a report, he says a fraction of the mass interest lavished on football and the like could quickly extricate Britain from her troubles.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Stock market prices made little headway today in slow early afternoon dealings.

Base metal leaders were firm but lower-priced issues dipped. Hudson Bay, International Nickel, and United Keno Hill added fractions while Golden Manitou, Mindamar and United Asbestos slipped.

Science Advances Another Step Belgian Invents Beer Tablets

By ALFRED CHEVAL

Brussels (AP)—A young Belgian biochemist claims he has found a way to reduce any beer to tablet form.

The beer tablets, Robert Mouton says, can be turned back into a true foaming brew simply by adding water, alcohol and carbon dioxide.

He sees the future for his tablets in the opening of a world-wide beer market. Beer would be concentrated into tablets wherever raw material and manufacturing is the most economical. The concentrate then could be exported anywhere.

Can Store For Years

Mouton says "There'll be no water to transport, no bottles, just an easy to handle concentrate, cheap to pack, and transport. It could be stored for years even under tropical climate."

He claims a beer drinker would find it difficult to tell whether his beer comes from a tablet or straight out of a barrel or bottle.

Mouton says the process was demonstrated before the United States quartermaster - general representative in Washington, who said "it yields a beverage which very closely resembles the regular type of American beer."

Mouton says he has applied for patents for his process in which the beer's gas, alcohol and water are extracted through combined vacuum and deep freezing. What is left is a powder which can be pressed into any shape and size for transportation and easy storage.

Population Up Half Million All Provinces Show Gains in '52

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's population increased an estimated 421,000 in the year ended June 1, bringing the total to 14,430,000.

If the rate of increase could be maintained—indications are that it won't be — Canada's population would hit the 15,000,000-mark by late 1953.

The estimate of the increase in population was made yesterday by the Bureau of Statistics. It took the population total of 14,009,426 recorded June 1, 1951, in the decennial census. It added births and immigration and subtracted deaths and an estimate of emigration.

The increase of 421,000 compared with a gain of 297,000 in the previous 12 months, of 265,000 between June 1, 1949, and June 1, 1950, and of 279,000 between June 1, 1948 and 1949. The 1949 figure did not include the 345,000 population gained by Newfoundland's entry into confederation.

The bureau said the increase this year was due to a high level of births and to the arrival of 216,000 immigrants between June 1, 1951, and the corresponding date this year.

All Provinces Gain

All provinces shared in the population increase. Largest increase was 168,000 for Ontario followed by 118,000 for Quebec, 33,000 for British Columbia, 31,000 for Alberta 22,000 for Manitoba, 13,000 for Newfoundland and 111 for Saskatchewan.

Nova Scotia and New Brunswick each gained 10,000 and Prince Edward Island 5,000.

A decrease in the number of immigrants this year is expected to slow the rate of increase. Immigration Minister Harris has said that immigration will be limited to employment opportunities.

Verna Flagler, of Belleville, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Jones, is holidaying for a time in Thomasburg and vicinity.

Request Probe Of Cancellation Ford Contract

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Trade Minister Howe was requested yesterday to institute a "public meeting" to inquire into the cancellation last Thursday of a Ford of Canada contract for the manufacture of wings for jet aircraft.

Jack Taylor, president of Local 200, United Auto Workers (C.I.O.-C.C.L.), made the request by telegram in connection with the cancellation by Canadair Limited, Montreal, of a contract awarded last December to the Ford company. The contract called for the production of wings for 576 T-33A Shooting Star trainer aircraft.

Mr. Taylor said a Canadair statement of the recognition of "certain difficulties and obstacles that could effect a satisfactory performance of the contract" constituted a "smearing inference" against the United Auto Workers.

Cleveland, and on one occasion he sent an airliner to look for something that appeared on a radar screen.

George Beers, senior operator on the midnight shift of the control tower at Cleveland Hopkins airport, said "one night six of us watched from the darkened tower room while a light hovered north of the field. We don't know what it was but all six of us saw it.

"Another time I personally saw a light making a circular pattern over or nearby Elyria. I picked it up on the radar screen and watched it.

"I sent an incoming airliner over to take a look and the thing disappeared from the screen."

On another occasion a tower operator and an incoming pilot both reported seeing a "light" that "climbed and travelled in an easterly direction much faster than the normal operational speed of any aircraft known to be in this vicinity," said Beers.

No Quorum At Meeting Of City Fathers

It was "no action" at the city hall this morning at a special meeting of city council called to deal with an application from the Bay of Quinte High School District board regarding the proposed new high school. Councillors failed to turn up in sufficient numbers for a quorum and the meeting was postponed until a later date.

The application from the high school board was one received some weeks ago by council asking for approval for issuing of debentures for the construction of the new school.

Forests Worth $2,500 an Acre Says Forester

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada adds $100 to her income every time a cord of pulpwood is converted into a ton of pulp and paper, James A. Vance, president of the Canadian Forestry Association, said in a statement released today.

"Until we place a high tangible value on the living forest as the chief paymaster of the nation, we cannot properly gauge the enormity of the forest fire scourge," Mr. Vance said in a fire prevention message.

An average woodland acre was worth $2,500 to Canada through conversion of its wood into newsprint and pulp. The annual loss of 438,000 acres by fire was a "chain of tragedies."

Maj. George Baldwin Named 'Town Major' for a Week

HANNOVER, Germany (CP)—Hannover has a Canadian "Town Major."

The office of Town Major, known to Canadian troops in cities and towns they occupied during the war, has been re-established in Hannover by the 27th brigade. The Town Major's job is to control after-duty discipline in co-operation with the army and civil police.

Following re-establishment of the office, Maj. George Baldwin, M.B.E., of Belleville, Ont., a company commander with the 1st Canadian infantry battalion, became Hannover's first town major.

Each week a new town major is appointed from the duty battalion. In addition to close liaison with Canadian military police he orders Provost Corps assistance when there is trouble involving Canadians in town.

German police authorities termed the town-major system as "another good example of your desire to keep good Canadian-German relations."

Rhee Says Chinese Want Compromise

SEOUL, Korea. (CP)—President Syngman Rhee said Monday night the Chinese Communists are tired of having their men killed and want to compromise for a Korean truce, but the North Koreans "appear unwilling.

Rhee said in an interview he understands there is "more evidence now of a split as the Chinese appear ready to yield on points of the prisoner-exchange question.'"

"This is opposed by the North Korean Communists, as I understand," Rhee told Irving R. Levine of the National Broadcasting Company.

Merchants Supply Coats for Clerks

NAPLES, Italy (AP)—Enterprising sidewalk merchants with supplies of coats are cashing in on the current heat wave.

State and municipal officials, upset by the number of employees arriving at work in their shirt-sleeves, have decreed that men without coats will be barred from their offices.

But the sidewalk merchants came to the rescue, establishing themselves outside principal buildings with a stock of jackets of various sizes.

Now employees still can travel to work in shirt-sleeved comfort, rent jackets outside the office and step in, properly attired.

Easier Marketing Light Crop Says Kennedy

TORONTO (CP) — Agriculture Minister Kennedy said Saturday that this year's lighter cherry crop has eased the marketing situation for Ontario growers.

Mr. Kennedy said following a meeting of growers with the Ontario Cherry Marketing Board that it appeared the market could absorb this year's crop, estimated at only 52 per cent of last year's bumper harvest.

Earlier growers had feared canners would hold off buying the present crop because part of the 1951 crop still remained unsold. The government turned down a proposal for financial assistance to meet the cost of freezing the unsold portion of the 1952 crop.

The 1952 crop is selling at seven cents a pound compared to 9¾ cents last year.

PEACE HOPES FADE IN MIDDLE EAST

Hopes for an early settlement of the Iranian oil dispute were dashed yesterday with the resignation of Premier Ahmed Qavam, a Rightist who earlier expressed sympathetic views toward the British in their attempt to regain control over their oil and refinery holdings in oil-rich Iran.

The West had reason to relax following the recent appointment of Premier Qavam because it was he, serving as premier in the wake of World War II, who successfully kept his country intact despite perilous disputes with Russia. The West regards Qavam as their friend and one who would be capable of bringing accord between Iran and the oil interests.

Perhaps the equatorial temperatures are to blame, but Iran breeds a hot type of Nationalist who demands that Iran be free of outside domination. No doubt the Russians, whose sinister propaganda can be patterned to appeal to these Nationalists, are the real planters of the seeds of discontent and hate which they expect to harvest when the tension erupts.

Meanwhile there can be no peace in the Middle East and during the current precarious truce — if it may be termed a truce — the flames of hatred could be fanned to ignite a fuse which would reasonably plunge the world into war. With a world dependent on oil, neither side is likely to volunteer an advantage in Iran. Former Premier Qavam is the man who might have brought about understanding but now, with his resignation, he is no longer a factor in organizing settlement.

THERE ARE BIG ONES HERE AT HOME

Proving that there are just as many big fish in the water as have ever been pulled out, a 19-year-old fisherman, fishing from the retaining wall on the west bank of the Moira river Sunday evening, hooked a six-and-one-half pound black bass. Another got away, tackle and all.

For a similar catch, many fishing enthusiasts would willingly have driven many miles and braved mosquito attacks and hardships which could culminate with a domestic disturbance at home.

So, fishermen, if you want to catch a black bass, cast your line in the Moira river.

THE DOLLAR AND THE GOLD STANDARD

The Wall Street Journal wants either the Democrats or the Republicans or both to come out unequivocally in favor of making the United States dollar convertible into gold.

Commenting on this matter, the newspaper said, in part, that it favors "an immediate return to the kind of money which the United States had through most of its history and which was thrust aside in 1934. Both (Republicans and Democrats) say they are for sound money but will either say what it is talking about?"

The newspaper adds: "No Congress since 1934 has had the will to insure the country against the fatal end results of a rotting currency. The party in power has chosen to maintain its inconvertible paper currency and its means of manufacturing more of the same, this for the sake of its freedom to spend the public funds. The opposition has bleated against government extravagance but as a party has been afraid to pick the one sure means of checking it, namely a return to gold convertibility."

It is common knowledge that the currencies of the United States, Great Britain, France, Canada and various other countries are no longer convertible into gold. The currencies of each of the countries mentioned have been declining in value for years, perhaps since each of them "went off the gold standard" as the expression goes.

If we understand the Wall Street Journal correctly, it argues that, when a nation's currency ceases to be convertible into gold, that currency begins to depreciate in value.

It is altogether likely that those who wish to retain incontrovertible money, in both Canada and the United States, can summon forth battalions of economic experts, financial experts, government experts, fancy experts and just plain experts who will contend that what the Wall Street Journal calls "rotting currency" is the best kind, and far better than the old-fashioned kind.

If any nation's currency continues to decline in value from month to month, and almost from week to week, it will eventually become worth nothing, just as happened in Germany after the First World War. That nation will then be reduced to primitive barter, which would mean something like chaos. That is exactly what some people, notably one named Josef Stalin, would like to see happen.

The valley of the Mackenzie River north of the Arctic Circle has land with agricultural possibilities.

Canada's total coal deposits have been estimated at about one-sixth of the world's total.

The islands of the Canadian Arctic contain considerable deposits of coal, varying from lignite to bituminous.

THE INNER VOICE

I do some things for friendship's sake
And some to serve a need.
But there are other cares I take
An inner voice to heed.

And there are deeds I do for love
And tasks I do for gain,
And some I do for God above,
His favor to retain.

I know not why it has to be,
But strangely this is true:
That inner voice keeps telling me,
"Here's something you should do."

PAGANISM OUR DANGER

Yesterday I sat in the midst of 2,500 Christian people as they sang hymns and engaged in public worship. It was an inspiring experience. This group happened to be made up of the leaders of one of the largest Christian bodies in this country. The way they sang the hymns entered into the service, and listened to the preaching of the Word, made one feel that here was a moral force which if harnessed to the world's needs, could cause human society to be changed within a decade.

Yet for everyone who is a Christian in this country today, there is one other person who is not a Christian. Only a small percentage of our children are enrolled in Sunday-schools or in other schools which the different branches of the Christian Church have established. Multitudes of our people never cross the threshold of a church.

We tremble at the prospect of the atomic bomb. Have you ever read military opinion of how difficult it would be for Russia to drop a bomb on us or for us to drop a bomb on Russia? Yet our own semi-paganism is more dangerous than all the atomic bombs stored behind the iron curtain. We hate communism because it is godless—yet we are half-godless. How can we meet this dreadful evil with such poor equipment of mind and soul?

Saskatchewan Indian Tribe Revives Ceremonial Dance After Prolonged Lapse

INDIAN HEAD, Sask. (CP)—Ancient ceremonies of the Rain Dance have been revived by Saskatchewan's Indians after a lapse of many years.

Assiniboine Indians of the Sintaluta reserve near here staged a Rain Dance following another held near Carlyle, Sask., where Indians from both sides of the international border participated in costumes which district residents had not seen before.

The revivals mark a part of Indian religious life being passed on by older members of the tribes to the younger generations at a time when it was about extinct.

On the Sintaluta reserve, only the dancers were costumed, their bodies painted with patterns interpreted from dreams.

But much of the pageantry was lost. Ordinary farm clothes of other participants appeared incongruous with the ancient rites.

General Application

Although called a Rain Dance, the Sintaluta ceremony could be called a Sun Dance. Its prayers might be for rain, sunshine, peace, health or the general welfare of the tribe. Special requests are made for the healing of the sick or the protection of those in danger.

Three women took part in the ceremony to plead for the safe return of soldier sons in Korea and Germany.

No written accounts exist within the tribe of the ritual handed down orally from generation to generation. Thus there were many variations among the bands who gathered on the reserve from File Hills, Moose Mountain and Crooked Lake in Canada and Fort Bellamy and Fort Peck in Montana.

Tangled trails led six miles from here to the camping ground.

In the centre of a secluded area stood the medicine lodge, constructed of poles covered with leafy branches.

In the centre of the lodge was the upright Sacred Tree, painted on all sides. It was striped to represent lightning and tied with broad streamers of red, white and blue cloth at the top and other colors at the bottom.

Symbolic Colors

The colors have a definite significance. Red is for sacrifice, blue for the sky, white for day and black for night.

Extending from the Sacred Tree were 40 poles, said to represent the 40 days Christ spent in the wilderness.

Inside the lodge a railing formed an inner circle behind which the ceremonial dancers performed.

Men with drums were seated around a buffalo hide. They chanted and sang the ancient songs. At intervals, the dancers rose from behind the inner circular partition, their painted bodies swaying to the drum rhythm.

Most kept time to the drums with whistles made of eagle-wing bones. Feathers dangled from the whistles, held in clenched teeth. The dancers also carried large eagle feathers which they waved as they danced.

Albert Eashappie, George O'Watch, Charles Ryder and others led the ceremonies. All fasted 12 hours before the ceremony and continued their fast for two ritual days. Then they joined in the feast and merry-making which climaxed the reunion.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

At this time of year, thousands of women and hundreds of men are falling in love with villages and small towns. Oh, to live in a place like this, they sigh, as they walk or drive through the bowered and beautiful little communities of summer. Peace seems to dwell there. The trees are great and slumbering. The houses stand back, snuggled deep in shrubbery and the bold flowers of July.

No one is in a hurry there, and the swift cars passing through are the traffic of strangers. You see people bent over idle problems of the earth, or sitting in relaxed attitudes on shady porches or under plum trees on the lawns. If anyone is walking, it is obviously without any urgent purpose. Even the children do not run. They too sit.

Such a village is something to fall in love with, in July. To come from the harsh and vitreous city with its tireless purpose and anger, the city that seems to be all on a conveyor belt and involved in some grim progress of straight line production that includes every avenue and every side street, and to look upon that village tranquility is to experience a deep inner shock. It is the shock of doubt. And no man or woman is free of doubt as to their way of life.

The chances are that every summer a considerable number of people become bewitched by villages and make the decision to move. They buy property. They rejoice in the delights of exploring the community, making the new and homely friends, and becoming villagers themselves in heart if not in mind.

What they should do, of course, is wait to see those villages in November and February. Then the little houses no longer snuggle. They huddle. All the leaves blow away, and suddenly the wide, lonely fields come right down to the village edge, and bring some of their emptiness with them. And some sense of urgency displaces the tranquility of July: the urgency of a popping in and out of doors, the urgency of hustling down to the corner store and back. Doors of villages are very shut in February.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THAT ONE FRIEND

A friend, without quotation marks, is one of the rare finds in this world. He is to be found only in the select realm of spiritual grandeur. Never does he step down to that of a mere acquaintance, of which there are swarms. Perhaps that one friend may prove to be enough — if you can keep him.

We are apt to speak of a friend in too loose a manner. If he is of the genuine 24-k. kind, it is enough just to think of him as another self and abide in comfort over the fact. We will always know where to find him in an emergency—or at any other time.

That one friend needs no explanation as he explains himself in all that he thinks and does. He never passes you up. In a large sense he is an explanation of yourself. With him you breathe the same air. Your tastes meld. It's the trust and confidence that we have in that one friend that confirm all the faith that we have in him.

I like to think of my one friend as a perpetual guest. I am forever inviting him, welcoming him, seeking his counsel, enjoying him. But I must take care to prove worthy at all times and educate myself in understanding. We cannot help but idealize that one friend as we do all that enters into a companionate friendship. We idealize love or else we would be cold and uninviting human beings.

We all die a little when that one friend no more treads the earth, or companions with us in the body, yet much remains. His spirit is a moving thing for so long as we live—and perhaps beyond. No relation in life can compete with that of having and holding that one friend throughout life. We are all imperfect representatives of the God - made man, but nevertheless we are images of the divine — searchers ever toward betterment. That one friend may prove to be fortune enough for any of us.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

DIABETES IS A FUNCTIONAL AILMENT

According to Dr. Elliott P. Joslin and his associates there are more than 25 million persons in the United States and Canada who have inherited the tendency to diabetes, and these persons are most likely to develop diabetes (1) if they do not get enough general exercise or (2) if they accumulate slacker flesh, increased body weight, after thirty-five.

Diabetes is an hereditary disease characterized by an increase of sugar in the blood and the excretion of sugar in the urine.

The child more often inherits the tendency from a grandparent. The parents, one or both, merely carry the tendency and do not necessarily develop diabetes themselves.

There are probably 700,000 diabetics in the United States now, and nearly 3,000,000 will develop diabetes if they (1) survive middle age, (2) acquire superfluous fat after thirty-five and/or (3) follow too sendentary a mode of life.

If this catches you with your blood sugar level too high (above 0.17 per cent after a meal) you had better beat it for the doctor's office for urinalysis and, if the doctor deems it necessary, a sugar tolerance test. While you're waiting for the metabolism of your pancakes and syrup don't read those ancient magazines in the doctor's office—instead read Training for Diabetes, for which send 25c and stamped, self - addressed envelope. In this booklet you man find the secret of preventing the development of diabetes if you are a potential candidate for the disease.

Old time practitioners recognized diabetes at an advanced stage of the disease. There are a good many old timers still in practice, but so well camouflaged among all the Rube Goldberg machines that they have your shirt before you realize you have been given the run-around.

Any one of the following conditions is a good excuse for a health examination by your physician. Two or more of them persisting for weeks or months may signify that you are developing diabetes:

Excessive thirst
Excessive urination
Loss of weight
Intense itching
Excessive hunger
Easy tiring
Pain in the extremities.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

It Is a Habit

Daughter, 6, still wets the bed. Is it an inherited weakness? (Mrs. L. C.)

Answer — It is not inherited, not a weakness, but just a habit. One you should keep strictly confidential between your daughter and yourself. Any one who punishes, scolds, ridicules or shames a child for bed-wetting should be vigorously slapped both sides of his face and dipped . . . Send stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask in writing (no answer if you use clipping) for the pamphlet The Habit of Bed-Wetting No answer if you omit the word Habit.

Pronunciation

Please set us right about the pronunciation of your name. Is it Brady (long "a"), Brady (short "a") or Brady ("a" as in arm?— (Mrs. A. A.)

Answer— One of my bowling cronies pronounces it with the I short, thus, Stinker. My high-school Latin teacher always called it Brady, the a as in father. My mother called me Willie. A medical colleague who does not agree with some of my teachings thinks it should be Bray-den with the accent on the bray.

Child Grits Teeth in Sleep

Son, eight, grits his teeth badly at night. I am afraid he has worms. Inclosed is 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope for your booklet, Unbidden Guests. (Mrs. A. L. W.)

Answer—I'm sending it, but it is more likely the boy has calcium deficiency, and you should have the booklet The Calcium Shortage.

Company, Union Sign Agreement

KINGSTON (CP)—An agreement bringing a 15-cent-an-hour package settlement to 1,300 workers at the Aluminum Company of Canada plant here was signed yesterday between management and United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) officials.

The agreement includes an improvement in the vacation plan and an increase in the night-shift premium from five to seven cents an hour.

The union earlier had rejected a 10-cent across-the-board offer. It was accepted by 300 workers of the Machinists' Union (A.F.L.-T.L.C.).

The new agreement is retroactive to May 24 when a previous agreement terminated.

BRAKES CAUSE OF CRASH

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Faulty brakes were blamed by a coroner's jury yesterday for an accident July 3 in which George Petrovich, 53, of Windsor, was killed. No blame was attached to Theodore J. Emmert, executive vice-president of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, driver of the car which collided head-on with the Petrovich car.

CHILD DROWNED IN BAY

COLLINGWOOD (CP) — Donna Pretherall, 11, was drowned yesterday while she and a playmate, who could not swim, were bathing. When Donna went beyond her depth her young friend ran home to tell her parents instead of informing nearby swimmers of her plight. It was almost an hour before anyone knew of the incident.

Awards Given For Best Looking Rural Mail Boxes

Rawdon—Rev. A. E. Baker, pastor of St. Paul's Carmel United churches, is to be commended for his interest in the improvement of rural mail boxes in this district. In 1951 a silver dollar was given for the best mail box or each of the four Stirling routes. There was a noticeable improvement all along the various routes and many boxes were freshly painted.

The 1952 contest has been closed and the following awards have been made.

For R.R. No. 1 from Stirling along highway 14 to Bonarlaw the winner was John Eggett of Bonarlaw. Honorable mention was made to Kenneth B. Thomphon, Springbrook, Cora Faulkner, Harold, A. Elliott and Don Heath in the Harold area.

Rural Route 2.

R.R. 2 runs from Stirling out the Ridge Road and Arthur Rodgers of Rock Garden farm won the award with Vernon Mathews, Verney Heath, D. Fargey and Hamilton Donnan as runners up in the contest.

Rural Route 3.

R. R. 3 which covers a large territory. going up the Stirling to Hoard's road crossing along the town line between Seymour and Rawdon thence down fourth concession almost to Highway 14 then across the third concession to Allan School and Central Cheese Factory, up second concession Rawdon to the aforementioned town line and then down to Carmel road on the home stretch to Stirling.

Points of Merit

The silver dollar award was given to Mr. John Morgan and son Billy, on the fourth concession Rawdon, for the best box. The ground approach and the exact height were two points in favor of this choice.

Honorable mention to Lorne Brooks last year's winner, at Carmel, George A. Weaver, Stanley Williams, Don Campbell and R. Jeffs on the Anson Road, Earl Dunkley, Mount Pleasant, Lindsay McKeown, Herbert Smith, Gordon Linn, on third concession; Arthur Couch, Harry McAdam, Robert Merrick, on concession two, and Ed Pyear on Carmel Road. This route is so large that it was hard to pick out all the really first class boxes. However, there is still room for more improvement as several have neither paint nor name as yet.

Rural Route 4.

R. R. 4 takes in a portion of the road from Stirling down the Frankford Road and through the River Valley community. Several mail boxes have new top name plates and it is understood there has been a decided improvement all along the route. Harold Chambers was given the silver dollar as his box has the name on top and side.

Honorable Mention

The honorable mention folk were J. Scea, W. J. Detlor, Percy Craighead, Ernest Woodcock, Harry Morrow, Kenneth Morrow and Ed. Heasman.

Those who have permanent name plates across the top of the boxes give a decided advantage as the names can be read by night or day and it is easy to locate your friends.

Several of the boxes on the various routes are adjustable to weather conditions which is a boon in a heavy snowstorm.

All box holders are supposed to provide a good box, clearly lettered and when the whole four routes are well improved then perhaps the competition will turn to the Harold, Springbrook and Bonarlaw routes which cover a large portion of Rawdon township.

Mr. Baker has only been located in Stirling a short time but he has advocated many needed improvements in and around the town for which he should be given commendable recognition. After all, it is the chap who sees a need and then goes after it to make the improvement, is the person who takes a lot of criticism and gets little praise for their worthwhile efforts.

New Flag

The new flag flying on the community hall, Stirling is another one of Rev. Baker's achievements. Last year when a delegation from Ottawa was in Stirling, the speaker commended Stirling council for their patriotic views. Little did he know who it was that had talked and written of the need of a flag and harped on the theme until council decided to go ahead and purchase the flag.

S it is with mail route improvements. Some time some one in this area will be highly praised for the splendid appearance of the boxes as no doubt 1953 will see even greater improvements. Truly civic betterment is a great idea but is needs some one who can see where the need is and then put it across.

Mossadegh Step Nearer to Iranian Premiership

TEHRAN, Iran (Reuters)—Former-Premier Mohammed Mossadegh today rode back toward power on a wave of popular support as the Majlis (House of Representatives) voted in favor of his resuming office.

The appointment has yet to be approved by Shah Reza Pahlevi, who saw Ahmed Qavam, his recent designate for the post, swept from the premiership yesterday by a surge of bloody rioting.

The Shah accepted Mossadegh's resignation last week after refusing the aging premier's demands for wider powers. But Mossadegh holds the trump card: there is no alternative nominee for the premiership.

61 Favor Mossadegh

Sixty-three deputies attended today's Majlis session which nominated Mossadegh. Sixty-one voted in his favor.

News of the vote spread quickly through Tehran, now returning to normal after yesterday's paralyzing strikes and street fighting. Flags fluttered in thousands from shops and houses—but all had black ribbons attached to commemorate the score or more who died in the riots.

Yesterday's wild outbreak brought a swift end to the four-day regime of Qavam, who had pledged himself to settle his country's oil dispute with Britain.

Faced with a complete breakdown of public order, the Shah demanded and received his resignation. It was hailed as a triumph by supporters of Mossadegh, whose first act when he became Prime Minister 15 months ago was to oust the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company from its holdings in Iran.

Rumblings of unrest continued in the capital last night as troops and police clashed with Communists who staged anti-Shah demonstrations. Today the city was quiet.

Identify Deadly Grain Rust

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Rust Research Laboratory here yesterday identified a steam rust attacking prairie crops as Race 15B, a new and deadlier fungus for which no resistant grain has been developed.

The rust strain was first found about two weeks ago in southern Manitoba and rapidly spread into Saskatchewan.

"It appears that 15B is pretty definitely present," said Dr. T. Johnson, laboratory researcher.

WOMEN BUS DRIVERS

BIRMINGHAM, England (CP)—The Birmingham Council, after profound deliberation, decided that bus driving is not a man's perogative. The mayor now will consider plans to ease transport staff shortages by employing women bus drivers.

Oh my! I'll bet this costs us plenty!

Silly accident, but expensive!

All accidents are silly—and unexpected.

The grocer boy does not plan to trip over a toy wagon in your driveway and break an arm.

But it can cost you thousands in a damage suit.

Or your dog may bite a stranger (or a friend). You may hit somebody with a golf ball. Your child may sock a passerby with a rock. A mailman may scoot on the ice or on a roller skate.

A very inexpensive America Fore policy will cover you against damage suits from all these and other unplanned expensive accidents. For example, you can get $10,000 liability protection for only $10 a year.

Find Lost Girl in Daisy Patch

Fears of 500 searchers that four-year-old Halyna Komarensky had fallen into a pond or an old well, proved unfounded when the little girl, shown with her mother, was spotted sleeping in a patch of daisies. She had wandered from sight on the farm of her uncle, Stanley Wiack, near Barrie, Ont., and a call to the police brought 300 carloads of residents of farms and towns nearby. — Central Press Canadian.

Neither Britain Nor U.S. Will Let Canadian Observers View An Atomic Explosion

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—There's nothing delicate about an atomic explosion but it's a delicate and difficult thing for a foreign country to get invited to see one.

No country knows that better than Canada.

A few months ago there were signs that her federal authorities—keenly interested in seeing and studying one of these massive spectacles—might at least get invited not to one but to two of them this year, one American, one British.

So far, neither hope has materialized. All the Canadian officials know about these hideous weapons and their effects continues to be what they read in books and reports.

All A Mistake

The American case turned out to be a particularly delicate one.

Some months ago Health Minister Martin told reporters Canada had at last been invited to see one of the U.S. explosions, one designed to instruct civil defence officials in the problems of civilians under such attack.

Reliable reports indicate that it was all a mistake, that the "invitation" actually was an unauthorized suggestion by an American official who had no right to go as far as he did.

No Canadian officials have gone to see any U.S. explosion and at this date they see no sign that the U.S. intends to lower its barriers to foreign inspection.

Mum On Australia

The other case involves the British plan to explode some kind of an atomic weapon in Australia within the next few months. Since Canada has provided a lot of help to the British atomic program, it has been assumed here that an invitation will be forthcoming for Canadian observers to go along.

So far no invitation has been forthcoming. It may come yet.

Because the cost would be prohibitive, Canada isn't in the weapons field herself but is concentrating on peaceful development of the atom. At the same time, a lot of the research she does at Chalk River has proved of importance to both the U.S. and British weapons programs.

Reds Recapture Hill in Costly Seesaw Battle

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Chinese infantrymen today recaptured the crest of Old Baldy in the fifth day of a seesaw battle that has cost the Communists more than 1,000 casualties.

United Nations infantrymen still held the southeast slope of the bitterly-contested hill west of Chorwon on the Korean western front. Baldy overlooks both the U.N. and Communist main lines of defence.

Associated Press Correspondent George McArthur said about 200 Chinese pushed through heavy U.N. tank and artillery fire and retook the shell-scarred height.

U.N. troops reached the top at 2:30 a.m. (1:30 p.m. EDT Monday) but were forced to pull back down at 9:30 a.m. in the face of counter-attacking Chinese and heavy artillery fire.

Once the Chinese had regained the top of Old Baldy, McArthur reported, United States Fifth Air Force planes plastered the area with flaming gasoline. U.N. tanks and artillery shelled the area with a tremendous barrage.

Chinese artillery knocked out three tanks in the morning fighting.

U.N. fighter-bombers again hit a railroad repair centre and cement factory between Samdung and Pyongyang, the North Korean capital. The Fifth Air Force said about 50 Thunderjets destroyed three buildings, damaged a tunnel and made six direct hits on a locomotive repair shed.

Summer Course May Relieve Teacher Shortage

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Department of Education hopes a six-week summer course may help to solve the shortage of public-school teachers.

Five-hundred grade 12 graduates are learning to teach in a pre-teachers college established for the summer at Bloor Collegiate.

Ontario needs 1,000 new teachers annually and Dr. J. G. Althouse, chief director of education, said he hopes this new development may at least supply a temporary answer.

"The new course assures a supply of teachers without granting so-called cheap certificates," he said.

Normal Schools turn out 1,700 new teachers annually, not enough to relieve the constant pressure. Through the pre-teachers school, grade 12 graduates, previously not admitted to Normal Schools, now can take two successive summer sessions in Toronto, and by teaching during the winter, qualify for admittance to Normal School.

At present 94 boys, 382 girls and 30 Roman Catholic nuns are taking the course. Three Mennonites are in the group.

Premier Yoshida Wanted To Make Peace Flight To End Pacific Conflict

TOKYO (AP)—The Nippon Times reported Saturday that Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida wanted to make a "Rudolph Hess" peace flight from Japan to Britain in the closing months of the Pacific war.

The newspaper said he was discouraged from doing so by a Japanese admiral and later arrested as a pacifist and Liberal.

There was no immediate comment from Yoshida.

In those days Yoshida was a retired career diplomat out of a job, and being trailed by the dread Kampeitai—the secret police.

Saturday's account was an English translation of an article by former Vice-Admiral Jisaburo Ozawa that first appeared in Japanese in the Yomiueri Weekly.

Diplomats Brooded

Ozawa said he was approached by a group of retired diplomats who were brooding over the ruinous course of the war in late 1944 and convinced that Japan should open peace negotiations.

At that time the Japanese carrier air force had been annihilated off Saipan.

Things were worse in April 1945, when Yoshida called upon Ozawa.

"I was upset when I learned that Mr. Yoshida was planning a trip to Britain to see if he could get the Britons to concern themselves with ending the war by negotiation," the ex-admiral said.

"Then he asked me whether I could arrange for a plane or submarine to take him to Britain or any place in the British area."

Yoshida, who had been ambassador in London, probably had hopes of using former contacts to start either official or unofficial peace talks.

Not A 'Crackpot'

Although Yoshida's plan was desperate, he was no crackpot like Hitler's deputy, Rudolph Hess, who parachuted from a fighter plane over Scotland in April, 1941, to attempt to make peace. British authorities put Hess in a mental hospital.

Ozawa told Yoshida that "there was not a single plane in Japan that could be used in such a flight," the Times reported. no submarines we could use even in the vital Okinawa operation."

Labor-Management Disputes in B.C. Cause Idleness to One in Every 24

VANCOUVER (CP)—About one British Columbian in every 24 is not working today because of labor-management disputes.

Strikes, union ordered work stoppages and employer-closed operations have put about 50,000 of the province's estimated population of 1,198,000 out of work.

Announcements last night painted this multi-million dollar picture.

Six thousand coast fishermen received orders not to fish and a recommendation not to strike.

One hundred packinghouse workers in Chilliwack voted to strike today.

One hundred electrical winding shop employees voted to strike if employers do not accept a conciliation board recommendation.

A meeting, called by the Labor Relations Board, between the contractors and striking carpenters is scheduled for Thursday.

Three thousand carpenters have been on strike for 41 days and 5,000 members are unemployed because of it.

A spokesman for the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (A.F.L.-T.L.C.) said because only 51 per cent of the fishermen voted to reject an employer price offer for pink and chum salmon, fishermen had been recommended not to strike.

He added that the no fishing order which followed the vote Sunday still stands until the results of this new vote are known.

Convicted Man Awaits Execution

QUEBEC (CP)—Genereux Ruest, 54-year-old cripple, has been transferred to Montreal's Bordeaux jail to be hanged Friday for his part in the time-bombing of an airliner in 1949, authorities announced today.

Ruest, convicted of manufacturing the time-bomb that blew up the airliner and killed 23 persons, was transferred from Quebec jail July 16, a few days after his removal from hospital where he underwent treatment for a liver condition. He also is suffering from tuberculosis of the bones and is unable to walk by himself. His counsel has asked Justice Minister Garson to order a new trial or commute his death sentence to life imprisonment.

Ruest's appeal to the Quebec Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court of Canada was rejected.

His sister, Mrs. Arthur Pitre, 43, found guilty of placing the bomb aboard the passenger plane, plans to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada. She is under sentence to be hanged Oct. 17.

J. Albert Guay, Quebec jeweller, was hanged Jan. 12, 1951, for masterminding the plot to kill his wife, Rita, one of the passengers on the plane when it exploded over nearby Sault au Cochon.

Red Cross Officials Fear Korean Delegates May Make Charges

TORONTO (CP)—Officials preparing for the opening of the 18th International Red Cross conference tomorrow have expressed fear that the North Korean Communist delegation may use the meeting as a sounding board for renewed attacks on alleged United Nations use of germ warfare in Korea.

With some 68 countries represented at the conference, the North Koreans, backed by the 15-member Russian and 19-member Communist Chinese delegations, will have an excellent opportunity to press these charges as "humanitarian matters."

Count Bonabes de Rouge, Secretary-General of the League of Red Cross societies, said yesterday that all Communist delegates will be seated as accredited delegates, and added there might be dispute on the conference floor if either the Communist or Nationalist Chinese delegations should demand that the other not be seated.

One Red Cross officer last night admitted "the conference could be dynamite" but added, "It's our job to see that it goes right ahead and makes progress in bettering the humanitarian laws in the world."

Speculation on the intention of the North Korean delegation to introduce the question of germ warfare increased when it was learned that one member of the delegation is a skin specialist who has figured conspicuously in the charges. It also appeared likely that the North Koreans would bring the prisoner-of-war riots on Koje Island into the discussions.

A spokesman in the External Affairs Department said in Ottawa yesterday there will be no curtailment on travel within Canada by the Communist delegations. He said they will require no special travel passes.

The conference, attended by some 500 delegates and 500 more volunteer workers, will continue for almost three weeks.

Woman, 74, Completes 12-Year Task Re-building Blitzed Home

LONDON (CP)—More than 50 proposals of marriage and a stream of congratulatory messages have poured in on 74-year-old Mrs. Edith Binge, of London's working-class district of Poplar,

It all started when word got around she had single-handedly and without a government permit, completed the re-building of her blitzed home—a 12-year task.

The house, reconstructed from a pile of rubble, was one of many destroyed by a bomb dropped in 1940. Mrs. Binge, a widow whose only son was serving in the army, was in a nearby shelter when the bomb struck.

When she emerged she found only one room of her home habitable. The next day she put up a waterproof roof and set about re-building. It took her a year to clear the debris and sort it out. Then she cleaned the retrieved bricks, bought sacks of cement and sand, reshaped the timber and did the plumbing and electrical work by herself.

Mrs. Binge insisted the job could have been completed much sooner but for the fact she had to confine her operations to what was left of her meagre old age pension.

A member of the Poplar housing committee, Councillor E. H. Smith, said Mrs. Binge had established something of a precedent in getting her home together without once filling out a form or seeking permission from the authorities. Normally, a minimum of five permits is needed to start building.

As for the proposals of marriage, Mrs. Binge put them away.

"For the rest of my days I think I shall prefer my own home," she said.

Fashion Flashes

IDEAL for smart resort wear by the mature woman is the silk crepe dress in white or pastels, the bodice tucked, the skirt pleated, and made with its own cardigan jacket. The fabric is plain, with tucks or pleats.

NO END to the times that one reaches for the well-cut softly-tailored silk suit. Rich silk shantung, in dark or pastel shades is used for a well-handled suit, the very fitted jacket trimmed with silk braid embroidery at the pockets and on the softly curved collar. Jacket is lined in thin China silk, and has pointed double cuffs on the below-elbow sleeves.

AT LEAST one dressy dress for the Summer season, is the advice of a fashion-wise woman. Such a dress is bound to be the choice for many occasions, and a good selection might well be a simple model in light bamboo beige silk taffeta — very thin and crisp. The flared skirt is full in front, and the V neck is flanked by seed-pearl-embroidered revers.

IF YOU LIKE that most useful of, cottons — pin-stripe cotton cord — you'll be glad to see that it is around this season. A good separates team is made up of a three-quarters length coat and a slim skirt. The coat has soft shoulders, full-length sleeves, and flapped patch pockets. Black or navy velvet over-collar is detachable.

COMES THE URGE to buy a new hat, and we find that fabric hats look nice and new after wearing straws since late Winter. Pleated taffeta forms the curved brim of a pretty little bonnet, the brim extending well into the crown. A wide black velvet bow is draped across the front.

Mrs. Dafoe Speaks to Quinte W.I. on 'Folk School'

The July meeting of the Quinte Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Harry Grills with 18 members and two visitors present. The president, Mrs. Harry Grills, presided.

Mrs. Archie Greatrix gave an informative paper on the motto "Education".

"A man with a book in his hand
Will find treasures of the past
Hopes for the future, issues for the present
Which will supply greatness in every walk of life—"

In a paper given by Mrs. Greatrix, she enlarged on reading, from fiction to Bible, and gave a clever recitation which filled in beautifully.

A trip by bus was discussed but was postponed until later.

Next month's meeting will be held on the first Tuesday in the Front Road Church.

Guest Speaker

Mrs. Myrtle Greatrix introduced the speaker for the day, Mrs. Dafoe, of Tweed, who was chosen for a delegate for Institute to go to Folk School. Mrs. Dafoe described the Folk School which consisted of a group from 18 to 80 meeting under one roof to discuss the better way of living. She spoke on culture, music education which Folk School stands for. To make people care for important part they play in community life.

Copies of Home and Country for the Institute were then given to each member.

A spelling match was then enjoyed with Mrs. Murney Ray and Mrs. Clifford Reed as captains, which was won by Mrs. Arnold Mitchell.

Mrs. Robt. Bunnett then expressed her thanks on behalf of the Institute to Mrs. Dafoe for her excellent talk.

Refreshments were then served by the hostess and her committee.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Can't Decide Between Two Suitors

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For about two years, I have been going quite steady with a young man of 29. I am 21.

I was sure I loved him until about five months ago, when I met a very nice man through my job. This man has been dating me quite frequently since then, and now he tells me he loves me. I told him I could not go steady with him, since I am still going with the other man, and he is willing to go out with me under the circumstances, hoping I will make up my mind.

The reason I am so confused is that I somehow feel the first fellow is unreliable. I have asked him to do a few things for me before we consider marriage, and he is always promising to do them, and then forgets all about it. I am afraid he will always be that way. Another thing is that this second man showers me with flowers and candy which the first fellow never thinks of doing.

I am quite fond of the first fellow, but sometimes I wonder if it is only because I have known him so long. I am also quite fond of the second fellow, and altogether am not sure which would make the better husband.

G R R.

Dear G. R. R.: The only way a problem such as yours ever solves itself is for a girl to be willing to wait awhile before she commits herself to anything definite. Already you are dubious about your feeling for the first young man, and leaning toward the second. If you will give yourself time to determine whether this trend will continue, or whether it will reverse itself, I think your confusion will clear up.

Give time a chance to demonstrate which of these two chaps is the more thoughtful, considerate, attentive and reliable. The better you know each one of them, the more plainly you will see which one is ahead of the other in these respects. And it's not impossible; you know, that you might even meet a third chap you'd like so much that all doubt would disappear.

Muffed the First Date—Why?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

There is a boy older than myself that I always wanted a date with, but when the chance came, I muffed it. We were supposed to go for a ride in his friend's car with two other couples. I became afraid and didn't go, and since then he hasn't called me or even said hello when we met on the street.

How can I get him to forgive me and give me another chance?

T.

Dear T.: What were you afraid of that made you stand this boy up on your date with him? Was it just that you got stage fright, and felt so self-conscious that you thought you wouldn't be able to enjoy yourself and make a congenial member of the group, or was there some definite thing that scared you off? I could advise you better if you had made this point clear.

If it was just that you had a sudden attack of shyness, why don't you write this boy a little note, and say so frankly? It would be much better to tell him the truth than to let him think that you had been inconsiderate and impolite. It can't possibly do any harm to be completely honest about it, and it might very likely remedy matters.

THOMASBURG

THOMASBURG. — Rev. R. L. Norman, of the Thomasburg United Church, conducted his first service here on a recent Sunday. The attendance was only fair. Mr. Norman's address deserved a much larger congregation. There will be service July 20th, at 8 p.m.

The Thomasburg United Church Sunday School is already feeling the effect of vacation time. Only 41 in attendance last Sunday. Parents and scholars are asked to please co-operate and attend the remaining two Sundays in July.

The afternoon service of Christ Church, Thomasburg, will be held at 9:30 a.m., during the warm weather. This will be a most agreeable change.

The pea viner operating in this district closed down on Monday afternoon. The pea crop was not as good as expected earlier. July's hot winds lowered the yield considerably.

Mr. Earle Jones is convalescing at home after his recent stay in hospital. His friends hope he will soon be well again. To help hasten his recovery, the neighbors formed a bee last Saturday and put his hay in the barn.

Mr. W. Grills, who underwent surgery in Toronto General Hospital was allowed to come to the home of his daughter, Mrs. S. White, Demorestville, last Tuesday. All hope he will continue to improve.

Sunday afternoon found many of the people of Thomasburg enjoying the breezes of Stoco Lake and the camping facilities of Memorial Park.

Food for Thought

How Things Are in Whitehorse

By Mary Moore

Count your blessings, ladies. If you can't think of any offhand read V. K.'s letter from Whitehorse Yukon and you will think of quite a few before you are finished.

"Whitehorse, Yukon, Dear Mary Moore: . . . enjoy your column . . .never written before. . .interested in your trip. . . we are stationed in the Yukon at Whitehorse but get the hometown paper a couple of weeks late, but it still gets read every inch of it as we have only a weekly paper here which carries only local news. . . the scenery is magnificent and weather not too bad although we have had a late spring (they tell me) I have only been here since January. . . . but the thing that is hard to take up here Mary is the price of food and everything else for that matter although (mail order companies) are old reliables if you don't mind waiting.

Fresh milk we get but once a week on Saturdays, and it is 50c a qt. A 15-oz. loaf unsliced bread 20c, lb. margarine 51c, lettuce 45c lb., tomatoes 35 and 60 a tube, depending on whether they came by boat or plane. Jelly powders 12c. each, large cornflakes 35c. . . .grapefruit 16c each, shortening 42c, side bacon 90c, tinned milk 22c tin. . . I hate to even mention meat prices—hamburg is $1.10 lb., same for stewing beef. . . pork is down to 75c. although none of the meat is trimmed of bone and fat as I've been used to.

". . .until we get an A. F. house we rent one downtown for $40, furnished (don't laugh) with a bed, spring and mattress (which we replaced) and small chest of drawers in bedroom. The L.R. has oil heater, 2 odd tables (old A.F. writing desks) and 1 couch. The kitchen has a camp stove, table and 5 chairs. There is no running water and we store ours in 45-gal. drum. . . .the hydro for lights, toaster and iron runs $6 monthly. We pay the scavenger $1 per visit twice a week. . . .we have what is loosely referred to as a chemical toilet. . . .

"I burn about 1-2 cord wood a month for cooking and this costs another $10. . . .In Feb. and March we paid out almost $100 each month to keep the living room warm. . .ice would still form in the kitchen during the night when the stove was out. . . luckily we are granted $125 additional allowance up here. . . spend every penny of it. . .

"Things have brightened considerably . . . we are moving to a house with running water, and most precious, a flush toilet, shortly. By winter we hope to be in a proper A.F. house. There we pay $75 a month rent which gives us a fully furnished modern house, complete even to bed linen. . . everything else to be had in a well-run modern house . . we are not allowed to bring anything but personal belongings . . . while we are living skimpily at present we are together as a family and that means everything.

"There is no earth in Whitehorse, and hence no gardens, although climate will allow things to grow. . . I have managed to obtain some soil. . .in a coal scuttle I have 5 tomato plants, a good supply of lettuce and radishes. . .

"I've been gabbing a long time and haven't asked you what I intended. . .have you a recipe for macaroni and cheese similar to that which —— puts up. . .it is 35c a 15-oz. tin up here. . .I have a boy 6, and a girl 5 and a boy 2 and they really eat. . .have you recipe for cakes that could be cooked on top of stove or in pressure cooker. . . .

"On rereading do hope you didn't think I was complaining. . . I really like it despite all the gripes.—V. K."

Reading that letter was like reading a story. Doesn't V. K. give you a clear picture. Aren't you glad our food prices are lower?

I am mailing V. K. the recipe for macaroni and cheese which I put in this column last Tuesday. Only fruit cakes can be "baked" successfully in the pressure cooker so far so I am giving a

BEAUTY

By Helen Jameson

Archery stream-lines the figures.

Perhaps in your holiday travels you have come upon a group of archers. They form a charming picture, one that reminds you of Robin Hood and his pals. The blue sky and green sward form a perfect setting for a long row of gaily-colored targets. Arrows are poised, aimed and released. They soar upward, seem to follow a straight line for a short distance, then curve downward. About this picture is an element of romance, a swing-back into the past, when life offered more leisure.

7-21
Distributed by King Features Syndicate

An active hobby will benefit the figure.

Women, as well as men, are enthusiastic about this health-building pastime. The movements of the archer are graceful and beautiful. They have an appearance of strength and vitality. To release an arrow requires the same amount of strength as is necessary to lift thirty pounds—we are referring now to the bows used by women. To accomplish that act, the body must be drawn up tall. There will be full expansion of the chest; the spinal column is held properly; the body is perfectly balanced. The attitude is that of perfect physical form.

The affect upon the musculature is excellent. In walking back and forth between the firing line and the targets—where the archer collects her arrows to use again—legs, hips and thighs get their portion of muscle work. As the sport is competitive, archery is a mental stimulant.

Archery clubs are springing up everywhere, It is said that once the bow-and-arrow bug gets you, you remain an advocate as long as you can propel yourself on two legs. The enthusiasm often leads to woodcraft, the making of the equipment. Some women take possession of their husband's work shops in the home, to carve and varnish bows and arrows. That should appeal to the woman who is forever wishing that she had been born a boy, so that she could saw and plane wood instead of cooking and washing dishes.

Because of the concentration required in this sport, it is a first-class worry-killer. The nervous sytsem reacts favorably. After an active day in fresh air, sleep is restful, appetite zestful.

We suggest that the woman who has nothing much to do, and who finds her youthful shape gradually taking on fuller lines, would do well to consider taking up this interesting pastime. It will give her an opportunity to develop skill. And that boosts morale.

GOOD MANNERS

By CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Going Visiting?

Here are three graces for a visitor. 1. Be amiable. 2. Be co-operative. . .agreeable to all plans, to all circumstances, alertly responsive. 3. Be appreciative. . . and say your appreciation. "How very kind of you" is a charming phrase to have ready in your thoughts and on your tongue

Always write first "bread-and-butter letter" to hostess of the home

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My brother and his wife live with her mother and father, my brother having been superintendent of their large farm since he returned from overseas. I have met my sister-in-law's parents several time when they have come here, but I have never been to the home. Now her mother hsa invited me to spend one week of my vacation with them on the farm. After my visit should I write my thank-you-for-my-visit letter to my sister-in-law or her mother?—Letitia M.

You write your first (and the most important) letter, your "bread-and-butter letter," to your sister-in-law's mother, the hostess of the home. Thank her for her most kind invitation, for her generous hospitality, and be sure to thank her for special plans she made for your happiness and comfort. Then it would be natural for you to write to your sister-in-law and your brother, telling them, too, what a happy time you had, and thanking them for their part in the hospitality and for special plans they made for your visit.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother is a widow, she has a position and supports my young sister as well as herself. I have worked for the past few years, and have helped as much as possible. Now I am going to be married, in the chapel of our church, with only our attendants (one each) and the members of the two families present at the ceremony. Mother and I just haven't any money for a reception. . .but my fiance's mother has urged my mother and me to let them give the reception either at their house, or, if we prefer not to have it at their house, at the Country Club to which they belong, I think I remember reading in your column that it isn't correct for the fiance's family to give the wedding reception. . .but I'm hoping you'll give your approval. Yes, Mrs. Beeckman?—Frances L.

No, my dear girl. . .this just isn't correct. Besides the fact that such a plan has always been considered a serious breach of etiquette, traditional etiquette, it would be most thoughtless for you to emphasize the fact that that valiant mother of yours is not financially able to give the reception. It would be wonderful . . .would this be possible? . . . for you to invite just those who are to be at the ceremony to your house afterward, serving only (1) the wedding cake (to be cut by you and your groom) and (2) a cold drink for the toasts. That would be so dignified, so appropriate, delightful. Then, after you and your bridegroom return from your wedding trip, his family can give as large and as elaborate a reception as they wish in your honor.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF CANADA

Nearly 50,000 Watch Yankees Defeat Brooklyn 5-3 In Exhibition Game

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Usually when you go to a baseball game you look for the unexpected to happen. That's the thrill of the sport. And the tilt last night between the Redmen and the Camp Drumm G. I. Joes from across the crick had all the unexpected and a trifle to boot.

For instance going into the eighth innings it looked like Johnny Brosnan, Drummers righthander, had all the signs in an Indian encampment on our side and was breezing along with a 7-4 lead. Then what happened. The Reds cast the motes from their eyes, blasted Johnny's offerings for five clouts and while the faithful rubbed their optics, three runs wafted across the plate and the game was tied up tighter than an income tax rebate.

But not to be outdone by the American generosity the Reds did a spot of Alphonse and Gaston-ing themselves. Came the top of the tenth and Coach McCabe went in minus a pre-mound heating, and the Yanks played Dixie on his offerings. Before the rataplan of the Drumms died away, five clouts went out into the wild blue yonder and four pesky G. I.'s had step-danced on Pettitt's platter.

The Reds looked ornery at times coming up with five errors every one of them costly. Tony Pettitt was caught day-dreaming once and once again that "sitting-duck" bunt along the first base line paid off for a visiting team. Fielding a bunt along the first-base line is a weak chink in the Reds defensive armor.

But there was good baseball too. Pat Gilmour pulled down a lofty hoist with a galloping one-hand stab while Red Carson flipped a few neat tosses across diamond for close tabs at first.

Incidentally Red's clutch clout in the eighth drove in the two runs that tied the count. And had fleetfooted Sammy Mulholland been a trifle fleeter the Reds would have won the game since Sam was out by less than a gnat's whisker on the slide home.

It was a good game to watch if you like seeing what you least expect crop up more times than you least expect it.

NOW THE GALS!

It seems now the distaff side has invaded the auto stock car racing. Seemingly not content with taking up golf, baseball, softball, checkers, cricket, a spot of soccer and wrestling, the gals feel they can pilot a mechanical heap around an oval track just as well as the male of the species — and get away with it.

That's what Dick Burrows claims who says his meet tomorrow night will include a "Powder Puff Race", that is a heat in which the gals will don crash helmets, safety belts and "give 'em the gun" around the track.

Also featuring the meet will be the "Mid-Season Classic" which includes twenty topflight drivers of the district; and a Kingston versus Belleville team race. The list of probable starters includes, such leading drivers as Frank Andre, J. McCrory, J. Johnson, Earl Handley, V. Murray, Warren Day, E. Van Odder, C. Johnson, E. Lindsay, D. Breadman, R. Hartley, E. Morgan, G. Heaney, J. Edgar, R. Cronk, Bob Pulver, B. Manlow, R. Swain, C. Thompson, B. Kemp, B. Johnson, T. Longholt, M. Sheppard and Tony Blake.

BRING YER MAW, LADS

Manager Jack Carson of the Redmen Baseball Club has announced that next Saturday night will be "Ladies Night" at Exhibition Park. The Peterborough Petes will be the guests of the Redmen on the occasion and there'll be all kinds of fun besides what is hoped a standout baseball game for the ladies. The "gals" will be admitted for a twenty-five cent admission and will be given free tickets on draws for various prizes. But more about that later.

PLAYOFFS HERE

Glen Roy juniors and the CNR Diesels go to the softball mat tonight in the first game of a best-of-three series to decide the championship of the Belleville District Softball League. The teams clash at Alemite Field starting at 6:45 with the second game slated for the CNR Park on Thursday night. If a third game is necessary the teams will flip for location, the game being played on Saturday night.

The Point Ann-Frankford series was resumed last night after the first game scheduled for Friday last was rained out. Managers of the respective squads agreed to play the rained-out pastime in Frankford tomorrow night. Incidentally the Ox-Pointers won last night's tilt 8-1.

LAYTON'S BACK, M'LADS

That unsettled battle between Whipper Billy Watson and 'Is Ludship Lord Athol Layton will have to go into the records as an unsolved crim-pardon-bout for no less than the ole coco-bonker Bo-Bo-Brazil, he of the noggin with cement-like qualities has discovered a yen to tangle chops with the British lud starting Friday. Bo-Bo is a tall rangy gent who tips the scales at 256 or thereabouts, has a skin of ebon hue, and is afraid of nothing this side of the Rubicon, the Styx or the Gowanus. But he'll have his job cut out to "bonk the conk" of the blueblood from Surrey since Athol towers some two inches above the curly pate of the Bo-Bo. Unless Layton does an Ann Boleyn and comes forth with " 'is 'ead tooked underneath 'is ahm" then all Bo-Bo has to do is curtsey once or twice and "Boom", 'tis over. Warren Bockwinkle clashes with Roberto Pico the Mexican baddie in the semi while Pat Flanagan will meet the nasty Lou Petrocia in the opener.

Gliding Team Finishes 34th

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's four-man gliding team returned yesterday from international competition in Spain to report that "we did much better than we expected." The team came 34th. It had expected to come last. There were 40 teams entered.

Capt. Albie Pow of Montreal, leading the four men who went to Spain at their own expense, said Shorty Boudreault of Ottawa gained Canada some recognition as the only pilot to make a flight long enough to be considered officially.

In two-seater glider competition, Barry Jeffry of Ottawa and Lloyd L'Aventure of Arvida, Que., placed fourth.

The team, unable to afford the expense of shipping their own gliders to Spain, used Spanish-constructed craft which, while the best available, were not of a type to which the Canadians were accustomed.

Leagues Leaders Stage Tilt Which May be Series Preview; Irvine Back on Active List

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The 48,263 spectators who watched New York Yankees defeat Brooklyn Dodgers 5-3 in an exhibition at Yankee Stadium last night may have been seeing a preview of the 1952 World Series.

The Yanks headed west today with a comfortable 4½-game first-place margin in the American League. The Dodgers arrived home with a commanding 7½-game bulge over the defending National League champions, New York Giants.

Tough Schedule Ahead

Of the two, the Yankees appear to have the rougher task ahead. Starting with a twi-night doubleheader in Cleveland tonight, the world champions will pack 21 games into the next 17 days.

Brooklyn and the Giants open up 14-game home stands tonight. The Dodgers start with Cincinnati and the Giants take on St. Louis Cardinals. The Brooks are riding the crest of an eight-game winning streak.

The impression is that if the Giants are going to pull another 1951 miracle finish, they'd better start right away instead of waiting until Aug. 11, as they did last year. The Dodgers appear unstoppable right now.

The Dodgers are confident of winning but nobody wants to talk about it. All remember too well last year's slump and the story-book Giant finish that saw a 13½-game Dodger lead evaporate in six weeks.

Said Brooklyn manager Charlie Dressen: "I'm not going to take any chances this time. I'm not going to ease up until we've got a 20-game lead with 19 left to go."

Dressen didn't appear disturbed over the loss of Roy Campanella, his All-Star catcher, expected to be on the sidelines for the next 10 days because of a fractured index finger.

Many Giants Out

If Dressen is quiet, Leo Durocher is a sphynx. The usually voluble Giant manager is keeping a tight lip as he regards his long injury list. Ace pitcher Sal Maglie had X-rays taken of his lame back and is expected to be out at least a week. Catcher Wes Westrum is nursing a sore right hand. George Spencer has a swollen ankle, Sal Yvars a scraped left thigh and Alvin Dark a fungus infection on his left foot.

The only bit of encouraging news from the Giant camp was the announcement that Monte Irvin, last year's runs-batted-in king, was placed on the active list. The slugging outfielder, who broke his ankle last spring, cannot run and won't be able to play regularly for at least another two weeks. He will be confined to pinch hitting duties.

Waterloo Tigers Fire Manager

WATERLOO (CP) — Waterloo Tigers of the Senior Intercounty Baseball League yesterday fired playing-manager Alex Kvasnak and in a surprise move hired Ed Moyer of Waterloo as his successor.

In a statement following a meeting, club officials said they were firing Kvasnak and suspending him for failure to report for a game Saturday and for not honoring terms of his contract.

Kvasnak came to the Tigers in 1950 when he led the club to the league championship, won the league batting crown and most-valuable-player award. He previously had eight years in pro baseball, including a brief fling with Washington Senators of the American League. His home is in Sagamore, Pa.

Moyer, considered to be one of the best pitchers developed in Waterloo, was standby of the Tiger teams in 1939-40-41-42. In 1939 he pitched 13 successive playoff games to win Waterloo its first senior baseball title virtually single-handed.

Sport in Brief

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Marlene Stewart, who holds the Canadian women's Close and Open golf championships, will be in Edmonton Aug. 7-16 to defend her laurels over the 6,655-yard Mayfair Country Club layout.

Tournament officials announced yesterday that the 18-year-old Fonthill sensation, who upset two top United States amateurs in last year's tournament, has filed her entry for the 1952 competition.

Miss Stewart, named Canada's outstanding woman athlete of 1951, took both titles last year, ousting Mae Murray, U.S. national runner-up in 1951, in the semi-finals of the open and the 1947-48 titleholder, Grace Lenczyk, in the finals.

At Cooperstown, N.Y., Paul Waner and the late Harry Heilmann were enshrined in baseball's Hall of Fame yesterday. Waner, still a wiry 145 pounds at 45, was present as Warren Giles, National League president, unveiled the plaque. Heilmann, who died July 9, 1951, was represented by his widow.

Catcher Roy Campanella has a fractured index finger on his right hand and will be lost to the National League Dodgers for at least 10 days. Campanella suffered the injury July 10 in Chicago.

Monte Irvin, slugging New York Giants outfielder, was returned to the active list yesterday, nearly four months after he fractured an ankle in an exhibition game at Denver. He will be available for pinch-hitting duty when the Giants open a series against St. Louis Cardinals at New York tonight. The Negro star is not yet able to run at full speed.

Panthers Rip Galt Terriers, Take Over Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener Panthers found the chance to claw their way into sole possession of first place in the senior Intercounty Baseball League last night and seized it.

Trampled six straight times, Guelph Maple Leafs were cut down to a two-way tie with the Panthers for league leadership Saturday and left inactive last night when they were rained out at St. Thomas.

Drub Galt 2-0

The Panthers pounced on the opportunity and ripped Galt Terriers 2-0 to gain a half-game edge on the Leafs.

The third-place Brantford Red Sox, in their fifth successive win, firmly fastened their position by defeating Waterloo Tigers 7-2.

Chuck Fedoris, 25-year-old righthander, notched his ninth win with Kitchener, holding the Terriers to five singles. He allowed no walks and fanned four.

Don Miller started for Galt but lasted less than one inning, being replaced by Bob McDonald.

Second baseman George Boniface crossed the plate with the Panthers' first run in the first on an infield fly by leftfielder Mel Duncan. Rightfielder Dick Welker added the second in the second on a single by catcher John Bayliff.

Moyer Switches Lineup

Waterloo coach Johnny Moyer pulled a surprise switch by lifting Tom Lawson from rightfield and placing him on the mound with pitcher Gord Ariss replacing him in the outfield. He was relieved in the eighth by Cy Bricker with two on and two down. He walked eight and fanned four, allowing nine hits for seven runs.

A homer by Brantford's Tom McGrattan brought in two runners. The Sox added another in the fourth and three more in the seventh.

George Copelnd travelled the distance for Brantford, with a record of six hits, five walks and six strike outs.

The last-place St. Thomas Elgins travel to Kitchener tonight to meet the leaders.

Fleetwood Takes Yacht Race

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. (AP) The Fleetwood, a 34-foot yawl, breezed to victory on corrected times yesterday in the 333-mile Chicago-to-Mackinac yacht race.

Aided by a 13¾-hour handicap, the little speedster owned by Nick Geib of Chicago scored the best time not only in its division of class C and D craft but in the first division as well.

The Fleetwood finished the grind in 48 hours, 56 minutes, 19 seconds for a corrected time of 36:42.20.

That gave her a corrected time more than nine hours ahead of the first boat actually to cross the finish line—the big 10-metre sloop Freebooter. This latter craft, owned by the Pohn brothers of Chicago, finished in 46:27:41, with a corrected time of 45:09:42.

Canuck Boxers Are Eliminated

HELSINKI (CP)—Robert Steckle of Kitchener was eliminated from the light-heavyweight class in Olympic wrestling yesterday. He lost to Jacob Theron of South Africa. It was his second defeat in two days.

Nick Mohammed of Vancouver lost to William Smith of the United States in the welterweight class and was eliminated.

Newfie Walker Ousted From Olympic 50 Kilos

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (CP)—Ferd Hayward, Newfoundland's marathon walker, practically had to finish the Olympic 50-kilometre walk on one leg but he's fixing to go into the 10-kilometre event just to show he has the stuff.

The 41-year-old brewery engineer from St. John's carried Canada's hopes into the long event yesterday but had tough luck most of the way. But despite a spell of sickness and a knotted muscle he shuffled across the finish line in 25th place.

When reporters went looking for him after the race they found he had taken a bit of a busman's holiday—he had gone for a stroll just to limber up his left leg.

Hayward indicated he may change the decision he made a few days ago and enter the shorter event because "I would like to vindicate myself."

Warned By Official

At the five-mile mark in yesterday's race, won by Italy's Giuseppe Dordoni, the Newfoundlander was warned by an official and changed his style of walking in fear of being disqualified.

Then with 18 miles to go and in 13th place, he stopped at a competitors' refreshment booth for a glass of water. There was plenty of dextrose in the water and Hayward became violently ill.

He weathered the stomach pains and went on until he developed a knotted muscle behind the knee in his left leg and couldn't straighten the limb. But with one good leg he made it to the finish line in Olympic Stadium.

Hayward wore specially made shoes he ordered in Helsinki and had no trouble with his feet. Despite his hard luck he said: "I felt fine throughout the race and I still feel fine although the left leg is bothering me a bit."

Bangtails Keep Up With Jones Boys, Fillies Prides of Calumet Stable

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK (AP)—In 1948 when Citation and Coaltown were stacking up the folding green for Calumet Farm, most everyone but the Jones boys were thinking the two colts should meet in a match race.

But papa Ben, the head Calumet trainer, and son Jimmy, weren't considered crazy then, and nobody can say the Joneses are loco these days.

Now, instead of two of the greatest colts racing has seen in years, they've got two of the best three-year old fillies the sport has produced in many a moon—Real Delight and A Gleam.

At It Again

A lot of racing people are clamoring for a showdown race between Real Delight and A Gleam. There's as much chance for this as in 1948 when Ben and Jimmy laughed off suggestions that they send Citation against Coaltown.

Coaltown, it will be recalled, sailed out and opened up six lengths or so on Citation in the 1952 Kentucky Derby. Then Citation began to move and Coaltown got himself second money at Churchill Downs.

Jimmy campaigned in the east after the Derby with Citation, and Ben took care of things with Coaltown.

"Why should the two horses be knocking each others' brains out," asked Jimmy, "when they can split up and do it to the opposition?"

Calumet had something there, and they've got the same situation today.

Three $1,000,000 Yanks

The Lexington, Ky., stable earned $1,269,710 in 1948. Calumet went over the $1,000,000 mark in 1947, and again in 1949. It is the only stable ever to exceed $1,000,000 in a single season.

After mopping up in Kentucky, Maryland and New York with Real Delight, Ben Jones took the fancy-stepping filly to Chicago for more of the same. Jimmy Jones has been digging up chunks of gold with A Gleam at the California tracks. Thanks to their efforts in the main, Calumet already has banked some $800,000 this year.

Who's nuts? Not the Jones boys.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

A very brilliant and imaginative sports writer, Grantland Rice, once wrote a poem, each verse of which ended up with the statement: "The records wait."

With the Olympic Games just around the corner, you realize that there's a great significance to this phrase. The records wait. And in track-field, they don't wait too long.

Oldsters claim that athletes of this era aren't as good as the men of yore, but you can't prove it by track-field performances. Indeed, the way running and jumping records tumble these days it almost is not worth the effort to go out and set them. It has gotten so that a man no longer can run a 10.2 100-metres and expect his mark to last very long. Jesse Owens, rated the fastest human of all time, back in the '30's, found that out when he set his World's Record in 1936. Since then five other sprinters have equalled his figures; Harold Davis of the United States (1941), Lloyd LaBeach of Panama and Barney Ewell, United States (1948), MacDonald Bailey, Trinidad (1951), and Herbert Thompson, United States (1939).

The oldest individual record on the books, except some walking records (and that form of sport has just about gone by the boards) and a few of the longer metric distance events, is Glenn Hardin's 400-metre hurdles clocking of 50.6s. It was set in 1934, and has for 18 years, at the time these lines were written, withstood assaults upon it. Most of the other existing Worlds Records were set in the late '40's or early '50's.

There was a time within memory when an even 10 seconds was considered brilliant time for the 100 yards dash. Then it was cut by a fifth of a second, then by two-fifths, when Arthur F. Duffey sped over the cinders in 9 3/5, around the turn of the century. But today, that time would hardly qualify in a heat. Mel Patton cut the time to 9 3/10, which may not sound to the uninitiated like a gigantic reduction. But at that speed a difference of three-tenths of a second means almost three yards.

The 100 metres dash at the first Olympic revival in 1896 was 12 seconds. Tommy Burke of the United States won it. At the last Olympics, a slim Negro, Harrison Dilliard, won in 10.3, a difference of 15 yards. It's hardly believable.

The boys haven't hit the 4-minute mile yet, but they will, any time now. It took some time to carve the record down to Gunder Haegg's 4.01.4. The amateur record 4.19.8 set by W. G. George of England in 1881, stood for 22 years, when America's John Paul Jones lopped it to 4.15.4. Then everybody got at it. Norman Taber, Paavo Nurmi the inscrutable Finn, Ladoumegue of France, Cunningham of the U.S.; Stanley Wooderson of England, all carved new marks. Then came Haegg, to eclipse all previous performances. That was seven years ago. The time is ripe for a new record, at the classic distance.

So it goes. Are men growing faster, stronger, or is it the superior coaching, the more systematic and scientific training? Perhaps it's the latter. We imagine so. Whatever it is, track-field records indicate that moderns do most things better than did their hardy forbears.

Russians Lead Olympics With 133 Points After Winning Five Firsts

USA Second, 60 Points Behind, Switzerland, Japan Follow; Canadians Are Eliminated

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (CP)—Canada's little band of Olympic competitors are almost lost in the shuffle in these 1952 Games but they have a ringside seat for the titanic sports battle between their neighbors to the south and Russia's athletes.

Yesterday they saw the United States pick up its fifth first-place gold medal of eight final events completed in two days. That is the best U.S. performance since the 1904 games in St. Louis, Mo.

The U.S. picked up four firsts yesterday, giving it a brief lead over the Russians.

Russia Tops Standing

But Russia regained its over-all lead last night by picking up five firsts, four seconds and a flock of lesser places in the gymnastics finals. The unofficial point standings read 133½ for Russia against 72 for the U.S.

In combined totals, Switzerland was third with 47, followed by Japan 24½ and Czechoslovakia 16½.

By last night the American total had reached its mark of 72 on wins in track and field events—central sport of the games. The Russians at that time had only 40 points for second place.

Points are computed on the basis of 10-5-4-3-2-1 for the first six places in any final.

Sweden was sixth with 16, Britain had 14, Finland 12½, Italy 11, Hungary 9, Germany 7½, Brazil 7, Jamaica 5, France 5, Poland 4½, New Zealand 4, Austria 3, Romania 2 and Australia 1.

The four firsts won by the United States yesterday were gathered in by Parry O'Brien, Lindy Reminigo, Charlie Moore and Jerry Biffle.

Italy Wins Medal

The fifth final went to Italy. Guiseppe Dordoni won the 50-kilometre walk in world and Olympic record time of four hours, 28 minutes, 7.8 seconds. Dordoni celebrated by going for a pleasure stroll last night.

O'Brien, a big Californian, broke the Olympic record in the shot put with a toss of 57 feet, 1.43 inches—17.41 metres. Two teammates took second and third to give the United States a triple in the event.

Reminigo, a New Yorker, got the nod of the judges—and the cameras—in a thrilling finish of the 100-metre dash. The blanket finish was so close that the first four men timed in 10.4 seconds.

Herb McKenley of Jamaica, thought by many to have flashed first over the line, was placed second. Britain's Emmanuel McDonald Smith was third and Dean Smith of the United States fourth.

Beats Own Record

Charlie Moore, Cornell University man, won the 400-metre hurdles in 50.8 seconds, equalling the Olympic mark he set in a preliminary heat the day before. He shook off a final challenge by Juril Lituev of Russia.

Biffle, from Denver, took first in the broad jump, coming through while George Brown, the United States champion, fouled three straight times.

The women's 100-metre sprint went through two rounds yesterday and an Australian girl, Marjorie Jackson, was established the favorite. Fanny Blankers-Koen, 34-year-old housewife from Holland who won four Olympic medals in 1948, ran second in a heat to qualify for today's semi-final. The final was scheduled two hours later.

Three Canadian girls were eliminated in the sprint. Rosella Thorne of Montreal and Luella Law of Vancouver went out in the preliminary heat. Eleanor McKenzie survived that but was eliminated in the second heat.

There was a top-notch field for today's 800-metre final. It included Mal Whitfield of Columbus, Ohio, winner in 1948; Arthur Wint of Jamaica and Reggie Pearman of New York.

Two Canadians were eliminated in yesterday's semi-final. Bill Parnell of North Vancouver could place only sixth. Jack Hutchins of Vancouver made a great recovery after being bumped and elbowed by a Polish runner. He was left last in the field of six but got up in the last 200 metres to finish fourth, just missing the last qualifying berth.

Miller Falls

Ron Miller of Toronto failed to get past the qualification round in the pole vault. The final went on today.

Armand Bernard of Montreal was the only Canadian wrestler still winning. He won his second successive featherweight match yesterday.

Canada's eight-oared crew—Toronto Argonauts—finished in a dead heat with Sweden's crew in the repechage heat—a second-chance heat. The re-row, ordered by the judges after scanning photographs, was scheduled for today.

Hamilton Leanders, in the fours, and Bob Williams and Derek Riley, the Winnipeg double sculls entry, were eliminated.

Britain's Leander crew and the United States navy crew from Aannapolis, Md., have already qualified for the final in the eights.

Russia Beats Kelly

Mervyn Wood of Australia, Olympic single sculls champion, was beaten yesterday by Tony Fox of Britain. Turij Tjukalov of Russia defeated Philadelphia's Jack Kelly, Jr. Both Wood and Kelly went into the second-chance repechage.

After two days of yacht racing, Norway's Pan was leading in the dragon class and Elizabeth X, also of Norway, was ahead in the six-metre "R" class. Italy's Merope led in the star class.

The Toronto yacht Trickson was fifth in point standing in the six-metre class. The Montreal yacht Whirlaway was in 13th place in the star class, and Jet of Hamilton was in 11th place in the six-metre class.

In gymnastics, Russia won the combined team event with Switzerland second, Finland third, Germany fourth, Japan fifth and Hungary sixth. The United States was eighth. Canada has no gymnastics entry.

Toronto Yorks In Second Spot

HAMILTON (CP)—Toronto West Yorks vaulted into second place in the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior A standings last night when they downed Hamilton Tigers 13-9 in overtime. The Toronto team banged in four unanswered goals in the extra session.

The Tigers took a 3-1 first-period lead, but Toronto led 6-3 at the finish of the second session and held a 7-6 margin by the end of the third. The score was tied 9-9 at the end of regulation time.

Jim McNulty and Ken Croft led the Toronto scorers with three goals each. Merv McKenzie and Doug Davidson each garnered a pair for the Tigers.

Redmen Score Three in Ninth To Tie Pastime at Seven All, But G.I's Plate Four in 10th

In a game that was as wacky in spots as it was good in others, the Camp Drumm, U. S. Army military camp team, defeated the Redmen 11-7 last night at the Exhibition Grounds.

The Redmen staged a touch of drama in the ninth innings despite the fact costly errors had paved the way to a Camp Drumm lead. Trailing 7-4 they staged a last-ditch rally that netted them three runs and tied the ball game.

Then to show there were no hard feelings between the two countries, the Reds dished up five juicy hits in the top of the tenth that netted the G. I. Joes four runs and another international incident was avoided.

Had 7-2 Lead

The doughboys had a 7-2 lead going into the last half of the eighth, thanks to five costly bobbles by the Red infield and some neat clutch clouting on the part of their hitters and despite the fact they erred three times their infield had come up with some sparkling defensive plays.

Up to this point the best the Red hitters could do was four clouts, but they grabbed two more plus a walk and a wild pitch in the eighth good for two runs and then slammed out five in the ninth in a Merriwell finish that had the large crowd sitting on the edge of the seats. That tied the score. At that a couple of inches would have won the game for the Reds for Sammy Mulholland was called out on a daring slide to the plate with what would have been the clincher.

Johnny Brosnan, said to be the property of the Cleveland Indians, had all the mound artistry of a big leaguer. He looked and acted for one, and for eight innings tossed the ball like one. He let the Reds down with six measly clouts up to the ninth when they tabbed him for five more for three runs, struck out nine and walked six. Brosnan was good in the clutches shutting off Red rallies on three occasions

Use Three Hurlers

Billy Strahan started for the Reds and hurled for six innings, giving up seven hits for four runs during that time. Johnny Mowat took over and allowed three hits for as many runs in as many innings and then gave way to pinch-hitter Art Wright.

Coach McCabe went in in the tenth colder than a landlord's heart and he was nicked for five hits and four runs and was tabbed with the loss. At that he whiffed two and walked one. Strahan struck out three and walked one while Mowat strolled three and struck out seven.

Red Carson was the big hitter for the Reds tabbing a double and two singles for a perfect night at the plate. Al Kelleher was good for a pair.

Big Moose Tellinger, huge first sacker for the Drummers, tagged a fence double and two singles, driving in four runs while Lucchesia was good for three loners. Adam and Brosnan hit a double and single each with Aiella and Russell getting two singles, the latter driving in three runs.

Royals Nip Leafs With 3 in Ninth; Wings Keep Pace

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

George Condrick, Rochester Red Wings pitcher, probably could make the grade on his hitting power alone.

Condrick not only held Springfield Cubs to seven hits last night, but struck the big blow as his team recorded a 3-1 victory to stay within 2½ games of Montreal Royals in the International League.

He came up with the bases loaded in the sixth inning with the score 0-0 and clouted a single scoring two runs, enough for the victory. Wes Carr was the victim.

Royals, meanwhile, edged Toronto Maple Leafs 4-3, coming up with three runs in the ninth inning. Al Fabbro, third of four Montreal hurlers, got credit for the victory while starter Hal Hudson of the Leafs was charged with the defeat.

Syracuse Chiefs whipped Ottawa Athletics 5-4 despite home runs by Lou Limmer and Stan Jok for the losers. Ottawa scored all its runs in the last two innings, but Bob Keegan managed to survive for the win.

The Baltimore-Buffalo game was postponed because of rain and wet grounds.

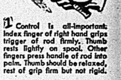
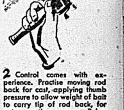
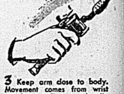
"COOL CONTROL"
OVERHEAD BAIT CASTING



1 Control is all-important: Index finger of right hand grips trigger of rod firmly. Thumb rests lightly on spool. Other fingers press handle of rod into palm. Thumb should be relaxed, rest of grip firm but not rigid.



2 Control comes with experience. Practise moving rod back for cast, applying thumb pressure to allow weight of bait to carry tip of rod back, for extra casting power. Relax thumb pressure when rod begins forward movement; apply again just before bait hits water.



3 Keep arm close to body. Movement comes from wrist and forearm. Fingers on handle open as rod moves back, close as rod comes forward. Concentrate on wrist movement for accuracy. Aim; come back fast; forward twice as fast. Remember — only experience gives perfect control.

Yes, it's control that counts, in fishing as in every sport — control which brings the extraordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

This is one of a series designed to increase the pleasure of Canadians who participate in sports.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When Lady Luck pelts you with scorns, the best of your efforts are crummy. You may as well pull in your horns and play the cards close to your tummy.

Aside from the thrill, you get a big bonus for bidding a slam that you fulfill. On the other hand, the loss is heavy if you reach a slam that you fail to make. You lose the game value.

So, a wise pair uses a sound slam finder. Not only to discover when a slam is within range. Not only to find out how big a slam it can be. But also to warn when the probable slam is unsafe.

For this, the Horse Sense slam system is like radar. First we get a sign that slam is probable. Then we learn how close we are to it. Then we decide if it is best to go on or stop short of the target.

So it is in this deal:

NORTH
♠8 6 3 2
♥A Q J 10 8 4
♦9 3

WEST
♠J 9 7
♥5 2
♦J 10 8 7 2
♣A 5 3

EAST
♠Q 5
♥K 9 7 6 3
♦5 4
♣J 7 4 2

SOUTH
♠A K 10 4
♥None
♦A K Q 6
♣K Q 10 9 6

Say the bidding gets this far:

South	North
2 C	2 H
2 S	3 H
4 D	4 S

The immediate positive response by north says a slam is probable. When north later showed preference for spades, trump suit is decided.

So, south bids four no-trump; the ace and king asker. North replies with five diamonds, signal for one ace and no kings. This tells south what a slam may be up against.

The ace north has is probably in the heart suit he bid twice. The belated spade assist by north may mean opponents have a trick in trump. With that much to go on, where would you tell south to go?

Watch your language, Junior. Say five spades. If you are lucky it may make six. Try each lead. We may both need the practice.

GETTING LIGHTER

A person weighs about 12 ounces less at either the North or South Pole than he does at the equator.

CNR Athletics Even Series With Motor Car

CNR Athletics evened their series with Belleville Motor Car last evening by pounding out an 8-2 decision in an hour and five minutes at the Alemite Field.

The third game in their quarter final series for the right to represent the Belleville and District League in the OASA intermediate AA playoffs will be played at the CNR Recreation Field Wednesday evening.

The Athletics scored their first run in the first inning when leadoff man Nolan slammed a triple to right field. He scored on Pearce's hoist to centre. Murray scored their second run in the third frame. He singled and went all the way to third on an error in right field on Nolan's fly ball. Pearce walked to load the bases and Murray scored as Nolan was erased on a fielder's choice.

A walk to Jack Moon, a single by Murray, and a home run to centrefield by Doug Rodgers netted the Athletics three more tallies in the fourth.

The Motormen picked up their first tally in the third on two singles and two errors, and scored their second and last run in the fourth on a single by Powers and a triple by James.

The Athletics counted their final three runs in the fifth. Pearce walked, and Lockyer and Bertrim singled to load the bases. Donly was yanked and Jack Reid came on to do the pitching for the Motors. He served up a dandy to Jack Moon who belted a clean single to centrefield that got through the fielder's legs for two extra bases as three runs came galloping home.

Boyle walked and then in an attempted double steal, Moon was thrown out at the plate as Boyle took second, but Boyle was nailed trying to take third on the play at the plate.

Fred Waite went all the way on the hill for the winners walking none, striking out two, and giving up eight hits for two runs.

Donly started for the Motors and in four and one third innings walked three, struck out none, and gave up six hits for all the runs. Reid finished up giving up just one hit. He walked three and struck out two.

Murray with two singles in four trips led the winners at the plate. Tapp, with three singles in four tries led the Motors at bat.

Former Chinese Red Calls on Countrymen To Toss Off Russ Yoke

HONG KONG (AP)—The former high chief of the Chinese Communists has called on his countrymen to throw off Russian influence and turn to the United Nations for support.

This appeal to the Chinese to rid "yourselves of the Peiping tyrants who are exploiting and making fools of you" comes from Chang Kuo-tao, who headed the Chinese Communist party until 1938 when he was ousted by the present leader, Mao Tze-tung.

Writing in the July issue of the non-Communist liberal magazine "China Voice" Chang says "the tensions in the world today largely are the result of the Chinese Communists accepting the erroneous leadership of Russia."

Chang calls present-day Communism "Czarist Imperialism," and says that now is the time for the Chinese people, including the Communists, to choose "between war and peace, vassalage and independence, peaceful labor and destruction."

Point Anne Beats Frankford In 1st Game, 8-1

Point Anne Cementmen took a one-game lead in their best-of-three series with Frankford Merchants to decide third place in the Belleville and District Softball League last evening as they handed the Merchants an 8-1 defeat at Point Anne.

The second game will be played Wednesday evening in Frankford and the site of the third, if necessary, will be decided by the toss of a coin.

Frankford scored their lone run in the top of the first frame. Dafoe lead off with a single and Rankin walked. Cosgrove moved them both along with a sacrifice, and Curtis delivered the run from third with a long fly to centrefield. Farr struck out to end the inning.

Point Anne took the lead in the second inning with a three-run rally on two errors, a walk, and two singles. They added three more in the fifth on two walks, two singles and an error.

Roger Mallory made it a rout in the sixth as he blasted a tremendous home run to right centrefield to score Strahan, who had singled, in front of him.

Maracle Gets Win

Pat Maracle went all the way on the firing line for the Cementmen. He walked three, struck out three, and gave up four hits for one run.

Farr did the flinging for the Merchants and over the route walked four struck out six, and gave up nine hits for the runs.

Wood and Strahan each had two hits in four trips, for the winners while Genereaux had two-for-five.

Dafoe, Rankin, Farr, and Murphy each hit safely for the losers.

Lineup:

Frankford: Dafoe 1b, Rankin cf, Cosgrove 2b, Curtis 3b, Farr p, Murphy c Wickson in 8th, Gilmour lf, Cooke ss, Appleby rf Bedard in 7th.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—William Shakespeare is being given another whirl in Hollywood. It is hoped the old boy won't be whirling in his grave after this try.

The bard has never fared too well at the hands of the Hollywood filmmakers. But this time M.G.M. is exercising the utmost care to make sure Shakespearians as well as movie fans are satisfied with its version of "Julius Caesar." Witness the facts:

1. John Gielgud, ace Shakespearian actor of England, is being imported to play Cassius.
1. Greer Garson and Deborah Kerr are playing virtual walk-ons.
3. Marlon (Mumbles) Brando will talk plainly as Marc Antony.

Happy Cast

Producer John Houseman, who produced Shakespeare with Orson Welles on Broadway, reported that it was easy to persuade Gielgud to play his first United States Movie. Miss Kerr volunteered for her tiny part, and Miss Garson easily acceded. "While the roles of Portia (Kerr) and Calpurnia (Garson) are only about three pages, the scenes are important," Houseman explained.

Completing the cast are James Mason as Brutus and Louis Calhern as Julius Caesar.

Past Errors

The producer said he encountered some opposition to a Shakespearian project, largely due to past mishaps. He explained their errors:

"'Romeo and Juliet' (1936) suffered, I believe, because it was largely created by movie people, instead of those connected with the stage. Also, Norma Shearer and Leslie Howard had no Shakespearian experience.

"Orson Welles' 'MacBeth' (1948) had three strikes against it: A limited budget; the Scotch accent; and Orson was too busy to concentrate on his performance."

But Houseman added that Laurence Olivier's "Henry v" and "Hamlet" blazed the trail for Shakespeare on film.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Bright Victory"

Five years ago, Peggy Dow, then a co-ed at the Gulf Park College in Louisiana, was voted "the most talented girl of 1946."

Today, in Hollywood, the same Peggy Dow has been voted by motion picture critics and theatre exhibitors "the screen newcomer most likely to achieve stardom in 1951."

The young and attractive actress takes another important step toward achieving the latter citation by virtue of her starring role opposite Broadway favorite Arthur Kennedy in Universal-International's "Bright Victory," now showing at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

"Bright Victory," adapted for the screen from the best-selling novel "Lights Out" by Baynard Kendrick, is considered one of the classic motion picture love stories of the past decade.

Following her graduation from Gulf Park College, Peggy took a post-graduate course at Northwestern University where she participated in school dramatics.

A minor role in a Hollywood television production caught the attention of Hollywood talent scouts and she was given a screen test at Universal - International. Her name was added to the acting roster and Peggy enrolled at the studio's dramatic school where she received instruction from the talented Sophie Rosenstein, studio drama coach.

Peggy made her first screen start playing the "other woman" role in "Woman In Hiding," starring Ida Lupino, Stephen McNally and Howard Duff.

AT THE CAPITOL — Marshall Thompson in the Jack Broder production, "The Basketball Fix," the latest and most timely release, showing tonight and Wednesday at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program Warner Bros. super-Cinecolor comedy, "Jack and the Beanstalk," starring Abbott and Costello. Both hits are first showings.

SURVIVES 15,00 VOLTS

VANCOUVER (CP)—A safety belt yesterday saved the life of Charlie Mussel, 21-year-old electrician, when he was knocked from a sign atop the 10-storey Sylvia Hotel here by 15,000 volts of electrical current. Mussel was checking the sign's circuit when he accidentally touched a hot wire. He suffered multiple burns on hands and arms.

FIVE ROOMS

The predominant dwelling size in Canada is five rooms.

AT THE CAPITOL — Bud Abbott and Lou Costello star in "Jack and the Beanstalk," their first comedy in color, now at the Capitol tonight and Wednesday. On the same program a timely thriller "The Basketball Fix," starring John Ireland. Both hits are first showings.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY, JULY 23 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Excellent indications for attainment, fresh gains, personal and business. Don't scoff at small successes, they build for a bigger, stronger whole.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—A happy prosperous outlook for you. Don't permit the blues or any other disturbing element to prevent you from achieving at tasks.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Very encouraging aspects for all worthy endeavors, brain work, industrial trades, children's interests, healthy activities for young and old.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Friendly configurations all around you. Do your best in whatever the day requires, you will accomplish much and be happy.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Day can be as much as you make it; planetary influences friendly for those who use day rightly. Labor, artistic professions, research among top honored.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Be your cheeriest, most hopeful self and see how quickly obstacles tumble, the path to attainment becomes cleared. Excellent day for brain work, personal gain, good will building.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Private affairs, useful social gatherings, home and family interests top the favorites this generous, star benefic day. Occupational duties, industrial trades, manufacturing highly sponsored.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Even your vigorous Mars is mild in influence this (you-help-make-it) promising day. Whatever your urgent duties, attend them quickly, efficiently.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Not all encouraging for money matters, quick returns for investments and like business, but it is generally a fine period for all worthy effort.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—One of your bright, generous planetary days. Make the most of it. No need to strain health, but try not to fall behind in essentials.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Similar tendencies to Sagittarius now. Much depends upon your duties, how you allocate them and manage generally. Don't waste time on unimportant little things.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Your Neptune among the planets in highly benefic configurations this day. Familiar matters equally sponsored with new, perhaps venturesome undertakings.

YOU BORN TODAY are a delightful, though sometimes puzzling, mixture of Cancer-Leo characteristics and talents. Active, ambitious, perhaps inclined to be too bossy at times, but innately honorable. Very capable, have fine salesmanship ability. Prayer a wonderful aid at all times. Birthdate: James Cardinal Gibbons; Coventry Keasey Dighton Patmere, Eng. poet.

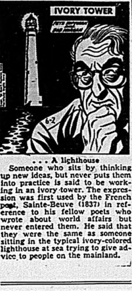
Why We Say . . .



. . . A lighthouse

Someone who sits by thinking up new ideas, but never puts them into practice is said to be working in an ivory tower. The expression was first used by the French poet, Sainte-Beuve (1837) in reference to his fellow poets who wrote about world affairs but never entered them. He said that they were the same as someone sitting in the typical ivory-colored lighthouse at sea trying to give advice to people on the mainland.

Little Benny's Note Book

We had liver and onions for pop's honor, and ma handed him a platefull and pop said, Ah, food for the gods on Mount Ollympuss. I dont even need to eat this, I'd be sattisfied to sit here and sniff it. Still, I may eat 2 or 3 helpings just to preserve the common touch. Where's the salt? he said.

There delibritly doesn't happen to be any salt on the table, ma said. I dont hear you asking where the food is, she said, and pop said, Why should I for Peet sake, when it's steeming rite here under my nose?

And that's just the point, ma said. Why dont you taist it and see if it needs salt before you deluge it with a perfect shower? What's the good of my spending countless hours seasoning food carefully to the correct proportions, only to see you strewing salt all over it like a madman without even taisting it? It's just an unreasoning habit, that's all it is. Now taist it for land sakes, she said.

Gladly, my dear, pop said.

Which he did, saying, It's perfect, my dear. Anything added to it would detract from it, he said, and ma said, Good, now you can eat it like a cornersewer and not a salt strewer.

My dear, I'll eat it like a Frentch goormay, pop said, and he took 2 more bites making happy faces, saying, Still, something seems to be trubbling me. By gollies I know. I have a feeling that I'm being regimented, that I've lost the harmless liberty of even seeing the salt on the table. But of course that's just silly, forget it, he said, and ma said, Oh sutch a man. Here's your liberty, she said.

And she got the salt celler out of the buffay and put it in frunt of pop, and pop put a little all over his plate, claiming he just did it for the principal of the thing.

Only Two Prisoners Involved Says Basher

TORONTO (CP)—Col. Hedley Basher, deputy minister of reform institutions, said yesterday only two prisoners were involved in a demonstration Sunday night in Kent county jail at Chatham.

Reports that 14 of the 25 prisoners took part were untrue, he said.

One source said the disturbance was caused by two men who protested against their food and that six men in the ward at the time also took part in the outbreak.

Mr. Basher said one of the ringleaders, "a United States man named Columbus," is waiting to go to Kingston penitentiary. He is appealing against his sentence.

"The other man is Lyle Wallace, who has been sentenced to six months definite and six months indefinite."

The disturbance was "over in two or three minutes," he said.

"To the best of my knowledge the food is the best and well served."

Freighter Crew Leap Into Sea Fearing Explosion

Billows of smoke rise from the Norwegian freighter "Black Gull" as the ship burned some 65 miles off New York. The 49 persons aboard ship leaped from the freighter when the highly inflammable cargo of napthalene apparently consumed the boats. Forty-five were picked up by the Swedish luxury-liner Gripsholm and transferred to the coast guard cutter Mackinac. Four are unaccounted for and feared lost. — Central Press Canadian.

Following an unusually heavy rain youngsters in Toronto's suburban York township were able to go for a swim on Harvie Ave. Basements in houses were flooded and automobiles stalled after the heaviest downpour — 1.33 inches — of the year in Toronto. — (CP Photo.)

Simpsons-Sears To Operate Mail Order Business

TORONTO (CP)—A development unique in Canadian merchandising was announced yesterday in the formation of a new company to buy the mail order office business of Simpsons, Limited, on Jan. 7, 1953.

The new company, to be called Simpsons-Sears, Limited, will bring into the Canadian retail field for the first time the giant United States mail order house of Sears, Roebuck and Company of Chicago.

Simpson-Sears, to be owned 50 per cent by Simpsons, Limited, and 50 per cent by Sears, Roebuck, will expand the present mail order business and also operate a chain of retail stores across Canada. Locations of the new stores were not announced.

Stores Not Included

Five department stores owned by Simpsons, Limited, at Toronto, Montreal, London, Regina and Halifax are not affected in the deal, which will be submitted to the company's shareholders as soon as documents are drawn up.

Simpsons, Limited, is a holding company of which the Robert Simpson Co., Ltd., is a wholly-owned subsidiary. The latter operated the department stores, a mail order business in Toronto, Halifax and Vancouver and order offices and agencies in nearly 300 Canadian centres.

$102 Million Assets

The combined Canadian companies are shown in the annual report for the year ending Jan. 2, 1952, have total assets of $102,306,014, including $47,602,358 in land, buildings and equipment; $22,637,620 in merchandise and $22,163,560 in accounts receivable.

Sears, Roebuck, the biggest mail order house in the U.S., operates 681 stores in 47 states, Hawaii and four foreign countries. Last year the company earned an estimated net profit of $114,000,000.

SISTERLY LOVE

WELLINGTON, England (CP)—Kate Lander, 84, and her sister, Edith, 83, who lived together and shared the same interests and friends for many years, died on the same day last February. They had both made wills leaving their personal wealth, totalling about 15,000 pounds, to each other. The money has been distributed among other relatives.

I Can't Cry Now.

By Addie McElfresh

Katy Elmo sat very still. He was going to say it—in a minute he would say it, and then—Katy stiffened. Inside. Outwardly there was no change in her calm.

"You said you were going to Springfield."

"I didn't go."

"I know you didn't, Katy." Dave Argus was being kind—too kind. In a minute now—any minute—he wouldn't be. "But you told Ted Jordan you were going to spend a few days with friends there and you didn't go. Why, Katy?"

"I've told you. I just decided not to."

"And you expect people to believe you?"

"No. No, I don't."

Katy watched surprise spread over Dave Argus's rugged, familiar face.

"Why not?"

Katy kept her eyes on her hands, tight-clasped in her lap. Her voice was stony as she said, "Because I'm Chris Elmo's sister."

"Nonsense!" He sounded like he meant it. "Katy this is just a horrible coincidence. Why, you hardly knew the woman. Did you?" he asked with sudden, renewed suspicion.

Katy closed her eyes to the friendship struggling with doubt in his earnest face, but she couldn't close her memory to the terrible picture of Agnes Jerome, lying dead beneath the narrow foot bridge across the creek in the woods...and Major, on the bank, raising his fine head to mouth another of those low tremulous mournful howls that had brought her from the house.

Listening to the voices growing lounder in the hall, sh esaid, "I hardly knew her, Dave."

Here comes the sheriff, Katy thought, and her heart gave a frightened leap. Dave was different, Dave was trying to be kind and understanding. After all, they had been friends since school days, those good, happy days when she had dreamed of teaching and Chris was going to be a writer. A great writer. And now Chris was dead, and she wasn't teaching any more because the school board felt it could not allow the sister of a murderer to mold teen-age lives.

Katy felt sick inside. It wasn't true, of course, Chris had not killed old Link Murphy, he just couldn't have! Her heart cried out in silent despair, "Now I'll never prove it! Agnes Jerome was going to prove it. Agnes, somehow, knew—but Agnes was dead, too. Murdered...and they think I did it! She looked at her hands. Could I strangle anyone? Do they think that?"

With an effort, she brought her thoughts back to what Dave was saying. "I'm sorry. I was—thinking."

"But you had seen Agnes around?" Obviously, Dave was repeating his question.

"Why, yes. Yes, I had." Katy took a deep breath, made a decision. "In fact, Dave, I had two or three rather lengthy conversations with Miss Jerome when Johnny, her younger brother, you know, was in school." She frowned at the memory, explaining, "Johnny Jerome was a bit of a disciplinary problem." But that was three years ago, she thought, maybe four...She didn't recall having met the woman since—until this morning, and then Agnes Jerome was dead.

"I see." Idly, Dave Argus fiddled with the ring of keys on the sheriff's desk.

"You don't see!" Katy mentally stamped her foot. "You think I killed her just because I found her body."

"Now Katy—" Dave looked at her and away—"I've got a job to do, Katy. Investigating murder. The murder of someone we both knew. It isn't easy."

"Just like Chris, isn't it?" Katy demanded bitterly.

"Katy, please—"

"Just like Chris—because now you're trying to pin this one on me! Well, let me tell you, Dave Argus, I did not kill Agnes Jerome any—anymore than Chris killed Link Murphy! And you know it!"

"I wish I knew!"

The crisp new voice belonged to Henry Ledbetter, who wore his sheriff's badge with an officious, bombastic pride that completely shadowed his deputy's easy-going, friendly mien. Was that, Katy Elmo thought with a sudden new alarm, the secret of Dave's success as Ledbetter's deputy? Because Dave was the perfect foil for Ledbetter's hard-boiled front, because people felt at ease with Dave—and talked?

The fear curled and lay, hard and cold, in the pit of her stomach. Dave had been Chris's friend, yes—but when they found Chris and Link Murphy dead together, a gun near each lifeless hand and a back window of Murphy's Grocery jimmied, Dave had been like all the rest. He too, had accepted the obvious: Link Murphy had surprised Chris trying to open the safe, Chris shot him, and the older man, dying, had raised his own gun and killed Chris.

It hadn't mattered that Chris had no need to jimmy an alley window or the safe. Not when he had worked for Link Murphy since high school, when he made Saturday deliveries, and since the Army, after which he went to work in earnest, hating the job because the long hours kept him from The Book. But he didn't hate Link Murphy—and he didn't kill him.

Katy had been sure of that from the first dreadful moment, when Ted came to tell her, and then, last night, Agnes Jerome had telephoned and she had been even more certain.

"I've go to see you, Miss Elmo!" The woman had sounded breathless. Had it been fright that made her seem so? Katy wondered now, remembering.

"I was just leaving." She had planned to go to Springfield.

"It's awfully important." Agnes' voice had faded momentarily. Had she looked over her shoulder. Was that why? "It's—about Chris, Miss Elmo."

Chris! "Where are you? I'll come—"

"You can't come here! I'll come to you!"

"But Miss Jerome—"

"I can't talk—I've got to get out of here."

She hung up hurriedly, and Katy had let her own telephone slide into its cradle.

Now, sitting in the sheriff's office, practically accused of the woman's murder, Katy Elmo said with the calm that comes when a person must believe in something, "Agnes Jerome knew who killed Mr. Murphy and Chris. She was going to tell me."

In the silence Katy watched them, Dave who wanted to believe, Sheriff Henry Ledbetter whose moustached, ruddy face could not hide his doubt.

"If that's true—"

"Wait, Hank," Dave Argus stopped the sheriff. Then, with that deceptively quiet gentleness that warned Katy not to trust him, "Tell us about it, Katy."

Katy told them. About Agnes Jerome's telephone call, and the long wait when she did not come. "I waited hours nearly all night, before I went to bed. And then, this morning, I—well—there she was. Major found her."

Dave Argus nodded, trading a look with Ledbetter before he asked, "While you waited, Katy, what did you do?"

"Nothing. I just—waited, until—oh, I don't know, Dave! It seemed like hours. I called the place where she works—worked." Past tense, Katy, her English teacher's mind corrected automatically.

Again Dave Argus nodded. "She wasn't there. She hadn't been there for more than two hours when you called," he supplied the information from the results of their own questioning. "Before she left she made a telephone call from a pay station in the restaurant, the bartender says. Presumably that was when she called you."

Katy listened. There was not much lese she could do. They knew more than she did about Agnes Jerome's movements last night.

"She caught the northbound bus, the short local run at 10.17" Deputy Argus continued, while Henry Ledbetter went on watching, cat-like. He had that look, Katy couldn't help thinking. A big fat tomcat waiting to pounce on a cornered mouse—Katy. She made herself look at Dave. "She left the bus a mile from town, at your lane. The driver waited while she ran across the road through your gate She looked frightened. 'Scared half to death' is the way he put it."

"He didn't see anyone else?"

Katy knew the answer, even before Argus shook his head.

"There was someone, you know," she insisted, fighting to keep her voice from lunging upward toward hyteria. "Someone who trailed the bus in his car and then followed her into the woods and killed her. The same person" she added stubbornly, "who killed my brother and Mr. Murphy."

The Sunday afternoon quiet hung like pall over the courthouse which would ordinarily have been wholly deserted. Now there was a murder to solve and people were there. In the stillness Henry Ledbetter's sigh seemed noisy, affected.

"For your sake, Miss Elmo," he said heavily, "I hope so."

They let Katy go home, finally, when it seemed that they never would, and Katy walked alone into the October sunshine.

Chris...Chris—but she couldn't cry now, any more than she could in those first hours of shock when they said her brother had died a burglar—a nurderer. Something was dead within her. ...The dreams, hopes, ambitions, even the pleasantnesses of their childhood that she and Chris cherished because memories and dreams—and each other—were all they had had since Christopher and Katherine Elmo died in a motor car accident when Chris was nine and Katy 11 years old. It seemed like such a long time ago, those 15 years—but not so long as that night two weeks ago when Ted came to see her.

"It—it's Chris, Katy. He's — dead." Ted had stumbled through it, somehow, and Katy had listened, her heart constricting, withering, dying a little, too, at his words. "I—Katy, I don't know how to tell you."

CONTROL OF CAIRO TAKEN IN MILITARY COUP

Rags, Metal Waste Found in Engines Of RCAF Bombers

Sabotage Found After Plane Forced Back to Base

HALIFAX (CP)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police continued their investigation today into the attempted sabotage of nine Lancaster bombers used for long-range search and rescue work at Greenwood, N.S., air base.

Air force officials announced Tuesday night that rags and metal waste were found in the engines of the aircraft last week, after a Lancaster was forced to return to base with one engine dead.

Mechanics found eight other bombers similarly fouled. Some were slated to participate in "operation Signpost," a large-scale exercise with Canadian and United States bombers and fighters.

It was the first case of sabotage in the R.C.A.F. since the war. There have been several cases of suspected sabotage in the Royal Canadian Navy, most notable of which was the 1951 incident aboard the aircraft carrier Magnificent when brass filings and sand were found in the warship's engines.

Results of the investigation were not announced.

R.C.M.P. declined to give any information on the incident, claiming publicity would hinder progress at this time. An official R.C.A.F. statement made no mention of sabotage.

But unofficial sources said it appeared to be nothing less than a deliberate attempt to put the aircraft out of commission while airborne.

The rags and metal placed in the air intake would have been sucked into the carburetors, crippling both inboard motors of the four-engine plane. It would also have made useless the auxiliary equipment which powers the landing gear.

Following is the official R.C.A.F. statement:

"Maritime group headquarters in Halifax today announced a Lancaster encountered engine trouble in the air and reports it was forced to return to its Annapolis Valley base shortly after taking off on a routine flight July 18.

"A check into the cause of the engine failure led to the finding of pieces of metal and rags in the engine. An immediate check of all aircraft at Greenwood unearthed pieces of rag and metal in engine air intakes of eight more Lancasters. R.C.M.P. officials are conducting a thorough investigation into the cause of the incident."

Hitch-Hike Family On Return Trip From New York

NEW YORK (CP)—A family of five Canadian hitch-hikers, including one only six months old, left here yesterday on the return journey home to Toronto.

The group hitch-hiked to New York from Toronto in two days. The family left Toronto with $32. The return trip was begun with only $4.

The trip was made by Frank Peter, 49, his wife Laura, 32, and their three sons, Frank Jr., 8; Tom, 4, and the baby, David.

They left Toronto Friday night and travelled in 21 different vehicles. They took along knapsacks containing various canned foods and baby food.

Peter, a lithographer, said nearly everyone who heard about the trip thought he had "bats in his belfry."

"This was our vacation," said Mrs. Peter, "and although it was an unusual one, it was wonderful."

Foot-and-Mouth Restrictions May End August 19

REGINA (CP)—Canada may be declared free of foot-and-mouth disease Aug. 19, Agriculture Minister Gardiner announced in a statement released here yesterday.

He said animals now may be brought onto individual quarantined premises for the purpose of re-stocking under permit. The animals would be kept under observations by federal veterinarians until Aug. 19.

Then, "in the absence of any indication of disease either among such animals or elsewhere in the controlled areas, all controls and restrictions, including the operation leading from controlled areas, will of disinfection stations on highways be discontinued and Canada will be declared free of foot-and-mouth disease."

Truce Talk Gains Nothing

Another closed-door session is scheduled for tomorrow.

Red China's Peiping radio said "provocations by the American side outside the Panmunjom conference tent have thrown an ominous shadow over world policy."

The Communist broadcast said the "adventurist policy" of military pressure by American generals shows they have no sincere desire for an early peace in Korea.

DISEASE FREE

COPENHAGEN (CP)—All Danish cheese and butter now are stamped to indicate they came from livestock free of tuberculosis infection. The Agriculture Department announced the disease has been eradicated, ending a battle that began in 1928.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP)—Synopsis—Very warm sunny weather prevailed throughout southern Ontario on Tuesday, and widely scattered showers occurred during the night. It will continue hot today but relief is in sight from the prolonged heat-wave. Cold air is sweeping across the Great Lakes and should edge into southwestern Ontario early this afternoon preceded by showers and thundershowers. By midnight tonight all forecast regions should be enjoying this cool, fresh air. Thursday will be sunny and cool throughout most of the province.

Russian Captain Uses Machine Gun To Quell Mutiny

NAPLES (AP)—The Italian news agency Informazione said yesterday a mutiny aboard a Russian freighter was quelled when the Red skipper ordered the rioters cut down with machine-gun fire.

The agency said the mutiny—aboard the Soverg Flot—occurred while the ship was en route from Piraeus to Naples. It said the captain ordered the mutineers gunned and their bodies thrown overboard. It did not say how many were slain.

The ship did not dock at Naples. The report said it now is en route to Genoa.

Wave of Cold Air Will Cause Break In Ontario's Two-Week Heat Wave

TORONTO (CP)—Good news for southern Ontario residents sweltering in a two-week heat wave—it's going to be cooler.

The weather man revised a prediction which gave Toronto a 95-degree high and Windsor 98. Southern Ontario temperatures today will be about 10 degrees cooler than forecast because of cold air sweeping across the Great Lakes.

This will edge into southwestern Ontario this afternoon, breaking the heat spell.

"By midnight tonight," said the prediction, "all forecast regions should be enjoying this cool, fresh air."

Showers and thundershowers will precede the cool air.

Toronto had a 15-minute shower this morning.

The weather bureau said the cooler temperatures will hold throughout the province until at least Thursday midnight. Thursday generally will be sunny and cooler.

A low tonight of 60 and high tomorrow of 80 was forecast for Windsor, St. Thomas, Toronto, Hamilton and St. Catharines. At London a low of 55 and high of 80 was predicted, and at Wingham and Muskoka 55 and 75.

7 MEN MISSING IN PLANE CRASH CIVIL SERVANTS

Wreckage of Plane Sighted in Swamp

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba's treacherous northland may have claimed the lives of seven men, missing since noon Monday on a provincial government aircraft.

Wreckage of a float-equipped Norseman plane found Tuesday in isolated swampland near Norway House, 275 miles northeast of Winnipeg, was identified by Manitoba Air Services officials as the missing aircraft.

Observers in Air Service search planes probed dense fog and rain reported no sign of life. Torn shreds of the single-engined plane were strewn over more than a mile.

The Norseman was flying to Norway House from its base at Lac du Bonnet, 55 miles northeast of Winnipeg. It was last heard from when the pilot, 34-year-old Russel C. Percy of Lac du Bonnet, radioed the base.

Passengers, all provincial civil servants, were identified as John G. Horseburgh, Arthur G. Hanson, Robert H. Frederickson, M.T. Madden, Allan W. McLellan and Frank East. All were from Winnipeg.

Two helicopters were to start for the crash scene early today from the joint air training school at Rivers. R.C.A.F. Search and Rescue officials at Winnipeg said the country is too rough for other aircraft or ground parties.

Pilot Fred Hanton of Manitoba Air Service, who sighted the wreckage, said it is in a floating bog. He could find no lake or river nearby.

From its direction the plane seemed to have been coming from the north. It might have been trying to reach Berens River, 175 miles north of Winnipeg.

The district is inhabited mostly by Indians. Deep muskeg still holds remains of four aircraft forced down within the last few years.

The seven men were to visit various northern points on government business. Madden and McLellan, employees of the Manitoba Liquor Commission, were going to Norway House to check premises licensed to sell beer.

Horseburgh and Hanson were heading for Whiskey Jack Falls on the Nelson River to check power surveys in the district. Frederickson, a photographer, was to take pictures.

Labor Party Predicts Famine

LONDON (Reuters)—The Labor party yesterday issued a pamphlet predicting that famine and pestilence will strike the world unless improvements can be made in underdeveloped territories and food production can be expanded.

"We face a crisis by starvation in the present century," it said, claiming the extreme poverty of Africa and Asia and other undeveloped areas is a challenge to the entire world.

The pamphlet, "Toward World Plenty," will be a subject of discussion at the party's annual conference in September.

OTTAWA (CP) — Herbert O. Moran, 43, assistant undersecretary of state for external affairs, yesterday was appointed Canadian ambassador to Turkey. He succeeds Maj.-Gen. Victor W. Odlum who is retiring.

Battle for Strategic Hill Costly for Allies and Enemy Red Mortars Take Heavy Toll

By GEORGE MCARTHUR

WESTERN FRONT, Korea (AP) A tragic stream of wounded Allied soldiers down a shadowed, shell-blasted valley indicates the price in the continuing battle for a strategic hill—Old Baldy.

Torn uniforms, broken equipment, bullet-punctured helmets and blood mark the muddy road.

"If they'd just get those mortars out of there, we'd be all right," said one wounded infantryman. "We lost more men this morning than we did last night taking the hill."

Old Baldy, west of Chorwon on one of the historic invasion routes to Seoul, was taken by units of the United States 45th division last month. The Chinese Reds last Thursday night began determined attacks to regain it.

In the see-saw battle that followed, the crest traded hands several times, the Chinese storming to the top Tuesday only seven hours after Allied troops captured it behind a massive artillery barrage.

The valley leading to the southeast slope of the hill is the last stop for ammunition and supplies and the first stop for the wounded. Communist shells burst throughout the length of the valley, a target second only to Old Baldy itself.

Often the Communist shellfire is so heavy the stream of wounded is halted for hours.

When the firing lets up, litter jeeps and armored personnel carriers bounce and careen along the narrow road. To go slow is to court death.

A front-line officer said estimates of Chinese casualties now total 1,300 but the Reds keep coming in disregard for human life.

"The want it," said one officer. "They want it bad."

Bodies of Four Airmen Found After Bomber, Jet Collide

BAGOTVILLE, QUE. (CP)—R.C.A.F. ground rescue teams today reached the wreckage of a crashed Lancaster bomber and found the bodies of four of the six crew members known to have been aboard.

The team replied by radio that none of the bodies, found in the fuselage, could be identified, and it immediately struck out for the tail section, known to have crashed about a half-mile away.

Repots that the two parachutes were seen to float down from the sky yesterday after the Lancaster collided 10,000 feet up with a vampire jet fighter gave slim hope that the other two of the six crew men may have survived.

Spot Wreckage of eJt

A second ground party reported by Verey signal that it had located the wreckage of the jet plane about four miles away.

It was not known immediately whether its pilot had survived, but R.C.A.F. spokesmen said yesterday that they doubted that he had.

The R.C.A.F. identified the Vampire pilot today as Flt. Lt. Charles Stewart Buchanan of Oshawa, Ont., and Dorval, Que. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Buchanan, live in Oshawa. His wife is on a visit to Scotland.

The Lancaster came from the R.C.A.F. base at Greenwood, N.S., where rags and metal waste were found last week in the engines of nine other Lancasters. However, there was no indication that suspected sabotage might have been involved in yesterday's crash.

R.C.A.F. spokesmen gave this version from eye-witnesses of the mid-air collision:

A flight of Lancasters was "bombing" a mythical target in the Bagotville area as part of joint Canada-United States defence exercises. A flight of Vampires was defending the area, "shooting" the bombers with camera guns to record the effectiveness of their defence.

The Vampire had just completed a pass at one of the bombers and was pulling away when it sliced into the Lancaster and sheared off its tail section.

The R.C.A.F. air base here said radio communications from the crash scene were poor.

Three rescue teams now were in the vicinity—one which went in from a nearby highway, another which landed on a nearby lake in a Norseman aircraft and a third which was parachuted into the area.

The ground searchers, numbering 17, were operating in rough, hilly and heavily-wooded country.

The R.C.A.F. sent up aerial searchers this morning to see if they could spot any survivors.

The R. C. A. F. air base here said radio communications from the crash scene were poor.

Food, flares and other supplies were dropped by air last evening to the ground parties.

BLIND GARDENERS

NORWICH, Eng. (CP)—Judges called on Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Brown to inspect their garden in a tenant-gardening competition. They found peaches and lavender as well as fruit, flowers and vegetables. Amazed, the judges awarded first prize to the Browns, who are both blind.

Earth Tremors Shake California For Third Day

TEHACHAPI, Calif. (AP)—Earthquake shocks today continued for the third day in southern California. A fairly strong one came at 11:53 p.m. PST (3:53 EDT) today and lasted for about 20 seconds in this devastated community.

Town officials said this one was the strongest shock since the big one Monday morning that left 11 dead in Tehachapi and damage estimated at $2,500,000.

In the Los Angeles area this last tremor lasted about 15 seconds and was widely felt through the area. At Bakersfield the shock rattled windows but no further damage was reported.

Inspectors are making a building-by-building check of shattered Tehachapi. They are expected to condemn most of the downtown businesses and many homes as well.

Chinese Reds Trying to Set Up Puppet Pope

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Chinese Communist Leader Mao Tse-tung is trying to set up a puppet pope, Vatican sources charged yesterday.

The sources, basing their information on reports of missionaries and other Roman Catholics who have left China recently, said the Communists are trying to win over China's 4,000,000 Catholics to an "independent" church. They have already chosen their "pope"—Bishop Chou Chi-shih of Hanchang.

Bishop Chou was reported to have been arrested by the Communists last May, but was offered his release on condition he accepted the office of Chinese "pope."

The Vatican sources said Bishop Chou replied: "Why should I become pope of China alone? If I remain loyal to Rome I may one day become pope of the whole world.'

The sources added they had received reports recently that Bishop Chou had died in prison, but these have not been confirmed.

HUBBY COULDN'T HELP

LONDON (CP)—Mrs. Marcelle Campbell tried to remove some soap from a tap. Her finger stuck. Firemen couldn't get it out. They cut the fitting and Mrs. Campbell sat in the ambulance with her finger still up the tap. Later an engineer put the tap in a vise and filed the metal away.

INDIAN NAMED

HUNTINGDON, Que. (CP)—Lawrence Sunday, 34-year-old Indian of Snye, Que., last night was found criminally responsible by a coroner's jury in the death Sunday of John Buckshot. He will appear in court in Valleyfield, Que., later today. Buckshot died at Cornwall of stab wounds in the right arm and stomach.

YOUTH DROWNS AS GIANT WAVE HITS LEAMINGTON

Freak Storm Causes Widespread Damage

LEAMINGTON (CP)—One Leamington youth drowned, another seriously injured and thousands of dollars in property damage was the toll of a storm that lashed the South Essex shoreline of Lake Erie last night.

Dead is William Fox, 18, who was drowned after he was swept from the government pier at Leamington by a giant wave. In hospital with undetermined internal injuries is Charles Banyai, battered against wooden piling by the same wave that swept Fox to his death.

The freak storm in which waves five to 10 feet high lashed the shoreline around Leamington materialized last night in a matter of minutes and was confined to this area.

The dock tragedy resulted from an effort to salvage an automobile left stranded at the end of the pier. Fox and Banyai were trying to fasten a cable to a bumper.

Leonard Howard of Detroit who was assisting Fox and Banyai was knocked down by the wave but managed to hold onto a dock piling until a rope was thrown to him. He scrambled back along the dock.

Wooden breakwaters along a four mile front were battered by the waves. Dozens of summer cottages suffered water damage.

Mayor Whitton Named Admiral Of 'Texas Navy'

OTTAWA (CP)—Mayor Charlotte Whitton has been appointed an admiral of the non-existent Texas navy.

A commission as admiral, properly signed by the Governor of Texas and the Texas Secretary of State and stamped with the seal of the state, arrived yesterday for Miss Whitton.

The commission is the result of a visit here of United States newspaper editors. A Texas editor arranged it.

Mayor Whitton wonders if it entitles her to wear a cocked hat when she pilots her boat, the Mugwump, on McGregor Lake, 25 miles north of here.

Plane Crashes Kill 14

MARIANNA, Fla. (EP)—A B-47 one of the newest and fastest jet bombers of the U.S. Air Force, exploded and crashed in a residential area here yesterday, killing its four crew members and starting a fire that burned two children to death. It was the second fatal crash of a B-47 six-engine stratojet in Florida this month.

TOPEKA, Kas. (AP)—A B-29 Superfortress crashed and burned near here yesterday. All eight members of the cew were killed.

THIEF SUSPECTS CAUGHT

VANCOUVER (CP)—Five suspected drug thieves, one a 12-year-old boy, were captured by police yesterday in a hobo "jungle" on False Creek Flats in Vancouver's east end. All are believed implicated in the theft of narcotics from a drug store Sunday. 5

'Copter 'Pelican' Gobbles Red Jet Brings Fighter 'Fish' Home for Study

EAST HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—A big American helicopter captured a Russian-built jet fighter plane behind enemy lines in Korea and brought it back for study like a pelican carrying a fish, it was reported yesterday.

How the MIG-15 was snatched from the ground is told in the United Aircraft Corporation's house magazine, the Bee Hive.

More than 50 fighter planes served as a cover for the helicopter. The date was not disclosed.

The magazine gave this account:

Reconnaissance disclosed that a MIG was down deep in enemy territory to the north.

Capt. Joseph Cooper, a helicopter pilot, with Capt. Russell Winnegar as co-pilot, took off with six Korean soldiers and an Office of Strategic Information officer in the cargo space.

While the fighter plane cover hovered above, Cooper landed beside the MIG on a hillside. Then a hitch developed. The crew was unable to dismantle the MIG with the tools at hand.

The O.S.I. officer, unidentified, solved this by breaking the plane in strategic places with hand grenades. Every last piece of the MIG was loaded into the cargo space.

The 'copter brought the MIG in safely through a hail of ground fire. Cooper and Winnegar won the Silver Star for their exploit.

Gen. Naguib Seizes Power, Promises Political Clean-Up

Armored Cars Surround Main Govt. Buildings

CAIRO (CP)—Egyptian Gen. Mohammed Naguib took control of Cairo in a military coup today and Premiar Ahmed Naguib Hilaly Pasha resigned.

Gen. Naguib broadcast that the army was "in full control of the situation" in Cairo, 9½ hours after the coup. He proclaimed himself army commander-in-chief and pledged a drive against political corruption.

Arrest 12 Generals

At Naguib's orders, officers arrested 12 generals known to be followers of Gen. Mohammed Haidar Pasha, from whom Naguib wrested the army control.

At Alexandria the chief of the royal Cabinet, Afifi Pasha, told reporters King Farouk accepted Hilaly's resignation and asked Aly Maher Pasha to form a new cabinet.

Troops with machine-guns moved into the heart of Cairo. Tanks and armored cars surrounded main business buildings, government structures and the Abdin royal palace as Naguid, whose appointment as war minister was vetoed by Farouk last week, announced he was taking command of the army.

A member of Naguib's staff said: "All army officers who declared themselves partisans of the old regime (Haidar's) have been arrested; those who pledged loyalty to Naguib were given positions of action."

The informant said only Maj. Gen. Hussein Parid Pasha, Haidar's chief of staff, resisted arrest. Before Naguib started the coup at 2 a.m., he received assurances from both the British and United States embassies that "there would be no interference from their side," the staff man said.

Mustafa Bey Sadek, paternal uncle of Queen Narriman, flew to the summer capital of Alexandria in a military plane to give King Farouk a complete report. He returned to Cairo later to confer with Naguib.

Hilaly's resignation followed reports that Naguib had imposed demands for reforms on the government leader.

Demanded Purge

No details of the ultimatum were disclosed but Naguib had called earlier for a shakeup of the army command and a purge of corrupt elements in government.

Rail Conferences Start

MONTREAL (CP)—Negotiations got underway again yesterday between Canadian railway officials and representatives of 17 non-operating railway workers' unions seeking to work out a new wage contract. Two federal conciliators sat in on the session.

The negotiations, behind closed doors, are expected to continue all week, with little likelihood of any immediate statement from either side.

RAISES ALBINO COONS

COTTAM (CP)—Charles Neal, 68-year-old Cottam farmer who says he has trapped more than 2,500 raccoons, has raised two litters of albino coons—nine animals, all white and all healthy. He caught an albina male seven years ago and bred it with two albino females trapped in later years.

Americans Ask Compensation For Property Losses

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Property owners along the New York state shore of Lake Ontario said that their land is being ruined by high water level and they claimed that the Gut Dam and the Ogoki River diversion are the principal causes.

Their testimony was offered at a one-day hearing of the six-member International Joint Commission.

Walter S. Forsyth, lawyer for the Lake Ontario Beach Protective Association, said Canada had lost what he called its "Gut Dam gamble." He glared at the three Canadian members of the commission and declared:

"Get the thing out. Don't wait. We've suffered long enough."

Forsyth told the Canadian members of the I.J.C.:

"You agreed to compensate the United States for any damage caused by high water traceable to Gut Dam. You took a chance that you would never have to stick to your promise. You took that gamble and lost. Why not lose gracefully?"

An estimated 650 persons jammed the meeting room of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce for the hearing, first of a series designed to lay the groundwork for the giant St. Lawrence Seaway and power project. The related issue of Great Lakes water levels, however, was the only topic of yesterday's session.

The Gut Dam, an earthen structure which now has trees and shrubs growing on it, was built by Canada in 1902 between two islands in the St. Lawrence River above the International Rapids. The purpose was to aid in routing water into the Canadian ship canal around the rapids.

The property owners' group claims recent damages totalling $20,000,000. U.S. army engineers, in a survey last spring, estimated the total at about $7,000,000.

Representative Kenneth B. Keating declared that surveys indicated that Gut Dam and the Ogoki River diversion in Northern Ontario accounted for about 10 inches of the Lake Ontario water level, now about 10 inches over normal.

Elimination of the two, he said, would bring at least "a measure of relief."

The Ogoki once flowed into the Hudson Bay Basin. But in 1937, it was diverted into Lake Superior as an aid to navigation and as a means of improving the hydro-electric power potential of Canada.

VEHICLE ENTRIES DOWN

OTTAWA (CH)—Fewer vehicles entered Canada last month than for a similar period a year ago. The Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday that 239,152 foreign vehicles entered Canada compared with the peak of 290,453 in June, 1951. Figures for Ontario were 179,984, against 180,506 last year.

FIREMEN FIGHT BLAZE ON DUMP FOR EIGHT HOURS

It's hot all right, but it is hotter for firemen who have to fight fires when the temperature is ranging around the 90 degree mark.

And it's particularly exasperating when the fire is on the city dump where no blaze has any right to be burning.

Yesterdaw firemen were at the dump for over eight hours hauling heavy hose around in an effort to control a blaze burning in the garbage.

Water Gallonage Up 31 Per Cent Over Last June

During the month of June, the amount of water pumped at the Belleville filtration plant increased 31.6 per cent over the corresponding period last year, O. H. Scott, general manager of the Public Utilities Commission, reported today. The increase was credited to higher temperatures this year as compared to last year.

With an average of four million gallons of water pumped each day, the week ending July 18 had an average of 5,600,000 gallons per day with water temperatures averaging six degrees higher than last year.

In month-end reports for June, it was revealed that 21 per cent more water was pumped into the system than during the previous June. A report covering the period ending yesterday showed that consumption was up 28 per cent and because of the condition of the water at its source, the amount of "wash" water pumped at the pumping station was up 257 per cent over last year.

Vagaries of the weather man had thermometers in a tizzy yesterday afternoon, Mr. Scott said. At 5 o'clock the temperature hovered at 89 degrees, a half-hour later it was 92, dropping during the next 30 minutes to 86 and to 84 by seven o'clock.

Autopsy Fails To Reveal Cause of Death

What caused the death of two and a half year old Gerald Hanley, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hanley, of Read, was still a mystery today following an autopsy conducted by Dr. H. Lucke, pathologist at Belleville General Hospital. The little lad was found dead in his crib Tuesday morning by his mother.

Following the postmortem Dr. Lucke stated that further tests would have to be made before the cause of the lad's death was known. The autopsy was asked for by Dr. Jack Empson, the family physician when no cause for the death was immediately apparent.

The possibility of suffocation in bed clothes was ruled out both by Dr. Empson and by Dr. Lucke.

The parents of the little lad said Gerald was very healthy and was a big boy for his age. There had been no indication of anything being amiss when he was put to bed Monday night, and the lad had been playing normally with his older brother during the day.

Council Approves in Principle Application to Build Area High School at Cost $875,000

City council at a special meeting this morning approved in principle the application of the Bay of Quinte High School District board asking for the construction of a new area high school at an estimated cost of $875,000.

The tentative approval granted by council will give the high school area board authorization to purchase the site for the school, hire an architect and call for tenders. When costs are determined council will then decide whether to approve of construction of the school.

In presenting the recommendation calling for tentative approval of the high school board's application. Alderman C. Hyde said the board wanted prompt action as their option on certain property chosen as the site of the school would run out August 1st, and also it wanted to get started on construction as soon as possible in order that the school might be completed by opening of the school term in the fall of 1953.

Two Townships Approve

Alderman Hyde said that the townships of Ameliasburg and Tyendinaga had already given their approval, while Thurlow township council was meeting tonight. Sidney township, which does not belong to the high school area, was said to be willing to sign an agreement to purchase its education from the board.

All councillors present with the exception of Alderman Robt. Temple, approved of the recommendation. Alderman Temple wanted to know if an annex or addition to the present high school had been thoroughly considered instead of a complete new building on a new site.

"A new school would be fine, but I don't think the city can afford it," he said.

In reply Mayor A. M. Haig quoted Board Chairman Harold Seldon as saying that the idea of an addition to the present school had been thoroughly explored by the board. The Department of Education, however, did not approve of expansion of the present school. In the department's opinion when schools reached over a certain size they were not as efficient as a smaller unit.

$36,000 First Year

Alderman Temple asked what effect the new school would have on the city tax rate and was told that the city's share would amount to about $36,000 or two mills, the first year, after which it would be reduced on account of payments by Sidney township for purchase of education.

It was brought out that the city sent only approximately one-half of the total number of high school students but under the area is called upon to pay about 72 per cent of the costs over provincial grants.

"That is quite true," returned Alderman Thomas, "but what is not taken into consideration is that in actual dollars and cents it all works out quite close to the cost figure under the former system."

It was pointed out, however, that approval in principle of the high school board application did not commit the city to any large expenditure. Approval or disapproval of the construction could be given after the prices were in.

Alderman Expresses Dissatisfaction With Operation of Health Dept.

Dissatisfaction over what was termed the failure of the local health department to do the job which was expected of it, was voiced today at a special session of city council.

A recommendation from Alderman Keegan asking the health department to clean up the city as to health conditions was passed by council which directed that it be turned over to the board of health.

Alderman Keegan in his recommendation called for public health nuisances to be cleared up and that there be proper disposal of sewage and waste. Dwellings in some instances were in a very unsanitary condition, he said.

The recommendation also called for all refuse placed in the city dump to be left there as required by the Public Health Act.

Charges Containers Reclaimed

The alderman charged that containers filled with refuse and left on the garbage dumped were being reclaimed and sold to market gardeners.

"I don't know whether these containers are properly washed before they are sold to gardeners, but under health regulations I don't think it is permissible," the alderman went on.

"Too much stress is being placed on cures," Alderman Keegan declared, "and not enough on prevention of disease. Hundreds of people in the city are not satisfied with the health department considering what it is costing."

Continuing the alderman noted that the water at Zwick's Island and at the filtration plant had been declared unsafe for swimming.

"If it is unsafe for swimming, where are the signs saying the water is unsafe?" he asked. "It is the duty of the health department to put the signs up."

The fact that Dr. A. M. Breuls, health officer and head of the health department, receives a month's holiday when other civic department heads with longer service with the city receive less holiday time, did not set too well with some councillors.

Same as Other Cities

Mayor Haig pointed out that this matter had been considered by the board of health which learned that a month's holiday was given to health officers in similar departments in other centres.

Another councillor voiced the opinion that council should have more control over the activities of the health department when the city is "paying the shot."

Mayor Haig said in his opinion what direction council gave the health department must go through the board of health. The recommendation was approved and turned over to the board of health for action.

Korean Veteran Has No Desire To Go Back

After serving with the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals in Korea for the past 15 months, 19-year-old Signalman Leonard Musgrave returned to his home in Belleville yesterday and admitted that at no time had he been close enough to the enemy to see their eyebrows. Signalman Musgrave is the son of Mrs. T. W. Musgrave, a widow, who lives with her daughter at 56 Moira Street west.

The Korean war veteran's return to his home was delayed nine days following an outbreak of scabies picked up in Japan and detected aboard ship two days after leaving for Canada. He was detained in Vancouver for treatment before being permitted to continue his journey home.

A signalman, the soldier estimated that he was at least four miles from the scenes of action during his term in Korea. Terming the country "dirty and just as hot as Belleville;" he indicated no desire to return to the war theatre although he denied he would seek his discharge. At noon he set off by the thumb route for Kingston where, he said, he hoped to obtain a new uniform to replace the one he has been wearing since he left Korea.

"There is not much action over there... just a see-saw battle that has been continuing for many months with no end in sight," he said. "Me? No I do not want to go back."

Summer Work Reduces City Unemployment

Summer work conditions have done much to relieve last winter's unemployment situation in Belleville and district, it was reported today by H. H. Reed, manager of the local employment service.

At the present time "good" men, meaning skilled mechanics and able laborers were said to be fairly well placed. However, there are about 130 unemployed women in the city and district.

"Female help is plentiful," Mr. Reed stated, "but when the tomato packing season commences in a few weeks time a considerable number are expected to be placed in canning factories."

Many of these women had been working at factories canning peas but the season is now ended.

Mr. Reed said that carpenters were pretty well placed despite the fact there are no large construction projects in the immediate area this year. Some workers from this area had been sent to Cobourg where a new government arsenal is being built, and also to Marmora to the Bethlehem Mines where 30 houses are being erected and also shop buildings on the mine property.

The farm help problem has been taken care of with about 40 men being placed for the harvest season. Several German farm laborers have been placed with local farmers recently.

Kingston Edges Peterborough 3-2

Kingston Monarchs edged the Peterborough Petes 3-2 in a Central Ontario Baseball League game last night played in Megaffin Stadium. "Gunner" Whitehill went the route for the Petes being touched for a dozen hits while Babe Stinson let the Liftlockers down with four clouts.

It was one of the best games played between the teams this season and gave the Monarchs a game edge over the Petes in second place.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials and western oils joined today in early afternoon stock market dealings as cautious buying boosted selected issues. Golds, however, remained weak while base metals drifted.

Sporadic bursts of trading produced few market features. Volume for the first three hours was 878,000 shares.

Banks and miscellaneous issues led industrials' advance with a scattered list of fractional gains. Papers, constructions, refining oils and miscellaneous issues also drew firm support but agricultures slipped.

Western oil gains ranged from pennies to about 50 cents. Britalta, Calvan Consolidated, Jupiter, Pacific Petroleum, Sweet Grass and Western Homestead pushed upward.

Base metals were mixed. Cassier Labrador, Noranda and United Keno Hill strengthened while International Nickel, Sherritt-Gordon and Steep Rock weakened.

Senior golds sagged as Dome, Giant Yellowknife, McIntyre and Wright-Hargreaves slipped. Secondary issues were mixed.

Nursing Sister, Sergeant from Trenton Air Station Act as Para-Rescue Team

Trenton—A Nursing Sister and a sergeant, both from RCAF station Trenton, who parachuted into the wild country south of Bagotville, Quebec, in a pararesmue attempt to offer aid to possible survivors of a mid-air collision between a Lancaster bomber and a Vampire jet fighter, have been spotted from monitor aircraft flying over the scene of the crash after being out of contact with rescue workers.

At 6.00 p.m. last evening Flight Lieutenant Isobelle (Tommy) Thompson, of North Bay, and Sgt. T. W. Dawson, Ottawa, jumped from a Dakota aircraft sent from Trenton to the scene of the crash. They carried medical supplies and a radio.

Apparently the radio was damaged in the drop as only faint, garbled signals were received by accompanying aircraft. However, according to signals being received this morning at the rescue co-ordination centre here, Nursing Sister Thompson and Sgt. Dawson, are signalling circling air craft by using ground strips.

It is not known if anyone survived the collision of the Lancaster bomber and the jet fighter.

Ground rescue parties, are slashing their way through the heavy undergrowth to reach the scene of the crash.

Mossadegh Marks Return to Power With Arrest of Ex-Premier Qavam

TEHRAN (Reuters)—Security officers today pounced on Ahmed Qavam, arresting the former Premier whose four-day regime ended in bloody street fighting Monday.

On orders of Mohammed Mossadegh, who returned in triumph Tuesday to head Iran's government, Qavam was taken into custody at the home of a friend at Gom, 50 miles south of Tehran.

Instructions to "get Qavam" went out soon after Mossadegh had been reappointed by Shah Reza Pahlevi.

Qavam, who tried unsuccessfully to take over the Premiership Mossadegh had held for 15 months, is believed to have fled from Tehran Monday night when a threatening crowd tried to set fire to his residence here.

Mossadegh's National-Front supporters blame Qavam for Monday's bloodshed, when at least 30 persons were killed in demonstrations clamoring for Mossadegh's return.

Tuesday 30 National Front members of the Majlis—House of Representatives—signed a bill asking for confiscation of the wealthy Qavam's property to relieve distress among families of Monday's riot victims.

Tehran remained in festive mood, the victory of pro-Mossadegh forces enhanced by Tuesday's decision of the International Court at The Hague that it lacked competence to deal with Iran's oil dispute with Britain.

BODIES OF FOUR

The tail section of the Lancaster was sheared off in the collision, which also sliced off one wing of the Vampire. This indicated the two collided wing to tail. Both aircraft were seen to spiral eastward into clouds at 10,000 feet after the crash.

Reports from air crews over the crash areas indicate the Lancaster tail section was intact a short distance from the main fuselage, which was approximately one mile northeast of Lac Marchand, about 30 miles south of here.

The wreckage of the Vampire was about three miles south of the lake.

The air force said it was trying to confirm the report of a game warden that he had seen two parachutes come down shortly after the crash.

Four of the Lancaster's crew were identified last night but the names of the remaining two and the jet pilot were withheld pending notification of next-of-kin.

Nurse Dropped

Para-rescue nurse FO. M.I. Thomson, North Bay, and pararescue Sgt. T.W.L. Dawson, Ottawa parachuted into the hilly bush country equipped with radio, but apart from a report that they landed safely within 20 feet of the wrecked Lancaster, the R.C.A.F. refused to say whether any of the missing men had been found or if discovered, their condition.

Identified were:

Captain—FO. Robert Alexander Gray, London, Ont., whose wife lives at Greenwood, N.S.

Co-pilot—FO. Alfred Marrier whose father lives at St. Leonard D'Aston, Que.

Navigator—FO. Edward C. Hutt, whose mother lives at Bangor, Me.

Radio operator—FO Richard H.D. Noble, Gravenhurst, Ont., whose wife lives at Middleton, N.S.

A five-man ground-rescue team was also flown to a lake near the scene of the crash, from where they hoped to hack their way through to the wrecked aircraft.

Sees Chutes

Indications that some of the men might be alive were provided by three independent reports. An unidentified fire warden at Chicoutimi Que., said he saw two parachutes floating in the sky shortly after the planes collided, and two civilian pilots who flew over the scene later reported seeing parachutes hanging on trees near the smoking debris of the Lancaster.

The planes, two of some 800 R.C.A.F. and United States Air Force aircraft engaged in week-long joint manoeuvres of [illegible] Signpost, collided in the Lake Marchand area of the wild Laurentide National Park, some 130 miles north of Quebec.

The Lancaster from the R.C.A.F.'s 404 squadron based on Greenwood as believed engaged in a mock bombing raid on Saguenay River aluminum plants and hydro-electric power stations.

The Vampire jet was a member of the 401 auxiliary squadron of Westmount, Que., based at Bagotville for the duration of the exercises.

First news of the crash, which occurred shortly after noon, was flashed by other planes taking part in the operation.

Names Released

HALIFAX (CP) — Air Force authorities today released the names of the other two crew members of a Lancaster that crashed Tuesday near Bagotville, Que., when it collided with a Vampire jet.

They were FO. James E. Macara, whose mother lives in Toronto, and Cpl. Robert C. Smith, whose father, Ernest Smith, lives near Maberly, Ont.

Four members of the six-man crew were identified earlier.

HISTORIC CHURCH SITE LOCATED

Over in Simcoe county, Wilfred Jury, University of estern Ontario archeologist, has just discovered what he lieves to be the remains of the church in or near which e two Jesuit missionaries, Fathers Jean de Brebeuf and abriel Lalemant, were captured and slain by Iroquois dians in 1649.

The remains of the building have been uncovered by ofessor Jury and his workmen in a field owned by Edom ilson, about six miles from the famed Martyrs' Shrine, here altars honoring the two priests as saints of the oman Catholic Church have been erected.

As the region which is now Simcoe county was the adquarters, or at least the most heavily populated part the Huron and Algonquin Indian country, there is arcely a farm in the Lake Simcoe-Georgian Bay region hich was not the scene of either a skirmish or a full ale battle between the Iroquois or Six Nations, who came om farther south, and the Hurons and Algonquins.

All of which helps to recall the natural but grave miske which Samuel de Champlain made when he and his sociates acceded to the pleas of the Hurons and Algonins to help them fight off an assault from the Iroquois, hose home was in what is now New York State. A great ttle was fought on or near the site of the present town Orillia. But the Iroquois did not win their usual vicry, to be followed by an all-out slaughter and general lebration. The Huron-Algonquin army had been reinrced by Champlain's soldiers, and these soldiers had earms, which the Iroquois had never seen previously. ven the war-wise Iroquois did not realize, until it was too te, that they didn't have a chance. But the handful of oquois warriors who escaped carried the story home ith them, and their chiefs knew what to do—they formed alliance with the British settlers in New England and e others farther south, who also had firearms.

During the large-scale wars between the British and e French which came later, the Iroquois were always lied with the British. Since the Iroquois were the most rmidable fighters of all the Indians in eastern North merica, they had more than a little to do with deciding at North America was to be largely English-speaking nd Protestant, rather than French-speaking and Roman atholic.

After the United States achieved its independence and anada became British territory, most of the Iroquois oved to Canada. The largest concentration of them is ear Brantford, (named after one of their chiefs), but here are other reservations of them elsewhere, such as hat near this city.

ANOTHER CANDIDATE

Gregory Clark, whose excellent little column, "The acksack," appears daily on this page, commented the her day on an American business man who enjoyed the rikingly unusual name of Lake Erie High. Lake Erie the chap's Christian name and High his surname.

Lake Erie High is an odd enough name to attract tention anywhere, but we know, or think we know, a etter one, which we encountered during our researches nto what happened long ago and which we are going to nter in the competition before awarding the palm of erit to Mr. Clark for being the best hunter-up of unusual ames.

There was once an Englishman who was a contemprary of Oliver Cromwell and who sat as a member of the ritish House of Commons during Cromwell's era. This nglishman rejoiced in the name of Praise God Barebones. he Praise God part was his Christian name and Bareones was his patronymic.

Perhaps we are prejudiced in favor of Praise God arebones because we regard him as our own discovery nd hence, in a sense, our own special property, but just he same we think that Praise God Barebones is a far more nusual name than Lake Erie High.

In fact, granted that we are satisfied of the impartialy of the judges, we shall give odds on Praise God Bareones to win a strange name contest almost any time.

A MOTHER TALKS

"As if I hadn't cares enough
With four to bathe and four to feed,
He had to meet along the street
A homeless dog, of doubtful breed,
And with a small boy's happy grin
Flung wide the door and brought him in.

"As if it mattered not at all
That I must daily dust and sweep
And bake and sew, he begged to know
If he that friendless cur could keep.
More work it meant his plea to heed
And still another mouth to feed.

"With all the tasks that she must do
A mother can on this depend:
Some glorious day along the way
He'll find a dog who needs a friend,
And home with him her boy will race
With smiles of rapture on his face.

"She'll hear his: 'Let me keep him, Ma!'
And for a moment, shake her head.
Then, just as I, that dog she'll eye
And say: 'Perhaps he should be fed.'
And then to keep him she'll agree
Although a nuisance he will be."

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

DO YOU HAVE IT?

The medieval castles were usually built over an abundant water supply. No baron expecting a protracted siege relied upon the abilities of his men to go beyond the castle walls and bring in water. The well was at the centre of the castle itself.

All this is a parable on the necessity for having within our own lives inner resources which will stand us in good stead in the day of trouble. Jesus said that the water of life which He would give His followers would become in each of them a well of water, springing up unto everlasting life. If we have faith in Him and in His eternal promises, we have an eternal well at the centre of our lives which will never fail us. If the Bible is in truth the Word of God to us, and if when we read it we find it directing us in the common activities of life, then we have discovered the well of water which keeps springing up for our continual refreshment.

There are millions in the world who go down before life's onslaught because they have nothing in their own hearts in the way of religious faith to sustain them. Men and women without religion are more to be pitied than men and women without family or without country. For to be without faith to increase our joy in the day of good fortune and to sustain us in the hour of trouble is to be without the one thing which makes life significant.

Port Churchill on Hudson Bay Could Handle Record Cargoes

By E. S. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—At least 26 ships and 10,000,000 bushels of grain could have been handled through proper allocation of tonnage on the Hudson Bay route out of Port Churchill during the abbreviated 2½-month navigation season in 1951.

This was the opinion of Sir Clement Jones, chairman of the Commonwealth Shipping Committee, based on the "considered opinion of responsible men on the spot."

21 Ships Sailed

The statement was made in connection with the 11th annual report on Hudson Bay marine insurance rates, released yesterday by the committee.

The report said 21 ships carrying 7,278,000 bushels of grain moved out of Port Churchill during the 1951 season. Both the number of sailings and the cargo volume were records, established without mishap.

Sir Clement, who visited the port last October, said he believes an improved performance can be attained within the approved insurance coverage dates.

Last year's season extended from July 26 to Oct. 10.

This year, however, insurance rates remain the same, except that vessels equipped with a gyro compass will receive a reduction of 25 per cent. For extension of sailing between Oct. 10-15 rates will be increased 25 per cent.

Good Weather

In an appendix to the general report Sir Clement said the last ship sailed out of Churchill Oct. 4. Yet five days later the sky was clear, the temperature around 56 degrees and rising, with a moderate southwest breeze—perfect weather.

"I took off my jacket and was photographed in my shirt sleeves to show my family and my underwriting friends at Lloyds what the sub-Arctic climate can be on Oct. 9," he wrote. "Yet alas, no ships were loading."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The Packsack recently amused itself with some thoughts upon chewing gum and the decline in its flavor. Among the letters inspired by recollections of the days when all theatre seats, school forms and boys' bedsteads were bestuck with wads of old gum comes one from a Texas lady who owns a Boston bull terrier named Buddy.

Buddy lived up to his name so religiously that he would not allow his mistress to go anywhere without him. He even accompanied her to prayer meeting on Wednesday evenings. The prayer meeting is held in the church annex. Buddy would lie down obediently at his mistress's feet and, except for occasional small snores such as are characteristic of Boston bulls, he would remain inconspicuously to the end of the meeting.

One night, the prayer meeting was disturbed by a rather extraordinary sound. A little investigation, while prayers and quiet discourse were suspended, revealed that the curious gnawing, scraping sound emanated from Buddy, who had found a dry but tasty wad of chewing gum stuck under one of the chairs. Buddy was taken in hand. But before the meeting ended, he had to be evicted, because he had made a wonderful discovery. There was gum under most of the chairs. So he interrupted the meeting for the balance of the hour by yapping and whining outside.

From that time forward, Buddy's interest in church became consuming. The following Sunday, he got into the church itself and found it a vast mine of old dried but fruity gum wads under the pews. His mistress did not see Buddy arrive at church. But hardly had the first hymn been sung and the hush of the first prayer descended before there arose, near the back of the congregation, an unmistakable sound. It was Buddy. A Boston bull is exactly the right height and has exactly the proper shaped face for removing old gum from under church pews.

An usher bounced Buddy. But he got in with late comers. After three or four disturbances within the first quarter hour, his mistress had to leave and take Buddy home and lock him in. Periodically over the next few weeks, Buddy evaded restrictions and turned up at church. His mistress finally had to give him away to a ranchman, thirty miles from the nearest place of worship.

Drivers, Ponies On Hunger Strike

NEW DELHI, India (Reuters) —Tonga drivers and the ponies that pull their two-wheel cabs around this city started an indefinite fast today as a counter-move to a strike yesterday by 2,000 rickshaw men.

Traffic was disrupted and many a white-collar worker walked to his office.

The trouble started when the rickshaw men demanded alteration of municipal by-laws to allow them to carry two adults per trip instead of one adult and one child.

The 10,000 tonga men said that if Rickshaws can take two adults, tongas can take six instead of the four the law allows.

When the rickshaw men struck to make their demand stick the tonga men quit eating—and saw that their ponies did likewise.

MARIANNA, Fla. (AP)—An airplane exploded over Marianna today, killing three airmen, sending two children to hospital with severe burns and destroying a house. A third child is missing.

Airplane fragments were scattered over a wide section of the city.

Started Fan Also The 'Fun'

COBALT (CP) — It was hot in the empty bus so Irvine Smith, 27-year-old miner, decided to turn on the electric fan while he waited for the driver to reappear.

The fan started but so did the engine and the bus went careening down a hill. Smith was thrown from the driver's seat but was able to keep his grasp on the steering wheel.

The vehicle swerved through streets, rammed a parked auto, sideswiped a potato chip wagon, forced another car into the ditch and finally smashed to a halt on a mining company's six-inch air line.

No charge has been laid against Smith by police.

AUTHORITY FROM OTHERS' BOOKS

People who have the habit of glancing at this column just to see what the conductor won't say next, ought to know that he does not pretend to be an authority on anything, except maybe the care and feeding of straight stem briars and the decorum of the bowling green.

Every little while some one asks for my authority for this or that statement, teaching or advice. If such request is made with proper courtesy and accompanied with a stamped, addressed return envelope for my convenience I cite the authority — if I have any.

If such a request catches me fresh out of authorities I try to wriggle out of it with as much dignity as possible — unfortunately the very thought of pulling my dignity on any one is so amusing that I make a poor job of it.

Recent pieces about the atrocity known as tonsillectomy — I am the authority for this and I know of no other physician who calls the major operation an atrocity — brought some sharp reactions but, so far, no physician of standing has presented an answer to my "attack" in form fit to print.

One correspondent who purports to be a physician (the name is not included in the latest medical directory) asks me for the authority for my statement that tonsillectomy has a high mortality, that is, many victims of the atrocity die on the table or shortly after the operation gets through with them. Besides being discourteous and scurrilous this correspondent betrays singular ignorance of what is still happening with frightful frequency throughout the country, namely, failure of a child to recover from tonsillectomy.

The newspapers carry brief items telling of such tragedies, and readers clip and send me the items. I wish to heaven that such news items were the only authority for my condemnation of the atrocity. But, alas, despite my plea some bereaved parents write me heart-rending letters about it and I don't know what to say in reply. I do know what I'd like to say to the ever ready operators who inflict the atrocity on children who come under their care.

Another correspondent, coldly but courteously asked for my authority for the statement that malignancy might warrant or justify tonsillectomy rather than the minor operation known as tonsillotomy. But this physician did not send with his request a stamped, self-addressed envelope. So I'll say here what I said when I made the statement, that in my opinion an attempt to remove every bit of tonsil tissue might be warranted if there is reason to suspect malignancy (cancerous change) in the tonsil.

As a general rule I take care to remind readers that a suggestion, theory or bit of advice is my own and that I am no authority. Or, if it is not just my notion I either name the authority for it or offer to refer physicians to the authority if they ask me politely.

Queer Pro or Propter??

Lady has died her hair for many years. Can this affect the mind? She is very queer. — (Mrs. H. L. C.)

Answer — Not likely, although chronic lead poisoning has been reported in a few instances from use of lead salts in hair-dyes over a period of years, and chronic lead poisoning may affect the mind.

Answer — Grandma meant well. So does Saireygamp when she gives the new baby the first dose of castor oil. So does your old man when he insists you must take a whopping dose of salts. But they all do their victims a lot of harm, causing or aggravating piles. TODAY'S TALK

THE EXPLAINERS

All of us explain too much. Mostly trying to cover up some blunder or act of which we are ashamed, usually the explaining makes matters worse, so that the explainer gets in hotter water than if he had just let things take their natural course. Thoreau wrote: "Who are the estranged?" His answer was: "Two friends explaining."

We never lose anything by being frank and honest. The effort to dodge responsibility is effort wasted. Few, if any, ever explain themselves out of a difficult situation. More often than not explanation complicates the situation and leaves everything confused. The habitual explainers are an unhappy lot.

Often these explainers are interferers, trying to force their own ideas upon someone else. They tend to rob the initiative of another and defeat his enterprise. They say, "I can do it better," and then explain their theory — and all too often it is no more than a theory. By quietly looking on as one does his work, or by listening, without comment, we ourselves learn without any explanation on the part of the one acting or expressing himself.

Nature explains so much without a word of explanation. It leaves that to each one of us. But if we note carefully, we can discover more laws that are in tune with the universe than all those placed upon the statute books! Nature is the great University. Her teachers are all experts, and perfect ones at that. "Stop, Look, Listen" is a good motto to bear in mind as we wander through the forest, or out where the garden of the earth is a thing of wonder.

We can number among the explainers in nature the trees, the wild flowers, the lilies, the birds and the animals, and indeed the very rocks and soil on which our feet tread. The story of earth is here explained. And isn't it wonderful just to think of this? I recall the example of a science teacher in college who, after explaining a lesson, would exclaim: "Isn't it wonderful, students! Isn't it wonderful!"

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bureau of Current Affairs, which aims to keep Canadian servicemen posted on what they are fighting for, has branched out into a new field.

A new series of pamphlets, called the Citizenship Series, has been launched to help acquaint soldiers, sailors and airmen in various parts of the world with their own form of government. The series will cover, says Harry R. Low, director of the bureau, "the minimum that every Canadian ought to know about his government."

No. 1 in the series, written by Brig. W. J. Lawson, Judge Advocate-General of the Canadian forces, is, "The Canadian Constitution." No. 2, written by Russ Hopkins, a former deputy clerk of the Commons, will be, "How Parliament Works." No. 3 will be written by Wilfred Eggleston, journalism professor at Ottawa's Clareton College, and entitled, "Local Government."

Work Expands

The series is another facet of the work in an expanding bureau established last October and which now has a staff of 20.

Other projects include the fortnightly "Current Affairs" pamphlets issued to all units of the three forces in Canada and abroad.

The bureau also has published a series of pamphlets on countries of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, a pamphlet for troops going to Europe and another for those heading for the Far East.

All are available in both French and English and are reported to have been met with "very eager reception," particularly by sailors on the destroyers in the Far East and Canadian airmen at North Luffenham, Eng.

Scot Heads Bureau

Head of the bureau is 45-year-old Mr. Low, a genial Scot who came to Canada in 1935 to teach educational psychology at the University of Manitoba. Later he became Manitoba's deputy minister of education, and director of education for the R.C.A.F.

It's all part of a new emphasis Canada—along with other countries—is placing in what has been termed "the struggle for men's minds." Training establishments throughout the three forces now are alloted one hour a week for lectures on current affairs.

The bureau also issues fortnightly current-affairs maps and language guides for troops abroad.-

'Canada Best' Doukhobor Leader Says After Touring South America

KRESTOVA, B.C. (CP)—A promised land for Canada's unwanted Doukhobors doesn't exist in South America.

After a five-month tour of South American countries, bearded Steffan Sorokin, 40-year-old spiritual leader of the Sons of Freedom, told his followers yesterday it would be unwise for them to flee Canada for South America.

All he found were people who were "amazed" that any group should want to leave Canada.

"Canada is best, Canada is best," he told newspaper men during a press conference at the Sons of Freedom headquarters in this ramshackle village in the Kootenays.

He had met Mennonites, Russians and other European colonists during his tour. All wanted to come to Canada.

British Columbia has some 10,000 Doukhobors. The Sons of Freedom of which Sorokin is leader number about 2,500. They, the radicals of the strange religious sect, are blamed for 50 years of terrorism in the Kootenays.

Had $49,000

It was reported when Sorokin left here he had a fund of $49,000 to finance his tour.

He now believes that relocation of his followers within Canada offers the only peaceful solution.

It has been estimated it will cost $1,000,000 to relocate them in B.C. on suitable farmlands. Several sites have been proposed. Each time protests came from residents in the districts.

Now, Sorokin has advised his followers: "You must improve your reputations so that you will be more acceptable as neighbors."

Sorokin came to Canada from Germany about a year ago as a displaced person. He claimed he had escaped from a Siberian labor camp.

Russian-born, Sorokin, who came to the Kootenays as a travelling evangelist, was accepted by the Doukhobors as a "messenger of peace, sent by the Lord."

Col. McLaughlin Presents $400,000 Library to Oshawa

OSHAWA (CP) — The city of Oshawa, which rejected a proposal three years ago to borrow money for a new library, learned yesterday it will receive one as a gift from Col. R. S. McLaughlin, retired industrialist.

The new building, to cost some $400,000 will be located opposite Oshawa's new city hall.

"I feel sure the by-law was defeated, not because the need was not recognized, but rather because of the simultaneous pressures for many civic improvements,' Col. McLaughlin said in announcing the gift.

N.B. Farmers Try Grass Silage For Winter Feed

FREDERICTON (CP)—Grass silage is seen by New Brunswick farmers as the answer to feeding their cattle in winter. The relatively new venture in this province, replacing the old method of storing dry hay, has resulted from the high cost of concentrate feeds and unpredictable haying weather.

Last winter New Brunswick had about 75 silos. An increase of 100 per cent is expected this year.

The amount of silage stored by individual farmers ranges from 30 to 300 tons. Last winter most of it went to cattle. Farmers reported a substantial saving in feed costs, and in one case Jersey milk production increased by 100 pounds during the first week of silage feeding.

The silage operations started in mid-June. The product is cut and stored while wet, eliminating the loss of hay when unfavorable weather strikes.

Concentrating on this work in 1952, the field husbandry service of the provincial Department of Agiculture has 75 additional men employed in the grass ensilage program.

Some are building the popular and easily constructed trenchsilo. The most common type is the upright cylinder, in addition to the snow fence and stack silo.-

Jail Riot Ends With Surrender, Hostages Freed

BOSTON (AP)—Forty-two prisoners, led by two life-term killers, released two hostages unharmed and surrendered early today about 15 hours after rioting at Massachussetts state prison in Charlestown and barricading themselves in a shop.

Correction Commissioner Maxwell B. Grossman said no promises were given to the prisoners and added, "They'll get the maximum penalty."

The two hostages, Cornelius Horgan, 41, and John Kerrivan, prison employees, said they were swept into the three-storey building to the top floor where the prisoners set up a barricade.

They were not harmed, bound or gagged by the prisoners but were allowed to move around in the room. But they spent a weary night and always felt in danger.

The riot broke out about 1 p.m. CDT Tuesday and ended about 4:15 a.m. today.

Grossman gave special credit to Rev. Edwa[illegible] T. Hartigan, prison Roman Catholic Chaplain, and Warden John J. O'Brien and Deputy Warden John Blaney for "saving our officers. . .our prison industry and millions of dollars involved."

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Married Two Years, She Has Serious Problems

Mrs. X is 30 years old. Her husband is 33, and in the two years they have been married, his irresponsibility, coupled with heavy drinking, has driven her to the point where, she says, she sometimes thinks she will lose her mind.

How it could be that Mrs. X apparently found out so little about this man before she married him, it is hard to conceive, for it seems that they have practically nothing at all in common. She loves to dance; he doesn't dance at all. She could be satisfied with just a movie for entertainment, so long as her husband went with her; he doesn't care about movies. She would be perfectly happy with a quiet evening at home, which is the last thing her husband wants. "All he wants to do," she writes, "is for us to sit in some joint while he gets drunk." She rarely ever took a drink in the past and now is "more against drinking than ever."

Mrs. X has financial difficulties, too, stemming for the most part from her husband's drinking.

"He pays all the bills and what's left, he spends on drinks," she says. "Sometimes there's only 15 or 20 dollars left, and the whole thing goes for liquor. I wouldn't mind his keeping his pay cheque. So long as he pays the bills, I am satisfied. But I do think he should split what's left between us. I've spoken to him about this several times, and he always says I'm right, but still I always have to ask him for any money for things I need, and it makes me feel bad.

"Between never having any money for myself and his never wanting to do anything on his time off but get drunk, it's got so that lately I just want to cry all the time. Sometimes I think I'll find someone else and start going out, but I just can't bring myself to do such a thing. I'm sure it wouldn't be any fun. I'm so unhappy and so worried all the time that I am getting very thin. My husband tells me he loves me above everything, yet when I try to talk to him about giving up drinking he won't discuss it. If I go for a couple of days without speaking, he just makes a joke of it and kids me about it as though nothing had happened.

"If I don't go with him when he wants to go to a bar, he goes by himself and I'm left sitting home alone. At such times I am so upset that I can't go out with my friends or even to a movie myself. What do you think is the right thing to do about this?"

No it is true that there are times when the only thing for a wife with husband trouble to do is to sit tight and wait to see if it won't blow over by itself. But there are plenty of other times when definite action is called for, and I would say that Mrs. X's situation does call for action. Certainly she is never going to get anywhere just sitting around by herself, crying and worrying.

There are two things I would advise her to do. The first is to get herself a job, with the double purpose of giving her something to do with her time and thoughts, and also providing her with the money she needs and doesn't get. In one part of her letter she says she lives in a small place where "there's nothing much to do but go to a movie." I take it, however, that she is talking about ways of amusing herself, rather than a way to occupy herself remuneratively. Even in a small town, there are usually some sort of jobs to be had and she should summon up the energy and determination to find out what and where they are.

The second thing she might do is to get in touch with the nearest Alcoholics Anonymous group and find out if there isn't something they can do to help her with the problem of her husband. Undoubtedly she knows that the men and women who compose Alcoholics Anonymous are former drinkers who have pledged themselves to help others out of the same tragic difficulty. She can find out where the nearest such group is by writing a letter to Alcoholics Anonymous, P.O. Box 459, Grand Central Annex, New York 17, N.Y.

Here, then, are two definite steps for her to take. The sooner she starts moving, the better.

Food for Thought

Special-Purpose Menu

By Mary Moore

It is a good cabbage year. I have it straight from a cabbage head. Sure—he operates a cabbage patch so he's head of it isn't he? Quick-cooked wedges of cabbage are good I know, especially with boiled or corned beef but we want to be different in this cooking club, so let's use cabbage as if it were a delicacy and serve it with an air.

If you are truly European-cookery-minded you will ladle sour cream over these Kol Dolmer while they are baking and when eating. You won't do it without coaxing if you are Canadian so I should keep quiet. Try it just once. I did and I'm Canadian to the marrow bone. It was delicious.

AN INEXPENSIVE SUPPER

Kol Dolmer (cabbage rolls)
Stuffed Tomato Salad
Quality Bread Pudding
(for Mrs. Stuart M.)
Iced Tea or Coffee

DIRECTIONS:

KOL DOLMER

Ask the butcher to grind you 1 lb. beef and 1-2 lb. shoulder pork together. Mix these with 1 cup raw washed rice, 1 chopped onion, 1 teaspoon each sugar and salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper. Separate the leaves from a medium-sized cabbage—a fresh bright green one—and trim the thick part of the rib from the biggest outside leaves. Drop them into pot of boiling water and let boil 1 minute—just to wilt them. Lift them out and drain. Put a heaping dessertspoonful of the meat mixture in each cabbage leaf. Roll the leaf up half way and fold ends in, not too tightly, and finish rolling up. Place folded side down in buttered baking dish, having each roll just touching. Dot cabbage with butter and add 1 cup boiling water, or better still 1 1-2 cups tomato juice or canned tomatoes, or even better still 1 cup sour cream. Cover and bake at 325 degres Fahr. for 1 1-2 hours, then remove cover and bake at 275 for last 1-2 hour—giving them 2 hours in all. Do not try to turn or baste them or they will break. Carefully life to hot platter to serve.

STUFFED TOMATO SALAD

Place each tomato on a small plate on bed of lettuce, having cut tomato nearly through into quarters. Fill centre with mixture of cottage cheese, chives and mayonnaise or spoonful of mixture of finely chopped celery, green pepper and crisp bacon and mayonnaise. Top with sprig of parsley.

QUALITY BREAD PUDDING

(For Mrs. Stuart M.)

In top of double boiler heat 2 cups whole milk to scalding. When hot pour this over 4 cups coarse breadcrumbs or stale crustless white bread cut into 1-4-inch cubes. When this is cool pour over it a mixture of 2 beaten eggs, 1-4 cup melted butter, 1-3 cup sugar, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup seeded raisins, and 1 teaspoon cinnamon or nutmeg. Stir a little then pour into buttered baking dish to 2-3 its depth. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 40 minutes or until silver knife comes out clean when inserted.

Variations: To make a custardy type bread pudding increase milk to 3 1-2 cups and reduce bread to 2 1-2 cups. To make Chocolate bread pudding melt 2 squares unsweetened chocolate in the milk when it is heating.

A delicious Spice Breadcrumb Pudding may be made too—Mix together 1 cup each soft breadcrumbs and buttermilk. Mix together very well 2 tablespoon molasses, 3 tablespoons soft butter and 1 cup brown sugar. Stir in the soaked bread mixture. Sift together 1-2 cup flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon soda, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon and shake of cloves. Stir this into the mixture, then add 1-2 cup seeded or seedless raisins or dates. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. in buttered baking dish for about 20 or 25 minutes. Quality Bread Pudding or any of these others are delicious with Hard Sauce.

GOOD MANNERS

By CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Good for summer wedding reception. . .ever-popular chicken salad

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We're having quite a large reception after our 4 o'clock church wedding in August. Will you please suggest a menu that isn't just the usual sandwiches, cakes, beverages. . . .something a bit more "sustaining"?—Marie H.

Chicken salad. . .really good chicken salad. . .is the perfect "sustaining" item to serve at an afternoon wedding reception in August. It deserves its popularity, for practically everyone likes it, it can be so delicious, and it can be served with the ever-popular potato chips, and also very small, very thin sandwiches, with simple fillings. Very often the majority of the sandwiches are bread - and - butter sandwiches, made of various kinds of breads. Or, if you prefer and if it is convenient, serve these excellent companion-items with chicken salad. . .very small finger rolls, opened, slightly buttered, and then heated. You might serve hot coffee, with ice tea or other cold beverage as an alternative. And with the wedding cake, you may serve ice cream, perhaps in wedding molds.

Not necessarily a kiss with words of sympathy

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

This question is to settle a discussion.

One of my neighbors lost her father. Another neighbor lost his wife. When I said to each one, "You have my deepest sympathy", need I have kissed them, and if so, why?—A. H.

No need for a kiss to accompany your words of sympathy. . . though if the neighbor whose father died was an intimate friend of yours, it might have been natural for you to kiss her as you offered your sympathy. However, usually a warm-hearted handshake as you say words of sympathy sincerely conveys the message of understanding and friendliness.

In these circumstances, bride's mother should give bride in marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our daughter is to be married, and because of very special circumstances, she is planning to go to be married in the place where her fiance is now stationed. I shall be going with her. Please tells us if it would be proper for me to give her in marriage? Also is it absolutely necessary for the bride to have an attendant, such as a maid of honor or bridesmaid? (This seems impossible, under the circumstances.)—B. B. H.

Yes, indeed it is proper for you to give your daughter in marriage. (I am assuming that the bride's father cannot be present at the wedding.) In the circumstances you mention, I think it would be particularly fitting. . . and particularly appealing too. . . for you to give your daughter in marriage.

If suitable arrangements can be made about witnesses, it is not at all necessary for your daughter to have an attendant. (1) You and your daughter may walk up the aisle together; or (2) she may walk up the aisle alone, and as she arrives at the front pew on the left of the aisle, you may step from your place in this pew and join her, standing on her left, until you have responded "I do" to the clergyman's question, "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?"; or (3) she may walk up the aisle alone, and, you, standing in your place in the front pew, may nod your assent, or respond "I do" from this position.

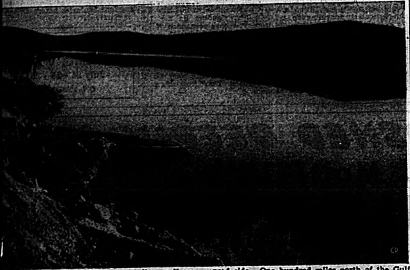
Wilderness Beauty



Labrador-Ungava has a tranquil as well as a rugged side. One hundred miles north of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, Wacuna Lake presents an inviting picture of wilderness beauty, serene and peaceful but only experienced woodsmen would venture into the wilds which surround it. — (CP Photo.)

Labrador, Ungava, Canada's New Frontier Present Grim Exterior to Settlers

(Editor's note; This is the first in a series of stories by Forbes Rhude, Canadian Press business editor, on the huge iron-ore development in northern Quebec and Labrador. These articles will take you into a country which yesterday seemed destined to be silent wasteland forever. There, in Ungava-Labrador, you will work with railway builders, wander the wilderness with geologists, meet the people who live in this awakening land.)

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Labrador and Ungava may have been only names to you. True, if you were from the Maritime provinces, Labrador may have been a little more than that—an indistinct coastline fronting a vast unknown interior, about which captains of small trading schooners told you strange tales.

You had heard of the work of the missionary-doctor, Sir Wilfred Grenfell. You remembered the woman you had once talked to on a train—a woman from the Moravian mission, on her first trip out in 12 years, whose greatest material wish was for a washing machine to relieve the scrub, scrub of the washboard.

If you were from Newfoundland, your knowledge was more extensive.

Cain's Domain

From Quebec, Ungava probably would be a great wilderness which had been added to your province in 1912. By now it might be catching your imagination as "New Quebec," and its southern shore, at least, was a part of "Old Quebec," with fishing and trading villages.

If you were from farther west, however, it is probable that Labrador and Ungava were at best soft names for sleeping cars. At worst, in the words of Jacques Cartier, they were the land given to Cain,

But this summer's day, as you sweltered at Peel and St. Catherine streets in Montreal, you knew you had to give up those misty ideas.

Remote Riches

For this is the day of the airplane, and in a few hours you would be in Labrador-Ungava. You had read about it and you knew you would find, not the lonely land of your sub-conscious mind, but the opening of a new rich part of Canada.

You would see a railway being thrown across rivers, around lakes, through gorges and canyons; see a country running red from the iron ore lying beneath it—a country which, by all the implications of its known geology, must be a treasure chest of many minerals.

Where is this land, awakening from the long sleep into which it was lulled by the ice ages?

It is that giant peninsula bounded on the east by the Atlantic Ocean, on the north by Hudson Strait, on the west by Hudson Bay, and on the south by the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

It contains about 450,000 square miles. The eastern part, more than one-quarter of it, belongs to Newfoundland and is called Labrador. The rest is part of Quebec and, except for the southern shore, is called Ungava, or New Quebec. It comprises about one-eighth of all Canada.

Romantic Story

What has happened to bring it into prominence? [illegible]

Iron ore has been discovered smack in the middle of it.

What is being done to bring out the ore?

A 360-mile railway is being built from where the ore is, in the vicinity of Knob Lake and Burnt Creek, to tidewater at Seven Islands (Sept Isles), Que., at the wide mouth of the St. Lawrence River.

How do you reach Seven Islands, the entrance to this country?

By plane nearly 500 miles northeast from Montreal; or by train to Mont Joli, Que., on the south side of the St. Lawrence, then across by air, 140 miles.

The discovery and development of the ore, and the building of the railway, is the story of men, and women too, wrestling with the wilderness—people from all parts of Canada and many parts of the world.

The wilderness yields slowly. In my week there, one man was drowned, one killed, two injured, one lost for three days. However, that was a "bad week."

Warning Wilderness

And the wilderness, to give it its due, will likely point a cautioning finger at you as you approach it, to tell you that though this country is rich, it remains stern.

I caught a direct flight from Montreal to Seven Islands—two hours and 35 minutes with a tail-wind. Past Quebec, the summer sunshine faded and we flew through fog, rain, and bumpy air. At Seven Islands the ceiling was only 300 feet, and we listened on the earphones as the plane was talked in on the beam.

I asked: "Do you always fly in weather like this?" and I was told:

"If we didn't fly in weather like this, we'd spend a lot of time on the ground."

Labrador-Ungava weather does indeed ring all the changes. In its centre, at Burnt Creek, I saw it rain, shine, snow, shine, hail, shine, blow, all in one day of the "fine weather" season. "Typical," was the local comment.

In winter, at Seven Islands, on the coast, I was told that it blows and blows—first inland and then back to sea. The thermometer may drop to 40, 50, 60 below zero, and still it blows.

One spring day, an ice floe, estimated to weigh 75,000 tons, cut away 300 feet of dock like butter, pilings and all.

In summer, the Seven Islands vicinity is a land of sand; and, in a wind, of sandstorms.

Beauty, Too

Yet the shores rise softly from the sea and on fine days the miles-long beaches are beautiful. Even the fog and rain have a sombre appeal.

There isn't much mud, either at Seven Islands or north at Burnt Creek. Jeeps and trucks plunge through rain-filled hollows which would scare a motorist in other parts of Canada.

But, in all, though Labrador-Ungava will yield great riches to Canada, it is not a place for vineyards. Neither will there be wheat-fields to threaten the golden granary of the west.

Bisley Team Heading Home

LONDON (CP)—While most of the Canadian Bisley team are packing for the trip home July 24 aboard the liner Franconia, Lieut. Gilmour Boa of Toronto, 1951 winner of the King's Prize, left today by plane for Helsinki to represent Canada at the Olympic Games.

Lt.-Col. J.T. Steele of Guelph, Ont., commandant of the Canadian camp, has left for Scotland for a brief visit. Some of the other members of the team also are tarrying a bit in Britain and the continent for a sight-seeing holiday before their departure for home.

Maj. C.F. Kennedy of Truro, N.S. team adjutant, said the team members were happy over their Bisley efforts. Although they lost the Kolapore Cup and the Queen's Prize, they did win the MacKinnon Trophy for long-range team competition. This is the first time the Canadians have won the competition since 1934.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP) — Every so often we call again on our old pal Al Weill, matchmaker of the International Boxing Club, to receive renewed assurance that Al no longer manages Rocky Marciano, the valuable young heavyweight who fights Harry Matthews Monday night at Yankee Stadium.

The reason it is necessary to have our faith in Al refurbished at frequent intervals is that there are quite a few boxing writers and conductors of daily shorts columns in this locality who are not convinced that Al actually deeded Marciano to his stepson, Marty Weill.

Doubt Transfer

These doubters continue to insist that Al, a powerful figure in the industry, only pretended to give up his tiger when he joined the I.B.C. and that he has, in reality, gone right on guiding Rocky's lumbering footsteps.

It is against the rules of the New York State Athletic Commission for a promoter also to be a manager.

Had he, we asked, read the latest blast at his reputed absentee ownership, a vivid article which compared him, roughly with Willie Sutton, the bank robber, and which asserted that Marty Weill, Marciano's manager of record, had not yet even located Ronky's training camp? Al, a portrait of rectitude in any league, sighed under his burden.

"I saw it, but I didn't read it," he said. "Just so they mention the fight, that's all I care about. It's as I've told you all the time: When I had to give up Marciano, what was more natural than to give him to my son Marty? It wasn't as if he hadn't managed other fighters.

"Of course," Al conceded, "we've kept in touch with each other. When Marty wants to know something pertainingto certain things, he calls me and I always give him any advice I can. There's nothing wrong with that, is there?"

We assured him there wasn't, and asked if we could expect to see Rocky's present proprietor in his corner Monday night.

To Be At Fight

"You bet Marty will be there," Al replied.

Well, we said, we had just wanted to hear Al, himself, give the facts in the case once again.

"You've got it right, pal," Al assured us. "It was all done legal and Marty is listed with the commission as Marciano's manager."

The world somehow seemed brighter after talking with Al Weill.-

Glen Roy Peewees Defeat Boyce's

Glen Roys peewee softballers defeated a shorthanded Boyce's team by a 46-4 score at Firemen's Park last night.

Reid hurled for the winners giving up seven hits and walking four. Moore and McMillan pitched for the losers.

Bull hit two homers, four doubles a single and drew a walk for a perfect night for the winners. Young of the same team had a homer, double, five singles and a walk.

Rotary meets Boyce's on Thursday night in another scheduled game.

Hunter Hurls Two Hitter, Glens Win 6-3

Fireballing Bob Hunter, pitching the best game of his youthful career, set down the CNR Diesels with two hits last evening as Glen Roy Juniors smashed out a 6-3 victory over the trainmen in the first game of their best-in-three series for the city league title. The second game will be played at the CNR Recreation Field, Thursday evening.

The victory was the Glens first over the A's in three meetings. On previous occasions the Juniors dropped a 7-6 10-inning decision, and a 4-3 verdict in nine frames.

Hunter pitched brilliant ball after a shaky first inning in which he gave up both Diesel hits and two of the five free tickets he issued during the game. From that point on he was invincible as he held the powerful Diesels hitless over the last eight innings, while striking out four and giving up a total of five walks.

In addition to pitching a masterful game Hunter fielded his position like an octopus, making several spectacular one-handed stops.

Diesels scored all their runs in the first inning. Jack Hunter struck out to open the inning, but Rogers walked, Leo Goyer fouled out to first and Vern Goyer drew a walk Then Glen Young slammed a sharp single through short. The relay from Wannamaker in centrefield sailed into the seats with Rogers and Goyer scoring and Young taking third. Don Adams rapped a sharp grounder to second base that took a weird hop over Batchelor's head for two bases with Young scoring.

Juniors Score Two

The Juniors scored two runs in the bottom of the first. Barclay was thrown out third-to-first on an attempted bunt to open the inning. Carr singled to centrefield but was erased in a fielder's choice that put Doug Hull on first. An error at first sent Hull down to second. An attempt to nail Hull at second failed as the ball soared on into left field and Hull scampered home before the relay.

John Batchelor crashed a line-drive home run to centrefield for the second run. Pete Green walked and Gerry Goyer singled, but DeGray popped out to the catcher to end the inning.

The Juniors scored the tying run in the sixth on a double by Pete Green, a fielder's choice and a single to centrefield by DeGray.

The Glens came up with three tallies in the seventh for their winning margin. Singles by Barclay and Carr with one out set the stage for Hull's double to centrefield. Carr beat the relay to the plate and Hull took third as the ball got away from the catcher.

Al Adams came on to relieve Marty Halloran at this stage. He got Batchelor on a ground ball to short that scored Hull and Pete Green ended the inning with a hoist to left field.

Marty Halloran toiled six and one third innings for the Diesels walking one, striking out one, and giving up nine hits for all the runs, Al Adams walked one, struck out none, and gave up no hits in relief.

Best at the plate for the winners were Carr and Hull with two hits in four tries.

COPENHAGEN (CP)—City Council decided some years ago to give children life-size toys. On playgrounds they placed a fire engine, a railway engine and a fishing boat. The children were delighted. 'Muskie King' Gets 24-Pounder Near Glenora

PICTON—First muskellunge of the season was taken this week from the Bay of Quinte, off Glenora, by Herb. Punchard of Adolphustown, who is the "muskie king" of the district, taking a number of big ones each year. The fish weighed 24 pounds and measured 44 inches in length.

While fishing is affected by the hot weather, good catches of pickerel and bass are reported. John Fries, Trenton, New Jersey, caught a small mouth bass in West Lake, which weighed four pounds one ounce. George Wilson, Seaforth, got a pickerel in Baggott's Bay, which weighed 9 pounds 11 ounces.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

PETES TOMORROW NIGHT

The Peterborough Petes who have taken a new lease of life and won their last three COBL starts will be gunning for their fourth victory in Kingston tonight while they will be the guests of the Redmen here tomorrow night. The Petes were also scheduled for here on Friday night but due to lacrosse occupying the sports spotlight in Liftlockville the game has been laid over till Saturday night here, we understand. Either that or it is the game that was postponed from June 2nd when Belleville was bulb-less.

Saturday night's tilt will be ladies' night here as was reported before and it is anticipated a large number of the distaff side will be on hand to see the Reds and Petes go through their diamond calisthenics. There will be draws for prizes and according to Jack "Bill Veek" Carson, the gadgets are well worth taking home. Then, too, the price of admission has been demoted to "two-bits" for the gals, and that should not be too hard a strain on the old boy's pocketbook.

Anyway, Messrs. Joe Stewart, Lefty Dadson, Bill Edger and company will be here with their all-star cast tomorrow night in what should be a typical Peterborough-Belleville diamond joust. Things are always a bit lively when the two ancient rivals clash and tomorrow evening should be no exception.

The Reds got a couple of shaky games out of their collective systems in the tilts with the Smiths Falls Royals and the Camp Drum Drummers, so they should be in rare fettle for tomorrow's clash. We are guessing that Art Wright will get the tossing assignment and if the "fish-and-chipper" is in the same form he displayed against Kingston a short time back, the Petes are in for a tough time at the platter.

LEST WE FORGET

Jack "Crock" Boyle reminds us that we both forgot to mention two of the stars of that grand little 1945 junior softball team, Don Boyle and Jackie Wardhaugh. How the memory ever skipped Don is beyond us, but nevertheless the fella's glory is not dimmed nor is that of Wardhaugh by the ommission. Wardhaugh played a lot of third base for the Squires and had a fine hitting record during the playoffs.

Don Boyle, rated one of the best junior pitchers in Ontario at that time flung the Squires to many a victory not forgetting the two games he won in the semi-finals against Toronto Mount Carmels and the 5-0 two-hit shutout over Hamilton in the first of the finals. He also won the second finals game against Hamilton letting them down with four hits. Both Wardhaugh and Boyle are now members of the CNR Diesels at present battling the Glen Roy juniors for the city title.

And "Crock" should not be forgotten. While he did not mention his own efforts for the Squires, no small amount of credit goes to this popular manager-coach for the bringing home of the championship bacon to Belleville.

THAT MAN AGAIN

"See heah, m'man," chortled Lord Athol Layton, extending his six-foot-six of Surrey manhood until his handsome locks dusted the cobwebs off the rafters, "You have no bloody—pardon—confounded business is disentigrating my reputation to the point where it has become a bloody shambles and has depreciated to the extent where my wrestling ability is on a par with these novice blighters who believe a racket is a noise in the blawsted mews. I'll have no such goings-on, you know. It's about time you blinkin' journalists were put upon your favorite spot."

Well, that was something of a break. We thought a journalist was a newspaper bloke who carried a cane and didn't have a job.

"Lemme at the portly punk," grunted his bodyguard, one Lou Pitoscia,. "I'll hit him so hard his shirt will roll up his back like a window blind."

So it began to look like a pleasant evening. It's a good thing Lou is a friend of Vic Bagnato and Vic is a friend of ours or we would have gone looking for a local Martin Kane, Johnny Dollar, or even the voice behind the creaking door. Or Mr. Chameleon would have done nicely since he could have transformed us into something that resembled a wrestler and we could have claimed brotherhood immunity.

"I'll have you know that I fully intend to make what the Americans call hamburg, or an overheated canine, out of this low fellow Brazil. I think they call him Bo-Bo, a name I always thought was copywrited by a certain spheroid-tosser in this American game of rounders or is it baseball? I shall whip him, you know," went on 'is Lordship, "and I shall do it rather handy, shant we, Louis, old pip."

"Yeah," grunted Lou, unravelling himself from 5,000 kilometers of spaghetti. "We're goin' to chop him so hard, he'll look like a half-ton of liver that has met up with a buzz-saw and came out the wrong end."

That's what you think, pals. All we can recommend is "low bridge" because if Bo-Bo bonks you on the conk as they say in the Department of Culture, School of Applied Pachydermy, it will be lights out, and you won't know where the switch is.

Owen Sound Beats St. Kitts 20-16

OWEN SOUND (CP)—Owen Sound Crescents made a nine-goal first-half lead stand up for a 20-16 win over St. Catharines Athletics last night in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game. The result broke a tie between the two clubs for fifth place in the league standings.

The Athletics, down 14-5 at half time and with only 11 men in uniform, made a game comeback. They sliced the Crescent lead to 16-14 after three minutes of the final quarter but then ran out of steam and the Sounders ripped home four straight goals.

Bun White sparked Owen Sound to its third straight win with five goals. Arnold Smith, Tony Capula and Fred Marchant tallied three each and Bill Allum got two with the singletons going to Harry Kazarian, Fred Smith, Don Campbell and Johnny Matheson.

Bill Nelson topped the A's offensive with four goals and Johnny Dewar was next with three. Tank Teather, Skip Teal and Jim McMahon had two each, and the others went to Joe Cheevers, Scotty Baldwin and Ted Howe.

Tigers Edge Washington 1-0 As Yanks Crush Tribe in Two; Bobby Shantz Gets 17th Win

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baseball fans looked back to last night's thrill-packed action and cracked "What, no no-hitter?"

That's about the only thing that didn't occur in the major leagues And that, too, came within one pitch of being acomplished.

The star—or is it victim?—of that pitching feat was Virgil Trucks, already the author of the American League's sole no-hitter of the 1952 season. The Detroit righthander gave up just one hit, a single by Eddie Yost, in hurling the Tigers to a 1-0 victory over Washington Senators.

Hit First Pitch

Yost's hit came on Trucks' first pitch of the game. It was a slow-moving grounder between short and third. Had the Tigers been able to retire the leadoff batter, Trucks would have gone down in sports history as the only hitcher to hurl two no-hitters against the same club in one season. He held Washington runless and hitless May 15 by the same 1-0 score.

Other highlights included:

New York Yankees swept a doubleheader from the vanishing Indians before 57,666 crushed Cleveland fans, 7-4 and 8-1, to increase their first-place margin over Boston Red Sox to five games.

Bobby Shantz continued on his way to his 30-victory goal, pitching Philadelphia Athleticsto a 3-2 win over St. Louis Browns. Shantz yielded eight blows for his 17th victory against three losses.

Dave Koslo registered his fifth straight success over St. Louis Cardinals this season, his 12th in a row over them in three years, as New York Giants earned a 3-2 win on Hank Thompson's two-run homer in the sixth.

Dodgers Trim Reds

Brooklyn Dodgers met a four-run 10th inning by Cincinnati with a five-run outburst of their own to nip the Reds 7-6 and retain their 7½-game bulge over the Giants in the National League race. Ken Raffensberger, third Red pitcher of the inning, hit Rube Walker with a pitched ball to force over the winning run.

Boston Braves spotted Chicago Cubs a 4-0 lead on Dee Fondy's grand-slam homer and roared back to win, 6-4.

Philadelphia Phils climbed to the .500 mark with a double win over Pittsburgh, 14-4 and 8-1, and moved within a game of the fourth-place Cubs.

Rookie Dick Gernert rapped a two-run homer in the 13th to give Boston a 4-2 triumph over Chicago White Sox.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Shirley Eckel, Hurdle Sensation, Is 'Scratched'

HELSINKI (CP) — Shirley Eckel, blonde little speedster from Toronto, has been scratched from the women's 80-metre Olympic hurdles.

Coach Joey Richman said last night that because of a leg injury it's almost certain Shirley will also be out of the women's 400-metre relay.

The 20-year-old girl has been bothered by a pulled muscle in her right leg since shortly after her arrival from Canada July 6 She hasn't gone over the hurdles in more than a week.

Her loss is a big disappointment to the track and field team, still without a single point for Canada in the team standings.

Record Number of Entries Poised For Canadian Henley Opening Heats

By CRAIG SWAYZE

PORT DALHOUSIE (CP)—The first contingent of more than 250 crews entered in the Royal Canadian Henley Regatta take to the water today in the opening heats of this four-day international rowing competition.

The regatta is the 70th in the history of Canadian rowing and the 50th to be held on this historic Old Welland Canal course.

Canal Clogged

Crews began arriving here Sunday. By last night most of there record number of competitors were here and the calm waters of the canal were clogged.

There are 15 events today, all but two of them heats. The opening race, a 145-pound singles quarter-mile dash, is scheduted for 3:50 p. m.

The two final races on today's program are the high school singles and the 145-pound singles dash final.

Crews are here from as far west as Chicago and Minneapolis in the U.S. and Winnipeg in Canada. Buffalo sent more than 70 oarsmen, out to repeat their 1951 point-aggregate win, emblematic of regatta supremacy. The host St. Catharines club has 23 entries, one more than the West Sides.

Ottawa has a strong representation, too, but their Eastern Ontario rivals, Brockville, have contributed only one lightweight four this year. Facing a strenuous opening day of 135-pound and 145-pound heats, Ottawa is favored to reap at least one victory.

Accidents heve plagued some crews already. The New York Athletic Club's three scullers have lost a double and a single sculls, smashed by a gust of wind which blew them off their car on the trip to Port Dalhousie.

One Shell Smashed

A Buffalo West Side crew dropped its shell four yesterday and smashed it on the float. Another Buffalo eight escaped with minor checks after a mid-course collision with an Ecorse, Mich., four.

En route through southern Ontario Detroit oarsmen were towing their three eights, four fours, a pair of doubles and three singles on a huge trailer. At Delhi the driver felt a tug and watched wide-eyed as the trailer sailed past him.

However, the long carry-all coasted to a stop beside the pumps of a way-side gasoline station.

Australian Girl Halts Americans' Record-Breaking March At Helsinki

'All-Wrong Training Method' Wins Gold Medal for Runner; Yanks Smash Marks in Three

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (CP)—The 70,000-seat Olympic Stadium was sold out today for the first time since Saturday's opening ceremonies of the 1952 Olympic Games.

The big drawing card was the javelin throw, a national sport of this small country. The predominantly Finnish crowd was supremely confident that Finland's first gold medal of the Games was as good as won.

On that basis the United States faced another halt in its powerful march to track and field titles.

Aussie Wins Sprint

There was a break yesterday. Marjorie Jackson, 21-year-old Australian girl, skimmed down the brick-red track to win the women's 100-metre sprint championship.

In doing it she equalled the Olympic and world record of 1.5 seconds. A South African girl and two more Australians followed her over the finish line.

The United States got only a sixth place out of that sensational show but took the other three final events in the big stadium to the accompaniment of record-crashing.

Rev. Bob Richards of Laverne, Calif., who is both preacher and pole-vaulter, broke the pole vault record with a mark of 4.55 metres —14 feet, 11.14 inches. Three others bettered the old record of 14 feet, 3¼ inches.

Sam Iness, giant Los Angeles discus thrower, let go with record heaves and outdistanced the defending champion, Adolfo Consolini of Italy.

Hurls 18½ Feet

Iness' longest throw was 180 feet, 6.85 inches. Consolini also bettered his 1948 record of 173 feet, two inches, and so did Jim Dillon of the United States.

A third record for the day was made when Herbert Schade of Germany chopped three full seconds from the 5,000-metre record in winning a heat in 14:15.4. The final in this event comes up tomorrow.

Mal Whitfield of Columbus, Ohio, gave the United States its third victory of the day in winning the 800-metre run. It was a repetition of his 1948 success at London and he duplicated his Olympic record of 1:49.2.

For the third day Canada's athletes tried vainly to get into point-scoring places.

In yesterday's two heats in the 200-metre event three Canadians were eliminated. Don McFarlane of Hamilton and Bob Hutchison of Victoria were eliminated in second heats. Pete Sutton of Toronto went out in the first.

Rich Ferguson of Toronto was the only runner in a field of 44 to drop out of the 5,000-metre heats. He said his legs "went dead."

Pella Trails

Roy Pella of Sudbury got past the qualifying round of the discus throw and placed 14th in the final. In addition, Canada's rowing squad is through. The eights—Toronto Argonauts—were the last to go, defeated yesterday in a last-chance heat by Germany. The wrestlers are also finished. Armand Bernard, Montreal featherweight, suffered his second defeat yesterday.

A grand new series of events came up today in track and field, along with the final in the 200-metre dash.

The Finns not only were the favorites to win the javelin throw but they hoped they could break a record in doing it.

Records have been broken so often in the first three days of track and field—eight of the first 12 events—that the crowds have come to regard anything less than a record as a pretty poor show.

Favor New Zealander

A possibility of another champion from Down Under was seen. Practically everybody favored Yvette Williams of New Zealand in the women's broad jump.

The new sprint queen, Marjorie Jackson, ran the race of her life yesterday in winning the 100-metre championship. Teammates set up a yell of "couee, couee" as she flashed over the line.

She is a typist in Lithgow, a coal mining town in New South Wales. She first attracted big-time attention in the 1950 British Empire Games at Auckland when she won the sprints and anchored winning relay teams.

Since then Australians—particularly Lithgow miners and railway workers—have paid her high tribute.

Tracks were laid out so she could get as much experience as possible. Her trainer, Jim Monaghan, a former professional sprinter and now a store clerk, worked out a new training theory. He trained Marjorie each evening far away from spectators and let her keep her own peculiar style of running, which many experts say is all wrong. The most noticeable peculiarity is the way she rolls her head from side to side when running.

Guelph Breaks Loss String, Trim Sox 12-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Guelph Maple Leafs proved to the senior Intercounty League last night that they may be wilting but they're not dead.

Stung by six straight losses and their sudden tumble from the top berth, the Leafs turned and smashed the third-place Brantford Red Sox 12-3.

The Leafs crashed through Brantford defences with a 12-hit barrage and made every hit count.

Shortstop Marv Rich contributed a home run in the fifth with two runners on.

Pitcher Marty Philip went the distance for Guelph for his fourth victory. Gibbs was tagged with the loss. Ed Napier, Brantford catcher, lofted a homer for the losers in the first with one on, while Sox second-baseman Ed Finney topped both teams on hitting with a double and two singles in five trips.

Homer Wins Game

At Kitchener, rightfielder Dick Welker walloped a home run to give the Panthers their victory. He clobbered the first pitch in the seventh to break a 1-1 tie.

The Elgins struck with righthander Bob Griffith, who recently held the Panthers to one hit. Last night they touched him for six.

The Panthers started southpaw Hal Johnston and kept him till the ninth when Charlie Fedoris relieved. No player on either team collected more than one hit.

Yugoslavs Beat Russ at Soccer

Tampere, Finland (AP)—In a brilliant exhibition of first-rate soccer the Yugoslav team last night defeated Russia 3-1 in a first-round Olympic tournament soccer replay match.

At half time the score was 2-1. The first match between the two teams Sunday ended in a 5-5 draw.

Argos Crew Eliminated at Helsinki, Will Disband Following CNE Race

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (CP)—Toronto Argonauts, Canada's last remaining entry in Olympic rowing competition, were eliminated yesterday when the eight-oar crew finished nearly a length behind Germany in a semi-final.

But Britain, South Africa and Australia will carry colors of the Commonwealth and Empire into today's finals with entires in five of the seven events.

The Canadians, using borrowed shells, had vanced to the second-last bracket by finishing in a dead heat Monday with Sweden. The judges decided to move both teams into the semi-finals.

Trail Throughout

In yesterday's race, Germany took the lead from the start and was ahead eight feet at the 200-metre mark. Then the Germans steadily increased their lead to a length at 1,000 metres and to 1½ lengths at the 1,500-metre mark. But the Canadians began to close up near the finish.

Argos finished the 2,000-metre race in 6:24.8. The Germans 6:19.3.

Frank Kaysmith, Argos coach, said there could be no excuses.

"We just met a better crew," he said. "At least it was something to get into the semi-finals."

The Canadians were racing in Swedish boats because their own craft were damaged beyond repair while being shipped to Helsinki.

Canada's only other rowing entries, the Winnipeg pair of Bob Williams and Derek Riley, and the Hamilton Leander senior four, were eliminated Monday.

To Disband

It was learned that Argonauts' eight-oared crew will disband after one more race at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Three members of the crew are quitting, including Ted Chilcott, a veteran of 13 years in the sport.

The Canadians were disconsolate over the assorted misfortunes which have dogged their bid for sculling glory.

"We were built up for this over a long period, and now everything seems like an anti-climax," said George McCauley.

Sport in Brief

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Even the most ardent Ottawa Rough Rider fan won't be able to tell what's going on without a program when the Dominion champions open the 1952 football season Aug. 9 with an exhibition game against Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Practices started this week, and railbirds found less than a dozen of last year's Grey Cup champions back for the opening whistle.

Coach Clem Crowe has rounded up 12 American imports to work for the eight spots allowed by Big Four regulations. Judging by his choices, Crowe—an old lineman who played under Knute Rockne in Notre Dame's balmy days—will field a weighty team.

Tom O'Malley, who quarterbacked Riders' Grey Cup win over Saskatchewan Roughriders last November, will have the support of a couple of giants. They are Harry Ulinski, 245-pound, six-foot-four snap who was with Washington Redskins last year, and Lloyd McDermott, 250-pound University of Kentucky middle.

Besides O'Malley, last year's import holdovers are Bill Stanton, outside, Alton Baldwin, pass-catching end, and lineman John Bovey. Both Howie Turner, Riders' star running half, and John Wagoner, All-Star lineman, are classed as Canadians this year.

Canadians back with the team are Bruce Cummings, kicking star, Ottawa home-brews Benny MacDonell, Frank Dunlap and Buck Rogers, end Matt Anthony and the goat-or-hero Pete Karpuk, whose play in leaping from the bench to tackle an opponent drew wide attention last fall.

Mary Lou O'Connor from Warwick Downs, R.I., invades Toronto harness racing circles today to drive against men at Thorncliffe Raceway. Mary Lou will drive her own pacer, Sweet Prince, in the day's secondary pacing feature. She brings a stable of four horses to campaign on the Toronto track.

Louis Passador, 30, will report in Kitchener Sept. 15 as the new coach of Kitchener Greenshirts of the O.H.A. junior "A" series, it was announced yesterday. Passador, of the Western Canada junior hockey finalists, Fort William Hurricanes last year, succeeds Lloyd Gross of Kitchener.

Al Dekdebrun, the United States quarterback Toronto Argos cut loose in the 1951 football season, wants a tryout with the 1952 team. Bob Moran, Argo president, said in Toronto yesterday "we have to give it quite a bit of thought" after Dekdebrun, who sparked the Argos to the Dominion championship in 1950, reported that the sore arm which hampered him last year is completely better.

Marlene Stewart of Fonthill, Canadian women's Close and Open golf champion, will play an exhibition match in Winnipeg tomorrow. She will stop over there en route to the 1952 championships at Edmonton. She will team up with Les Beaven, professional at St. Charles club, against June Baker, Manitoba women's champion, and Niakwa pro Harold Eidsvig.

Egyptian swimmer Mustafa Dawoud, 19, a Cairo radioman, gave up last night on this season's first try at the English Channel. Ten hours and 45 minutes after starting at Cap Gris Nez, he was about six miles short of the English coast—and swimming the wrong way. His coach blamed compass failure in his escort motorboat for the misdirection and failure.

Leafs Nip Royals As Wings Split Pair With Cubs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It isn't often that the cellar-dwelling Ottawa Athletics get a chance to howl. But they were still talking today about the masterful pitching job turned in by Charlie Bishop last night when he shut out Syracuse Chiefs in the second half of a doubleheader.

After Arnie Landeck tossed a two-hit, seven-inning shutout in the first game to give the Chiefs a 2-0 decision Bishop came back and yielded only three safeties in in the standard nightcap as his mates took the game 1-0.

He was under pressure all the way, but struck out eight, most of them in critical moments.Ottawa scored its only run in the first inning when Harvey Gentry singled and went to third on an error by John Blatnik. He got home on a rounder by Jack Littrell.

In the opener Carden Gillenwater hit his fifth home run and Ben Zientara hit a fly with a man on third to account for both Chief runs.

Rochester Red Wings picked up a half-game on Montreal Royals by splitting a doubleheader with Springfield Cubs, and are two games away from the front-runners. The Wings took the first 4-3 and the Cubs the nightcap 8-2.

Royals dropped a3-2 decision to Toronto Maple Leafs, while Buffalo Bisons and Baltimore Orioles split a twin bill. Bisons grabbed a first 4-3 but the Orioles came back to win the second 1-0.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Give an opening lead credit. It has the power of making or breaking many a good contract. Generally a rule lead brings the best result to the side trying to defeat the bid.

Take the deal shown here:

NORTH
♠8 6 3 2
♥A Q J 10 8 4
♦9 3

WEST
♠J 9 7
♥5 2
♦J 10 8 7 2
♣A 5 3

EAST
♠Q 5
♥K 9 7 6 3
♦5 4
♣J 7 4 2

SOUTH
♠A K 10 4
♥None
♦A K Q 6
♣K Q 10 9 6

South is the declarer at a spade contract. Against a slam, the opening lead from west should be the club ace and then the diamond jack. An ace is usually the preferred lead against a slam.

Against a bid lower than slam, an ace lead is seldom used if only to take a trick with it. So, west should lead the diamond jack. What he leads will depend on a signal from partner.

But either of these leads would hold the declarer to 11 tricks. With the club ace led first, west feels better. With three trumps to the jack, dummy's spades tell him he may take a trump trick.

With an opening diamond lead, south wins the first trick and pulls two top trump rounds. On his two remaining diamond tops, the declarer can sluff his lone dummy club.

South then leads the club king which west does not cover with the ace. The king rides and dummy sluffs a heart. South leads the queen of clubs and west will cover with the ace to force dummy to trump.

Dummy leads the heart ace and south sluffs the small diamond. The heart queen from dummy is covered by easts king and dummy ruffs. A club from south is ruffed by dummy, exhausting the trumps there.

On the heart return from dummy, south sluffs a club and west ruffs. A diamond return from west is ruffed by south who must now give up a club trick to the east jack.

Thus, if south was in a small slam of six spades, it would no doubt go down to defeat with a correct opening lead. But what would happen if the opening lead from west was a heart?

Twp. Taxpayers Protest Increase

TORONTO (CP) — Several mass meetings have been called in suburban Toronto township to protest municipal tax increases ranging from 80 to 300 per cent.

Some residents threatened to refuse to pay their 1952 tax bills, but township comptroller Dean Henderson said yesterday they are "just blowing off steam."

Township officials attributed increases to equalization of assessment—based on 80 per cent of the 1941 real estate replacement values—and high cost of education.

Judge Denies Alger Hiss Another Trial

NEW YORK (AP)—Judge Henry Goddard yesterday denied Alger Hiss another new trial of his perjury conviction. Hiss, former State Department official, had blamed "forgery by typewriter" for the conviction.

Hiss, now serving five years in federal prison, pleaded that he had new evidence that it was possible to fake the typewriter which was a vital piece of evidence against him.

However, Goddard ruled:

"There is no newly-discovered evidence which would justify the conclusion that, if it were presented to a jury, it would probably result in a verdict of acquittal."

Hiss committed perjury by lying under oath in denying that he ever gave State Department secrets to a pre-war Soviet spy ring, and lying about the length of his relationship with Whittaker Chambers, self-styled courier for the ring.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Una Merkel wants her friends to know that she never felt better in her life, thank you.

This is heartening news from the actress, whose life has been hounded by tragedy. Only recently, it appeared that her troubles had proved too much for her. She was reported to have taken an overdose of sleeping pills. The news stories indicated that she had been despondent because she had not been working in the movies.

"Nothing was further from the truth," said Miss Merkel on the "I Love Melvin" set. "It was all a terrible mistake. I was ill, but not despondent."

The actress was abashed when she saw newspaper accounts of her illness. She tried to explain that she had taken some sleeping pills by mistake, but the publicity damage had been done.

Father Collapses

As she expected, her father collapsed when he read the news but she was able to reach him by phone and explain. Studio people showered her with bouquets and messages of cheer.

"The incident proved to me that something good always comes out of the bad things that happen to us," said Miss Merkel. "I had never realized how many friends I had. I heard from boys in Korea. I got letters from men who had seen me during the last war when I went to New Guinea with Gary Cooper. I had a lovely letter from a bus driver in England, who included bits of poetry.

"In all, I received four or five hundred letters. It has been a wholly wonderful and a very emotional experience for me."

"Blues Busters"

After a tonsillectomy, Huntz Hall develops a magnificent singing voice and the Bowery Boys led by Leo Gorcey, quickly capitalize thereon. They open a nightclub with Hall as the crooning star. Immediately success is theirs—until Craig Stevens, operator of a rival nightspot which has been losing business, utilizes his blond singer (Adele Jergens) by tricking Hall into signing a contract with Stevens. When Hall leaves the Bowery Boys spot for the Stevens club, the boys lose all their patronage! They scheme successfully to get him back by proving Hall was tricked and the contract with Stevens is therefore illegal. But this time it is too late. Hall's natural voice has returned because a thin obstructive tissue covering his larynx after the operation has dissolved.

"Hot Rod

Although his father, Art Baker, a judge, bitterly opposes the speedy, underslung "hot rods," young Jimmy Lydon converts his old car into one in an effort to impress his girl friend. An acquaintance steals the fast car and abandons it after being involved in an accident, but when Jimmy appears before his father in court, pleading innocence, the car thief confesses his guilt. En route home from court, Jimmy and his friend witness a bandit escaping from the scene of a holdup. They give chase, are joined by police and capture the criminal. Judge Baker, now aware that a hot rod can be put to good use, heads a movement to build an official hot rod racetrack and presides at ceremonies dedicating its opening.

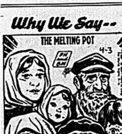
Why We Say--



. . . From a play

The United States and also the City of New York have often been called "The Melting Pot" because people of all nationalities are welcomed and "melt" into one group. The phrase was started by Israel Zangwill in 1910 as a title for his play of the same name.

Brothers Spend 17 Hours Nude In Wild Country

VANCOUVER (CP)—Fishermen Pete Roche, 27, and his brother, Jack, 22, both formerly of Toronto, arrived here yesterday with a tale of life in the nude along British Columbia's chilly northern coastline.

The brothers spent 17 hours naked in wild, rugged country after they stripped and swam to shore when their 28-foot trawler Rebecca was capsized a week ago in Ylingsby Channel, 315 miles northwest of here.

"We felt like a couple of nature boys running through the bush," Pete said.

They attracted the attention of a fishing boat. They had to swim out to the boat.

Evita's Condition Still "Critical"

These photos, hitherto unpublished, are among the last to be made of Evita Peron, wife of dictator Juan Peron, before she was confined to bed in the presidential palace at Buenos Aires, Argentina. Medical bulletins state there is no change in her condition, which is reported as extremely critical. Although no public statement has been issued, she is believed to be suffering from cancer.—Central Press Canadian Photos.

I Can't Cry Now

By Addie McElfresh

But he did tell her, and when he had finished Katy, stunned, just stood there by the fireplace, then not yet opened for the Fall and camouflaged with a huge bouquet of goldenrod Chris had picked that morning. She must have moaned aloud, for Ted moved to take her in his arms.

"Please, Ted—" she pushed him away. "Please go, Ted."

"You shouldn't be alone."

"I am alone. Terribly alone—"

"You needn't be, darling. Oh," contritely, "I know this isn't the time but, Katy, I love you. I want to help you, Katy if I can."

Katy didn't remember turning away from him, but she must have. She was standing at the window, staring dry-eyed into the night, when he went out to his car and drove into the blackness out yonder like a madman, running away from grief as she could not run from hers.

She moved like an outomaton, down the broad stone steps at the front of the weathered gray courthouse and along the walk past boys playing catch on the lawn, frost-bitten and brown after last night. Her car was at the curb. She got into it, dully aware of a gnawing uneasiness that was neither the worry and the grief she had come to know so well in the last two weeks nor the new sense of a trap closing on her.

She had not had either breakfast or lunch. No wonder she felt a nauseating weakness.

Katy Elmo's breakfast egg no doubt was still sitting, soggy and, until now, forgotten, beside the cereal bowl and cream pitcher in the sunshine yellow breakfast nook she and Chris and Ted had done over in the Spring, and—Heavens! the feminine worry sprang full-blown from her subconscious—had she turned off the stove?

Thankful for a purpose, at least she fumbled in her purse for her keys, switched on the ignition, and punched the starter button. Routine movements, done in a routine manner. They helped.

She drove through town without actually seeing it, only vaguely aware that people turned to look at her. There would be no pity in their eyes now, as there had been after Chris's death; there would be curiosity, scorn, contemptuous I-told you so glances.

"Stop it, Katy!" her commonsense scolded.

The highway was jammed with Sunday afternoon traffic, but not until she found herself neatly sandwiched between a jalopy crammed to its battered extremities with eager, boisterous teenagers and a convertible that leered out of her rear-view mirror did she see why.

She moaned aloud, "Oh no!"

The tie-up was at her own driveway, where another of Ledbetter's deputities was trying to keep the sight-seers moving.

Grimly, Katy stuck out her arm to signal a stop and then a left turn.

"I live here."

"You Miss Elmo?"

Steeling herself for the suspicious contempt that was sure to come, Katy nodded.

But the face that peered into the car was neither suspicious nor contemptuous. Aside from being slightly harried, it was like any other face in a similar situation, trying very hard to be officially neutral.

"I'm Scott," the officer said. "You'll find Deputy Donnell at the house, Miss Elmo."

Katy wondered if they had come to arrest her.

"I'll stop the traffic," Deputy Scott was saying, and as the terror let go, Katy went weak with relief.

She was glad when she stepped quickly away from her car, halted the oncoming traffic with an up-flung hand and with the other motioned her into the narrow lane that led to the rambling old farmhouse she had bought while Chris was in the Army.

She had lived there alone despite the protests of well-wishing friends until Chris came home, bringing Ted Jordan with him because they were buddies and Ted didn't have any place to go right away.

That was the way it had begun—Ted was their guest for a month, then two months, until he came one day to say he had a job and was taking a room in town. Katy couldn't say she was sorry, exactly. She liked Ted, but having him around all the time was unhandy, just the same; it meant always planning for three instead of two, always remembering that you were hostess. Anyway, she had told Chris, two months is a pretty long visit.

"Sure, Sis, but—" he grinned. "I'm used to having Ted around. Anyhow, you like him, don't you?"

Katy drove swiftly up the driveway, away from memory. Ordinarily she loved these close-pressing trees because they shut the world and its worries out, but today they hovered, ominous and black against the westering sun, murderous...Katy shuddered.

She looked up just in time to shriek her tires in a mad swerve that barely missed a figure scrambling out of the underbrush. She hit the brakes hard.

"Johnny Jerome, don't do that!" For a split second, she was Miss Elmo, English teacher, bting stern with a recalcitrant student. Then she was Katy Elmo again, Katy Elmo, suspected of killing Johnny's sister. Johnny—Johnny, I'm—"

"Don't say it, Miss Elmo!" The dark young eyes were dull and streaked red from crying. "I—c-cant stand sympathy!"

Katy reached across the seat to open the car door. "Get in, Johnny."

Johnny Jerome shook his head.

"Johnny—"

"What'd Agnes tell you, Miss Elmo?"

"She didn't get a chance to tell me anything."

Johnny Jerome wet his lips.

"What is it, Johnny?"

"Nothing!" The boy's voice was harsh.

"Johnny, I didn't—surely you don't think I—"

But Johnny Jerome was gone, losing himself in the dark woods where, last night, his sister had fought for her life and lost it.

Katy tried to call Johnny back, but Johnny either didn't hear her, or wouldn't return. Katy sighed, and gave her car gas. As she moved on up the driveway she could still hear the horns of the Sunday sightseers on the highway. People were enjoying the thrill of looking at the place where a murder had occurred.

Katy looked the other way when she drove past the opening in the trees, where you could see the foot bridge...so near the house—so near to Katy... where Agnes Jerome had died.

The house was old, the farm worked out and until Katy Elmo bought the place three years ago both house and farm had been abandoned for years. Katy's friends said she was crazy to buy such a lonely old place and often during that first mad summer of sweeping, scrubbing, painting, weed - pulling and flower-and-shrub-coaxing she thought they must be right.

But she loved it. She had loved it then, and she loved it now when the rambling familiar old house and the ramshackle barn out back were the only havens she knew from the storm that had broken with Chris's murder.

The police hadn't called Chris's death murder. She didn't know what they did call it. Justifiable homicide, she supposed. In their official minds, Link Murphy's death was murder and Agnes Jerome's was murder.

Ted had told her this, reluctantly. Ted had been there, at the store, where there was so much to point to Chris's guilt, nothing to substantiate Katy's faith in him and Ted's faith in his friend.

Only Agnes Jerome, who knew something and who, somehow, had let the killer suspect that she knew, had called Chris's death murder.

Was that why Johnny had come to see Katy? Bcause he knew, too—because he also was afraid the murderer knew that he suspected?

But why come to Katy?

She got out of the car quickly and slammed the door hard, as if in that way she could keep the fear from following. "Johnny thinks I did it! He thinks I talked to Agnes first and then killed her! That's why he ran away—he's afraid—afraid of me!" The thoughts tumbled over one another, maddeningly.

She walked to the house, trying to sort out of her vague apprehensions. The quiet was right; it was always quiet. The sunshine and the lengthening shadows — She looked around. Major. Where was Major? And Deputy Donnell, who Scott said would be here?

She whistled for the dog and, when there was no answering glad bark, called sharply, "Major! Come!"

"That you, Miss Elmo?"

Deputy Donnell, no doubt, Katy thought as she followed the shout around the house.

At the corner she stopped. Peter Donnell, his dignity wearing thin with embarrassment rather than alarm, was at the barn door—on the inside. Major sat straight-backed and tall as a proud Prussian general about 10 feet from his quarry.

"Call off your dog. Miss Elmo."

Katy said "Come, Major. It's all right" and dropped a hand to the big German shepherd's head when he trotted to her.

Donnell came out, brushng at his immaculate gray business suit. "You should be a trainer, Miss Elmo," he almost grinned. "I've spent half the afternoon trying to talk my way out of there. He just fixed me with that baleful look and dared me."

"Major is fiercely protective."

Donnell was not as young as Scott and less inclined to be chivalrous. He fell in step beside her with a sharp: "Then why didn't he protect Agnes Jerome last night?" A premature chill of the evening crept into her bones.

"Because he was in the house with me," Katy said.

She seemed to remember him prowling uneasily from room to room, but they were actions that could have sprung from her own worried pacing up and down as she waited, counting the minutes until Agnes Jerome would come.

"It's something to think about, Miss Elmo," Deputy Peter Donnell warned.

"What are you trying to say?"

Donnell shrugged. "You shouldn't stay here alone."

"The sheriff doesn't think I'm in any danger. He doesn't even believe me." Katy didn't look at him. Ledbetter didn't believe her. Neither did Dave Argus, and somehow that was more important. "Dave——Deputy Argus," she heard herself stammer, the correction too quickly and flushed, "feels sorry for me."

"Is that bad?" Amusement was in the crisp, official tones.

"I suppose not. Many a murder suspect would give her right arm for a sympathetic deputy sheriff."

Donnell pushed his snappy gray fedora back with a flabbergasted thumb. "You are a cool one," he said, half admiringly. "No wonder Dave holds out there's a long chance you're telling the truth. I almost believe you myself."

For a long time after he had gone, Katy pondered on that. Certainly circumstance and suspicion overshadowed the "long chance" but they were doubts that would not have entered Dave Argus's mind were it not for Chris.

Except for Chris and the resultant clamor, not even Henry Ledbetter, with an eye on his own re-election would point a finger at Katy Elmo ..not for the death of Agnes Jerome, of Mason Avenue, who could have been murdered by so many for so many obvious reasons.

Canadian Govt. Makes Formal Application for Hydro Power Development on St. Lawrence

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian government yesterday made a formal application to the International Join Commission for a hydro-electric power development on the St. Lawrence River. The project would produce 2,200,000 horsepower for Ontario and New York state.

Canada mentioned in her application her intention to build a Canadian St. Lawrence Seaway to allow ocean-going vessels to operate on the Great Lakes. The United States Congress has consistently turned down joint proposals for the seaway.

D. W. Mundell, counsel for the Canadian government, told the commission that Canada's primary concern in the hydro project was that it did not affect sanitation and navigation facilities along the river.

"I am authorized to state that if this application is granted the government of Canada will go ahead at the same time with the navigation aspect of the seaway plan," he said.

The seaway project in Canadian territory would not need authorization by the commission.

Water Levels Discussed

The international body also heard submissions yesterday on the high water level of Lake Ontario which has damaged many lakefront properties. The one-day hearings now move to Ogdensburg, N.Y.

Canada's application noted that a waterway is contemplated to provide a ship channel 27 feet deep between Montreal and Lake Erie.

The hydro development would require a dam across the river between Cornwall and Messina, N.Y. Between Chimney Point, N.Y., and St. Regis, N.Y., 48 miles of the river would be involved in the project.

Appearing for the Ontario government and thus for the provincially-owned Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, Leslie E. Blackwell of Toronto said the whole seaway proposition would promote the economic prosperity of both Canada and the U.S. and at the same time cure "many of the evils you no doubt will hear about today." He was referring to the disastrous lake levels.

He conceded there would be many interests and properties of both Canadian and U.S. citizens in the area seriously affected by the hydro development. But plans had been made and legislation passed to compensate those affected.

More Power Needed

Mr. Blackwell, former Ontario attorney-general, said Ontario's industrial future depended to a large extent on the availability by no later than 1958 of hydro power from the St. Lawrence. The alternative was steam-generated power at high cost.

Mayor Allan Lamport of Toronto told the commission that if something isn't done about Lake Ontario's water level much of Toronto's sewage and water supply system will be ruined. Another foot rise in the level would back the lake waters through downtown sewers and seriously damage pumping and filtration services.

C. M. Bonham, who said he was "just a citizen" from Grimsby, asked that something be done to make sure Lake Ontario's level never will be permitted to rise above 247 feet above sea level.

"We little people," he said, "are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars trying to take temporary, picayune measures to protect our own properties."

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, the Canadian chairman of the commission, assured Mr. Bonham "and all other citizens" that the commission intended to respect its responsibility to all persons.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP)—Synopsis: The cool dry air which ended the heat wave in southern Ontario Wednesday has brought relief during the night to the upper St. Lawrence valley and moved southeastward as far as Washington. Yesterday was a record-breaking hot day in parts of the Maritimes but they also expect relief by tonight.

In Ontario the weather for today and tomorrow will be mainly sunny with the temperature close to the average for late July.

Ruest to Hang

OTTAWA (CP)—Genereux Ruest, 54-year-old crippled watchmaker, will be hanged after midnight tonight as planned, the secretary of state's department announced today.

Telegrams ordering the hanging were sent today to Montreal where Ruest has been awaiting the outcome of an appeal for clemency. He was convicted of murder for his part in the time-bombing of an airliner in 1949 in which 23 persons died.

7 MEN FOUND DEAD AT SCENE OF PLANE CRASH

Craft Struck Tree When Making Landing

LAC DU BONNET, Man. (CP)—All seven men aboard a Manitoba Government Air Service plane were found dead yesterday when two helicopters eased down near the plane's wreckage on a spongy, floating bog, 200 miles north of Winnipeg.

"No one alive after impact," was the terse radio message from the desolate spot where the plane crashed into fog-shrouded trees Monday.

All the men were married and their survivors included 15 children.

Piloted by Russell G. Percy, 32, of Lac du Bonnet, the float-equipped Norseman was carrying six government employees on a 250-mile trip from Lac du Bonnet to Norway House at the northern tip of Lake Winnipeg.

Besides Percy, the other victims, all from Winnipeg, were: Arthur G. Hanson, 34; Robert H. Frederickson, 35; M. T. Madden John G. Horsburgh, 32; Allan W. McLellan, about 40; Frank East, 40.

Weather Bad

The plane vanished in murky weather, 100 miles from its destination. A sister ship, braving continued bad weather, spotted the wreckage Tuesday. It was strewn for 1½ miles across the muskeg.

Two helicopters flew in to the desolate spot yesterday while other planes circled overhead.

The crews were to lay planks and matting on the muskeg so searchers could reach the wreckage without sinking up to their waists.

Newspaper men aboard circling planes said the wreckage indicated one of the plane's pontoons struck a tree as it turned south to make an emergency landing.

The new support increased to 188½ the first-ballot strength assured for Stevenson in voting expected to begin tonight.

At the same time, however, the Texas delegation voted to cast all its 52 votes for Senator Richard Russell of Georgia.

Following is a breakdown of the votes each of the leading candidates is known to have on the first ballot:

Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee 264½; Stevenson 188½; Russell 197; Senator Robert Kerr of Oklahoma 44; Averell Harriman 106½; uncommitted 203½.

A total of 616 is required for nomination.

Growing Market for Canned Pet Food Spells Doom for Western Horses

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The demands of a farm economy and a growing market for canned pet foods are combining to wipe out much of the remaining horse population in Western Canada.

Latest move to remove from the scene more of the west's unwanted horses is the purchase of two packing plants at Edmonton and Swift Current, Sask., by a U.S. firm.

The plants, to be operated by a subsidiary of Quaker Oats Co., will process horse meat for pet food. They will be supplied from the remaining herds of surplus horses on the prairies.

The horse, once the mainstay of farm operation, has been getting the gradual brush-off from farmers for more than two decades. Today few are used for farm work.

Mechanization of farms made the horse a liability rather than an asset. Small bands of them ran over the countryside, eating from pasture which could have been used to feed beef animals or milk cows.

As an outlet for these surplus horses, slaughter and packing plants were set up during the war. 240,000 horses have been slaugh- In the last seven years almost tered.

Some of the meat was sent overseas for human consumption and some used for animal food. Processing gained impetus in the last few years when high beef prices forced many housewives to look for a low-priced substitute.

However, there is still a large number of useless horses scattered on farms or running wild in herds across the prairies.

It is this supply which the U.S. firm intends to draw on to keep the plants at Edmontonand Swift Current operating. Most of the meat will be used for pet food, and a small amount processed for shipment overseas for human consumption.

Officials of Quaker oats said the company processes 39 per cent of the pet food sold in the United States.

It is improbable that the horse will disappear from the prairie. Many farmers keep them for odd jobs, and possibly out of sentiment And they still play an important part in ranching.

Prosperity, Peace, Progress Democrat Convention Pledge As Delegates Approve Policies

CHICAGO (AP) — Democrats pledged prosperity, peace and progress to American voters today in a platform that avoided past party feuds over civil rights.

A quick decision by Speaker Sam Rayburn, after a mixed shout of yea and no votes, put the national convention's official approval on the new campaign document early this morning.

Delegates from Georgia and Mississippi asked to be recorded as voting "no." But skilful manoeuvres by Representative John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, platform chairman, and National Committee chairman Frank McKinney produced a fair sample of party harmony.

The shouted adoption, after McCormack had read the 10,000 words to tired delegates, was music to party leaders who feared a repetition of 1948. In that year a bitter floor battle for a stronger racial-relations plank split the party wide open, and in the November election four southern states were absent from the Democratic column.

Curiously, both Dixie delegates who insist that states can best handle racial problems and northerners who want strong federal action are claiming victory

The answer is that the same words and phrases if handled skilfully, mean different things to different people.

Northerners claimed the new plank was much stronger than 1948's; southerners said parts of the plank went a bit too far but they preferred party harmony to a fight.

Other planks caused no serious trouble. They looked back with pride over 20 years of Democratic administration under the "new" and "fair" deals.

Republicans were flayed as the Democrats listed their policies for business, farmers, labor, veterans, aged persons and a score of other population segments.

Little Hope Any Survivors Of Crash Will be Found

BAGOTVILLE, Que. (AP) R.C.A.F. rescue crews today set out with little hope for the survival of the last man unaccounted for in a crash between a Lancaster bomber and a Vampire jet fighter.

Until last night, it was thought possible that two men might have parachuted from the bomber, but this hope dimmed when the body of one of them was found in the burned wreckage, and when one of the rescue groups said the body of the sixth member of the crew might be found in the debris today.

The bodies of four of the six-man crew of the Lancaster were found yesterday; the body of the fighter pilot reported found early last evening; and the body of the fifth member of the bomber crew found last night. All bodies, except that of the fighter pilot, were unidentifiable.

Flt. Lt. Andre Pelletier, medical Squadron, brought out the body of jet pilot Flt. Lt. Charles Stewart Buchanan of Dorval, Que., and Oshawa, Ont. Flt. Lt. Pelletier was accompanied by a para-rescue nurse and a para-rescue sergeant who had jumped to the site of the crash. He had flown in to a lake near the scene.

It was Buchanan's aircraft which collided with the bomber yesterday, shearing off the tail section of the Lancaster and losing one of its own wings.

Names of those in the bomber:

Fo. Robert Alexander Gray of London, Ont., and Greenwood, N.S. Captain.

FO. Alfred Marrier, St. Leonard d'Aston, Que., co-pilot.

FO. Richard H.D. Noble, Gravenhurst, Ont., and Middleton, N.S., radio operator.

FO. James E. Macara, Toronto.

Cpl. Robert C. Smith, Maberly, Ont.

FO. Edward C. Hutt, Bangor, Me., navigator.

Helicopters are being flown to the site of the crash to bring out the bodies.

The Lancaster, from the R.C.A.F.'s 404 squadron at Greenwood, and the Vampire, from 401 auxiliary of Westmount, Que., were taking part in Operation Signpost, joint air manoeuvres launched last Saturday by the R.C.A.F. and the United States Air Force.

The Lancaster came from the same field in Greenwood where rags and metal waste were found last week in the engines of nine other Lancasters.

An R.C.A.F. spokesman said a flight of Lancasters was "bombing" a mythical target in the Bagotville area at the time of the crash, while a flight of Vampires was defending the district.

The Vampire had just completed a pass at one of the bombers and was pulling away when it sliced into the Lancaster.

CELEBRATION COSTLY

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Two lake seamen who ended an evening's celebration by using street carrier lanterns for footballs were fined $20 each yesterday. Boyd Armstrong, 28, of Toronto, and Lyn Freeman, 21, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., said a third, unknown person kicked the lanterns.

Light Plane Attempts Rescue Of Crash Victims

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—A small plane today threaded its way through the towering peaks of the Rockies to make a hazardous attempt at rescuing two seriously injured crash victims from a lakeshore 7,000 feet above sea level.

A light plane with three persons aboard crashed into or near Lake Magog in Mount Assiniboine Park on the B.C.-Alberta border yesterday. The pilot apparently escaped unhurt but his two passengers were seriously injured.

The pilot made his way to a lonely forest ranger station near the lake and a call for help went out over the forest service's radio network.

Identity of the pilot and passengers was not immediately known

Death Caused By Accident

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—A coroner's jury yesterday found that George H. Cutmore, 55, died accidentally May 11 from discharge of a 20-gauge shotgun.

Cutmore was found lying behind the open trunk of his car, parked on the outskirts of this city. He had a shotgun wound in the stomach.

Dr. Joseph Rogers of the Attorney-General's Department said the only conclusion he could reach was that the gun discharged as Cutmore pulled it from the trunk of the car.

U.S. Living Costs Hit All-Time High

WASHINGTON. (CP) — The cost of living in the United States soared to an all-time high in mid-June, the Bureau of Labor Statistics disclosed today.

Figures released by the bureau show that on June 15 the price of food, clothing, rent, entertainment and other daily living costs averaged 189.6 per cent of the 1935-39 period.

This was 11.4 per cent higher than two years ago, just before the start of the Korean war.

The cost-of-living index jumped one-half of a point over the previous record high of last January, under the pressure of higher costs for food, rent, and miscellaneous goods and services.

About 40,000 wage-earners may get a pay increase as a result of the new index. These workers have contracts which tie their wages to the rise and fall of the index.

NEW 'QUAKE JOLTS INJURE 27 IN TEHACHAPI, CALIF.

Heavy Aftershocks Collapse Buildings

TEHACHAPI, Calif. (AP)—Continuing heavy aftershocks of the great Tehachapi earthquake have injured another 27 persons in this devastated community.

The new jolts also hit hard at nearby Arvin, now almost as badly damaged as Tehachapi. Several severe tremors yesterday collapsed buildings in both towns. Several structures that weathered the big shock Monday collapsed under the new onslaught.

Joe Barber, public information officer of the Red Cross, said two persons in Tehachapi suffered broken bones and 25 other were cut and bruised in the new shocks yesterday.

Scientists said the first giant upheaval—which caused 12 deaths and an estimated $100,000,000 damage in southern California—was caused by earth slipping along more than 25 miles of the Bear Mountain fault.

4,000 Cars Travel Belleville-Trenton Highway Daily

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's most heavily travelled section of highway is the Humber bridge on the Queen Elizabeth Way where 25,000 automobiles pass on a busy day, J. D. Millar, deputy minister of the Ontario Department of Highways said today.

He said traffic on No. 11 highway at the Toronto northern city limits often approaches the 25,000 figure, while 5,000 is the average daily traffic on the highway between Toronto and Barrie.

On No. 2 highway between Oshawa and the Quebec border the average traffic is about 1,500 vehicles, Mr. Millar said. On the most heavily travelled section of the highway, between Trenton and Belleville, the figure approaches 4,000.

He said that around towns like Brockville the figure is probably 3,500, with cities like Kingston hitting a higher figure.

Truce Talk Gains Nothing

Another closed-door session is scheduled for tomorrow.

Red China's Peiping radio said "provocations by the American side outside the Panmunjom conference tent have thrown an ominous shadow over world policy."

The Communist broadcast said the "adventurist policy" of military pressure by American generals shows they have no sincere desire for an early peace in Korea.

Essex Archaeologists Discover Stone Age Track 6,000 Years Old

LONDON (CP)—Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Rudge of West Ham, two Essex archaeologists, have unearthed the course of an early Stone Age track thought to be about 6,000 years old.

It leads from the neolithic flint mines of Norfolk to a point southwest of the Thames and beyond—a distance of about 130 miles.

The discovery, experts say, is important if for no other reason than it shows that scores of flint and silica boulders, known as "pudding stones," in East Anglia are apparently Stone Age track markers. If this is confirmed the "Tradenoisian" Road, as it is known, is probably the oldest marked highway in the world.

The stones, neither in keeping with the geology of the area nor the remains of glacial action, were held in veneration at one time. Pope Gregory told his missionaries not to destroy them in 601 A.D. Even today, villagers call them "breeding stones," or "mother stones," and they are not built-over or disturbed.

Dr. Rudge and his wife, who began the investigation about three years ago, believe the track was made by men of a grave-dwelling culture in one of the drier cycles of the boreal period, some 6,000 years ago.

The western end of the neolithic highway remains to be discovered. The track curves due west along the northern bank of the Thames. It crosses the upper waters and then becomes submerged in Berkshire.

Dr. Rudge believes this ancient trade route will be traced into the cultural remains of Dorset.

Determined Effort To Reach Accord Made by Truman

President Reported to Have Issued An Ultimatum

Truman told industry and union leaders in a dramatic face-to-face meeting at the White House today that they must settle quickly the devastating strike of 650,000 steel workers.

Then the President sat the leaders of the two sides down to try to work out the issues in the strike which has closed down the country's steel mills for 53 days.

A White House spokesman said that Truman in talking with Benjamin Fairless, President of U.S. Steel Corp., and Philip Murray, head of the striking United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.) used very strong language.

Issued Ultimatum

The appeal, the spokesman said, amounted to an ultimatum.

Murray and Fairless met for an hour and 40 minutes, then left the White House together, telling newspaper men they would be back at 2:30 p. m. EDT.

"We are going to discuss the situation with our own people," Fairless said.

The fact that Fairless and Murray planned to talk to associates seemed to indicate that some kind of new formula for ending the strike was in the works.

In order to talk with chieftains of labor and industry the President put off a planned visit to the Democratic national convention until tomorrow.

Truman apparently was making the administration's final big try to bring accord between the industry and Murray's 600,000 striking steel-

Defence Mobilizer John R. Steelman, whose repeated mediation attempts to stop the 53-day strike have failed, was asked to sit in during the Presidential appeal to both sides for an immediate end to the walkout.

In the background was the threat of paralysis to the United States defence effort. Defence Secretary Robert Lovett estimated that "somewhere between 20 and 30 per cent" of the expected arms production for this year will be lost because of the strike.

Coal Strike Looms

Possibility of a strike in a second vital industry—coal—made the picture even darker. John L. Lewis least part of the soft coal industry that present contracts will end in two months. That makes a strike or slowdown in coal fields all but inevitable if a new contract is not signed by Sept. 22.

The President said nothing in advance about a possible new plan to compromise the steel dispute and bring a new contract to 650,000 steelworkers.

There was speculation that he might suggest a new plan to deal with the union's demand for a union shop—an arrangement which compels all workers to join the union. The union-shop demand—and the industry's refusal so far to agree to any form of union shop—was the only remaining obstacle to settlement when the last industry union negotiations collapsed last Sunday.

Search Party Never Lost Say RCAF Spokesmen

BAGOTVILLE, Que., (CP)—A search party seeking the wreckage of two aircraft which collided in mid-air Tuesday lost radio communication with the R.C.A.F. base here briefly yesterday but never was considered lost itself, R.C.A.F. spokesmen said today.

The party was one of three that went into the hilly and heavily - wooded countryside where the aircraft crashed 30 miles south of here. It never did reach the wreckage—though the others did—and returned to base last night.

Air Force officials said radio communications have been poor in the crash area.

Forest Fire Hit With Water Bombs

TORONTO. (CP)—Water bombs are helpful in fighting forest fires. Large specially-made paper bags containing water were dropped by planes on a fire that had just started in an inaccessible area of the Sudbury district. Later ground crews arrived and extinguished it.

Frank MacDougall, deputy minister of Lands and Forests said yesterday: "it looks as if it's got possibilities."

The bombs are loaded on the plane and released through a "camera hole" in the floor by means of rollers.

MAIL BOX SMASHED

One of Her Majesty's mail boxes affixed to a hydro pole at the corner of Evans and North Front Street came to grief Wednesday night when a truck made too short a turn and ripped the box from the pole.

FIREMEN RESCUE DOG AFTER RIVER PLUNGE

Answering a rescue call following the plunge of spotted springer spaniel into the Moira River below the lower bridge at mid-afternoon yesterday, firemen fished the dog from the bottom of the retaining wall, using a ladder to lift the dog from the water.

Obviously grateful, the springer did not wait for a licence-check, preferring to streak off in a western direction, drying himself on the grass as he lengthened the distance between himself and the bank.

Produce Prices Remain Firm On Market

Raspberries continued to dominate the farmers' market here today as prices remained steady with previous offerings, vendors charging 45 cents for individual boxes and paring prices to 42 cents per box for purchases of 10 boxes or more.

Favored by the heat and nursed by recent showers, corn came into its own today but the farmers appeared not to have reached agreement on prices. Some sidewalk business establishments offered corn for 30 cents per dozen while neighboring farmers asked up to 50 cents per dozen for corn which, to the casual observer, was no different.

Housewives who anticipate an appreciable drop in potato prices were saddened as prices remained high despite large seasonal offerings. On the potato market, 90 cents bought a six-quart basket and $1.40 was asked for a peck.

Both green and wax beans were offered at 20 cents per box with cucumbers in moderate supply and being sold at 10 cents or three for twenty-five cents.

Blueberries continued as a luxury item, $2.50 being asked for one basket and 50 cents for one quart of blueberries. As with blueberries, there was no break in the price of tomatoes, small tomatoes selling for 20 cents per pound and larger tomatoes sold for $1.50 per basket. Cherries continue to sell at $1.00 per basket.

Bunched onions and carrots were offered at 10 cents per bunch and cooking onions were selling at 25 cents per berry basket. Depending on size, cabbage ranged from five to 20 cents per head. Beets were offered at one dollar per basket or 20 cents per berry box.

Few eggs were in evidence but those being offered were selling at 64 cents per dozen for grade A large.

Among the flowers, gladioli were alone on the market today and the pre-noon asking price was 75 cents per dozen.

Three Frankford Men Plead Guilty to Theft

Three young Frankford men received suspended sentences in magistrate's court today when they pleaded guilty to the theft of shoes from the Bata Shoe Company.

The men, Gerald Foster, Bernard Foster and Ronald Patrick, all 28, appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills and were given suspended sentence of one year and ordered to pay court costs of $19.50 each.

The three men broke into the Frankford warehouse of the Bata Shoe Company more than a week ago and following investigation by Provincial Police were arrested on July 16th. After appearing before the magistrate they were released on $200 bail each to appear in court today. The three were arrested by Sgt. Devereaux and Constable Al Cockburn. O.P.P. Constable R. Rackham assisted in the investigation.

Sgt. Devereaux stated that 39 pairs of shoes valued at approximately $100 had been recovered and returned to the shoe company.

Cool Weather Welcomed By City Residents

The Bay of Quinte area has finally had a respite from the hot weather. For the past several weeks, residents of the city have sweltered in the heat wave with temperatures ranging near the 90-degree mark. Now the meteorological section at Trenton Air Force base predicts cool weather for at least the next two days.

It isn't necessary for the weatherman to predict cool temperatures. Everyone knew this morning that cool air had at last arrived.

"Nice," said Bill Evans, police officer directing traffic at Bridge and Front Streets, "very nice, indeed. How long has this heat wave been going on? Two weeks-Well," he continued, "a change is always nice."

Marvelous Today

"I don't think people could have taken it much longer," Mrs. Cecil Reid, manager of a local ladies' good store commented. "Today is marvelous.

"Really wonderful." Abe Christopher, city bus driver said. "When the hot weather hits, I think it hits the inside of my bus the hardest, it's really a brute in there," he continued nodding at his bus, "today is wonderful". "But you know," he said, "people like warm weather for the cottage and today would be rather cool around any lake."

Faye Roberts, bookkeeper in one of the offices took rather a matter of fact view of the situation. "I think it is a lot better than it has been, it never bothers me very much anyway," she said.

The forecaster at Trenton reports the weather signs indicate the cool weather won't stay too long. The way it looks, hot weather will begin again in a few days. The low tonight is expected to be in the neighborhood of 55 degrees. The high in this area today is for 78. Tomorrow will be only slightly warmer with a high of about 80 predicted. There is no rain in sight although skies will be intermittently overcast for the remainder of the day.

Dept. Begins Grading Of Tourist Homes

The Ontario government, department of tourist development branch has begun grading tourist establishments throughout the province. This is apparently a new service by which travellers may learn the quality of establishments catering to the public says James T. Davis, secretary-manager of the city's Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Davis has not received any information as to how many local establishments have been inspected and graded as yet. He says however, he has spotted two of these homes bearing the approved stamps of the Ontario government.

According to the Chamber of Commerce official, the places are graded, one star, two stars and three stars. A single star indicates the home meets the minimum requirements, a double star classifies the place as "very good" and three stars means the tourist home is of an outstanding nature.

Stars are awarded according to the size, condition, cleanliness and facilities available at the establishment.

Previously, tourist homes had not been graded. They have, for a number of years, been inspected by government officers, but no signs of approval have been erected prior to this move.

Bill Whalen Receives Big Dividend From Lady Luck, Wins New Car

Bill Whalen, 161 Church Street, former star softball catcher, discovered early in life that "tickets" had an irresistible fascination for him.

He purchased tickets on radios, peanut shellers, washing machines, automobiles, left-handed cups and saucers, cement-mixers, in fact everything that was offered via the ticket route.

But somehow Lady Luck always turned a cold shoulder the Whalen way. He came "close" two or three times, if having a "number" one digit short of that of the winning pasteboard can be called that.

But Bill was not daunted by the dismal turns of fortune. His yen for buying tickets was not dimmed. A year or so, and he would have sufficient "paper" to cover the walls of his bedroom. And it looked as though that would be all Bill would get out of his many ventures into the land of ticket-believe.

Then it happened. Lady Luck turned a warm, smiling countenance on the Whalen fortunes. She guided the hand of Frank Follwell at the Elks first annual charity ball at Tobe's County Gardens, Wednesday night and it came up with. . .you guessed it. . .Bill Whalen's ticket.

A few seconds later Jack Bonn of Bonn's Motors, presented Bill with a set of shiny new keys, and the first automobile, a gleaming 1952 Dodge, came into his life.

"Never so surprised in my life," he said this morning. "With my luck, I figured my ticket would go the way of the rest. My heart stopped for a second or so after the number was announced, but there it was, as large as life."

Now, Bill has another problem on his mind. He is going to take driving lessons, for he never drove a car in his life.

The Charity Ball was claimed by the Elks committee in charge to be one of the outstanding social events of the season. Upwards of three hundred members and guests were in attendance, and danced to the music of Cam. Walsh and his Modernaires orchestra. Comments on the excellence of the program and entertainment were heard from guests from all parts of the district.

Refreshments were served at midnight.

Frankford Child Runs Into Side Of Car, Receives Head Injuries

Darting across the street after alighting from a car with her mother, Helen Bonisteel, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bonisteel of Frankford was seriously injured late Wednesday afternoon when she ran into the side of a passing auto.

The little girl was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital where after examination by Dr. W. A. L. McDonald and Dr. E. A. McQuade, she was taken to the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto. It was reported the little girl suffered a depressed skull fracture.

Police Chief Ed McGeachie of Frankford, and Constable Hooker of the O.P.P. at Belleville, who investigated, said Mrs. Bonisteel and her little girl had been given a ride home by Mrs. William Snider. The two got out of the car and the little girl darted from behind the car and ran into the side of a passing car driven by Martin Haneman, 5th concession Sidney township.

Large Crowd Attends Picnic

The annual picnic of Unit 201, Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans was held at Cedardale Beach last Sunday. Seven chartered buses, four trucks and several private cars left in a convoy from the market square.

Through the courtesy of the Provincial Police, a motorcycle escort was provided for maintaining a right-of-way for the convoy and maintaining a moderate speed whereby the convoy was kept intact and the picnickers had a chance to relax and enjoy the scenery. The city police co-operated by allowing the convoy right-of-way out of town. The convoy crowd was later augmented by an estimated 200 carloads of members and families at the beach.

Free Ice Cream

On arrival at Cedardale, a mobile canteen was opened and throughout the whole day free ice cream, froststicks, milk and other refreshments were served. Comrades Jack J. Lee, Ray Denike, Wally Wilmott, Sheldon Smith, Cecil Cherry, Jim Hay, Ray Fletcher, Art Galbraith and many others staffed the canteen.

A welcome feature was Fifi the clown, portrayed by Don Foster. Fifi had hordes of youngsters crawling over him all day while he went through his complete routine of pantomime and conducted several peanut and candy scrambles.

On the sports field, entertainment chairman, Pat Boyle, turned over all activities to Norm Mills, sports chairman. Norm was assisted by his committee comprising, Charles Featherstone, Stan Melbourne, Gord Carter, Dick Burns and Bob Gallinger. A complete program of races was run off starting with toddlers and finishing with persons of doubtful age. Novelty races were also featured. One race was cancelled due to the fact no girl over 40 could be found. In the freckles contest, Cynthia Hay came first. Ron High won the contest for the boys.

Married Vets Win

The annual tug of war, between the married and the unmarried veterans was won by the married vets in two straight pulls.

A baseball game between the C.N.R. firemen and the A.N. and A.F. veterans was won by the vets 4-3. A nice hit by Norm Mills ended in disaster as he stumbled and broke his ankle as he was running the bases. After first-aid treatment, the ankle was X-rayed and treated. He will be off his feet for some time. The club will greatly miss him during his enforced convalescence.

Veterans' wives vied with each other in providing the necessary "fodder" for their respective groups for two meals.

All the sports events were broadcast over the public address system installed through the courtesy of the Big "A" Company Ltd. Bert Wells did the announcing. Between events, popular music was played.

Naguib Purges Army, Arrests Brother, Presents Plans for New Government

CAIRO (Reuters)—Aly Maher Pasha, created Egypt's "emergency premier" after yesterday's swift military coup, left here today for Alexandria where he will present his plans for a new government to King Farouk.

He is expected to announce the composition of his cabinet soon after conferring with the monarch. Gen. Mohammed Naguib, who engineered yesterday's dramatic intervention by the army, said today that military action would end "immediately a new Cabinet is formed."

Naguib, now commander-in-chief of Egypt's armed forces, is calling for a purge of corrupt elements in Egypt's government. He claims his coup has already cleaned up the army high command.

Arrests Brother

One of his first actions yesterday was to arrest a number of senior officers who might have thwarted his plans, including his brother, Gen. Mohammed Aly Naguib. Naguib said these arrests were "purely precautionary" Among those held was the army chief of staff, Gen. Hussein Farid Bey.

Naguib has demanded Hussein's dismissal along with that of the former commander-in-chief, Marshal Mohammed Haidar Pasha.

He has also asked for a change in the composition of the army purchasing commission recalling the scandal over the supply of deficient arms to Egyptian troops in the Palestine campaign.

"Only Suitable Man"

Naguib has described Aly Maher, an independent and former prime minister, as "the only suitable man" to form a new administration.

The burly general, 51, seemed bent first of all on removing the army from politics and the influence of Farouk.

The King had previously blocked Naguib's clean-up attempts, barring him from the war minister's office in the cabinet of Sirry Pasha, and closing down the officers' club of which he was president.

Meat Packer to Convert Estate Into Ultra-Modern Farm, Ranch

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

GODALMING, Surrey, England (Reuters)—Whitaker's Folly is now Huggett's reality.

Whitley Park, the fabulous Edwardian playground built here by the financier, Whitaker Wright, at the turn of the century and since known as Whitaker's Folly, is soon to be converted into an ultra-modern food producing farm by its new owner, Ronald J. Huggett.

Huggett, 39, a leader of Britain's canned meat industry, paid £150,000 in cash for Whitley Park when it was put up for sale recently. The transaction secured him a massive 50-bedroom mansion, 1,360 acres of woodland, a 500-acre deer park, a chain of artificial lakes, a palm court with glass dome, a theatre, a full-size organ—and an underwater ballroom.

The ballroom, built under one of the lakes, was just a millionaire's whim. But to Huggett, who started with one meat pie shop and made a fourtune in 10 years, it is just a waste of space.

But for the rest of Whitaker's Folly, Huggett has a long-term plan. He wants to turn the estate into an extensive farm.

Already, he has taken over a herd of beef cattle left behind by the last owner of Whitley Park, cotton millionaire Sir John Leigh. Now he intends to bring in several hundred head of dairy cattle and to plant wheat, barley and oats on a large scale.

As for the house—"I shall get rid of the monstrosities even if it means pulling down one third of the whole structure," he says.

The circular glass roof of the costly winter garden where Whitaker Wright once sat and contemplated his home-grown palm trees and imported tropical plants, will come down.

On the east wing, a half-timbered Elizabethan-style structure will be torn down and modernized. Out will go the Roman marble and Moorish arches which were built by 2,000 workmen, many of them craftsmen brought specially from Italy.

Huggett and his 24-year-old wife, Mary, have decided to retain the 120-foot long bridal suite with its 30 windows.

They will also keep the 50-foot square oak-floored dining room, a 15-car garage and a long bank of cookers designed to feed 400 guests at one sitting.

"We shall need only 10 or 12 bedrooms," Huggett said. So at least 38 of them will probably be used only for storage. So will some of the 17 cloakrooms, containing toilets and washbaisins, and the steel doors in which Wright hid his art treasures.

Here is the handwriting of the born salesman, at ease with people and always 'on the go.' The open right slant of the writing reveals his extroverted personality and there is energy and drive in the heavy pressure and speed with which the words are written. The large capital 'I' shows an over-sensitive pride. It also suggests a touch of showmanship.

You will usually find this type of writer in the centre of social gatherings, talking to everyone and making everyone feel at home, but the sharp points of the capital 'M' show that advantage can't be taken of this person.

C. Mason Opens New Appliances Store and Service Station

A rather unique arrangement in business circles is seen in the combination of the new Mason's Appliances Store and White Rose Service station located at College Street and Cannifton Road.

The business opens its doors tomorrow and will provide the surrounding locality with up-to-the-minute garage and service station facilities while the appliance store will cater to the needs of householders along these lines.

Mr. Clarence Mason, proprietor, is well-known in the city and its business circles. He has been connected with projects that call for meeting with the public for some time and he enjoys an enviable reputation for fair dealing and courteous service. These, he says, will predominate in his dealings with the public in the new location.

He extends a cordial invitation to the general public to visit and inspect the new station and store tomorrow.

Mr. Mason has surrounded himself with an efficient staff. Mr. Ray Carscadden is the manager with John Mitts, head of the service department. Al McKenna is a salesman with Bill Mason and George Sobles, station attendants.

The new location of Mason's Appliances is built along modern lines and has every facility for providing the general public with first class service, with up-to-date equipment and methods.

Frankford Gains Tie in Series Beat Pointers 9-7

Frankford Merchants evened their best-of-three series with Point Anne Cementmen last evening in Frankford as they dropped the visitors 9-7. The third game of the series will be played in Point Anne, Friday night.

Point Anne got away to a fast start ramming home three runs in the first inning on four hits, an error and a passed ball, but the Merchants stormed back with five runs in their half of the first, to take a lead they never relinquished.

The Merchants used walks to Dafoe and Rankin, singles by Wickson and Istead, and a double by Curtis to count five runs with only one man out. At this stage Buck Burshaw was yanked and Pat Maracle came on to do the firing. He got the next two men to end the rally.

Frankford scored two more runs in the fourth inning. Whitney singled but was erased on a fielder's choice that put Dafoe aboard. Rankin singled, Wickson grounded to third, and Curtis singled to score the runners

Gilmour Homers

Frankford stretched their lead by two more tallies in the seventh on a triple by Wickson and a home run by Gilmour.

Point Anne closed the gap somewhat with a single run in the eighth, and mounted a rally in the ninth that just missed.

Elliott opened with a triple, Strahan singled, and Mallory singled. Wood and Bradshaw struck out but Horwood singled to score Strahan and Mallory. Buchanan grounded out pitcher-to-first to end the game.

Rankin, Wickson and Curtis each had two hits for the winners, while Horwood led the losers with three safeties in five tries.

Burshaw pitched one third of an inning, walking two, striking out none and giving up three hits for five runs. Maracle toiled through the seventh walking none, striking out nine, and giving up seven hits for four runs. Mallory pitched the last inning walking three, striking out one, and giving up no hits for no runs.

Farr went all the way on the firing line for Frankford walking three-striking out nine, and giving up 12 hits for seven runs.

Lineup

Point Anne: Genereaux; Elliott, Strahan; Mallory; Wood; Bradshaw; Horwood; Brannigan; Buchanan; Burshaw; Maracle; Whalen.

Frankford: Dafoe 1b; Rankin 2b; Wickson c; Curtis 3b; Gilmour cf; Farr p; Istead lf; Cooke ss; Whitney rf.

TRAINS FOR C.N.E.

TORONTO (CP)—The jeep-powered touring wagons at the Canadian National Exhibition will be replaced by eight streamlined $15,000 trackless trains this year. The trains will be driven by road from Dayton, Ohio, where they were purchased.

Two Canadian Red Cross officials, Honorable Leopold Macaulay, Q.C., Toronto, chairman of Central Council, and Harold H. Leather, M.B.E., Hamilton, chairman of the National Executive Committee, have important roles in the XVIIIth International Red Cross Conference being held in Toronto, July 23 - August 9. Mr. Macaulay will head the Canadian delegation, official hosts of the conference, and Mr. Leather will head the Canadian delegation in sessions of the relief commission. Both Mr. Macaulay and Mr. Leather have actively participated in preparations for the conference ever since last October when it was announced that it was to be held in Canada.

Aussie Radio Beamed to Canucks

CANBERRA (Reuters)—Canadian troops in Korea and Japan will get news from home beamed to them via Radio Australia if tests beginning Sunday are succesful.

Prime Minister Robert Menzies said today basis of the scheme was worked out during his recent visit to Canada. Details of the new plan, he said, are being worked out by the CBC and the Australian network.

Menzies said radio conditions in the Pacific are such that direct transmission from Canada to the Far East is poor, but Radio Australia's service to Korea is well-received.

German Commies Keep Lutherans From Conference

BERLIN (Reuters)—East German Communist authorities have issued a permit to only one of 5,000 Lutheran churchmen who sought to attend a Church conference in the west, due to open tomorrow.

Church officials said here today that Bishop Beste of Mecklenburg was the sole delegate to receive an inter-zone pass.

He alone will represent Communist-zone Lutherans at the Lutheran World Union convention opening in Hannover tomorrow.

The Church has protested to the East German government.

Officials said eastern delegates were told at their local Communist police stations that there were no forms available.

Church officials said the Communist move was an "arbitrary reprisal of the worst kind" designed to punish the Church for not supporting the Communist political system.

WEDDINGS

CARTER—ELLIS

White gladioli and delphiniums banked the altar and chancel of Calvary Temple, Belleville, on Saturday, July 12th, at 11:00 a.m., when the Rev. Laurie H. Price, pastor of the church, united in marriage Constance Marie Ellis, of Point Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Ellis, to Eric William Carter, Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Carter.

During the signing of the register, the Rev. Hope Smith, also pastor of the Temple, sang "Because".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charmingly attired in white nylon net and lace over taffeta, fashioned with fitted bodice and bouffant skirt. The long sleeves ended in points over the wrists. Her three-quarter length veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a coronet of sequins and seed pearls, and she carried a nosegay of roses, sweetpeas and stephanotis.

The bride's attendant, Miss Anna Mastin, of Belleville, was gowned in pale green nylon net over taffeta with matching headdress and carrying a nosegay of roses.

Mr. Don Culley, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom, and Mr. Esmond W. Ellis, and Mr. Norman Carter were ushers.

The reception was held at the bride's home, which was appropriately decorated with baskets of summer flowers for the occasion. The bride's mother, Mrs. W. H. Ellis, received the guests, wearing figured silk with matching accessories. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. R. Carter, who wore a blue sheer gown with matching accessories. Both wore red rose corsages.

Following the reception, the young couple left for Niagara Falls and Buffalo, N.Y., the bride travelling in a two-piece navy dress, with white accessories. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Carter will reside in Belleville.

MYALL—COLDEN

St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Harold, was the setting on Monday, July 21st, at 3:30 p.m., for a lovely summer wedding, when Canon J. M. Brownlie, rector of the church, united in marriage Colleen Viola Colden, of Harold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Colden, to John Myall, of Chelmsford, Essex, England, son of Mr. George W. J. Myall, and the late Mrs. Myall. Ferns, lilies, sweetpeas, decorated the altar and chancel.

Miss Edna Tanner, church organist, rendered the traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her ballerina-length wedding gown of white cutaway flower-embroidered organdy. She wore a crownless, white net picture hat, elbow length embroidered gloves, and carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations.

Miss Anne Nickle, of Madoc, attended the bride, gowned in tinted mauve in ballerina length, with matching shoes and hat. She carried yellow carnations in cascade style.

Mr. Carman Colden, of Harold, brother of the bride, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Ted Colden, brother of the bride, was usher.

The many guests were received at the bride's home, which was tastefully adorned with sweetpeas, baby's breath, hydrangea blooms, and delphiniums. The bride's mother wore navy crepe with check trim and corsage of red rosebuds.

Following the reception, the young couple left for Buffalo and points west, the bride wearing a navy nylon and linen ensemble, trimmed with white sharkskin. Mr. and Mrs. Myall will reside at 1228 Kenneth Avenue, Peterborough.

Foreign Exchange Restrictions Prevent Some Countries Paying Dues to R.C. League

TORONTO (CP)—Restrictions on the flow of foreign exchange have prevented some countries from paying their dues to the League of Red Cross Societies, the 18th International Red Cross conference was told Wednesday.

The problem was raised at a closed meeting of the finance committee of the league, made up of national Red Cross organizations, and disclosed later in a press release. Non-payers were not identified. The announcement said that Soviet Russia and Communist China have paid their dues for this year.

Heartening Sign

The payments by the two Communist countries was taken as a heartening sign. They are expected to raise a rumpus about germ warfare and prisoners-of-war in connection with Korea. Since they have paid their dues, delegates here from some 68 countries believe the Communists plan to continue their link with the Red Cross.

Some delegates had expressed fears this would be the last conference of the International Red Cross—one of the last links between East and West.

The press release said the meeting of the finance committee considered payments in goods instead of money to overcome the exchange situation. The league, which has an annual budget of some $300,000, also found a problem in rising expenditures.

So far there has been no political clash between east and west, although delegates seem sure the Communists will attempt to use the conference as a sounding board for the Communist party line.

May Act Saturday

First indications may come Saturday at the opening plenary sessions. While expectations may fall short of what actually happens, Communist delegates may be opposed and may seek to be seated in an Iron-Curtain bloc. Conference spokesmen say this is unlikely since the seating will be by draw and add that any country—including Communist China—which professes to subscribe to the Geneva Convention, has a voice in the international humanitarian organization.

Little was scheduled for today. The conference will not officially open until Saturday night.

ELECTRIC POWER

Use of electric motors for power on Canadian farms increased 238 per cent in 10 years. Use of gasoline engines increased only nine per cent.

Smallness of Everything In Britain, Noted by Teacher

LONDON (CP) — An unexpected experience came to exchange teacher Elsie Luyter of Medicine Hat, Alta., during a year's teaching in a county primary school at Broadstone, Dorset.

Miss Luyter was invited to meet Mrs. H. Edmunds of Swanage, Dorset, granddaughter of Medicine Hat's first missionary, born in the southern Alberta town in 1886.

The Canadian teacher spent an interesting day listening to tales of early days in Medicine Hat. Mrs. Edmunds also recalled her nursing training days in Montreal and Victoria.

Miss Luyter was presented to Queen Mother Elizabeth at a garden party given recently for exchange teachers from five Commonwealth countries and the United States. She was one of more than 50 Canadians at the party, at historic Lambeth Palace, home of the Archbishop of Canterbury.

All present had spent a year in Britain and were scheduled to return home—unless they preferred to remain in Britain. Miss Luyter said she had had "such a wonderful time" she wanted to stay. But she had been given a promotion that was hard to turn down, so she is returning to Canada.

Speaking of Britain, Miss Luyter said the thing that surprised her most was the smallness of everything. "Even the Thames is small compared to the South Saskatchewan," she said with a grin.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

You can't atone for the past by poisoning the future

A great many people make the mistake of thinking that the way to atone for errors of the past is to spend the future concentrating on being sorry for them.

Here is a letter from a young woman who is wasting her time, her emotions and her physical energies in brooding and vain regrets which cannot possibly retrieve the past but can only poison the future.

"I am 19 years of age, and so lonely and heartbroken over a past mistake," she writes. "I can't get hold of myself."

"About a year ago, I left home because I didn't want my parents to tell me who to go with and what time to come home. I wanted to go out with whoever I pleased, and if they happened to be rough characters I didn't want to hear the truth. So I moved from home, and lived first with a girl friend and then by myself. My friends had painted a beautiful picture of how fine it was to be one's own boss, but when I lost my job on account of sickness, my friends left me.

"Our family doctor and minister warned me that the way I was behaving would hasten my mother's death, but I was too smart to care about or see anything but my own selfish pleasures. In less than six months my mother had passed on, and now I have such terrible regrets that I cry all the time.

"Dad brought me back home, but it's not the same without mother. The place is so dark and empty, and to think I did it all through my smartness!

"How can I ever forgive myself for the heartaches I caused my dear mother, and what can I do to change things now for the better? I am so lonely and blue, and need her love so badly. Why didn't I listen to her while she was alive? Here dad and I sit, all broken up. If I could only live those years over again! It's so terrible to visit my mother's grave and to think I put her there.

"Please tell me how to forget my terrible mistake.

What this girl needs to realize is that to keep both herself and her father wallowing in misery and despair is not the way to make amends for the past.

Forget the Past—Make the Future

The way to make amends for the past is for her to put it behind her and concentrate on making the future what her mother would have wanted it to be. She is not likely to "forget" her regrets, but she can stop making a career of them, and she can make the memory of them serve a purpose in reminding her that she has found out what the important things are in life and what are the things to avoid.

Her program should be to start right now to make a happy home for her father. It will be extremely hard at first for her to be cheerful when she feels depressed, but she will have to make that effort, and gradually it will become easier. The normal person does not devote himself to his griefs, and so gradually their sharpness fades away until he is able to take a really active interest in things again and life seems worth living once more. That is what will happen to her if she is willing to let it.

Moreover, in her eagerness to make a happy home for her father, she should not stay in the home all the time. She should get herself a number of outside interests in clubs or other organizations where she can make new friends and take an active part in them. It might help her find such groups if she consulted the minister of whom she spoke, who would I am sure, be glad to guide her in reshaping her life.

Above all, let her get it clearly in mind, and always remember, that the sincerity of one's regret does not appear in the intensity with which one bemoans one's mistakes, but in the devotion one shows to creating a future in which those mistakes will not be repeated.

Food for Thought

A Reducers' Life Is Not Easy One

By Mary Moore

Instead of criticizing my pleasingly plump column-friends today I'm coming to their defence, but do not think that I mean they can relax their reducing vigilance. No mam. I'm merely explaining why it is so everlasting difficult to keep so a strict calorie count —in this land of bounty.

First—one girl writes to me and says her husband's friends josh him because she doesn't drink alcoholic beverages along with him because they are so packed with calories (that's a bitter pill to swallow and it requires complete understanding between a husband and wife to withstand that brand of battering and bantering..

Second—a neighbor of a reader who invites her to tea very often insists that she eat a couple of cookies (at a 100 calories per cookie) with her tea almost every day. Wouldn't that neighbor be ever so much kinder in not passing the cookies to her? It's so gracious of a hostess to refrain from putting temptation in the way of a reducer.

Third—most of my correspondents are (1) woman and (2) cooks. What uphill work it is to prepare meals for a hungry family, and then quietly eat the low-calorie items in the meal, which so seldom require much of her cooking skill?—for raw fruits and vegetables are the standby of the reducer.

Ah me!,—a reducer's life is not an easy one, but oh that glorious feeling on the morning the scales show a reduction of five pounds! This isn't purely mental you know. It is real for you can't help but feel better when you are lighter.

Today's column is written specifically for Mary B., Mrs. Morris, Limey Lil, and Mrs. Roy P. If you think these reducers menus are especially strict it is because some of these girls want to lose that stubborn second ten pounds.

Let's tackle it with a will while we have these glorious summer fruits and vegetables to give it color and variety and never so many different kinds of minerals and vitamins—the protective elements reducers must include.

BREAKFASTS

(1) One cup (8-oz. size) raspberries without cream or sugar but with milk if desired, 1 soft cooked egg, 1 slice whole wheat toast, no butter, clear coffee or cafe au lait (half and half strong coffee and hot whole milk) —3 cups. (2) 8-oz. glass fresh orange juice, poached egg on unbuttered whole wheat toast, clear coffee or cafe au lait or tea with milk. (3) half large grapefruit, scrambled egg on unbuttered whole wheat toast, coffee or tea as above. (Note—Scramble egg in 1 teaspoon butter.)

LUNCHES

(For serious reducers.)

(1) Bacon, lettuce and tomato sandwich without butter or mayonnaise on whole wheat toast—2 slices, 8-oz. glass skim or buttermilk, ripe banana. (2) clear consomme, hot or jellied, 6 oz., chopped hard-cooked egg sandwich with 1 teaspoon mayonnaise, chives or green onion, lettuce on whole wheat, 12 sweet cherries, iced tea with lemon, (3) ham sandwich on whole wheat with mustard and lettuce, skim milk or buttermilk, half ripe cantaloupe.

DINNERS

(For serious reducers with emphasis on lean meat.)

(1) Broiled beef meat cakes with lemon and watercress, new yellow beans, new whole carrots, celery hearts, sliced bananas with raspberries, clear coffee, (2) broiled pickerel fillets with lemon, quick-cooked spinach, green peas, sliced tomatoes on lettuce, whole ripe cantalope, tea with milk, (3) broiled calves' liver (4 to 6 oz.), new beets and greens with lemon and 1 teaspoon butter, new potato (small) with skin on, honeydew melon with lime juice —1-4 section of large one, clear coffee.

Note—At 10:30 take 8-oz. glass unsweetened grapefruit juice and at 4:00 p.m. 1 8-oz. glass tomato juice and 1 rye wafer.

Good luck and slim hips!

Fashion Flashes

Summer in the city isn't bad these days, what with air-conditioned places of amusement. Which is why stores say that the dressy coat is a major promotion for summer theatre-going, outdoor concerns and other evening events. A beauty of a coat is in all-over embroidered taffeta, cut on full, sweeping lines, and lined in a brilliant, contrasting color such as lapis blue or shocking pink.

Slowly reappearing is the print picked out with sequins. Organdy, printed in a delicate wallpaper design, is used for a beautiful evening dress, the bouffant skirt crinoline-lined. The bodice closes with tiny self buttons, and has a deep, rounded neckline and short sleeves. Here and there the green in the print is picked up with tiny green sequins. A narrow band of massed sequins marks the neckline.

Becoming to most young faces is the bonnet, which explains its perennial appeal. Coffee-colored straw is used for a pretty bonnet with a roll brim that narrows to a forehead peak, widening at the sides and diminishing to an upcurved back. Two rings at the top of the crown hold showers of tiny multi-colored flowers.

Table Talk

At table, don't tell about or make a reference to something unpleasant or unsuitable, thinking it will be all right if you preface your remarks with, "This is not a nice thing to talk about at table, I know, but . . ." This apology won't cover up your lack of good taste.

Her situation most awkward with her fiance's family

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Before "my Bill" left for overseas we became engaged. We had considered becoming engaged for some time previous to this, but his family (whom I had met several times, but quite casually) had not approved of his becoming engaged when he was about to leave for overseas service. However, we love each other so very much that we wanted at least to be engaged, even though we postponed being married. He wrote me some time ago that he had written to his parents telling them of the engagement and he thought by their letters they seemed pleased. However, I have had absolutely no word from any of his family. Is there anything I can do about this situation?—Beatrice S.

They should, of course, make the first move. . . to welcome you into their family, and to express pleasure in the engagement (even though they did not approve of its timing). Since they know of the engagement and have met you several times and presumably know how to get in touch with you, I can see no way for you to make the first move. My suggestion is that you write your fiance and ask his suggestion, which might give the relationship to his family some momentum.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have recently moved into a new community. My husband's sister has been living here for four years, and since we have come here we have met many of her friends in her home. I've joined two clubs, one a social club and one a "work" club for a local charity, and at the afternoon meetings I meet some of these friends, and at evening church affairs we meet them with their husbands. My husband, who is a very hospitable man, says I should invite them, say four or five couples at a time, to our home some evening. He insists it's ridiculous to "stand on ceremony." But his sister and I feel that the older members of the community should make the first social move. What is your point of view about this?—V. L.

Yesterday's rule was, it's true, that new members of a community were supposed to wait until the older residents formally called on them before they could issue invitations to the older residents. But in today's informal way of doing things, and particularly in communities not-long-established people are apt not to feel very bound to such convention.

Today there are so many community activities that bring people together (as in your case, indeed) that it doesn't make much sense to keep yourself isolated unless you wish to. My point of view? . . .that you follow your hospitable husband's suggestion. . invite a group of these friendly people in for an evening, or perhaps for a late-Sunday-afternoon gathering. You'll have more fun doing this, I'm sure, and so will they, than abiding by a rule of yesterday that doesn't have much point today.

BEAUTY

By Helen Jameson

Perspiring Hands

If you offer to shake hands with a girl and she is not responsive, do not jump to the conclusion that she is stand-offish, lacking in manners. It may be that she has cold, moist palms, of which she is ever conscious. A handclasp should be warm and friendly, as she well understands.

Her trouble may be due to any one of a number of causes. To be relieved of it she must take hygienic measures. The first step is to speed up the circulatory streams. That can be done by deep breathing exercises and more active outdoor life. Deep breathing can be done at any time, inhaling through the nostrils, exhaling through the lips, drawing the air down into the very cellars of the lungs. She should make it a practice to inhale deeply when walking, inhaling for a number of steps, exhaling for the same number. Outdoor sports will help her.

A salt glow every morning will prove effective. She should moisten a bowl of ordinary table salt, friction it over the body surface, then remove it with a warm shower that is gradually chilled. A brisk rubdown should follow, and a friction with a bath lotion that contains alcohol—as most of them do.

Undernourishment will cause clammy, moist hands. The victim of this trouble may not be getting all the food elements, vitamins and mineral salts that she needs. That happens almost invariably to the finicky eater who subsists on a few favorite dishes. A quart of rich milk a day will help.

All fastidious women apply a deterrent to the arm pits so as to be free of perspiration odor. Even if it is not present, they take no chances. These preparations come in various forms—lotions, creams, powders, sticks. The sticks, especially, are recommended for use on the palms of the hands. Stronger liquids, that close the pores, are not as suitable for this purpose.

All anti-perspiration remedies should be applied according to directions. It is a strange thing, but reading directions is something that most women just never do. Often it isn't the article you are using that works successfully, but the manner in which it is applied.

When dressing for the party, our subject should friction her palms with eau de cologne, then fluff on a little dusting powder. But she must not forget that health rules are even more important. She should endeavor to overcome nervousness.

Women's Activities

EGGLETON W.M.S.-W.A.

The July meeting was held at the church with members of the Eggleton W.M.S., W.A., Mission Band and Baby Band meeting together.

The meeting was presided over by the W.M.S. president, Mrs. Hugh McMullen, with members of the Mission Band assisting with the program.

The roll call showed eight W.M.S. members, 13 Mission Band members and four little Baby Band members present.

Readings were given by Mrs. William McMullen, Joanne Reide, and Marlene Madill. Thelma Prest read a poem.

Joanne Reide and Marlene Madill sang a duet with Joanne playing their accompaniment on the piano.

Mrs. Bert Reide, Baby Band leader, read an interesting story.

After the meeting closed refreshments were then enjoyed.

WHITE'S W.A.

White's District — Mrs. Leonard Young was hostess to the ladies of White's Woman's Association on Thursday afternoon with ten members, three visitors and two children present. The president, Mrs. Floyd Dudley, presided.

Mrs. George Bilham took charge of the devotional service, giving as the thought for the day: "God was filled with gladness." Mrs. Albert Jones read the Scripture: Matthew 9: 27-38, "Breathe on Me Breath of God", which closed the worship service.

Rev. R. W. T. Middleton spoke briefly. He said that White's anniversary services would be held on Sunday, September 21.

Mrs. Dudley mentioned the bazaar and the home-cooking sales. Over $20 was realized from the first sale when Mrs. Jeffery, Mrs. Walter Jones, Mrs. Palmer and Mrs. Casey Ketcheson took charge.

It was decided to purchase screens for the church. The W.A. executive and the Board of Stewards are to meet at church on Monday evening to plan improvements at White's Church. The Bay of Quinte Women's Institute were granted permission to use the church silver and dishes at Belleville Fair.

Mrs. Middleton thanked the ladies for meeting at the parsonage to welcome them and for the refreshments which they provided. She said it was nice to feel that they were appreciated and needed.

Mrs. Albert Jones and Mrs. William Westfall made birthday donations and a "Happy Birthday" was sung.

Mrs. W. A. Jeffery took charge of the program with readings, "Before the Meeting," "The Inconsistent Human", "I Remember" and "The Need of Living," by Mrs. Walter Jones, Mrs. Dudley, Mrs. Albert Jones and Mrs. Jeffery. Contests were won by Mrs. Jim Palmer.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and a social time was enjoyed. Mrs. George Bilham moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Young.

Women's Institute

CHAPMAN W.I.

The regular meeting of Chapman W.I. was held recently at the home of Mrs. Brian Edwards, with 22 members and three visitors present.

The program, under the leadership of Mrs. W. E. Bateman, was chiefly social, as the guest speaker, Mrs. Ray of Halloway, was unable to attend. Community singing was enjoyed by all, making use of the new song leaflets recently purchased.

Mrs. Stanley Webb read an amusing cure for rheumatism. Martha Elliott and Phyllis Kleinsteuber sang a duet "Juanita," with Mrs. S. Webb as accompanist. Mrs. S. Bateman read a worthwhile idea for raising funds. It was suggested that all members bring ideas to the next meeting. Mrs. B. Hunt gave a comical reading, "The Truth About the Cow."

It was decided to purchase a dozen folding chairs to solve the seating problem at the meetings. Twelve dollars was voted to be used as prize money for the Girls' members and the H. S. students again this year.

Under standing committees, Mrs. B. Hunt reported on Agriculture and Canadian Industries in an article on Farm Youth Clubs which told of their great value.

Mrs. Roy Hall reported on Citizenship and Education in a reading which told of the attempt being made to strengthen the English course in schools. For Home Economics and Health, Mrs. S. Webb gave a timely account on artificial respiration. Mrs. Thomas Lynn reported on Committee Activities and Public Relations by reading excerpts from the 1951 Provincial Conference at Guelph, which told of many ways in which this phase of the work could be carried on.

Refreshments, provided and served by Mrs. Leo Meraw, Mrs. Bernard Hunt, Mrs. L. Elliott, Mrs. Geo. Bolderick and Mrs. Brian Edwards, brought the meeting to a close.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Burton Coulter, on Tuesday, August 19.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, JULY 25, 1952.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—No unpleasing aspects and some very benefic ones augur for a pleasant, productive day if you give your able help. Review care of health; be moderate in all activities.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Mars, Moon, Neptune in fine array boost prospects for our military and other defense efforts, home and property interests. Dealing in beverages, oil, sea activities tops.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—No day for undue excitement or rushing here and there without purpose. But it is a splendid time generally and much good can be accomplished in all worthy lines.

June 22 to July 24 (Cancer)—Cheerful, benefic outlook for you with your natal Moon in fine position. Whatever your duties, they can be despatched pleasantly leaving you time for healthy diversion.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Scuttle doubts that things won't go all right, but at same time know that you must do your share to improve and to keep things going as they should.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—The unusual in artistic professions, creative ideas with practical promise are among items sponsored now. Some hindrances possible to personal desires.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Pleasant if not exciting indications. Earnest effort in any worthy undertaking is honored. No need to overdo, but don't neglect urgent duties.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Friendly day for most part, but extremes in all things are tabu. Should be satisfactory results from progressive endeavors in industry, manufacturing various businesses.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—You, like Scorpio, have fine vibrations from your natal planet and others, and you should do well, especially if you exercise sane moderation.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Day favorable on whole, especially for familiar duties, interests. You in the armed services under fine influences.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—If rightly ambitious and consistently progressive you should make notable gain now in business and personal interests. But you must be alert to advantages.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Look ahead hopefully even as you take care of day's problematical or bright prospects. Much to be gained from plans well laid. Personal affairs freshly favored.

YOU BORN TODAY: Idealistic, exuberant, kind-hearted, usually of a sunny disposition. However, Leoites can be very arbitrary and inclined to egotism. These two traits must be properly corrected. You can handle large groups of people, also big undertakings when you have learned to control your own self. Birthdate: Arthur James Balfour, Brit. statesman; David Belasco, theatre genius; Henry Knox 1st Secy. of War.

Why We Say--

"CASH ON THE NAIL"

THANKS TO JOHN HARRIS, JR., EDMONTON, ALTA, CANADA
PETE HOFFMAN and BOB MORGAN

. . . A real nail

If you go to the grocery store and the grocer asks for "Cash on the nail," he doesn't usually have a nail for you to put your money . . . But the expression started with a real nail in Devonshire, England. People dealing with farmers were asked to put the cash on the nail and then argue about the price.

MUSHROOM "BUMPS"

SEDGE FEN, England (CP)—Investigating bumps on a tarmacadam road here, council officials saw mushrooms push their way through. Later a shepherd had them for breakfast.

DONKEYS HAVE HOURS

MIDDLESBROUGH, Eng. (CP)—A service club officially invited two donkeys to a garden party to help earn money for charity. But the town fathers said their eight donkeys, which give rides to kiddies, work only from 2 p.m. until 8:30 p.m., with a break for tea. So they weren't able to make the party.

Chas. Kettering, Grand Old Man Of Auto Industry, Going Strong

By DAVID J. WILKIE

DETROIT (AP)—If there is a "grand old man" of the auto industry he's Charles F. Kettering, noted engineer-scientist, whose 75th birthday was observed last year with one of the biggest parties ever held.

Younger in spirit and physical capacity than many persons 20 years younger by the calendar, "Boss Ket," as his friends call him, deserves that "grand old man" designation on several counts.

One of the best liked persons associated with the auto industry, starter that did away with hand no other living man has contributed as much to the industry's development.

Kettering developed the self-starter that did away with hand cranking and many broken arms and jaws; he perfected the process of painting a car in a few hours instead of weeks; he gave the industry ethyl gasoline and high industry ethyl gasoline and high compression engines he developed the two-cycle diesel engine that led to diesel electric locomotives, and he blazed the way for many refinements in other fields of scientific research.

Many Advances

There were, for instance, his artificial fever therapy for the treatment of certain blood diseases; his participation in the Sloan-Kettering Institute for Cancer Research his development of a new type of refrigerants and many other advances.

Long head of General Motors research laboratories, Kettering "retired" in 1947 to continue as consultant with G.M., but he operates pretty much the same today as he did before.

He maintains an office in the G.M. research building but spends considerable time in New York, Miami, Dayton, Ohio, his home town, and in Detroit. He travels mostly in his personal plane, which he is licensed to pilot himself.

He is deeply interested in "time and the sun" as two of "our chief resources." The "wonderful age," he says, "will come when man learns to draw directly upon the sun for power." The use of solar energy as automobile fuel, he adds, still is a distinct possibility.

"Boss Ket" feels there "isn't any mystery in the world; everything is simple provided you have the proper understanding."

Science, he says, "is merely finding out how nature does things—it's just as simple as that."

"The world has nothing to fear but stupidity and nothing but stupidity can cause trouble. As long as the sun shines we'll be all right."

Save Billion

A high compression engine he is working on is well on its way. Kettering has said it will some day save American motorists $1,000,000,000 a year in fuel costs.

At least once each year Kettering gets a new degree in science, engineering or philosophy. He already holds some 30 of these, and about as many more citations, awards and honorary and life humanitarian organizations.

"We'll believe 'BXOSS Ket' has retired when the last mystery of the universe has been solved," say his friends. "Even then Ket would be off to find a new universe."-

NAUTICAL RUSTLERS

KINGSTON (CP) — Police say they believe nautical rustlers may be at work in this distric. Thomas Driscoll reported the theft of a calf from his farm on Howe Island, in the mouth of the St. Lawrence River.

BANCROFT

Bancroft — Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Lloyd, Bancroft, are spending this week in Toronto and vicinity visiting relatives.

Earl of Elgin Arrives in Canada To Attend Centenary Celebration

MONTREAL (CP) — The Earl of Elgin and Kincardine has arrived in Canada to attend centennial celebrations for Elgin, Ont., named for his grandfather, Governor-General of Canada when the south-western Ontario community was founded.

Lord Elgin accompanied by Lady Elgin, arrived yesterday aboard the liner Empress of Scotland and told reporters they were looking forward to the celebrations.

Been Here Before

"It's not my first crossing," he said. "I first came to Canada in 1908 to attend tercentenary celebrations for Quebec, and have been here on several occasions since. As matter of fact, my father was born here in the west-end of Montreal. It was known as Monklands then."

The Elgin celebrations will take place Aug. 3-10 and the Earl and Countess will take a prominent part, attending the laying of a cornerstone for a new 300-bed hospital, Caledonian games, a horse show, a civic and an industrial dinner.

Lord Elgin is well known in the community which bears his name, particularly to the men who served with the Elgin Regiment in the Second World War and whom Lord Elgin visited frequently.

"I am honorary colonel of the regiment," he said. "The late Lord Tweedsmuir, then Governor-General of Canada, signed my commission some 14 or 15 years ago."

A breeder of Aberdeen-Angus cattle, Lord Elgin was a judge at the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto in 1938.

"I keep upwards of 35 cattle at my home, Broomhall, in County Fife, some 15 miles from Edinburgh. Three years ago one of my bulls, Brose of Broomhall, won first prize at the Royal Highland Show at Dundee."

Son Was Page

Speaking of his family—three boys and three girls—Lord Elgin said his youngest son recently acted as a page to Queen Elizabeth.

"The Queen had come to Scotland to enroll three men as Knights of the Thistle," he said, "and young David Bruce carried her train in a solemn procession."

The Earl and Countess expect to be in Canada until the end of August and the British Board of Trade plans to have the Earl open the British section of the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto. They will visit Ottawa next week.

They were met here by W.H.A. Sparling, industrial commissioner for St. Thomas and an acquaintance of the family since Mr. Sparling's days as quartermaster for the Elgin Regiment.

Recent Rains Aid Hoe Crops

TORONTO (CP)—Recent rains throughout most of Ontario have provided welcome relief to drovers with dry pastures and will be of great aid to corn, potatoes and other hoed crops, the Department of Agriculture said yesterday in its weekly crop report.

Wheat is being cut throughout the province.

Army worm is reported doing extensive damage to oats in sections of Perth county.

Dairymen are expecting the rains to boost milk production considerably. Output had fallen off with the dry weather.

Haying has been completed in most areas, with a less-than-average crop being reported generally.

Trhoughout the province the corn crop is expected to be excellent. Tomatoes are reported developing rapidly.

Heavy Grain Movements

MIDLAND, (CP) —The United States steel strike brought about one of the heaviest July grain movements in years to this Georgian Bay port.

The strike forced diversion of most lake boats from ore trade to grain with the result that the five elevators here and in nearby Port McNicoll are filled to capacity. In one 30-hour period last week five freighters brought in more than 2,000,000 bushels of grain.

The situation is different in Midland shipyards where lay-offs are expected because of shortage of steel.

Predict Early Lead, Victory For 'Reluctant Candidate' At Democratic Convention

By CLYDE R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO (CP)—Delegates to the national Democratic convention today came back to work wearied from 12 hours of oratory and wrangling. They still have to select a Presidential candidate, the job for which they convened here last Monday.

Like the Republicans two weeks ago, they spent the first three days of their convention fighting among themselves on and off the convention floor, and in listening to party oratory.

Today the nominations are expected, and possibly a start on the balloting which is likely to see Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, a reluctant candidate, take an early lead and probably emerge a winner.

In that event the two old parties will have drafted candidates and overlooked the eager aspirants who have spent much money and effort to sell themselves to the people. Two weeks ago Republicans nominated Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who for a long time stood off requests for his consent to be a candidate.

Adopt Platform

Early this morning the convention adopted a 10,000-word platform covering virtually everything from world peace "with honor" to protection of the recreation resources for the country's 28,000,000 game hunters and fishermen. Mississippi and Georgia dissented.

The plank on racial discrimination, which has kept the convention embroiled in a states-rights argument, was so worded as to be acceptable to most southerners, who have traditionally resented any proposal of federal guarantee of equal rights for Negroes.

Earlier last night Vice-President Alben Barkley, the 74-year-old Grand Old Man of the party, delivered a speech which won him the sort of ovation usually reserved for victorious candidates.

But he was no longer a candidate. He bowed out the day before when his labor friends bluntly told him he was too old.

For nearly an hour he held his place on the rostrum last night while receiving the applause of the crowded convention hall and of well-wishers in the party.

Petrillo on Tap

One of those was James Petrillo, powerful head of the Musicians' Union, who went to the rostrum to pose with the Vice-President. Afterward he was asked who was likely to be the candidate and he said Stevenson "better start taking music lessons," an indication he believed that Stevenson would succeed piano-playing Harry Truman. He has the reputation for picking winners.

Still to be made clear today was the fate of delegations from Virginia, South Carolina and Louisana.

They have refused to pledge their support to whatever candidates the convention elects—a condition fixed by the rules committee for those who wish to participate and vote.

If they are refused participation they probably will walk out and start their own movement for a candidate of their own choosing.

But House Speaker Sam Rayburn, installed last night as permanent chairman, said that so far as he was concerned all delegates on the floor would have equal rights. From his long years of presiding over the House of Representatives observers here believed he would dispose of the North-South wrangle without further trouble.

French Geologist Takes Pictures Of Flying Saucers

CLERMONT-FERRAND, France (AP)—Andre Fregnale, a geologist, claimed today he had snapped four photographs of a flying saucer over this south-central French city.

He said he had seen the object at 5 p.m. one day last week and that it was flying at from 9,000 to 24,000 feet.

The object was like an oval saucer, he said, with brilliant light in the centre which he guessed came from "some kind of gyroscopic system, turning very rapidly which would explain the reflection that is very clearly seen in my pictures."

Loan Advances Work on Bridge

OGDENSBURG, N.Y. (CP) — A proposed bridge across the St. Lawrence River between Prescott, Ontario, and Ogdensburg went a step further yesterday with announcement of a $32,000 loan to the Ogdensburg Bridge Authority by New York State.

The bridge would provide the area's only all-year link in the event the St. Lawrence Seaway is completed and the water level here is raised.

The loan, along with $25,000 advanced previously, will enable the authority to proceed with engineering work without waiting for the state budget to be brought down next spring.

Bell Telephone Links 5 Islands

MONTREAL (CP)—The Bell Telephone Company of Canada announced today opening of overseas telephone service tomorrow to five Portugese possessions — Madeira the Azores and Cape Verde Island in the Atlantic and Angola and Mozambique in Africa. This brings to 105 the number of countries linked with the Canadian telephone network.

UNVEIL MEMORIAL

HAMWORTHY, England (CP)—A memorial to the men who lost their lives in the 1944 assault on Walcheren Island, in which the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps played an active part, has been unveiled here by Admiral Sir Philip Vian. The naval support squadron, to which many of the men belonged, was trained at Hamworthy.

Can. Destroyer Hits Red Positions In Air-Sea Attack

TOKYO (Reuters)—The Canadian destroyer Iroquois today participated in an air-sea attack on the west coast of North Korea.

The Iroquois battered troop and artillery positions on the Ongjin peninsula, with British planes working as spotters.

On the Yellow Sea coast, British carrier-based planes destroyed a transformer station and turned a control house into an inferno with napalm.

The attack was part of a concentrated offensive by carrier-based aircraft on Communist power plants on both the east and west coasts of North Korea.

In a continuation of Gen. Mark Clark's plan to destroy communist power supplies, U.S. planes hit hard at three well-protected plants near Wonsan on the east coast. Damage in each case was estimated as at least 75 per cent.

Corsairs and sky-raiders bombed the area after anti-aircraft positions had been softened by panther jets.

Pope Greets 5,000 Young Visitors

Pope Pius XII received some 5,000 children from eight to 10 years of age this week. The children — youngest members of the Italian Catholic Action Society — met with the Pope in the throne hall of St. Peter's during a massed general audience. His Holiness chatted with the youngsters, who came dressed in regional costumes. Canadian Industry Beginning To Feel Affects of Steel Strike Inventories Being Used Up

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The United States steel strike is putting the squeeze on many sections of the Canadian economy.

As the tie-up rolled into its 52nd day, K.S. Harris, director of the Defence production Department's steel division, said:

"Every day now, the squeeze becomes tighter for Canada, and every day it lasts, the longer will be its after-effects."

Many Lines Hurt

A regional survey by The Canadian Press showed that the tightening pinch of the steel shortage is affecting chiefly the construction industry; assembly industries such as the automobile trade that need U.S. components and the west's oil-drilling program.

Prospective victims include Canadian steel-making plants themselves. Those in Central Canada are eating into their stockpiles of ore from strikebound U.S. mines, and they may have to curtail production next winter if the strike continues a few more weeks.

Over the next year, Mr. Harris said, all of Canada's steel-consuming industry may be affected to some extent. It now is going along by using its inventories, and future operations depend on how these can be rebuilt after the strike ends.

At the moment, the survey indicates, the two heavily-industrialized central provinces are taking the brunt of the steel scarcity.

Construction—which depends largely on big steel shapes from the U.S.—has slowed down. The auto industry has been knocked back.

Autos Affected Badly

The Chrysler plant in Windsor has been shut since July 11, with 3,700 employees off, and has announced no plans for re-opening until after the U.S. strike. Ford at Windsor is operating on a day-to-day basis, until its regular vacation shutdown Aug. 4.

At Hamilton, the Studebaker plant is closing for vacation tomorrow, and about 800 workers will be told not to return Aug. 11, as previously planned.

General Motors at Oshawa has had 400 workers of its truck assembly line idle for some weeks. also.

The National Steel Car Corporation at Hamilton, making railway cars, expects it will have to curtail operations around the end of August if the strike has not been settled.

Also at Hamilton, the Steel Company of Canada—one of Canada's three primary steel producers—said this week operations may be curtailed next spring for shortage of ore if the strike goes on three or four weeks. Algoma Steel Company at Sault Ste. Marie is believed in about the same position.

Australian Girl Wins 80-Metre Olympic Hurdles

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OLYMPIC STADIUM, Helsinki —(CP)—Shirley Strickland de la Hunty of Australia won the women's 80-metre hurdles Olympic championship today, almost equalling her world record made 24 hours ago.

Records again were being shattered with abandon.

The Australian girl won the final in 10.9 seconds. Yesterday she broke the world record of 11 seconds flat and the Olympic record of 11.2 seconds in a heat and semi-final.

Two canadians qualified for semi-finals in the 400-metre run.

Jim Lavery of Calgary won a heat, outrunning Russia's Jurii Lituev. Jack Carroll of Verdun, Que., ran second in his heat behind Arthur Wint of Jamaica.

Doug Clement of Vancouver finished in fifth and last place in one heat and failed to qualify.

Win for Zatopek

Emil Zatopek, Czechoslovakia's great distance runner who successfully defended his 10,000-metre championship last Sunday, won the 5,000-metre run today in record time of 14:15.4, beating the old record of 14:17.6 made by Gaston Reiff of Belgium in 1948. Reiff competed again today but dropped out with a lap to go.

Zatopek won in a gruelling stretch finish, with Alain Mimoun of France second and Herbert Schade of Germany third. Both also bettered the old record. Gordon Pirie and Chris Chataway of Great Britain were fourth and fifth.

'Green' Moose Roaming Woods Aid Scientists

TORONTO (CP)—If you should see a red, blue, green, purple or even an orange moose in Northern Ontario, don't worry.

It's part of an attempt by the Lands and Forests Department to trace the roving habits of moose. Observers place small cans of paint with a tip attachment along known trails and spray the moose as they pass by. From then on, the sprayed moose are marked animals and can be recognized in their movements from one territory to another.

When the animal sheds his hair in the fall, part of its colorful character will be lost. In the meantime, the woods are full of moose with multi-colored posteriors.

Lightning Halts Vancouver Buses

VANCOUVER (CP)—A bolt of lightning knocked out Vancouver's transit system for an hour last night.

Hundreds of trolley buses and street cars were lined up for scores of blocks throughout the downtown district. Gas buses were pressed into service on affected lines.

The breakdown was caused by a lightning bolt which struck a power pole at nearby Ruskin. Thousands were stranded downtown.

Delay in Sailing of Supply Ship to Arctic Outposts May Cause Much Hardship

OTTAWA (CP)—Dogged by hard luck, the Canadian government steamship C.D. Howe likely will curtail her annual trip to Canada's far northern outposts.

The vessel, put into service two years ago, set out from Montreal June 27 with a cargo of mail, government officials and supplies ranging from drugs to oil and lumber. Her patrol is the main link between the eastern Arctic and civilization.

But she's back in Montreal, a victim of pack ice and a labor strike.

Departure Uncertain

Transport Department officials don't know when the C.D. Howe will get under way again. Until they do, they aren't saying which of the 26 scheduled stops will be dropped.

Only the briefest stop-overs had been planned for many of the ports of call on the proposed 12,000-mile route, and the Howe already is nearly a month late.

One Transport Department spokesman said this means "considerable hardship" for an undetermined number of settlements.

The vessel ran into trouble early this month while steaming through pack ice off Labrador. A forepeak plate was found to be leaking and she turned back to Quebec.

Welders Strike

There, in drydock, a wildcat walkout of welders left her stranded. Pressed for time, she steamed upstream to Montreal, where she is undergoing repairs at Canadian Vickers, Ltd.

What will happen to the northern outposts is still not certain. They probably will have to get by with fewer supplies, and may get these by plane or by small boats sailing out of Churchill, Man.

The C.D. Howe was built to replace the Nascopie, Hudson's Bay Company patrol boat which went aground off Cape Dorset at the south end of Baffin Island in 1947 while on her 34th trip.

While the summer wanes, the C.D. Howe, her 730 tons of supplies and her passenger list of 21 scientists and officials, are faced with a tense waiting period at Montreal.

Aussies to Take Fewer Immigrants

CANBERRA, Australia (Reuters) —Australia will halve her intake of immigrants next year to enable her to "digest more comfortably the very substantial intake of the post-war years," Immigration Minister Harold Hold announced tonight.

Hold said the government has decided to restrict the admission of immigrants in 1953 to 80,000, about one-half the average intake for the last four years.

By the end of this year almost 700,000 immigrants will have settled in Australia.

The Australian economy has been dislocated by the drop in dollar earnings which set in after the Korean War boom.

Ike Plans to Win Independents

DENVER (AP)— Political advisers to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican presidential nominee, moved today to set up a program aimed primarily at wooing independents and disgruntled democrats to his support.

The move is based, these advisers said, on a call by the general for continuation and expansion of the National Citizens for Eisenhower committee—an organization they credited with having played a major role in his successful bid for the nomination.

Vision, Vigor, Characterize Development Of Ungava's Fabulous, Inaccessible Ore

This is one of a series of stories by Forbes Rhude, Canadian Press Business Editor, after a trip to northern Quebec and Labrador. He introduces you to the men and the companies which are opening up that vast wilderness, potential successor to Minnesota's Mesabi Range as the main source of North America's iron.

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

More than $200,,000,000 will be spent in Labrador-Ungava before a nickel will be earned from its iron ore—before a ton of ore wilt be moved to market in 1954.

Before such a development can be undertaken many men must do many things: Trappers and Indians bring in reports of mineral indications; geologists spend months and years in canoes and in the bush; airplanes fly over and with the latest scientific gadgets; financial markets are persuaded that the project is a sound investment.

But most of all, perhaps, men must dream and act upon their dreams. Men must explore in faraway places. Others must believe in opening up a country for the sake of opening up a country—in accomplishing something from which others will benefit in the years ahead.

Reported in 1894

We might look back to 1894 when A. P. Low, Dominion government geologist, travelled Labrador-Ungava by canoe and reported finding iron-bearing rock. We might look at a more recent day in 1936 when an Indian prospector with Dr. J. A. Retty, Quebec geologist, showed him a sample of high-grade iron ore.

Basically, however, Labrador-Ungava iron had to await the airplane, the bulldozer and the jeep; the fighting of two world wars and the threat of a third, before it could keep its date with destiny.

Who cared if there might be iron in distant Labador-Ungava as long as the accessible Mesabi Range of Minnesota poured its ore into the furnaces of North American steel plants? By 1945, however, came the whisper:

"Mesabi has fought its last war." An end to its rich ore could be seen appoaching.

Many millions of years ago, Mesabi and Labrador-Ungava ore had been built up out of similar stuff. American steel plants had been built to take Mesabi, and they could take Labrador-Ungava. But they could take ores from other parts of the world, too, and Labrador-Ungava had to compete for their attention.

Finally, however, Labrador-Ungava, its ore, the companies and the men, found one another with the co-operation of the Quebec and Newfoundland governments.

The Hunt Begins

Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines Ltd., big Northern Ontario gold producer headed by Jules Timmins, and the M. A. Hanna Company of Cleveland, headed by George M. Humphrey—coal, ore, shipping—joined forces in 1942 to see what could be found.

For three years they looked primarily for other minerals, not iron, but for seven years they conducted exploration, geological surveys, mapping and—from 1947—extensive drilling.

In 1949, Iron Ore Company of Canada was formed to handle the iron concessions, backed by Hollinger-Hanna and five American steel companies: Republic Steel Corporation, National Steel Corporation, Armco Steel Corporation, Wheeling Steel Corporation and Youngstown Sheet and Metal Company.

Hollinger-Hanna and the steel companies put up $100,000,000 and persuaded 15 American and four Canadian insurance companies to put up another $100,000,000.

From that day, Labrador iron ore might be said to be on its ways to market, though only a wilderness lay where a 360-mile railway must be built.

It was too big a job for one contractor, so a group was formed of Cartier Construction Ltd., Montreal; McNamara Construction Co. Ltd., Toronto; Mannix Ltd., Calgary; Morrison-Knudsen Co. of Canada Ltd., whose head office is in Boise, Idaho. On the job, it known for brevity as CMMk.

The financing of the undertaking has been hailed as a great accomplishment. Around Iron Ore Company, the names of Timmins and Humphrey are spoken with a mixture of affection and awe as the architects of the enterprise, with Humphrey getting a special citation for his selling job in the United States.

W. H. Durrell, who headed the wartime construction of Goose Bay airport in Labrador, became general manager of Iron Ore.

The job was "too interesting" to pass up, he explains; and he wound up his affairs in his own private company to take it. He says:

"It is the opening up of an entire new country in which there must be all kinds of minerals. We haven't looked at it yet. People will be finding mines there for 100 years."

Mr. Durrell was born in 1903 at Portage du Fort, Que. He attended Haileybury, Ont., School of Mines; and was a partner, 1921-41, in Sutcliffe Co. Ltd., consulting engineers specializing in mining developments across Canada.

A. J. Le Blanc, native of Grand Falls, N.B., who served as colonel in the Royal Canadian Engineers during the war, is assistant general manager.-

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto (CP)—Support weakened today in early afternoon stock market dealings and prices made little headway after an early gain.

Activity dwindled from a cautious opening. Volume for the first three hours was 747,000 shares.

Western oil leaders were strong but lower-priced issues slipped. Canadian Devonian, Central, Leduc, Jupiter, North Canadian and Triad climbed moderately.

Base metals eased as Chromium, Golden Manitou, Labrador, Silver Standard, United Keno Hill and Yukeno turned downward. Nesbitt-Lablue and Mind amar were strong.

Senior golds showed scattered strength as Hollinger and Teck Hughes climbed slowly. Junior producers and prospects dipped. Holding companies were firm.

Bricklayers Quit When Asked To Punch Time Clock

OAKVILLE, (CP)—Bricklayers, insisting they wouldn't punch a time clock, were off work today for the third day at the Ford Company of Canada assembly plant, now under construction here.

The 25 men walked off their jobs Tuesday when their employer, Anglin-Norcross Ontario Ltd. refused to pay them unless they punched a time clock.

William Jenoves, business manager of the Bricklayers' International Union No. 2 A.F.L. to which the men belong, said clock-punching is not done on any other jobs and "we don't intend to do it at the Ford plant."

This dispute is entirely between the union and the construction company and has nothing to do with the Ford Company of Canada, Gordon McLaughlin, Ford resident engineer said.

He predicted cars would be rolling off the assembly lines a year from now provided there aare no "unforeseen delays."

Advertising Turns Tourist Trade Into Maritimes' Leading Industry

By KINGSLEY BROWN, JR.
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A tip for Canadian tourist bureaux: Follow the time-worn but efficient slogan "it pays to advertise."

The Maritimes, heading for a record season, are already reaping fabulous dividends from an intense post-war advertising campaign that has turned the tourist trade into a top-ranking industry.

Nova Scotia's $25,000,000 trade last year placed the industry in fifth spot, above agriculture, and only $7,000,000 out of third-place fisheries. Revenues totalling $15,000,000 in New Brunswick put it in fifth place, above mining. Tourists in Prince Edward Island spent $4,200,000 last year to boost it to third position, above fisheries.

And tourists are rolling into the Maritimes this season as never before. They come for attractions like New Brunswick's Fundy National Park and hunting and fishing haunts, Nova Scotia's Annapolis Valley and highlands of Cape Breton, and Prince Edward Island's garden country.

'Good Investment'

Although provincial government have poured millions into project to lure tourists since the war, gov ernment officials say it has bee a good investment.

Nova Scotia's tourist influx ha increased 27 per cent over las year. New Brunswick has a seven per cent increase. One of the mos spectacular gains was registere by Quebec tourists, who have bee entering the province at a 56-per cent increase over last season.

The advertising campaign is di rected by a relatively small an comparatively low budget.

Nova Scotia now is also usin movies and has material for six o seven films. Many earlier film have been shown in the Unite States, notably on television, an in Canada.

The international tuna tourna ment at Wedgeport, N.S., attende annually by some 60 reporters photographers and film producers gains a windfall of publicity fo the province.

CANADA'S NO. 1 WOMAN

At a convention held in Vancouver a few days ago, a roup comprising leading Canadian professional and usiness women named a "Canadian Woman of the Year." he honor went to an Alberta-born Toronto lawyer whose fforts to obtain equal pay for equal work for women quali- ied her for the award.

However, to determine the real "Canadian Woman of he Year" it is suggested that the search be extended far eyond the ranks of professional and business women to nclude those builders and molders of the nation who may e found in the home. These women are mothers and heir importance to the community far outstrips in importance the contribution of those women who battle in man's arena.

CONTRADICTIONS

To rain or not to rain — that is the question in the tate of Washington, which is immediately south of British Columbia.

It seems that the fruit growers of Washington want ess rain and more sunshine and are giving Mother Nature an assist by propelling silver iodide or something of the sort into the clouds to prevent the clouds from dropping rain on their orchards, particularly their cherry orchards. But the wheat growers and certain other farmers need more rain, or think that they do, and have their own men on the job releasing carbon dioxide crystals among those same clouds, in the hope of inducing the moisture in them to condense and fall as rain.

Our information is that reputable scientists are not yet prepared to state categorically whether these rain makers and rain dispersers can achieve practical results, but it is apparent even to a layman that either of these two groups in the state of Washington is going to be disappointed, because even a miracle could scarcely prove satisfactory to both the rain makers and the rain dispersers.

But even a little reflection should cause Canadians to realize that they are in no position to laugh at those west coast American farmers. If Canada lacks rival groups of rain makers and rain dispersers seeking to thwart each other, we have plenty of other agencies seeking to nullify each other's efforts, and frequently at the taxpayer's expense.

We legalize the manufacture of margarine because butter is too expensive, then place a floor price under butter to prevent it from becoming too cheap. We pay out large sums every day via unemployment insurance to provide for our unemployed, while at the same time we have employees engaged in scouring Europe to find immigrants, at least some of whom have been brought to this country at public expense. Through one department of government we have for years been taxing ourselves heavily to prevent inflation, while through another department of government we give away vast sums to increase purchasing power. We spend huge sums of money and even sacrifice the lives of our young men to fight socialism in faraway places while socialism in various forms is being fostered, promoted and encouraged here at home.

Without extending ourselves, we could cite a hundred other instances in which Canadians are engaged in what amounts to the same thing as attempting to induce rain and attempting to disperse rain at the same time, but the foregoing should suffice, for the present.

Someone may say that, while all this is true, nothing can be done about it. But something can be done about it, and something will be done about it. Something will be done about it just as soon as an aroused public opinion demands that something be done. That time, we are optimistic enough to believe, is not as far away as some people would like it to be.

HOUSING SHORTAGE WORSENING

In 1950, new dwelling units totaled more than 90,000; in 1951, the figure was 74,000, and this year it is expected to decline to 60,000. Moreover, the higher down payments now required for the purchase of homes have made it difficult, if not impossible, for families in the middle and lower income groups to buy dwellings. Part of the government's defence policy has been to discourage construction of homes, so as to conserve building materials and labor. But . . . the largest share of the burden is carried by one economic group. — (Ottawa Citizen.)

THE QUIET TIME

When all their evening prayers have said
And they are safely tucked in bed,
When whispering and laughter cease,
There comes a tranquil hour of peace—
A little while when we can be
From childhood's interruptions free.

The mother says: "Now talk we may
And hear what each has got to say.
Or, while you read your book I'll knit
And rest my jangled nerves a bit.
You mind them for an hour or two,
But I must watch them all day through.

"I love the stillness that descends
When sleep the children's playtime ends.
The quiet following racing feet
To me is comforting and sweet.
But I'll be glad tomorrow when
I hear their noise begin again.

"These quiet hours seem good to me,
But must they last they wouldn't be.
I'd hate the stillness if it stayed
And ne'er again would noise be made.
It's good because we have no doubt
That soon again we'll hear them shout."

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE CONTINUOUS CONFLICT

Whose side are you on? Are you on the side of the angels or on the side of the demons? For be perfectly sure that there is a distinct line of demarkation drawn at this point and that you must be on one side or on the other. You cannot straddle the fence.

Oh yes, it is true that all our good is mixed with evil and all our evil has some little amount of good in it. Yet the set of our lives is always clear and distinct. We are either with the angels or we are with the demons. Our lives are either essentially good or essentially evil. We are either on the right path or we are on the wrong path.

Neither science nor any other form of modern learning has been able to displace in men's minds the conviction that there is a vast struggle going on in the universe at the present time between the forces of good and the forces of evil. The power of human iniquity is too great to be accounted for only by the will of man. There is something else behind it. Likewise man's aspirations and his willingness to sacrifice can be accounted for only by the purposes and providences of a righteous and loving God.

St. Paul declared that we strive not against flesh and blood but against principalities and powers. This theological language means that evil is spiritual in its nature just as goodness is also of the spirit.

Ice Cream Truck Upsets on Road Children Happy

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Youngsters of suburban Valley Station had a field day yesterday—a 1½-ton ice cream truck cracked up in their neighborhood.

Bricks, bars, cones, Eskimo pies and other frozen delights were strewn over the highway. Youngsters appeared as if by magic and began loading up.

Truck driver Virgil Jewell, who glumly watched the cleanup, told police he dozed at the wheel.

Steel Shortage Halts Building Of New Highway

KINGSTON (CP)—A shortage of steel is holding up the building of the four-lane stretch of highway No. 2, which will by-pass Kingston, Premier Frost told a gathering of citizens and tourists yesterday.

He was speaking during his official visit to old Fort Henry here. He inspected the Fort Henry guard and watched it go through a complicated century-old foot-and-arms drill and fire a four-gun salute.

New Yorker Named Head Clan McNeil

ST. ANN'S, N.S. (CP)—A New York architect was proclaimed true chief of the clan MacNeil last night but Cape Breton's independent Scots were rumored planning to split the honor with a Prince Edward Islander.

Sir Thomas Learney, Lord Lyon King of Arms, called the Gaelic College here that the New Yorker, Robert Lister MacNeil, was "adjudged chief in 1950 and so remains."

Rev. A. W. R. MacKenzie, Gaelic College director, asked Edinburgh for the ruling after a dispute over the rightful holder of the chieftainship arose when Mr. MacNeil was invited to open the annual mod—or gathering—here Aug. 7.

Colin MacNeil of Vernon River, P.E.I., a 52-year-old railroad sectionman, claims he is the true chief and many Scots back him.

The Gaelic College here, hoping with typical Scottish diplomacy to avoid more violent dispute in the matter, is rumored planning to invite both MacNeils.

Labor Objectors Defeated, Queen's Budget Passes

LONDON Reuters—The Commons early today passed the Civil List bill which provides the state income of the Royal family.

Under the bill, the Queen will get an annual income of 475,000 pounds. The Duke of Edinburgh will get an annuity of 40,000 pounds.

Since the bill was first put forward, Labor has urged reductions. Conservatives agreed that some economy might be necessary, but fought any proposals that the Queen should run her court "on the cheap."

Tom Driberg, a Labor member, said that he thought no one would want to reduce the Royal family to the Scandinavian level and have them bicycling around London.

"I do not think people would like it," he said.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In a movie theatre, it is astonishing how uniform we are in our emotions. Old and young, rich and poor, we all laugh together, swallow our tears together. When the situation calls for a slight laugh, we all laugh slightly. When a guffaw is required, we let go together. When the plot thickens, we all, hundreds upon hundreds of us, sit tense, sharing an identical emotion, the selfsame response. And when the tears flow, you can sense their flow all over the darkened house.

There are, of course, exceptions and standouts. Some laugh in the wrong place. A few guffaw where a chuckle does most of us. And in the tense moments there is generally some smarty who exercises his smartness in a crack that is heard only in his immediate vicinity. When tears are flowing, there are always a few cynics and scoffers who hold themselves aloof from the feelings of the whole, no doubt getting an impression of superiority out of it for themselves; a useful thing, of course. We all have to feel superior to something.

But the astonishing thing about this unanimity of thought, emotion and response to be observed in a motion picture theatre or other place of entertainment is the fact that it bears not the slightest relation to the enormous gulfs that separate us from one another in nearly every other situation. The incredible abysses that divide us in our social, political, religious thought and practice succeed in making huge sections of us complete strangers to one another. In a movie, we sit elbow to elbow with people, sharing their every feeling and response, yet it would be utterly impossible for us to sit at home at our dinner table or out on the verandah in friendly conversation, because we share not a shred of their way of life, whether it be table manners, subjects of discussion, faith in God, political notions, attitude towards marriage, or any single basis on which disagreement is possible.

It could be that we are as one, we humans, only in laughter, tears and that vague thing called human interest.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE UNEXPLORED

We are continually prying into things about which we have but a child's knowledge. We accept certain ideas, statements, and things of a commonplace character without knowing a small portion of their significance. I believe that it was Kettering, the great General Motors genius, who made the statement that no one even could explain why the grass is green!

I can understand the enthusiasm and interest that inventors, scientific researchers, and explorers have. There is something electric to the thought that such people experience. Thoreau once said: "Who produces a perfect work is obedient to laws yet unexplored."

We give so little thought to the small items of interest that come across our path from day to day. Sudden explorations, many of them. Some of them far reaching in their influence on us. People who are forever living in anticipation of good things and happy events are usually the most useful and appreciative.

The unexplored is tremendous! People speak of the "last frontier." There is none and never will be. The unexplored will be with us forever. A thousand years from now upon this globe there will be things to explore. A thousand years ago who would have dreamed of the discoveries that are ours today?

How very little we know about this mind of ours. Unconsciously it is forever reaching out to learn, to discover, to gain inspiration in unexplored areas. Over an entire lifetime it constantly accumulates knowledge. We are all curious. We want to find out about things. The unexplored has always fascinated men of valor and with a love for adventure. It all starts in childhood.

We have but to measure out the periods and events of time and history to note the advancement of mankind. We would be neither happy nor content with just sitting still and waiting for something to happen! And so we journey into the unexplored —seeking, finding and enriching all life.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

PASTEUR TREATMENT ITSELF SOMETIMES FATAL

Reader sends newspaper clipping which tells of the death of a little boy from "a rare reaction to anti-rabies shots." The boy had been bitten by a dog nineteen days before his death, and had received twelve injections of Pasteur virus, when he developed fever and was sent to a hospital, where an intern gave him penicillin and sent him back home. Next day the boy returned to the hospital with a high fever, was admitted to the isolation ward, and died four hours later.

The reader says she and her husband are terror stricken because there have been reports of rabid dogs in their vicinity and they have small children who play outdoors most of the day. If I had a child who was bitten by a rabid animal what would I do about it, asks the reader.

I'd treat the child as though for a firecracker or other ordinary burn or wound which is presumably infected or in which possible foreign matter is embedded. That is to say, cleanse the wound surgically—a job which can be done only by a physician. Then I'd dress the wound the same as any other presumably infected wound. Then I'd give the child a prophylactic injection of tetanus antitoxin. Five to seven days later I'd give the second injection of tetanous antitoxin. Then I'd forget about "rabid dogs" or other mad beasts or birds "reported" in the vicinity.

You see, Ma'am, health officers sometimes dramatize rumors of mad dogs and the like, as one county health commissioner frankly admitted when I nailed him down, for the purpose of getting more liberal appropriations from the solons who handle the purse strings. As the commissioner said, he considered it fair to keep people terror stricken when that state of mind brought more funds to carry on the legitimate work of the health department.

Textbook descriptions of tetanus (lockjaw) and rabies (hydrophobia) are so nearly alike that I suspect — of course I don't know and cannot prove—that the two alleged diseases are actually one disease, namely, tetanus.

Bear in mind that I give only my own belief about this and that, because I don't know about it, I advise any one wounded by animal or bird to leave to his or her own physician the question of Pasteur anti-rabies treatment. I merely say that I'd not take such treatment in any conceivable circumstance, because I believe Pasteur treatment itself is sometimes fatal. I'll stake my life on my belief but not yours.

Unrecognized tetanus (lockjaw) is not the only fatal happening that may be mistaken for rabies. In one instance a young child left alone for a few hours suddenly began to have convulsions and died in about 12 hours. The health department attributed the death to rabies — it seemed the child had played with a stray dog a few weeks before the tragedy struck. But I am morally certain that the child died of strychnine poisoning — strychnine in sugar coated pills left in a dresser drawer within the child's reach.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

PESKY PETES TONIGHT

The Peterborough Petes, winners of three of their last four COBL starts, are the guests of the Redmen tonight and the way the Men 'o Stewart and Whitehill have been performing the last four times out it behooves the Reds to be on their best baseball behavior. The Petes lost a toughie down Kingston way the other night bowing to the Scrutoneers by the odd run in five after a thrilling pitching duel between the veteran Gunner Whitehill and stocky Babe Stinson, the darling of the Jackson-Rodden duo. The battle was even-steven at two-all until the eighth when the Monarchs shoved over the winner.

The Petes have taken the measure of the Reds in their last two meetings and they'll be out to hat trick 'em tonight. Should be a lusty tilt and rhubarbs are always in the offing when the old diamond enemies clash.

Speaking of the COBL, a meeting of the executive has been called for Sunday afternoon next at the Queen's Hotel where pre-playoff business will be discussed. League playoffs will be the main item on the agenda and it is likely all three squads will play off, but whether by the straight elimination or round-robin processes will be decided on Sunday.

HIT CHAMPS

To big Barney McColl who has been pitching softball for many a moon up around Wooler way goes the 1952 batting championship of the Belleville District Softball League. Barney had twenty-three hits in 55 times at bat for a neat average of .418. Jackie Wardhaugh was second with .415, while Reg. Mallory wound up in the show spot with a .406.

In case there is some discussion over the awarding of the championship, we understand the winner must have been at bat two-thirds of the times of the player with the highest "at bat" number. In this case Batchellor set the pace with 82 allowing McColl to get under the wire by a narrow margin. McColl wins the Pellar Trophy emblematic of the batting title of the league "A" section won last year by Leo Goyer with Dave Lockyer winning the Conger-Lehigh Trophy awarded the champion batter of the "AA" section, won last year by Bobby Green. Dave hit safely 20 times with an at bat record of fifty. His percentage was .400.

The CNR Diesels showed the best consistency with the willow, coming up with a team batting average of .296, an outstanding mark in any man's league. Northern was second with a .288 with the Glen Roy juniors compiling a .266 for the season. Good show all round.

PEEWEE TOURNAMENT

One hundred serious-minded peewee baseballers will go to the diamond mat in Lindsay on Saturday in the second annual peewee tournament staged in the local stadium. According to information received here the Paul's Motel team will represent Belleville.

Entries are expected from this city, Peterborough, Bowmanville, Newmarket, Aurora and Lindsay for the all-day tourney sponsored by the Lindsay Minor Baseball Association, and the Recreation Committee.

The tournament starts at 9 a.m. with the ultimate winners being awarded the Walkwood Trophy, the runners-up the Trent Valley Bread Trophy and both teams crests.

The tourney will be conducted in big league style with OBA umpires, public address system introductions and radio broadcasts of some games. Between games free box lunches and tickets for dips in the Lindsay Rotary pool will be presented to the visiting players.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—There apparently is nothing to a widely-circulated report that Leo Durocher has been feuding with his boss, President Horace Stoneham of New York Giants

On the word of Garry Schumacher, who is Stoneham's right bower, the dandy little manager never stood stronger with the front office than he has since his National League champions began faltering under the slings and arrows of misfortune and falling behind the torrid pace set by Brooklyn.

"I guess we made a mistake in not nailing that silly rumor when it first came out," Schumacher said. "The truth is that everyone in the Giants organization feels that Leo has been doing a hell of a job, everything considered.

Can't Blame Leo

"How can anyone blame Durocher for what has happened to us? We lost our two best outfielders, Monte Irvin and Willie Mays. Our best pitcher, Sal Maglie, has won only one game in the last seven weeks. Larry Jansen hasn't been putting those strings of victories together the way he did in other years.

"In our opinion, Leo has done a wonderful job to stay in second place. The fact is that we're setting a faster pace than the Yankees are, and they're leading the other league. It isn't what we've been doing—it's what those Dodgers have been doing to our second-division clubs. It's pure murder, but they've still got their big test coming up.

"Between now and Aug. 17 those guys have to play seven games against us, nine against the Phillies and four against St. Louis Cardinals. Let's see how they handle that little chore. In the same period we'll be playing all but seven of our games at the Polo Grounds.

"What I honestly think is that the Dodgers either will win it by 20 games or they won't win it at all. So far they've been getting fat on our weak clubs.

"But we still want to see how they'll react if they run into some real trouble in the next few weeks. Those 20 games with us, the Phils and the Cards will tell the story. Let's wait until Aug. 17 before we count the Giants out of the race."

Bucs 41 Games Behind Brooks; Lemon Squeezes Yankees 7-3, Bosox Win With 7-Run Blast

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

The magic number now is 18 in Pittsburgh's dash toward the major league booby prize.

Any combination of 18 Pirate losses or Brooklyn wins will do the job. As the Pittsburgh lads—0-13 with Brooklyn—play 11 more with the Dodgers, it shouldn't take too long.

41 Behind

After last night's 4-1 loss to Philadelphia, Pittsburgh rested 41 games behind Brooklyn with 59 to play. And this is only July 24.

Rookie Steve Ridzik and ace Robin Roberts of the Phils teamed up on the Pirates with a five-hitter while Del Ennis blasted a two-run homer that doomed Bob Friend to his 15th defeat.

Brooklyn lost to a left-handed starter for the first time this season, letting Harry Perkowski of Cincinnati win with a 10-hitter, 6-4. Homers by Joe Adcock, Andy Seminick and Bob Borkowski off Carl Erskine carried more weight than Billy Cox's two-run double and Gil Hodges' 19th homer with one on.

Because New York and St. Louis were idle, the Dodgers lost only a half-game of their National League lead, now measuring seven games.

Bob Rush, making his eighth try for win No. 10 since June 13, finally succeeded in Boston where Chicago Cubs ripped into Max Surkont and three others for 13 hits and a 6-2 victory.

Indians Trim Yanks

Just when New York Yankees were ready to land a knockout blow on Cleveland, the Indians bounced back behind Bob Lemon to win 7-3. Coming after Tuesday's double loss, the Tribe still trailed by 6½ games in fourth place.

Al Rosen's 18th homer in the fifth put Cleveland ahead to stay. They nailed it down with a four-run burst in the seventh that floored rookie Tom Gorman for his first major-league setback.

Boston closed within four games of the Yankes by blasting seven runs in the ninth inning at Chicago for a 10-4 decision. Eleven Red Sox went to the plate in the big inning.

Washington remained in a challenging position, only six games back, by besting Detroit 5-2 in 16 innings. Singles by Pete Runnels and Mickey Vernon drove in the three runs.

Starter Alex Kellner and winner Bob Hooper held St. Louis to four hits as Philadelphia Athletics handed the Browns their seventh straight defeat, 3-2.

Sport in Brief

Merry England, the bay mare owned by Dr. J. S. Ferguson of Chatham, won both divisions of the Winnipeg Stake at Toronto's Thorncliffe Raceway yesterday. The Winnipeg Stake was named for the famous Canadian-bred harness horse which still is ranked as the world's greatest pacing gelding.

Merry England, well handled by Wilbur Apthorpe, came from well off the pace to whip 11 rivals in the first heat. She won under mild restraint in 2.08 3-5 with the veteran Norval G in second position and Jean Dillon third.

In the second heat, Merry England took the lead just as the field moved past the half-mile pole and she won handily. She paid $3.50 on her second trip with Jean Dillon second this time and Ima Lady M. in third place.

The afternoon marked the first appearance of Mary Lou O'Connor, from Warwick Downs, R.I., driving in open competition against the men. Obviously picking her way around the strange track, the little miss finished behind her seven rivals in both heats with her horse, Sweet Prince. However, she was right in contention in the second heat and showed driving skill when between horses on the turns.

Coach Carl Voyles of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four football union thinks he has a real find in middle wing Art Darch who played last season for Stamford Collegiate near Niagara Falls, Ont. "Now there is a boy who would easily jump from collegiate to our first-string club," Voyles said in Hamilton yesterday as he watched Darch work out with the Cats.

If Darch makes the first team, he will be following in the footsteps of Pete Neumann who caught a place with the Cats last year after playing with St. Catharines Collegiate in 1950.

Roy Mack, vice-president of Philadelphia Athletics, said yesterday the Athletics' Ottawa farm club will be in the International League next season. Mack said in Ottawa the parent A's would like to see Sunday ball in the capital, but failure to get it won't result in removing the franchise.

Philadelphia Athletics of the American Baseball League signed two Ontario boys as they closed their baseball school and tryout camp at Chatham. The boys who signed contracts were Jack Gallivan, 20, an outfielder from Petrolia, and Harold Newton, 18, Windsor pitcher.

Chicago Cubs yesterday announced the sale of knuckle ball pitcher Willie Ramsdell to Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast League. The 34-year-old right hander won two and lost three with 67 innings. He appeared in 19 games.

The United States yacht Caribee, owned by W. Carlton Mitchell of New York, arrived in Plymouth, England, yesterday to win the 2,780-mile Bermuda to Plymouth yacht race in which five craft, one American, three British and one French, participated. They left St. David's Head, Bermuda, July 3.

At Cincinnati, promoter Sam Becker yesterday offered heavyweight champion Joe Walcott a $200,000 guarantee to fight Ezzard Charles for the heavyweight title there Sept. 26. Walcott won the title from Charles and then won a decision from the Cincinnati heavyweight again at Philadelphia several weeks ago. Charles beat Walcott twice before.

Fulvous, a daughter of Dixiana Stable's famed Spy Song, won the 24th running of the $68,175 Lassie Stakes at Chicago's Arlington Park yesterday. The little chestnut filly is owned by Mary V. Fisher, daughter of the Detroit automobile body manufacturer and owner of the Dixiana Farms in Lexington, Ky.

Harry Matthews has the New York fight mob puzzled. The boys ride the subway down to 17th street and climb two flights to watch him work every afternoon. They wait, and nothing happens. Jack Hurley's protege glides through a couple of rounds with husky Keene Simmons of Bayonne, N.J., and calls it a day. They have been waiting for him to cut loose. So far he hasn't. But Manager Hurley says he'll be ready for Rocky Marciano Monday at Yankee Stadium.

KILNS KINDLING

More than 200 flue-cured tobacco kilns were destroyed by fire in Ontario in 1951. Loss was $500,000.

Royals Trim Leafs As Wings Lose, Ottawa Wins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Montreal rookie Ed Roebuck may become one of those baseball rarities, a hitting pitcher.

Ed held Toronto Maple Leafs to 10 scattered hits while his mates pounded out 13—six of them for extra bases—to trounce the Leafs 10-1 in the International League last night. He contributed a single and double to help win his eighth game against five losses.

Jim Marchio put the game on ice in the sixth inning with a three-run homer. Charley Thompson banged two triples and Junior Gilliam added a double and triple.

Marv Rickert accounted for Toronto's run with a circuit clout in the fourth inning.

Ottawa Athletics beat Syracuse Chiefs 5-4 on a five-run 3rd inning. The Chiefs rallied in the ninth but fell short with only two runs. Marion Fricano got credit for his 10th win against five losses and Bill Woop was the loser.

Buffalo Bisons edged Baltimore Orioles 4-3 to creep within a half-game of the fifth-place Orioles. Buffalo tallied the winning run in the last inning without a hit. An error, two walks—one of them intentional—and reliever Blix Donnelly's wild pitch allowed Don Lund to race home with the decision.

Springfield Cubs evened up with Rochester by taking the fourth game of the series, 5-2. The Cub attack was led by Red McQuillen with two triples and Bob Ludwig with a single and triple. Joe Padget won and started Willard Schmidt was tagged with the loss.

Press Trousers While They Wait

HELSINKI (CP) — Canada's Olympic boxers are cleaning up financially by running a pressing service while they await the elimination bouts early next week.

In room 40 of the Canadian camp at Olympic Village, Charlie Chase of Montreal and Clayton Kenny of Ottawa ply the hot iron while Jimmy Saunders of Winnipeg chases customers.

So far they have ironed out the creases in 100 pairs of pants with a cash turnover of about $40.

The price is 200 finmarks for a pair of pants. The chief clients are well-heeled U. S. Olympic officials and athletes.

Chase started the money-making scheme and took in Kenny as a partner. They offered Saunders a 25-per-cent commission to act as salesman and messenger but he turned out to be such a hustler that the pair took him in as a full partner.

"It's a good idea and it keeps the boys out of mischief," said Montreal's Bobby Malouf.

"I only wish I had thought of the idea myself," added Malouf who is a salesman in Montreal.

HOCKEY PLAYER HURT

Russians Take Olympic Lead With 266 Points; Americans 2nd

Track Records Dime a Dozen, Two World Marks Shattered With 5 Olympics Wiped Out

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (CP)—The way these Olympic Games are going you'll soon be able to buy a generous assortment of track and field marks—Olympic and world—for a couple of finnmarks.

A mere first place has so depreciated that it's practically scorned. Athletes who haven't become record-busters are beginning to feel they should have stayed at home.

Take yesterday's astonishing show in front of 70,000 spectators. Two world records were broken, five Olympic records wiped out and two equalled.

U. S. Wins Javelin

Such a performance should have sent the crowds into jubilation. But there was an unkind touch—the Americans stole the Finns' national sport away from them by placing one-two in the javelin throw. And with a record distance, of course.

The two world marks that fell were simply shattered. Adhemar Ferreiar da Silva of Brazil broke his own world record four times in winning the hop, step and jump. Shirley Strickland de la Hunty of Australia sliced the 80-metre hurdles world mark from 11 seconds flat to 10.8 in winning a semi-final heat.

Yvette Williams of New Zealand jumped nearly two feet beyond the Olympic record in winning the women's broad jump.

Cy Young of the United States, who throws the spear better than the Finns, set an Olympic record in winning the javelin throw. His teammate Bill Miller took second place.

Horace Ashenfelter, another American, bettered an Olympic mark in winning a heat in the 3,000-metre steeplechase.

Sprinters 1-2-3

Sprinters from the United States grabbed all three places in the 200-metre dash. Andy Stanfield led the procession in 20.7 seconds, equalling the Olympic record.

Harrison Dillard, the American hurdles specialist, was a heat-winner and record-equaller in the barriered 110-metre event.

This track and field rampage was mighty pleasing to the Americans but they still ranked second in the unofficial point standings to the Russians.

Russia's women gymnastics collected points by the dozen, while the United States got none in that competition. The Russians also had a margin on points in free-style wrestling.

When today's long schedule of events got under way the Russians led the standing with 266½ points. The United States had 202. No other country was near these rivals. Hungary was third with 59. Great Britain was in seventh place with 42. Canada was still without a point.

Rowers Stand Out

As usual track and field was the big attraction, but the rowing crews staged a great show all their own in settling finals.

Turij Tjukalov of Russia defeated Mervyn Wood of Australia, the defending champion, in the singles sculls. The powerful U.S. eight-oared crew from the Naval Academy of Annapolis, Md., remained unbeaten in defeating crews from Russia, Australia, Britain and Germany.

The U.S. also won the pairs without coxswain. Argentina won the double sculls, France the pairs with coxswain, Czechoslovakia the fours with coxswain and Yugoslavia the fours without.

In yachting, skipper Bill Gooderham's Toronto crew sailed their Trickson into second place in yesterday's six-metre-class race and now are sixth in the standing. Other Canadian boats finished far back yesterday.

In wrestling, Russia, Turkey and Sweden won two gold medals and the United States and Japan one each.

In fencing all of the Russians and all but one of the Americans were eliminated in the second round of individual foils. Three entries from Egypt and Italy advanced.

YANK BULLETS FOR REDS

HELSINKI (Reuters)—The U. S. Olympic pentathlon team gave the Russians a box of American ammunition after yesterday's shooting event, in which Soviet marksmen lost out when their own bullets misfired.

Aleksander Dehaev of Russia missed one complete round of five shots when his .22 automatic pistol misfired twice. Examination of the Soviet-made bullets showed that the pin had struck home in both cases but without firing them.

WATER SUPPLY

Los Angeles gets part of its water supply from Parker Dam on the Colorado River, 392 miles away.

Canadian Yachts In Good Show

HELSINKI, (CP)—Best showing of Canada's four entries in Olympic yachting competition was made yesterday by the Toronto-owned Trickson which finished second in an international six-metre class race.

Trickson, skippered by Bill Gooderham, crossed the finish line three minutes behind Llanoria of the U.S. which covered the triangular course in two hours, 45 minutes and 36 seconds.

Trickson had to retire from Tuesday's race, however, and is in sixth place in the point standing with a total of 1,745. Norway's Elizabeth X still clings to top place with 3,036 points.

Racing ends Monday after a two-day break.

In other races yesterday Canadian boats finished far back and results of the Finn dinghy class races were not announced last night because so many protests were filed that the Olympic sailing committee deferred its decision until morning.

Canada's entry in the Finn class is sailed by Paul McLaughlin of Toronto, in 12th place in point standing Tuesday night.

The dragon-class Jet, sailed by J. N. F. Robertson, Archie Howie and Don Haines, all of Hamilton, placed 11th in yesterday's racing. Jet's 1,699 points places her well below Norway's Pan, leading with 4,070.

Panthers Extend Intercounty Lead; Galt Downs Leafs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Galt Terriers gave the idle Kitchener Panthers a helping hand in the senior Intercounty baseball race last night.

Galt downed the second-place Guelph Maple Leafs 4-2 at Galt to stretch the Panthers' margin in the league lead from one-half game to a full game. The Galt triumph, coupled with Brantford's 2-1 victory over London Majors, moved the Terriers into a fourth-place tie with London.

The two trailing teams rounded out the night's action in the seven-team circuit, the last-place St. Thomas Elgins taking the measure of the sixth-place Waterloo Tigers at Waterloo 4-1.

Homer Wins Game

Guelph's loss was its seventh in its last eight starts. Second baseman Andy Turowski's home run with pitcher Hal Rockburn on base in the sixth gave Galt the win. Rockburn allowed five hits, six walks and fanned two. The Leafs picked up both their runs in the fifth when pitcher Lou Fauth singled with the bases loaded. Galt leftfielder Vern Kaiser hit a triple and a homer.

A single by third baseman Stan Lipka in the ninth inning drove in centrefielder Jerry Wilson with the winning run for the Red Sox at Brantford. Brantford's Alf Gavey and the Major's Arnold Early lined up in a southpaw pitching duel. Each allowed three hits, while Gavey fanned nine to Early's six. Early had two hits in three trips.

Waterloo's loss was its fourth straight and its 19th in 31 starts. Ed Newinski held the losers to five hits. The Tigers started Whit Graves and replaced him in the eighth after he gave up four runs on eight hits. The Elgins backed Newinski with three double plays.

Galt goes to London in tonight's single scheduled action.

Olympic Notes

MOSCOW. (AP)— Izvestia today printed the first complaint about the Olympic games in Helsinki when it criticized the conduct of wrestler Tom Evans of Norman, Okla.

The Soviet press called Evans' conduct "improper". The press claimed that Evans struck Olli Anderberg of Sweden several times in the head and at the end of the match refused to shake hands with his opponent. Anderberg defeated Evans, 2-1.

PITTSBURG. (AP)—John R. Haley, 37, of New Salem, Pa., a former star International League pitcher, died yesterday after a lingering illness. Haley pitched with Newark for several seasons and in 1938 led the circuit with a 17-2 record.

HELSINKI. (AP)—Jossef Csermak of Hungary today broke the 13th Olympic record of the 1952 games by throwing the hammer 57.20 metres—187 feet, 8.02 inches—on his first qualifying throw.

The old record of 56.49 metres—185 feet, 4:06 inches—was set by Karl Hein of Germany in 1936. Required qualifying distance is 49 metres.

New York AC Leads Henley Regatta Entries Swing Into 2nd Day Heats

By CRAIG SWAYZE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PORT DALHOUSIE (CP)—The New York Athletic Club set out today to maintain its lead for the point aggregate championship and the Maple Leaf trophy as the Royal Canadian Henley regatta swung into its second day of action.

There will be 25 races run off on the Old Welland Canal starting at 2 p.m. and eight will be finals. The remainder will determine starters in tomorrow's finals of the annual four-day international rowing competition.

NYAC Takes Lead

Yesterday N.Y.A.C. grabbed an opening-day point lead when veteran Joe Angyal won the 145-pound singles quarter-mile-dash from clubmate Rudy Jezek.

Angyal, the defending champion, swept to the finish line a deck length in front of Jezek, the United States' national titleholder. G. A. Hunkele of the Nereid Boat Club of Belleville, N.J., came third. Angyal's time was 1:25.

Don Guest of Etobicoke high school in Toronto, second son of former Diamond Sculls winner Jack Guest, won the Canadian high schools singles championship in the only other final on the card. However, it did not count in the regatta standings.

Guest hugged the inside course all the way down to a finish a good two lengths in front of W. L. Pfaehler of the Nutley, N.J., high school. Elmer Ewert of St. Catharines Collegiate was third. Guest pulled the mile in 6:29.

The New York scullers gained a total of four first yesterday. Angyal and Jezek won their dash heats and then Angyal captured the final while Eugene Loveless finished first in the opening heat of the junior singles.

Buffalo, Brockville Second

Buffalo West Sides and the Brockville Rowing Club shared honors in the runner-up position, each club registering a pair of victories. St. Catharines, Ottawa, Ecorse, Mich., Hamilton Leanders, Toronto Dons and the Detroit Boat Club shared the rest of yesterday's spoils.

Canada, Pointless in 4 Days Mere Spectator at Olympics

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (CP)—Canada is fast becoming a spectator nation at the 1952 Olympic Games.

After four days of competition, Canada's athletes have a point-total of exactly zero in the unofficial standing of countries.

The rowing crews are all through. So are the wrestlers. In a dozen track-and-field events no one had come even close to a sixth place—which means one point in the standing.

Never Reached Finals

Where eliminations govern in track events, no one has reached a final—the only phase where points count. In events calling for a qualification round—especially in the field competitions—Canada had a couple of qualifiers but they finished far back in the finals.

At London in 1948 Canada won no events but scored a total of 35 points, finishing in a tie for 20th place in the standing. But at this same stage of the Games, Canada at that time had only six points—all in track and field.

In 1948 the paddlers scored 14 points and so did the track and field squad. The weightlifters picked up five points and the yachtsmen two. The oarsmen and wrestlers scored no points at London. They're now out of competition at Helsinki.

In the current Games the track and field performers have appeared in these events: Men's high jump, pole vault, men's discus throw, women's broad jump, 800-metre run, men's and women's 100-metre sprints, men's 200-metre sprint, 5,000-metre run, 110-metre hurdles, women's 80-metre hurdles, 50-kilometre walk.

At the same stage in London in 1948, with minor differences because of entries or non-entries in certain events either year, Canada had six points in these events: A fourth place, for three points, in the women's 100-metre dash; a fifth place, for two points, in the same event; a sixth place, for one point, in the men's high jump.

The highest point-score in any event at London in 1948 was five points. Doug Bennett, paddler from St. Lambert, Que., placed second in the 1,000-metre Canadian singles of the canoeing competition.

Track and field athletes scored 14 points also. In addition to the six points scored in the same events that have been completed here, the remaining eight points were made this way:

Women's 400-metre relay team, third place, for four points; men's 400-metre relay team, fifth place, for two points; women's high jump, fifth place, for two points.

Except for possible scratches, Canadians are still to compete at Helsinki in these track and field events: 400-metre run; 1,500-metre run; women's 200-metre dash; women's high jump; men's and women's relays decathlon, marathon.

Non-track-and-field events in which Canada still is expected to compete: Swimming, boxing, basketball, weightlifting, canoeing, cycling, shooting, equestrianship.

The yachtsmen, who scored two points—a fifth place—in 1948 are competing now. So are the fencers, who scored no points at London.

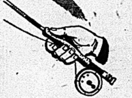
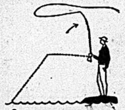
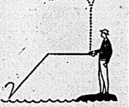
FLY CASTING



1 Begin with basic grip—thumb on back of rod checks the back cast, gives essential control. With rod extended, clear line and leader from water by tensing rod upward slightly.



2 When fly is surfaced, snap rod upwards sharply—this sends line smoothly behind you. This pick-up should be swift and snappy. Movement is done with wrist and forearm. Check movement of rod when it is straight up.



3 When rod is perpendicular, wait for line to straighten out behind. When tip bows with back pull snap rod forward to horizontal position. Do not use force—a smart snapping movement with wrist and forearm will give proper control.

Yes, it's control that counts, in fishing as in every sport—control which brings the extraordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Timing in bridge has an important part in the play of most hands. Frequently, the opening lead is the most effective timer.

As in this deal:

            ♥A Q J 10 8 4

South is the declarer at some contract in spades. If it is a small slam of six spades, west will probably start with an opening lead of his club ace. With a trump trick it will defeat the slam.

Against a bid of less than slam, the correct opening lead from the west hand is the diamond jack. Careful defence will still permit west and east to take two tricks; one in trump and one in clubs.

However, west may be a player who would start out with a lead of a heart. It would be the wrong opening lead by rule or otherwise. But if he did, declarer would get the timing and make six.

To the west opening lead of a heart, dummy goes in with the heart queen. East plays the king. South ruffs this first trick. Now the dummy has time to develop the heart suit for many tricks.

South pumps two top trumps and leaves west with the lone jack. Three top diamonds are led by south and dummy gets a chance to sluff the lone club from there. The king and queen of clubs are led.

When west plays the club ace, dummy ruffs it and leads his set-up hearts. On the first of these, south sluffs his diamond and on any others, south sluffs clubs until west uses his trump.

Any west return lead is ruffed by dummy where enough hearts are tops on which south gets rid of losing clubs. The final trick goes to south with his 13th trump. So, should south bid six spades? Not unless he can guarantee an opening heart lead from west.

Correct rule lead, expects to help the timing for his own side. Wrong lead, usually gives declarer a chance to get the jump on timing.

When your timing is off, so is your game.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Cupid got thrown for a loss today as Debbie Reynolds, boomed for top stardom by her studio, said that romance will not interfere with her film plans.

"Building a career and being married are both full-time jobs," she said. "You can't do both at once and do justice to either of them. I come home at night after a dance number and I collapse. When I'm not in a picture. I'm out on a personal appearance tour.

Career First

"That's the way it has to be when you're building your career. I can't even consider marriage for a year. If I have arrived by then I can afford to do less pictures; then I can think about getting married.

"Also, there is the matter of money. It wouldn't matter to me if my husband were making less than me. But he would have to have a healthy attitude about it. . .if he started to resent it, that would be the end of the marriage."

Debbie is not without her ideas about marriage. Some of them are very interesting. Such as . . "the important thing about a marriage is to have babies. You should have as many as you can. You can worry about paying for them later; somehow you always do."

Motor Car Ousts CNR Athletics, Meet Crawfords

Belleville Motor Car battered their way past CNR Athletics last evening with an 11-8 victory and a 2-1 edge in their best-of-three quarter final series for the right to represent the Belleville and District Softball League in the OASA playdowns.

The Motormen will tangle with Crawford Metals Friday evening at 6.45 at the Alemite Field in the first game of a best-in-three series.

Motor Car came up with a crushing seven-run rally in the fifth inning last evening to overcome a 6-2 Athletic lead.

Motors opened the scoring in the first inning with Garvin leading off with a single to left field, moving to second on Miller's sacrifice, and scoring on Walsh's double to centre.

The Athletics rallied for four runs in the bottom of the first on singles by Pearce and Boyle, and doubles by Lockyer and Moon, and an outfield error.

Motors scored a single run in the second inning on two singles, but the AA's lengthened their lead in the third, scoring two runs on two singles and an error in centrefield.

The roof fell in on the hard-trying Athletics in the fifth as the Motormen paraded 10 men to the plate. Four singles, a double, and two errors accounted for seven runs.

The AA's used two errors and two singles to notch two runs in the sixth but couldn't score the equalizer. Motor Car used singles by James and Tapp and Jack Callaghan's triple to right field to score two runs in the seventh for the insurance.

Reid toiled all the way on the hill for the Motors walking two, striking out four, and giving up 12 hits for eight runs. Waite went the distance for the the Athletics walking none, striking out none, and being tagged for 16 hits and the loss.

Walsh, James and Tapp led the winners at bat with three hits in five trips. Boyle had three-for-four for the losers.

Dutch Heroine Of '48 Olympics Sees Records Go

HELSINKI (AP)—A wan and weary Fanny Blankers-Koen went into eclipse yesterday as the world's fastest woman. She didn't seem to mind.

Dizzy from penicillin shots, the housewife heroine of the 1948 Olympic Games smiled weakly and told a reporter she thinks it's a "good thing" her world and Olympic marks are being broken.

"Records are made to be broken," said the 34-year-old Dutchwoman. "I think it's a good thing. It doesn't worry me at all."

An hour earlier, the Dutch mother of two watched from the sidelines as a younger generation stamped her world and Olympic records for the 80-metre hurdles into the red clay track at Helsinki Stadium.

In one semi-final, Australia's sensational Shirley Sticklund, a slender, attractive blonde, breezed home in a record world mark of 10.8 seconds.

Runners-up Maria Sander of Germany and Britain's Jean Desforges, clocked in 10.9, also broke Fanny's old mark of 11 seconds.

In the other semi-final, Mrs. Blankers-Koen was second to Russia's Marija Golubichnaja, whose time of 11.2 equalled Fanny's Olympic mark. Fanny was timed yesterday in 11.3.

Later the still-smiling Fanny went to her hotel for medical treatment. Since Monday she has been taking penicillin injections for an attack of carbuncles on her back.

Without trying to alibi, Fanny said she felt feverish and dizzy before the race.

"I saw spots before my eyes," she said. "The carbuncles didn't hurt once I got running but I think I could have done better if I hadn't been so weak."

Frank Andre Wins Feature Event At Race Meet

Shannonville Speedway lived up to its reputation of "spills and thrills" last night. The Mid-season Classic feature event, and other races were run off in record time before a large crowd. There were several spills, the bulk of which came in the feature race. After the dust had cleared, Frank Andre driving his slightly damaged Brinklow special was adjudged the winner.

In the third lap of the feature event, a three-car pile-up on the back stretch set the light posts shivering all around the track. No one was seriously hurt in the accident, but the cars were badly damaged. The race continued and in the sixth lap, Jack McCrory of Belleville went out of control on the east turn rolling his auto nose-over-nose and then on its side twice to end up against a light post. McCrory escaped injury.

The team match race was won by Frank Andre but not before he had added a few more dents to his car and lost a tire. In the start he was successfully given the squeeze play between two cars. Andre pushed, shoved and finally nosed his way through the traffic. The real thrill came directly in front of the stands when he blew the left rear tire. The rear end of the car lifted off the track and made a swinging arc smashing into another auto.

Earl Handley placed second in the feature and as he completed the final lap of the 20 lap event, his axle broke. The auto did not go out of control and he coasted to a stop.

The powder-puff event was tried for the first time last night. Three cars competed with drivers Mrs. Frank Andre, Mrs. Bruce Kemp and Mrs. Ted Broad. Mrs. Andre was first, Mrs. Kemp placed second and Mrs. Broad took third position.

First qualifying heat: Morley Shepherd, Trenton, Jim Edgar, Napanee; six laps, 3:59.

Fast car heat: Frank Andre, Napanee; Jack McCrory, Belleville; eight laps, 5:18.

Third heat: Gene Bets, Picton; Garnet Goldfinch, Cataraqui; six laps, 4:11.

Consolation: Clarence Johnston, Belleville; Cliff Stillman, Trenton, six laps, 4:04.

RAWDON

One Hundred Years History Of Springbrook L.O.L. 442 Outlined by Mrs. P. MacMullen

Rawdon — In this year of 1952 Springbrook Loyal Orange Lodge No. 442, is celebrating their centennial under the leadership of Rev. H. E. Beare, Worshipful Master and also Deputy Grand Chaplain of Ontario East, and pastor of Springbrook United Church circuit.

Mr. Beare has been ably supported by one of their valuable members, Right Worshipful Bro. Fred Bateman, Grand Master of Ontario East, for the second successive year. Fred joined Springbrook Lodge in July 1922 and has been an active member ever since, serving at Worshipful Master in 1932.

Springbrook Lodge 442 was organized in 1852 and the meetings were held in the municipal hall at Harold and they were given their warrant to carry on activities. For some unknown reason the minutes of those first years are lost, however, all the minute books of the succeeding years from 1870 are intact at the hall and from there the following "story of the years" has been gleaned and will be of interest to many folks in Rawdon township and elsewhere.

In 1870 the membership was 46 and the W. M. was Bro. James Johnson. The hall needed repairing and 2000 feet of lumber for ceiling was purchased at $8 per thousand. In 1880 John Bateman was elected W.M. and he served in that capacity for four year and in 1889 became County Master.

At this time the ark was always carried on July 12th. celebrations. Each year special lodge dinners were held on November 5th. and church services were instituted. All members who did not attend the July 12th. celebration were summoned to appear at the following lodge meeting and explain why they were absent.

In 1880 the chaplain was William Bateman and secretary, Caleb Bateman.

On August 6th., 1885, one cord of good hard wood was purchased for $2.50. By 1886 the membership had expanded to 76.

Dress Suits

The year 1887 stands out in the history of the lodge as they decided to investigate the possibility of building a hall for their own use. That year they held their celebration in Joe Bateman's grove and the lodge purchased dress suits, comprising black pants, white vest and white shirt and silk plug hats for this special occasion. The minutes records that receipts were $105.16, after all expenses were paid.

On March 11th., 1888, it was moved by William Bateman and seconded by William Haslett that a new hall be built at Springbrook. The motion carried unanimously. The building committee consisted of: W.M. Bid Sine; D.M. G. D. Wiggins and treasurer Charles McConnell. The land was donated by Bro. Thomas Rupert. Over sixty of the members and their families journeyed by rail to Kingston for the 12th. of July celebration.

In 1889 a large number of members journeyed to Foxboro for the celebration and the teamsters were paid $2.50 for taking the brethren from Springbrook to Foxboro.

Hold Initial Meeting

On September 22nd., 1889, the Orange Lodge held their initial meeting in their new hall at Springbrook with Wor. Master Bid Sine officiating. Plans were made to hold a 5th. November dinner. The seven ministers who graced the platform at this event were: Rev. Ray, Rev. Harriss, Rev. Duprac, Rev. McGarvey, Rev. Halliwell, Rev. McDonald, and Rev. W. E. Beer, the latter of Springbrook.

Thomas Rupert was hired as caretaker, he furnished coal oil and wood, built fires and cleared the hall for 40 cents per month in winter and 25 cents per month in summer.

At this time all members were obliged to attend all meetings or give a reasonable excuse for their absence.

On July 13th., 1891, lodge opened at a quarter to five in the morning and the group left at 6 a.m. for the celebration in Havelock. This time the teamsters were paid $3 a trip.

In June 1892 the lodge decided that all members would dress in uniforms and any member without uniform was asked not to march at the celebration.

By 1893 for some unknown reason the lodge decided to take out another warrant from Grand Lodge. No explanation is given in the minutes. The names appearing on this warrant are:

W.M., James Knox; D.M., Duncan Nerrie; chaplain, George Badgley; R.S., Archie Haslett; F.S., Arthur Reid; treasurer, John Bateman, Sr.; director, William Little; lecturer, Thomas Haslett.

At this time Thomas Webb was initiated and has been a faithful and loyal member for the past 59 years.

In 1902 hardwood cost $3 per cord and cedar $1.50 per cord.

In 1904 the Royal Black Preceptory No. 268, rented Orange Hall for their meetings.

That year a large number of members journeyed to Coe Hill by way of Central Ontario Railway for the commemoration of "The Battle of the Boyne."

In August of that year several members assisted in laying the corner stone of L.O.L. 319, Marmora Hall.

Special Arch

In 1907 the 12th. celebration was celebrated in Springbrook and meals were served in the Orange Hall, Forresters Hall and the church shed, to the large gathering. Bro. Charles McConnell built a special arch for the occasion at a cost of 75c.

The first visit of the Grand Organizer, Bro. McCartney, was in January of that year and he commended the members on their own Orange hall, which has been built 18 years previously.

In 1911 Bro. S. McComb presented No. 442 with an Orange chart and Bro. W. F. Bateman donated the frame. Another celebration in July was held that year. In 1913 the Grand Organizer, Bro. Smith, paid his official visit.

In 1914 a new banner was purchased at a cost of $87 with the committee in charge being Messrs A. Haslett, W. F. Bateman and Bid Kemp.

In 1916 the hall was rented to the school section for use by the public school pupils at a cost of $1 per day.

In 1917 all members serving overseas in World War I were made honorary members for life and the boys at Barriefield camp were the recipients of special gifts. At the 1918 celebration on July 12th at Springbrook, two members home from overseas, Cecil Austin and John West, gave special addresses.

A large number of Orange Brethren served also in World War II.

A good account of the 12th celebration held in Springbrook in 1923 under the direction of W. M. Morley Barlow appears in the minutes. Pine lumber for seats and booths was purchased from Clifford Spry at $40 per thousand and Chris Burkitt furnished 12 bags potatoes at 75 cents per bag. The lodge furnished $45 for prizes for ball teams.

By 1926 the need for a new hall was apparent as the old structure had served its purpose. On February 18th on motion of John Bateman and Brother Potts the following committee was appointed to make investigations, Brothers Stiles. Morgan, Barton and McComb. In March the new hall was approved and lumber for same was purchased from George Thompson at a cost of $35-40 per thousand. Up to this time, meetings had been held monthly and it was decided to meet every first and third Thursday.

1st New Hall Meeting

The first meeting in the new three storey hall was held in October 1926 and that year the Grand Organizer, Brother Foster gave an address at a special meeting in May. The Orange celebration was again held in Springbrook in 1927 and the officers for the two years were W. M., H. Spencer: D.M., John Morrison; Chap., Chas Lough; R.S., Gordon Webb: F.S., Ernest Eastwood; Treasurer, Sam McComb; Director, Ed Bateman; 1st Lect., Fred Bateman; 2nd Lect., C. Burkitt.

In 1930 Hydro was installed as previously, Delco lighting had been used.

In July 1934 the Grand Organizer, Brother H. A. Graham, Kingston, paid his initial visit and he has made many visits since that time.

Debt Liquidated

In July 1936 the lodge held another celebration with Stirling band in attendance. That autumn they used the proceeds to write off the debt on their hall and burn the mortgage. In the ten year period through hard work and donations the lodge were able to liquidate their debt.

This year of 1952 a centennial celebration was held and it is hoped to modernize the kitchen as the hall is used for many community activities.

Lammot Du Pont Head of Chemical Company Dies

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP)—Lammot Du Pont, 71, one of three brothers who led the development of the modern E.I. Du Pont de Nemours and Co., inc., from a small black powder factory 150 years ago to one of the great chemical companies of the world, died today in a hospital here.

Du Pont had been ill for several weeks and had been taken to the hospital recently from his summer home on Fischer's Island, N.Y.

The youngest of three brothers who built up the mighty industrial domain, he was president of the company for 14 years. He headed it from 1926 to 1940, succeeding his brothers, Pierre and Irenee in that position. From 1940 to 1948 he was chairman of the board. It was during that period the Du Pont company was called upon to use its scientific skills in helping to make A-bombs and Lammot shared in many of the important decisions.

Flags that have never appeared before officially in Canada are included in this display to be used during the XVIIIth International Red Cross Conference in Toronto July 23 - August 9th. Representing 77 nations and principalities and the United Nations, the flags will be used with name plates on desks to quickly and easily identify each delegation during conference sessions. Emblems new to Canada include those of Byelo-Russia, the People's Popular Republic of China and North Korea. The flags are the handiwork of Colonel and Mrs. George Yanovsky of Toronto. Each flag is made of silk and printed with a special silk screen process. Carol Agnew, a Red Cross Corps girl, is holding the Australian flag.

Sectionman, Broker Both Claim Leadership of Proud Scottish Clan

By KINGSLEY BROWN, JR.
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. ANN'S, N.S. (CP)—A feud that has been only whispered among Cape Breton's lochs and glens for 70 years threatens to split the Scottish clan MacNeil, reputed to be the proudest of them all.

The split arose when Robert Lister MacNeil, New York broker and generally-accepted chief of MacNeils of Barra throughout the world, was invited to open the annual Gaelic mod here Aug. 7.

It raised bitter cries from MacNeils of the nearby communities of Pipe's Cove, Castle Bay and Barra Glen, who claim as their heriditary chief a 52-year-old railroad sectionman named Colin MacNeil of Vernon Rimer, P.E.I.

These MacNeils, who comprise 90 per cent of their clan in Nova Scotia and help make Cape Breton Canada's last Scottish stronghold, declared Robert Lister a "pretender" and demanded Colin be recognized as chief. They said they will protest at the mod.

Claims Chieftainship

"By all rights, mon, I'm chief of all MacNeils," said Colin yesterday. "Although I've never learned the Gaelic, I know my father went to Scotland in 1900 and accepted the clan chieftainship.

"When my father died, the title passed down to my brother Wallace, who died about three years ago. Now I'm the chief, mon. There's no doubt about it."

Rev. A. W. R. MacKenzie, Gaelic college director in charge of the mod, has cabled Edinburgh for confirmation that Robert is chief.

The dispute itself stems from a complicated genealogical setup, further complicated by the old Scottish law of tanistry, which permits a laird to transfer his title to one of his choosing.

The majority of MacNeils in the Maritimes claim Robert is a member of the junior branch of the family while Colin, whose brother Wallace was head of the senior branch, belongs to the senior.

Robert petitioned in 1913 that he be permitted to use the MacNeil coat of arms. Permission was granted but with the stipulation that the arms bear "second son's difference."

Early history of the MacNeils is uncertain. But they tell of being a powerful clan at the time of the Flood and claim that while Noah had an ark, the MacNeils had one of their own.

Until recent times, when the chief was in residence at Castle Barra, four trumpeters would stride to the battlements, blow four blasts to north, south, east and west, and proclaim: "The great MacNeil of Barra, having finished his repast, the princes of the earth may dine."

Whatever the outcome, MacNeils generally hope their ancient Gaelic battle cry of "Buaidh no Bas" (victory or death) will not be taken too seriously.

I Can't Cry Now

By Addie McElfresh

But there was Chris and, with Chris, Link Murphy and Agnes Jerome, who had been coming here when she was killed. Katy sighed.

Katy Elmo was in the kitchen, washing up the forgotten breakfast things, when the telephone rang. And rang again, insistently, before she could get to it.

"Elmo's," she said, from habit. Then, "Oh, hello, Ted."

"What do you mean 'Oh hello,' in that tone? Did the sheriff's muscle man work you over? Was it bad, Katy?"

"Not too bad."

Katy paused. She wanted to tell Ted that she was glad he called, glad to talk to someone that didn't think she had murdered Agnes Jerome.

Into the tiny silence, Ted Jordan said, "I'm glad, Katy. I was—well, worried."

"You too, Ted?"

"Why me too?"

"Well, I'm suspect No. 1, Ted." Katy was conscious of hot fingers tightening on the phone as she spoke, admitting she was frightened to Ted, without actually saying so. Scared half to death—that was what the bus driver had said about Agnes Jerome, and Agnes was dead. "Ted—"

"Nonsense." Ted brushed Katy's fears aside. "That questioning is just routine stuff, Katy. Why, they even had me in to answer a few."

"I know," Katy said wearily, remembering that Dave Argus had known that she told Ted she was going to Springfield. "But why did they question you?"

"Because I knew Agnes Jerome—in a vague sort of way." Ted's voice sounded like a verbal shrug. "I just knew who she was—the girl who sold cigarets and stuff at Marty's on Mason Avenue."

Katy wished Ted would not say "cigarets and stuff" like that. It sounded as if Agnes were selling dope or something, and Marty's "on Mason Avenue" wasn't quite respectable—shoddy, rowdy, and frequented by loud and boisterous people — but it wasn't breaking the law by selling dope. But, the thought came suddenly, full blown, it was the kind of a place where Agnes had heard something that had led to murder!

"Ted—"

"Yeah, Katy?" Ted sounded thoughtful. Was he beginning to connect Agnes Jerome's death with the death of Chris, too?

"Can you come out? I'll find us something for supper and—"

"Uh-huh," he interrupted. "I'll come, Katy—I was hoping you would ask me. Do you know that, darling?—but we'll go somewhere for supper. Meridian, or somewhere, where they've never heard of Agnes Jerome."

"Or Chris Elmo, Ted?"

"Stop it, Katy!" Then, "Half an hour?"

"I'll be ready," Katy said wearily.

She didn't want to go out. She would much rather fry ham and eggs and make coffee and eat in front of the log fire Ted could build in the living room, but Ted was being kind...as Dave Argus had been kind, she couldn't help thinking, and somehow she remembered young Johnny Jerome, saying, too, "I can't stand sympathy, Miss Elmo."

The plaintive cry followed her as she went upstairs to dress in the navy blue suit that had a navy and gray checked topper; she had bought them to wear to Teachers' Institute next week... to which she would not be going.

With her fingernail scissors, she loosened the gay red feather on her new hat. She didn't feel gay tonight, nor even defiant. She wanted, rather, to burrow into the hole of anonymity and lick her wounds in private. Like Johnny Jerome, she didn't want them—not even Ted Jordan — feeling sorry for her; she told herself that as she touched rouge to her cheeks, color to her lips. She tucked a rebellious tawny curl in place, studying herself in the mirror.

Except for her eyes, she might have been dressing for any one of her past dates with Ted or with Dave Argus. But she couldn't do anything about her eyes. In their blue depths, they still looked haunted.

Ted seemed not to notice. "Katy, you're a dream! Let's—"

"Let's stay home." She said it quickly, before the admiration in his face affected her.

"And waste you looking like that?"

"I'd—rather, Ted."

The forced good humor fled. His eyes, his whole being sobered. "All right, Katy. I was just trying to help."

"I know, Ted." She touched his arm. "Some other time—"

"Sure, Katy. Some other time." He tossed his hat at the hall-tree with the same old airiness, but like the attempted pretense it fell flat. "Guess I'm out of practice," Ted said as he stooped to pick it up.

Katy watched him hang up his topcoat, and tried not to wonder if he was thinking Chris's coat used to hang there, too. Chris never wore a hat.

"Light a fire, won't you, Ted?" It was something to say, something to do.

He caugh her spirit, or pretended to. "Logs in the same old place?"

She nodded. He and Chris had cut them at intervals during the summer. Long ricks were corded in the barn...in the dark. "You'd better take Major, Ted."

"I'll be all right."

"That's what Agnes Jerome thought."

Instantly Katy Elmo wished she hadn't spoken about Agnes Jerome. Katy's pretense at light heartedness, and Ted's as well, vanished and the fear was back. It stayed with them.

It stayed and it grew until it touched even the dog Major. Major, though he lay with paws outstretched toward the hearth, was uneasy, watchful without ever moving his magnificent head.

"I don't like it, Katy," Ted said once, when the dog's ears made radar-like half circles. "Do you suppose someone is prowling?"

"Who would?"

"The person who killed the Jerome woman." He put it so matter-of-factly.

Ledbetter's deputy had said not to depend too much on a dog and now Ted was warning her, too. "The killer returning to the scene of the crime, Ted?"

But Ted was watching Major. The big shepherd was on his feet, on silent guard that didn't waiver even when Katy dropped a hand to his head.

"Shall I take a look around?"

"No!" Katy cried through fear that was raw in her throat, and coppery-tasting.

Ted looked at her, quickly, questioningly. "But darling! We can't just sit and wait for—for whoever is out there to come to us!"

Ted is afraid too, Katy thought. But Ted has faith in me, he knows I didn't—

She drew a sharp breath when there was a heavy-knuckled rap at the door. Don't answer it, Ted! Don't go!

But she didn't cry it aloud, it was only her heart that was pleading. Of course they would answer the door. It was something one always did. An everyday occurrence, answering your door. She started to her feet.

"No, you don't, Katy." Ted's hand on her arm pulled her back. "I'll see who it is."

He grinned, barely, his own caution hiding the reassurance he intended, and Katy watched him go across the room into the hall. There was a tiny, terrible silence, punctuated by the turning of the knob.

"Oh. Hello!"

"You sound relieved. Expecting someone else?"

Dave! It was the voice of Dave Argus. Katy remembered to breathe again.

"We didn't know what to expect," Ted admitted.

"I imagine not." Then, as Katy went into the hall, "Hi, Katy Elmo. Still packing the chip on your shoulder for law and order?"

Katy stiffened in spite of the gladness that had come with the sound of his voice. "Can you give me one good reason why I shouldn't?" she challenged.

"I can." The gray eyes were laughing at her, teasing her when they shouldn't. Not in the face of murder.

Katy frowned.

"Me," Dave Argus finished, winking at Ted.

But Ted Jordan was in no winking mood. "Have you been prowling around the house?" he demanded.

"Yes, Dave," Katy said, "Major heard something, we think."

'Well, I"—Deputy Argus hung his head—'I did look around a little."

"In the dark? Why? What did you expect to find?"

"One thing at a time, Ted, one at a time," Dave held up a remonstrating hand. "In the dark, yes, because I wanted to see if I could follow that foot path—"

"Dave!" Katy gasped.

"—down from the gate like Agnes Jerome did." Dave Argus talked smoothly, as if Katy had not interrupted at his mention of the scene of the crime. "I walked in the dark, without seeing where I was going."

"You made it all right." Ted spoke. "So what?"

'I made it, but is was pretty rough going. And I wasn't running away from anyone, either."

Katy took a deep, steadying breath. What was Deputy Sheriff Dave Argus trying to say? It could be so important, yet the meaning seemed to escape her. 'Why did you need to know, Dave?" she asked.

Dave Argus seemed to be taking his time about answering. The seconds of pause seemed like minutes. And as Katy waited for the reply she remembered the slanting morning sunlight and the creek rippling over the rocks and Agnes Jerome's body.

Finally, when it seemed that Katy could stand the silence no longer, Dave Argus said, "Because Agnes Jerome didn't come down that path. A stranger wouldn't have tried it, even if she had known a path was there."

Agnes Jerome wouldn't have known the path through the woods was there! "Did she know about the path, Katy?" Deputy Sheriff Dave Argus asked.

Katy Elmo shook her head. "I don't know. She might have known, I suppose."

"Of course she could have know about the path." Ted Jordan spoke angrily. "Agnes had lived around here all her life. She could have heard of it—she might even have walked it sometime. And what was to keep her from finding it the night she was killed?"

Dave shrugged. "But she probably didn't know about it and even if she did, I doubt if she was familiar enough with this woods to want to walk it in pitch darkness. No," he shook his head. "I think Miss Jerome was waylaid between the road and the house—on the lane probably — and her body was dropped off the foot bridge. Maybe the murderer hoped it would be called an accidental death from a fall on those rocks."

It was a straw and Katy grasped it. "It could have been! Oh, it must have been!"

"Katy, Katy!" Ted cried. "Don't you see what Dave's doing to you? He's trying to make it seem like you did it!" Then, "I won't have it, Dave. You let Katy alone!"

Outbreak of Army Worms at Midland

MIDLAND (CP) — A serious outbreak or army worms has been reported in Flos Township, 18 miles south of here.

The outbreak occurred on the farm of W. J. McClung, where two acres of grain have been destroyed. At least two other farms in the district have been attacked by the pests, destroying about eight acres of grain, and they have been seen lying under bales of hay in fields north of Elmvale, 12 miles south of here.

Oh my! I'll bet this costs us plenty!

Silly accident, but expensive!

All accidents are silly—and unexpected.

The grocer boy does not plan to trip over a toy wagon in your driveway and break an arm.

But it can cost you thousands in a damage suit.

Or your dog may bite a stranger (or a friend). You may hit somebody with a golf ball. Your child may sock a passerby with a rock. A mailman may scoot on the ice or on a roller skate.

A very inexpensive America Fore policy will cover you against damage suits from all these and other unplanned expensive accidents. For example, you can get $10,000 liability protection for only $10 a year.

LONG STEEL STRIKE ENDS, AGREEMENT REACHED

Fire 8,000 Rounds in Two Hours

Weary expressions on the faces of three Royal Canadian Regiment machine-gunners testify to the strenuous night spent in the Korean fox-hole in support of a night patrol. They fired 8,000 rounds of amunition in less than two hours. Left to right: Pte. Thomas Ridgeway, Camp Borden, Ont.; Pte. John Gandy, Toronto; and Pte. Other Democratic Aspirants Stall Presidential Ballot Trying to Block Stevenson

CHICAGO (CP)—A big field of hopefuls today tried desperately to stop a roll towards Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois as the feuding, quarreling Democratic convention reached the hour for picking a presidential candidate.

Backers of Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee and Mutual Security Administrator, Averell Harriman, whipped in the battle last night and early today over seating southern rebels against a loyalty pledge, hoped for a shift of sentiment among delegates trooping back into the convention amphitheatre for the convention's big job.

Kefauver and Harriman believed they had perhaps slowed a Stevenson steam-roller by delaying tactics which stalled off a presidential ballot last night although leaders kept the convention in session until two o'clock in the morning.

See Southerner No. 2

The way the Stevenson forces manoeuvred to seat the Virginia, Louisiana and South Carolina delegations, despite their refusal to take a loyalty pledge, pointed toward a southerner as the No. 2 man on the ticket—if Stevenson wins.

But those northern elements which fly the "liberal" banner indicated they will scrap to get one of their men accepted.

With 11 candidates in the field, it might well take several ballots to shake out the "favorite sons" and get a decision.

Even in this climactic hour, Stevenson still wasn't saying whether he would accept a nomination.

The Stevenson men were credited with bringing back into the fold bolt-threatening delegations from Virginia, South Carolina and Louisiana.

They won a clear cut—though narrow—victory in keeping the delegates at work but they had to surrender finally and allow adjournment in the early-morning hours because of what had all of the earmarks of a fillibuster by the Kefauver-Harriman coalition.

First Ballot Standings

With the start of balloting only a few hours away the Associated Press tabulation of known first-ballot standings was: Kefauver 272½; Stephenson 215, Senator Richard Russell of Georgia 207, Harriman 107½; others 247½, uncommitted 179½. (Needed to nominate 615½).

Kefauver and Harriman took a 615-to-529 licking in efforts to prevent the 28-vote Virginia delegation from balloting on presidential and vice-presidential nominees.

The Virginians had refused to subscribe fully to a new loyalty pledge put across by the Kefauver-Harriman combine which would require delegates to go to work to place the convention's nominees on

CENSUS COST DOWN

OTTAWA — (CP) — The job of counting heads in Canada — the census undertaken every ten years — is expected to cost about $7,000,000, an anticipated saving of $2,000,000 over the original estimate. Herbert Marshall, Dominion statistician, said yesterday new methods of collecting the figures and use of new machines are expected to make a big saving when work is completed about June, 1953.

Churchill Soothes Labor Leaders Promises Action

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Churchill yesterday pacified a delegation of angry labor leaders who called on him to protest against his Labor Minister's refusal to sanction wage increases for 1,500,000 store workers.

The delegation, representing the 8,000,000-member Trades Union Congress, accepted Churchill's promise that the protest would be carefully considered and agreed to further talks with the Minister, Sir Walter Monckton.

The T.U.C. maintains Monckton abused his powers under an industrial act by refusing to approve the increases after employers had already agreed to them. Monckton has defended his action in Parliament, pointing to the government's call for wage restraint to ease Britain's economic problems.

Condition Unchanged

BUENOS AIRES, (Reuters) — The condition of Eva Peron has undergone no change in the last 24 hours, a bulletin issued late last night said.

The wife of the Argentine President has been seriously ill several months. The previous bulletin, issued Wednesday, said her condition is "delicate".

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: Thursday night was cool in southern Ontario with the lowest temperature of 45 degrees reported at Killaloe. With clear skies the temperature will rise rapidly today and near normal temperatures are expected tonight and Saturday.

A band of scattered showers and thunderstorms will move across the forecast regions tonight and tomorrow and will be followed by slightly cooler weather again on Sunday.

Peanuts, Pink Lemonade Sales Good But General Circus Business Down

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Running 15,000 miles across North America in a season, a circus probably can gauge current conditions as well as any business.

One of the biggest travelling shows hit Vancouver recently and reported: Gates off 35 per cent from 1951; operating costs up 33 1-3 per cent.

In 1946 this circus, Clyde Beatty's show, grossed 1,000,000, its all-time high. Last year it grossed $750,000.

"This year," says the circus' auditor, "high cost-of-living, high home rentals in the U.S. and the competition in election year will cut that by 35 per cent."

Salaries for performers, food and repair costs are all up. Top performers under the Big Top get $100 to $350 a week for the 30-week season. Laborers get $25 a week. The circus gives them lodging, food and medical care free.

A circus needs top executives just as any big business. Besides an auditor, executives include the men who sell the tickets, manage the freaks, run the electrical plant and feed the employees and animals. To survive, circuses must be run with clock-like precision.

There is no drop in the elephant or tiger market. A good "pach" or "cat" is worth $5,000.

The lion market is glutted, though. The king of beasts is worth only $250.

FOURTH PERSON COMMITTED ON NARCOTIC CHARGE

Crippled Woman Arrested at Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—A fourth person was committed for trial yesterday on charges of distributing narcotics to Vancouver juveniles as police picked up three more suspected drug "pushers."

One of those arrested was a 36-year-old woman paraplegic in a wheel chair. Police battered down a door in a Skid Row hotel to arrest her and two male companions.

Girls Testify

Robert Woods, 20, was committed for trial following the testimony of three teen-aged girls.

Patricia Findlay, 18, already sentenced to 18 months in prison for supplying narcotics to juveniles, testified:

"I met Bobby in a cafe after I ran away from girls' industrial school and he asked me if I wanted a fix.

"I went with him to his room, he cooked the cookings and I took it in the line."

(By this she meant he heated heroin and water in a spoon to make it soluble enough to go in a needle and then into a vein.)

Tells of Hotel Party

Another 18-year-old girl told of a "hype" party in an east-end hotel during which she and three others took a number of fixes over a two-day period.

"The first afternoon Bobby cooked, gave me and Pat a fix and then took one himself. We lay on the bed and coasted (relaxed under the initial effect of the drug). Pat and myself then went shopping. We bought black hair dye because my boy friend said he liked that color. We returned to the room. Towards evening, Bobby came back with a capsule and we fixed again."

New Yorkers Urge Construction Of Lower Plant

OGDENSBURG, N.Y. (AP)—Thirty-two witnesses from northern New York yesterday urged the International Joint Commission to give New York state and the province of Ontario permission to build a big power plant on the St. Lawrence River.

Representatives of dairymen stressed the need of farmers for additional power and industrial spokesmen said the project would bring new business to the area.

There was no testimony in opposition to the project.

At the conclusion of the hearing, the chairman of the United States section indicated he was optimistic that a plan could be worked out for construction of the power dam without further raising the high water level of Lake Ontario

The proposed power dam would be built across the St. Lawrence between Massena, N.Y., and Cornwall, Ont.

Two Top Egyptian Officers Captured While Attempting To Get Out of Country by Plane

CAIRO (Reuters)—Two top-ranking Egyptian service chiefs, fleeing a series of arrests ordered by Gen. Mohammed Naguib, were captured today when their plane made a forced landing near the Libyan border.

Air Commodore Hassan Akef Bey one of Egypt's most famous airmen Bey, Egyptian Frontier Corps chief, had taken off earlier from Alexandria.

They had taken off as Naguib ordered the arrest of five top-ranking police officials accused of planning to disturb "the public order" and underlined the army's hold on the country by dispatching reinforcements to Alexandria, the summer capital.

Naguib, who also sent tanks clattering through the streets of Cairo for the first time since the army seized power Wednesday, went to Alexandria himself to confer with Aly Maher Pasha, whom he made premier after the coup.

Hassan Akef is renowned in Egypt for making the first non-stop flight from London to Khartoum in 1950.

Army authorities said today they were gradually transferring power back to the police. But troops with machine-guns still guarded the key positions of the city, now calm and fast returning to normal.

Maj. Cyril Tomlyn, British assistant military attache, called on Naguib and assured him there would be "no interference in the present situation," it was learned.

(The British envoy in Alexandria, M.J. Creswell, also called on Maher today.)

Gen. Mohammed Naguib Bey, who took over as army chief and led the coup, announced the new arrests.

Those arrested were Gen. Abdel Monsef Mahmoud Pasha, undersecretary at the interior ministry; Gen. Ahmed Tallat Bey, Cairo police commandant; Gen. Imam Ibrahim Bey, political department chief at the interior ministry; Col. Tewfik el Said and Col. Mohamed el Gazzar of the Cairo police special branch.

Democrats Adopt Platform Polish Same Weapons That Upset Dewey in '48

CHICAGO (AP)—Democrats have dusted off and polished the same weapons they used four years ago to win an upset victory over the Republicans.

These weapons include: claims that their party has built prosperity on the "economic ruins of Republican bungling" and that it is leading the world to an eventual "peace with honor."

The party expressed confidence, in a bulky platform heavy with self-praise, that these tools would forge another victory next November. The platform was adopted by the party's national convention yesterday.

Republicans, in their national convention here two weeks ago, anticipated the Democratic arguments.

"They (Democrats) claim prosperity," the republican platform said, "but the appearance of economic health is created by war expenditures, waste and extravagance, planned emergencies, and war crises."

As to Democratic peace claims, the Republicans had this to say:

"We charge that the leaders of the administration in power lost the peace so dearly earned in World War II."

In 1948, the Democrats campaigned on a platform that boasted they had led the country to the "broadest" prosperity in history. Then, as now, the Republicans contended prosperity had a "false" basis provided by government spending.

Farmers Tipped Scales

The outcome of the 1948 ballot battle turned largely on the economic issue, with farmers in the normally-Republican midwest tipping the scales in favor of President Truman over Governor Thomas E. Dewey.

So, it's most likely that this year's Democratic campaign will be pitched on this 1952 platform declaration:

14 Year Old Boy Escapes Ambush

SINGAPORE (Reuters)—It may have been just another skirmish in Britain's war with the Communist guerrillas, but to Terry Edmett it was the greatest moment of his 14 years.

The lad, son of an English rubber planter, crouched behind the wheel of an armored car and drove his parents and younger brother to safety through a hail of bullets in a jungle ambush yesterday.

When the Communists sprang their trap in the Kotatingga area of Johore the boy was driving his father's armored car out to inspect a rubber estate.

Suddenly terrorists poured in fire from a jungle thicket, the Edmetts returning it from the armored car.

Terry never hesitated. Up the road he went, only to find a burned-out truck had been pushed across as a block by the bushwhackers.

He changed into low gear, and nudged the block into the ditch. Still under fire, he got the car past.

Frankford Girl Operated on For Skull Fracture

TORONTO — (CP) — Helen Bonisteel, five, underwent brain surgery for a depressed fracture of the skull at the Toronto General hospital today.

A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bonisteel, she was struck by a car near her home at Frankford yesterday. Brought to the Hospital for Sick Children she was later transferred to the Toronto General for the operation.

Students Preview Exam Papers Before Tests

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, Eng. (Reuters) —Education authorities were puzzled by the high percentage of students who passed recent examinations with flying colors—until they learned that many of the kids saw the questions before taking the tests.

The mystery broke last night when it was revealed that a printer's apprentice gave a couple of reject papers to a 16-year-old school chum. The chum passed them on to some of his friends, who in turn circulated the papers to pals of theirs—in five other schools.

"I gave the papers to my friend because I thought they would help him," confessed Douglas Wallace, 16.

Results of Doug's little gesture of goodwill: He's been fired, his friend has been suspended from school, many of the 500 boys and girls who took the exams have been told they'll automatically be failed.

Air Force Major Delivers Paper

MARIANNA, Fla. (AP)—Delivering his newspapers yesterday, 13-year-old Wayne Gainer ran up against an air force blockade around the residential area where a B-47 crashed Tuesday.

Maj.-Gen. Frank Armstrong, commander officer of the 6th air division, explained to the boy that no one could get into the area.

This paper has to be delivered, Wayne insisted. And if he couldn't go into the area the general would have to deliver it.

General Armstrong delegated Maj. Ted Silver to deliver the paper to the "third house on the left" as the carrier boy directed.

IRANIANS WARNED AGAINST RED INFILTRATIONS

Nationalist Leaders Worried Over Situation

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's new national police chief warned Iranians attempting to use the nationalistic outbreaks which drove former premier Ahmed Qavam from power to further "sinister" Red aims

Speaking in a country-wide radio broadcast, Police Chief Kazam Sheibani indicated that members of the outlawed Tudeh (Communist) party had infiltrated Nationalist organizations.

"Hound out such elements from your ranks and try to know them and reveal their plans," Sheibani urged the Nationalists.

Forced Resignation

Sheibani, an army brigadier, took over the police after the bloody riots Monday that forced Qavam to resign and restored Mossadegh to greater power than ever before. Thirty-five or more persons died in the outbursts.

Mossadegh, aged Nationalist architect of Iran's oil-nationalization policy, had given up the premiership a few days earlier when Shah Mohammed Rezi Pahlevi refused to allow him to become war minister in his new Cabinet.

Sheibani claimed that demonstrations against Iran's Shah during the riots were staged by Red youth organizations. His broadcast was the strongest indication yet that Nationalist leaders are worried over the extent to which Communists have been succesful in infiltrating Nationalist organizations.

Reds Responsible

(The State Department in Washington charged yesterday that Communists were responsible for anti-American demonstrations during the Tehran rioting.)

Police, pulled off the streets by the government during the violence Monday, were having some trouble resuming control of Tehran. In a small clash last night, policemen going back to traffic duties had to use tear gas to oust Nationalist youths from the police beats they had assumed.

although anti-American feeling was boiling up in Tehran because of belief that the U.S. had supported both Qavam and the British side of the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute, only the one American was reported injured in the demonstrations.

An unidentified U.S. Army sergeant was struck by a flying brick —and that was believed to have been an accident.

Hearings End On Power Project

CORNWALL, Ont. (AP)—The International Joint Commission today winds up three days of hearings on plans to harness the water power of the St. Lawrence River.

The province of Ontario is asking the commission's authority to build a huge power plant. New York State later may seek to join the project.

The idea got a big boost at the I.J.C's hearing yesterday in Ogdensburg, N.Y., where 32 spokesmen from northern New York urged construction of the power complex. None opposed it.

The power hearings started Wednesday in Toronto with the high-water level of the Great Lakes a companion subject.

At yesterday's session the chairman of the U. S. commissioners said he hoped the power dam could be built without raising the level of Lake Ontario.

The proposed dam would cross the St. Lawrence between Massena New York and Cornwall.

Bargains in Canned Meat Offered As Board Unloads Pork Stocks

OTTTAW (CP)—Government stocks of canned pork are to be offered for sale in Canada through regular trade channels for retail distribution beginning July 28, the Agricultural Prices Support Board announced today.

The board said the wholesale price will be 40 cents per pound in carlots, bases Ontario and Quebec points, with appropriate freight differentials in other areas.

The board said that price "represents a substantial reduction from present values."

As a result of the United States embargo on Canadian meat arising from the foot-and-mouth disease outbreak in Saskatchewan, Canada has piled up a large surplus of pork. This has been purchased by the Agricultural Prices Support Board in the form of canned pork.

The board said its stocks are under government specifications and is packed in 12-ounce tins under the usual trade brands for pork luncheon meat or pork loaf."

Modified Form Union Shop, Wage Boost Reported

Production Is Expected To Resume Next Week

By ROWLAND EVANS JR.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The longest, costliest steel strike in American history is, in effect, over. Production is expected to resume next week.

The striking United Steelworkers' Union (C.I.O.) was considered virtually certain today to ratify a strike-end agreement reached at the White House after President Truman personally demanded and got a settlement.

The end of the crippling, 53-day strike was announced late yesterday by the President, with C.I.O. President Philip Murray and the U.S. Steel chairman, Benjamin Fairless, standing beside him.

Predicts Fast Start

Calling reporters into his office, Truman told them Murray and Fairless "have reached agreement on important basic issues" and predicted a "speedy resumption of steel production."

He said Murray will meet today with his 175-man wage-policy committee to get ratification of the agreement.

Fairless, it was reliably learned, plans to make a personal appearance before this committee in a dramatic move aimed at wiping out any bitterness.

At best it will be four or five days before any substantial production of steel is reached. It takes that long to heat up the banked blast furnaces which stand-by workers have kept alive since the strike started June 2.

The new steel which comes out of some 380 affected plants will sell for at least $5.20 a ton more than before the strike started. The government approved a price increase of that amount for raw, or carbon, steel. Specialized, high-alloy steel will get a boost of $5.65 a ton.

Follows Wilson Pattern

The increase was the same as that which Charles E. Wilson, as Defence Mobilizer, had said the industry should get to compensate for higher wage costs. Price Stabilizer Ellis Arnall said the industry should not get more than the $2.84 allowed under the law.

Truman stuck with Arnall and Wilson resigned.

No wage or other terms were announced, but it was reliably learned that the agreement includes these conditions.

A wage boost of 16 cents an hour for 650,000 basic steel workers; a highly-modified form of unionshop which allows present non-union members to stay out and gives new employees a 15-day escape period during their first month of employment; six paid holidays; three weeks vacation after 15 years' service; a two-year contract dating from last June 30, with a wage reopener next June 30.

These concessions come to a total of just over 21 cents an hour for each worker. Pre-strike pay averaged slightly less than $2.

Repercussions Great

The strike and the dispute which preceded it had enormous repercussions throughout the federal government.

On April 8 the President seized the entire industry. The Supreme Court on June 2 voided the seizure as unlawful and said Truman had no inherent power to take over the industry.

The pay and union-shop recommendations made by the Wage Stabilization Board March 20 led to a complete revamping of the W.S.B. last month. Congress abolished the W.S.B., which Truman had created by executive order, and set up a new board with no power to intervene in and propose settlements in labor disputes.

The Justice Department has been investigating a complaint by the union that the six major steel producers were guilty of violating the anti-trust laws by their pact not to sign up with Murray separately.

All six companies were party to yesterday's agreement. They are: U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Jones and Laughlin, Inland and Youngstown Sheet and Tube. Together they account for 70 per cent of U.S. productive capacity.

Other steel concerns are expected to go along with the agreement between Murray and the Big Six.

Anglican Bishop, Wife Killed In Car Crash

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP)—Rt. Rev. J. B. Gibson, 72-year-old Anglican bishop of Caledonia, and his wife were killed in an automobile accident near here yesterday.

Miss Eileen Gibson, their daughter, and Rev. S. R. Deacon, a family friend and retired missionary, were injured.

The four had just left Prince Rupert for a holiday at the Gibsons' summer home at Kitwanga, 120 miles east of here, when their car brushed a truck heading in the same direction and swerved into a 20-foot ditch. The driver of the truck was not hurt.

Born at Armagh, Northern Ireland, Bishop Gibson entered the church missionary society and emigrated to Saskatchewan in 1906. He was ordained a priest in 1910 and his first parish was St. Cuthbert's at Perdue, Sask.

In 1920 he was appointed to Anyox in northern British Columbia. He came to St. Andrew's Cathedral here as rector in 1928 and was appointed dean the following year. He was elected Bishop of Caledonia June 13, 1945, upon the death of Bishop G. A. Rix.

Victims' Widows Get Compensation

WINNIPEG (CP)—Widows of all seven victims of Monday's Manitoba Government Air Service plane crash will receive insurance which covers all government employees, a provincial spokesman said yesterday.

This is apart from workmen's compensation which covered all seven aboard the Norseman when it crashed 200 miles north of Winnipeg.

Widows of the two engineers—John G. Horsburgh and Arthur G. Hanson—will receive $20,000 each, while widows of the other five civil servants will receive $10,000 each.

Members of the Compensation Board said each of the widows will receive $50 a month for life and $12 a month for each child under 16 years.

All seven bodies have been removed from the wreckage and carried by helicopter and plane to Lac du Bonnet.

Only One Star Granted Tourist Places This Year

In an article appearing in yesterday's edition regarding the grading of tourist establishments by the provincial government in the province, James T. Davis secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, acting on information received from Toronto stated establishments would be graded this year by stars. One star would indicate the place met the minimum requirements, two stars very good and three stars showed the place to be of an outstanding nature. The information Mr. Davis received was correct but since he received the notice the department has changed its policy for this year at least.

Mr. Davis in a statement said today, "Several inquiries were made following yesterday's story in the paper as to why the classification was only granting one star when the quality of the place may have been higher."

This morning a telephone call was placed to Mr. C. D. Crowe, director of the development branch of the Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity

Mr. Davis said Mr. Crowe stated since there were over 7,000 establishments in Ontario to be checked, the department intended to carry out this work in a very careful manner. Thus for the year 1952 any establishment which receives the approval of the department will receive only one star regardless of size or quality of the premises.

In the balance of the year, inspectors will carry out their work further and in 1953 it is expected that the full grading of establishments will be completed.

SEE GERMAN COMBINE

Its machanism is driven by a motor on the combine but it is hauled by a tractor or other motive power. Canadian - made combines are self - propelled but do not bale the straw.

Between 80-100 Moose Believed In Quinte Area

One of the questions asked trappers at spring meetings this year was how many moose or moose tracks they actually saw on traplines last winter. From the replies received, 33 trappers reported having seen 68 moose or their tracks and after making some additional provision for unlicensed townships, Fish and Wildlife officials estimate approximately 80 to 100 moose occupying range in the Quinte district.

The populated area is confined to the west and northern quarter of the district covering roughly 1750 square miles and the density works out to an average of one animals to 19 or 20 square miles.

No Shortage Of Milk Here Say Dairymen

Despite the fact that drying pasture have caused a seasonal drop in the milk flow there is no shortage of milk in sight for Belleville milk distributors.

This was stated today by city dairymen who said emphatically "there is nothing to worry about."

One dairyman reported that milk production among his suppliers was not much below normal despite the dry weather and as a matter of fact he still had surplus milk each day. Another said the milk supply was holding its own well in the Belleville area.

It was pointed out that haying operations are now completed and cows are pasturing second crop alfalfa which has counteracted the drying pastures.

City dairymen reported a Port Hope distributor had purchased milk in the city this week to supply his tourist requirements in the Muskoka Lakes area. Milk requirements for this dairy would jump two or three hundred per cent during the holiday period, it was stated.

Will Continue Manslaughter Hearing Aug. 11

The preliminary hearing of a motor manslaughter charge against Bruce Wagar of Perth district, held at Madoc this week before Magistrate R. C. Jackson will be continued on August 11.

Wagar is charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Donald Snider, also of the Perth area, who died May 5 after the car in which the two men were riding ran into the side of a Canadian National Railways train east of Marmora on No. 7 highway.

At the inquest looking into the death of Snider it was found that he had drowned in a water-filled highway ditch where he had been thrown following the impact. Wagar, as driver of the vehicle, was found negligent by the coroner's jury and the manslaughter charge was laid by Provincial Police.

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan said that most of the Crown's technical evidence was presented at the preliminary held this week. Mr. J. D. O'Flynn, solicitor, is appearing for Wagar.

City Sends Letter To Commission On Lake Levels

There was no representation from Belleville at the International Joint Commission on Great Lakes levels which held their Canadian meeting at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto this week, but the Commission was informed by letter that any permanent rise in the Lake Ontario level above 249 feet would cause grave inconvenience locally.

Mayor A. M. Haig in his letter to the Commission noted that a lake level in excess of 250 above sea level would require very substantial monies to be spent on elevating docks, warehouses and removing homes and some industries from the area adjacent to the Bay of Quinte.
